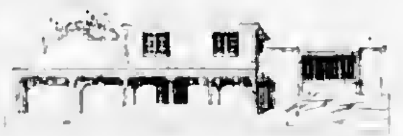
Are you cut out to finish a Capp Home yourself?

Come to our Open House and find out.



In 32 years, Capp has made quality custom-built housing affordable for over 50,000 families.

We don't build pre-fab or modular houses. We erect the home of your choice, stick by stick, on your lot and the foundation you provide using only top-quality materials.

By the time our carpenters leave your house is fully enclosed and ready for you to finish.

We provide all the necessary materials you need to finish it yourself. Following our concise, step by step instructions, you can complete your dream home at an undreamed of price.

By finishing it themselves, many Capp customers save thousands of dollars compared to what they'd pay a general contractor to build the same home on the same lot.

You don't have to be a craftsman, either. Just crafty. You can act as your own general contractor, hiring local help, and still come out money ahead.

Either way, you'll get a home that's uniquely yours. A custom built home, designed to your personal specifications.

One that will be worth far more than you paid for it the day you move in.

Capp Homes are such a good value they qualify for FHA, VA, Farm Home and conventional mortgages. If you can't get financing from another lender, Capp has millions in mortgage money available at conventional terms to qualified buyers.

You may even be able to use the equity built up in your present home or building site to get started on a new Capp Home.

Come see for yourself at a Capp Open House. You'll have a chance to inspect a Capp Home that's partially completed, and decide whether you're cut out to finish a Capp Home.

HERE'S HOW TO GET TO THE CAPP OPEN HOUSE.
Where: S. Indian Garden Road, Petoskey, MI
When: Saturday, August 26, 1978

County Bank, Carson's grab lead

Country State Bank went one game up on Kusina Motors Monday night in their best of three championship series in the Charlevoix Women's Slow-Pitch League playoffs with a 7-3 win.

Meanwhile, in the men's playoffs, Carson Lumber dumped Erber Auto twice by identical 8-5 scores to grab a 2-0 lead in their best of five series.

Gunner and Erik Lundteigen, Russ Langs and Gale Sheldan.

Tennis winners announced

Erik Lundteigen, the No. 1 seed in last weekend's Charlevoix Adult Open Tennis Tournament, lived up to his billing by taking No. 2 seed Mark Lignell 6-4, 6-4 in the men's singles championship.

But in the men's doubles competition, Lundteigen and his father, Gunnar, were upended by Gale Sheldon and Russ Langs 6-3, 6-4.

Sixteen tennis players participated in the singles competition and 13 teams competed in doubles play.

Kiteley, Shapton exchange vows

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Shapton

The Ironton Congregational Church was the scene Saturday evening of the wedding of Cindy Sue Kiteley and Ronald Lee Shapton.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Kiteley and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Shapton.

Arrangements of garden flowers and lighted tapers graced the altar for the double ring ceremony solemnized by the Rev. H.E. Kruse, Jr. Gayle McDermott, at the organ, played a program of traditional music and the wedding march and accompanied the soloists, Mrs. Dane Whitley and David Siegrist.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of ivory polyester sheer fashioned with a Czarina bodice, long full sleeves, raised waist line and full skirt that featured a semi-cathedral train. Venice lace appliques accented the bodice, sleeves, waistline and hemline. The bride wore her mother's wedding veil which was secured by a band of Venice lace and outlined in florettes of the same lace. She carried a bouquet of pastel dried flowers.

Mrs. Charles Kiteley, Jr., assisted her sister-in-law as matron of honor and Mario Wojan, Bonnie Hilton and Sandra Hufford were bridesmaids. They wore identical gowns of ice peach styled with cowl necklines and cap sleeves. Their bouquets were of matching dried flowers.

Michael Kiteley, brother of the bride, was best man. Christopher Wimmer, Timothy DeYoung and Rex Hodge were groomsmen. Charles Kiteley, Jr., brother of the bride, and Donald Shapton of Traverse City, brother of the bridegroom, seated the guests.

A reception, hosted by the couple's parents, followed at the American Legion post home.

After a wedding trip through the Smokey Mountains, the couple will return to live n R-1, Charlevoix.

The bride is employed by Consumer Power Co at its Big Rock plant. The bridegroom is with the engineering department of Hufford's Industries.

The rehearsal dinner, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Shapton, was held at the Argonne Supper Club. (Photo by Jim Sundberg)

Special bus run planned

The special bus run for the benefit for all kindergarten children who will be entering school for the first time this fall has been scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 30 Vincent Olach, business manager, has announced.

Buses will depart at 9 a.m. on this date and, following regular designated routes, will stop at the home of every child who is registered for kindergarten.

Parents are asked to be present at the time the child meets his or her bus driver who will then take each child on a tour of the bus, explain bus etiquette and answer any questions the child might have regarding the bus.

Starting school can be a traumatic experience for a child even though it is something he has been looking forward to with pleasure. By acquainting the child with his new mode of transportation, we feel that it will help make the experience a happy one Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren explained.

Births

Recent births at the Charlevoix Area Hospital were:

A son, Michael Jason, born to Robbin and Zoe Rehling of Walloon Lake.

A son, Marc Richard, born to Larry and Cheryl Jacobs of Charlevoix.

A daughter, Sherry Lynn, born to Dr. James and Carol Geis of Charlevoix.

A son, Jacoll Michael, born to James and Pamela Potter of Charlevoix.

A daughter, Erin Michelle, born to Michael and Linda Wacyk of Walloon Lake.

Nearly 100 attend reunion

Under perfect sunny August skies, at Elm Point in East Jordan, the Stevens - Coleman clan met for their annual reunion on Sunday.

There were approximately 100 in attendance including Catherine Coleman Rice traveling the farthest distance, from Hesperia, Calif.

The oldest person in attendance was Clint Blanchard, 90 plus years, a life-long neighbor of the Stevens.

Many other out of town relatives attended and enjoyed a bountiful potluck dinner with another gathering planned for next year.

Skeel-Rittenberry exchange vows

St. Mary's Church was the scene last week for the wedding of Lori Ann Skeel and Norman Neil Rittenberry of Pontiac who is stationed at Bay Shore with the U.S. Air Force.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Skeel of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Rittenberry of Pontiac.

The. Bev. R. Dale Magoon officiated at the double ring service in the presence of 100 guests.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, chose a gown of cream puff crepe and Chantilly lace designed and made by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Gordon Skeel. Fashioned along empire lines, it featured a fitted bodice of Chantilly lace and full skirt with a chapel length train of Chantilly lace that fell from the waist. A band of the same lace secured her fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of red and white silk roses and baby's breath.

Susan Kane, as maid of honor, and Rebecca Allard, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaid, wore sleeveless empire gowns of sea green jersey crepe. Their bouquets were of yellow silk carnations, blue forget-me-nots and baby's breath.

Dale Rhea of the U.S Air Force at Bay Shore assisted the bridegroom as best man. Robert Wirgau also of the U.S. Air Force, was groomsman. Phillip Skeel, Gordon Skeel and Paul Skeel, brothers of the bride, seated the guests.

In lieu of a wedding trip at this time, the couple will leave Aug. 20 for Wallwoon Village, Maine, where Mr. Rittenberry will be stationed with the U.S. Air Force.

Care facility plans bazaar

The Grandvue Medical Care Facility will hold its annual bazaar, bake sale with white elephant sale at the facility grounds on Thursday, Aug. 31, it has been announced.

The facility is located on Peninsula Road on the east side of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

The event will open at 10 a.m. and continue throughout the day until 4 p.m.

The bazaar features all types of hand work made by the patients at the facility as well as baked goods contributed by members of the Auxiliary and others. White elephants will be offered for the first time this year. Anyone wishing to contribute either baked goods or white elephants may do so.

If you would like to make such a contribution, call the facility to ask where it might be left if you are unable to take it to the facility yourself.

Funds realized from the sale are used to purchase equipment for use by the patients.

Marriage licenses issued

The following marriage licenses were recently issued by the Charlevoix County Clerk:

David J. Mutz, 24, Charlevoix and Victoria J. Shultz Atchison, 26, Charlevoix.

Eric M. Anderson, 21, Dearborn, and Susan L. Westcott, 23, Boyne Falls.

Gordon W. Block, 23, Charlevoix, and Nancy Jo Alger, 19, Charlevoix.

Alan C. Newville, 23, Boyne City, and Susan M. Wells, 24, Boyne City.

Anthony M. Motelski, 22, Boyne Falls, and Julie Anne Mentel, 21, Boyne Falls.

Obits

Annis Struthers

Funeral services for a former resident, Annis E. Struthers, 71, who died Aug. 16 at Red Bluff, Calif., were held there on Friday. Interment was in a Red Bluff Cemetery.

Born in Hayes township, Charlevoix, Nov. 11, 1906, Annis Elizabeth Struthers was graduated from the Charlevoix High School in 1928. She attended Hurley Hospital School of Nursing in Flint for one year before transferring to St. Vincent's Hospital School of Nursing in Portland, Ore. After completing her nurse's training, she entered the field of Public Health Nursing and was with the Klamath Falls (Ore) School System for many years until going tto the Red Bluff School System in 1956. She retired in 1970.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Marion Schleffel of Red Bluff, Calif., and Mrs. Claude (Dorris) Pearsall of Charlevoix and one brother, Robert R. Peterson of Portland, Ore.

Two proposals on ballot

Charlevoix school officials will be crossing their fingers Tuesday, Sept. 12 as voters decide the fate of two bond proposals.

Proposal one asks for $2.315 million for classroom addition and renovation at the high school.

Proposal two asks for $885,000 for an addition to the physical education room and locker rooms.

The first proposal is particularly crucial, school officials say, because if it's defeated the high school could lose its accreditation due to inadequate facilities and overcrowding.

The $2.315 million would be used for new laboratories, additional classrooms, a larger Instructional Materials Center (library), a larger cafeteria and building repairs. The additional space would allow school officials to eliminate three portables.

The addition would connect the two buildings and, officials say, conserve energy.

The high school is designed for 472 students. Last year there were 640 students and, according to projections by Michigan State University, there will still be an overcrowding by more than 100 students in 1990.

The lack of classrooms has caused havoc in the science department. According to Principal Vane Smith, as many as 50 students will not be able to enroll in science classes this year because of the classroom shortage.

"If this situation would exist for only one year it would eventually be remedied, but the problem will only be compounded as time goes on," Smith said.

Proposal two would go towards bringing the school into compliance with Title IX, which requires that like facilities be made available for both sexes.

Because the school has increased its sports program considerably in the past 20 years, physical education space is also at a premium. In fact, if proposal two is defeated it could directly hurt the city recreation program, which uses school facilities.

According to school officials, the high school sports program is demanding more and more time, therefore, less time is available for city recreation sports.

If both proposals pass, the $3.2 million will be paid over a 16 year period. The first year 2.8 mills will be levied. This will gradually decrease, officials say, as the district's state equalized valuation increases.

The school district presently levies 25.35 mills for operation, 1 mill for middle school renovation, 2.1 mills for debt retirement and .4 mill for the public library.

The polls at the elementary school will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m.

Teachers ratify contract

Teachers in the Charlevoix School District have a new contract.

The Northern Michigan Education Association ratified a contract Thursday between the Charlevoix Board of Education and the NMEA of Charlevoix. The NMEA of Charlevoix represents the district's 85 teachers.

The board of education had ratified the contract at a meeting held a week ago Monday.

According to Bill Murray, negotiator for the teachers, and Gordon VanWieren, superintendent of schools, the agreement was reached after several bargaining sessions held over the summer months. Both Murray and VonWieren expressed satisfaction with the new contract and noted that due to the good relationship between the teachers and the board a three year agreement was reached which should allow the school district to better plan its budget situation over a longer period of time.

The agreement provides for salary increases to be made over the three year period of 7 percent for 1978-79, 7 percent for 1979-80 and 8 percent for 1980-81. It also provides for health insurance and other fringe benefits to continue as in previous contracts, and establishes the school calendar for the 1978-79 school year.

Hospital campaign drive passes halfway mark - $400,000

The half-way mark has been passed – over $400,000 – in the $750,000 Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Raising Campaign.

"Passing the half-way point is a milestone, a peak you must get over." Glenn L. Kenney, Campaign Chairman said, as he told other campaign leaders that the campaign now has received pledges and cash donations totaling $401,150.

Kenney said the donations have come from large and small donors, individuals and businesses.

"This week's pledge of $15,000 by the First State Bank of Charlevoix put us over the mark." Kenney announced.

Louis Hollow, President of the First State Bank and member of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directers commented, "It's not easy to do what we've done, but the Board of Directors of the bank, the staff and I, all of us, are pleased to make this committment to the hospital and to the Charlevoix Area.

"I also hope that when the people of Charlevoix see this kind of effort by us, as well as others, they too will step forward and meet this pressing need," Hollow said.

"I personally encourage all of us to reach a little further when considering a pledge," Hollow continued.

"By all of us, both companies and individuals alike, joining together in this total effort, we'll help keep our hospital prepared for the time when we need it most," the bank president stated.

Campaign organizers pointed out that there are only two and a half weeks left in the formal campaign, in which to raise pledges and cash donations to the $750,000 total.

Kenney observed that the first half of the campaign involved the complex business of enlisting volunteers and organizing committees and individuals to solicit other individuals and businesses.

"Now it is a matter of bringing in the results," Kenney said, encouraging workers to get out to their prespective donors and tell them the hospital's story.

"Summer is a difficult time in Charlevoix," Kenney observed, "But it is the only time when everyone who is interested in supporting the hospital is here."

"This is a busy time, but we all need to make the time explain the urgency of this campaign to others in the community," Kenney added.

Kenney said that organizational work on the campaign began last January, with the focus on summer for soliciting.

"If our workers now make their contacts and follow up, we should meet our goal and even go beyond the $750,000." Keaney predicted.

The $750,000 raised in the campaign will be used as capital in the $2.1 million Expansion and Renovation Project for the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The project involves basic updating and expansion of the overcrowded departments which are used by both hospital patients and out-patients: x-ray, laboratory, physical and respiratory therapy and Emergency room. The project will involve the addition of a new wing to house patient rooms moved from inside the present hospital when other departments expand therapy and Emergency room. The project will involve the addition of a new wing to house patient rooms moved from inside the present hospital when other departments expand.

The decision to embark on the project at this time, Kenney said was made by the Board of Directors, who felt that the expansion was an absolute necessity if the Charlevoix Area Hospital is to continue to serve the community with its special combination of medical excellence and warm personal caring.

He concluded saying, "We are extremely grateful to all those who have contributed to this campaign thus far. I am confident we will reach our goal when more hear our message."

WOULD LIKE MAIL BOX

It has been nice not to have to fight traffic downtown since we have a shopping mall on the south side. All we need now is a mail box located in the mall. How about it, Post Office?

LITTER PROBLEM

My sympathy to the homeowners adjacent to Castle Farms. Sunday afternoon, I had the occasion to drive out highway 66 as ticket holders were congregating for the concert, and saw the occupant of a red Camaro, toss a beverage can as far as possible on a lawn. According to the looks of the adjacent lawns, this was one of many cans. Does Castle Farms reimburse the county for the use of the Sheriff's Dept.? Thank you.

OILY FISH

After seeing thousands of pounds of whitefish and trout brought in, in 8 or 9 boats Monday morning at Rex Beach Bay by the Bay Indians, I wonder how we can ever eat them again.

The fish were on the bottom of the boats, with the gas and oil cans floating among them. (Nice taste of gas and oil, I'll bet). Then they must all have been bruised, as they threw them from the boats to the back end of the pick-ups, tossed the outboard motor on top of them and took off.

It probably would be a good idea to ask each eating place their source of whitefish and trout don't you think?

Let's Talk

by Jim Thomas

A lot number is used in urban centers where there had been a concentrated development of land. A property is transformed from farm or vacant land into a subdivision laid out in numbered lots. The plan, if approved, is accepted by the municipality and recorded. The property would then be identified as "Being all of Lot #162 in the Bower Hill Plan of Lots (for example), as recorded and laid out in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of Charlevoix County in Plan Book Volume 18 Page 113, being designated as B block 14, lot 44 in the Records of the Charlevoix County Deed Registry Office."

Take advantage of the knowledge and experience of the staff at THOMAS REAL ESTATE, 101 Bridge St., 547-4494 to help you get the results you want regarding any phase of real estate. We handle both sales and purchases and can assure both the buyer and seller maximum exposure. Come in and let's discuss your particular real estate needs first hand. "Do Business Where Business Is Being Done." Hours: Daily 9-5, evenings and Sun. by appt.

DID YOU KNOW?
In rural areas, descriptions of land by monuments are still frequently used. After the mention of these, some notice as to total acreage involved is customary.

Charlevoix House gets 940 lb. calf

The Charlevoix House became the surprised recipient of a 940 pound, 4-H grown, shorthorn calf purchased at the county fair jointly by the First State Bank of Charlevoix and Charles Elzinga of the Elzinga Insurance Agency. The calf, raised by Bob Jones, son of Neil and Barbara Jones of Charlevoix, was one of several entries in the 4-H competition held recently.

Kathy and Pat Hynes, house parents of Charlevoix House, said that the unexpected contribution of the beef will go a long way towards helping them budget the house's meals. Charlevoix House is more formally known as Northern Michigan Residential Services. It was established in January 1975 to assist this part of the state in meeting the needs of developmentally disabled adult citzens of four counties; Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Otsego and Emmet. Charlevoix House presently provides assistance to six citizens and is funded partially by Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Board.

School menu revealed

Meals will be served in the cafeterias at the Charlevoix Elementary and Middle Schools during the opening days of the 1978-79 school year.

Menus for those days will be as follows:

Wednesday: Hot dogs with mustard and catsup, buttered green beans, chilled peaches.

Thursday: Ravioli, rolls and butter, carrot and celery sticks, applesauce.

Friday: Tomato soup and crackers, grilled cheese sandwiches, chilled pears, cookies.

Bread, butter and milk are served with all meals.

DNR has free permits for area woodcutters

By JENIFER MURPHY

Are you one of the hundreds of people that are putting off cutting wood until late fall again this year? If you are then you should wait no longer.

According to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) in Boyne City, October is the most hectic month for issuing the free permits to cut wood on state land. In 1973 approximately 100 permits were issued. Because of the energy crunch and the rising cost of fuel more people are using wood to help to heat their homes. The number of permits issued has increased steadily each year. Five hundred permits are expected to be issued out of the Boyne City DNR office this year.

The DNR decides what land will be used for timber cutting by what areas are marked for timber sale and what areas are under cultural operation. Several hundred acres are usually chosen. The areas for the permits are then issued closest to the permit holders' home. If a person needs a map to the area they may obtain one when they pick-up their permit from the DNR.

The later a person waits to get their permit or to cut wood the more work they will have. Because early cutters usually take the wood closest to the road the late cutter will have to walk farther into the woods for the wood and then lug it out after it has been cut. Only felled trees may be cut unless otherwise specified when a permit is issued. Special types of trees such as the Elm are sometimes allowed to be cut down if they are standing because many have been blighted with the Dutch Elm Disease.

Axes and buck saws are not used as often as they used to be. The chain saw has taken their places cutting more wood in less time.

Hard woods burn longer than soft woods. After the fire has been kindled with soft wood and the fire is steadily burning hard wood is then placed on the flame because of its' longevity in burning. Hard woods that are found in the northern Michigan area are the hard Maple, Elm, Beech, Ash and Yellow Birch.

Three to four months should be allowed for 18 inch to 18 inch cords of wood to season. Wet, damp, or green wood smolders and burns cooler not giving off as much heat as thoroughly dried wood. The best advice for someone cutting wood is to cut it a year in advance letting it season one complete year.

If a person is caught cutting wood on state land without a permit or cutting trees that they are told not to, they will be fined with a misdemeanor charge.

The DNR is willing to help anyone with questions about cutting wood and the permits. The Boyne City office serves the Charlevoix-Antrim county areas, the Indian River office serves the Emmet-Cheboygan County areas and the Gaylord office serves the Otsego County area. Office hours are Monday-Friday from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.

DANNY MEGGISON
AND HIS MOM

My Mom works at the Charlevoix County State Bank and I belong to THE CLUB with her and my sister and my Dad. And all my Grandmas' and Grandpas', Aunts, Uncles and lots of other people too.

I don't know what a checking account is but she told me you can write all the checks you want and you even get free checks with your name on them and it only costs $3.50 a month. She says it's really nice when you take a vacation 'cause you get free travelers checks too and she talks about all the other free things. (course my mom really likes to talk). I can't remember all the things she says, so you should stop in the Bank and talk to any of the people who work there, 'cause they know more than I do.

Area population expected to balloon in near future

By Peg Ohle

There's an old saying that "figures don't lie". If indeed this is true, the population of the northern part of Michigan's Lower Peninsula will increase 142 percent between the years 1970 and 2000.

This startling prediction is one of several heard by approximately 500 people who attended Governor Milliken's Northern Michigan Growth Conference Aug. 17 and 18 in Big Rapids.

Growth predictions for Charlevoix County during the last third of the century are a little lower, 99.7 percent; those for adjoining Antrim County are higher than the average, 176.7 percent; and those for adjoining Emmet County are right up there, 125.9 percent.

Predictions of substantial population growth during the 1970's have already become facts. The 1970 census of Charlevoix County showed a population of 16,541; the 1976 Bureau of Census estimate for 1976 was 19,200 – an increase of 15.9 percent.

The 1970 census of Antrim County showed a population of 12,612; the 1976 Bureau of Census estimate for 1976 was 15,400 – an increase of 22.5 percent.

The 1970 census of Emmet County showed a population of 18,331; the 1978 Bureau of Census estimate for 1976 was 21,100 – an increase of 14.9 percent.

Conference-goers learned that northern Michigan is one of the major growth areas in the United States because "people downstate are not satisfied with their quality of life, and we in the north country can offer that quality which they are looking for."

This dramatic growth pattern, according to several speakers, creates many major concerns:

1. Is this growth a good thing? People moving north still want the same wages, police and fire protection, ambulance service, and all the other services they enjoyed in the city.

2. We must be prepared to meet and deal with this growth.

3. This growth has the potential of being the economic rebirth of Northern Michigan or our downfall.

In order to make these concerns more specific, workshops were formed on several subjects: housing, education, law enforcement, transportation, economic development and employment, human services, environment and recreation, tourism, and local government financing and services.

Some of the issues brought out in the workshops may sound familiar to people in the Charlevoix area:

"There is a lack of good housing for low- and medium income people in northern Michigan."

"Zoning laws are too lax."

"We need to review alternative taxing programs."

"There is a lack of trust between boards of education and the people they serve."

"Cost student relationship are way out of hand."

"The new jail standards are costing too much."

"Judges are not giving out harsh enough sentences."

"We need to preserve rail freight services, especially in the major growth areas."

"Welfare benefits should be based on local wages."

"Need to limit spending on welfare."

"Losing agriculture and forest lands."

"Need more public access to water bodies."

"Want local government to remain local."

After families move to northern Michigan, what are their chances for employment? Figures presented at the Conference show a substantial increase in the number of non-farm civilian wage and salary jobs in the area between 1974 and 1978.

Records indicate that there were 5,100 such jobs in Charlevoix County in 1974, and 6,075 such jobs in 1978 – an increase of 19 percent.

The number of jobs in Antrim County did not increase as much. There were 3,450 non-farm civilian wage and salary jobs there in 1974 and 3,525 in 1978. – an increase of only two percent.

Emmet County fared better. There were 7,300 jobs there in 1974 and 8,250 in 1978 – an increase of 13 percent.

Dr. David Goldberg of the University of Michigan Population Studies Center has reported on own projections of population growth in northern Michigan.

He says the population of Charlevoix County will be 20,596 in 1980; 26,409 in 1990; and 33,012 in 2000.

Antrim County will have a population of 18,132 in 1880; 25,770 in 1990; and 34,895 in 2000, surpassing Charlevoix in size, according to Dr. Goldberg.

Emmet County will go to 24,244 in 1980; to 32,348 in 1990; and to 41,403 in 2000, Dr. Goldberg's figures show.

Summarizing the facts and thoughts brought out at the conference, Governor Milliken said, "We have the power to control this growth or let it completely destroy God's country."

Charlevoix County Planner John Hess, who attended the conference, reports that each and every one of the spearkers emphasized that growth is coming and that we MUST plan for it. This planning should come from four directions – land use planning, public service planning, social service planning, and financial planning.

Make plans now for color tour

An afternoon of pleasure and scenic beauty can be had on the deck of the Beaver Islander as the first of the color cruises tours Lake Charlevoix, Sept. 30.

The two hour cruise departs from the Beaver Island boat dock at 1 p.m. and wends its way along the shoreline for a magnificent view of Michigan's autumn hues. Other cruises are scheduled for Oct. 7-8 and 14.

Reservations should be made early with the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the event. In the past few years, the cruises have been complete sell outs. About 250 tickets will be sold for each cruise this year.

Tickets will cost $6. Included in the ticket price are beverages and refreshments that will be served on board. Tickets are being sold in advance on a non-refundable basis. The motorship has protected cover and will sail rain or shine. Tickets purchases for specific cruises will be honored for that cruise only and may not be applied to other cruises.

The color cruises continue to grow in popularity. When the chamber first sponsored the event 17 years ago, there was just one cruise, and then only 20 people showed up. Now there are four cruises and tickets are sold out days in advance.

"It's a fun thing," explained Jacquie Merta, chamber manager, "and it brings business to town at a time when it starts to slacken off.

"It's events like this that make people think of Charlevoix."

Michigan Bell has a better idea

Michigan Bell has proposed a new method of paying for directory assistance that would save telephone customers $15 million a year.

Donald M. Lambe, Michigan Bell assistant vice president, said nine out of 10 customers would benefit – with most saving 53 cents a month, or $6.36 a year, that would be shown as credits on their bills.

The plan, filed with the Michigan Public Service Commission for approval, would replace the present system of spreading directory assistance costs among all customers whether they use the service a lot, a little or not at all.

"Its purpose," Lambe said, "is not to increase Michigan Bell profits – but to reduce and redistribute the costs of directory assistance so that all customers save money except the relatively few who make heavy use of the service."

Lambe explained that Michigan Bell proposed the change only after an extensive statewide effort to listen to and learn what consumers think should be done about a major problem – the rising costs of directory assistance.

Last year, he said, directory assistance operator costs alone amounted to $28 million and under the present system are expected to about double to $55 million annually by 1982.

"Our customers told us in overwhelming numbers they feel the fair thing to do is shift away from the present system where the big user and the non-user share equally in paying these costs," he said.

The proposed plan would provide savings for customers who make 10 or fewer Directory Assistance calls a month – with a 20-cent charge for each call over 10.

Customers who make no more than five directory assistance calls a month would receive the maximum savings of 53 cents.

Those who make six calls would save 43 cents, seven calls would yield a 33-cent savings – and so on up to 10 calls a month which would be the near "break-even" point. A customer who made 10 calls a month still would save three cents.

Persons with handicaps who have trouble using telephone directories would be exempt from the proposed charges. Nor would there be a charge for directory assistance calls from coin telephones.

The plan proposed today was preferred by most customers in a statewide survey conducted earlier this year for Michigan Bell by Market Opinion Research, Inc. (MOR).

By a margin of 6-1, customers surveyed by MOR said they favored a Directory Assistance charging plan based on usage as opposed to the present method of spreading costs of the service.

Strong support for a charging plan also was voiced during a series of 45 public forums and 160 other meetings around the state where Michigan Bell sought the opinion of consumers on the directory assistance issue. More than 5,400 customers attended the statewide sessions and nearly 2,400 others wrote or called the company to offer comments.

"We committed ourselves to filing a charging plan only if the concept received solid support both in the survey and at the public forums," Lambe said.

"Customers have shown they understand that, contrary to popular myth, directory assistance is not a 'free' service," he said. "Their sentiment is clear – they want people who use Directory Assistance to pay for it, not those who don't."

Lambe pointed out that 22 other states already have directory assistance charging plans and that, as a result, nine out of 10 customers in those states are saving money.

"Adoption of our plan would give Michigan Bell customers the same kinds of savings," he said.

DIIIISS-MISSED!

Medusa suit served purpose

Over a week ago, the Committee for the Preservation of the Environment dismissed its lawsuits against the Medusa Cement Corporation and Charlevoix Township.

The suits were dismissed because the committee had received assurances from the Michigan Air Pollution Control Board, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, the office of Governor William Milliken, the Medusa Cement Corporation and Charlevoix Township that Medusa's expansion would "not impair the air quality of Charlevoix or the health of its citizens."

To make sure that Medusa does not impair the air quality, the DNR placed several restrictions on the cement company's expansion program which Medusa has agreed to comply with. The restrictions, should help reduce odor, emission and dust.

The committee now intends to sit back and observe, and, more or less, act as a watchdog.

"If the assurances, promises and intentions of government and Medusa are not kept," vowed Richard Aull, committee chairman, "we will again seek recourse in the courts.

"We fervently hope that that will not become necessary."

Amen.

We, too, hope the case is closed and that it will not revert back to court. We believe the lawsuits have served a purpose – if, in fact, Medusa does clean up its act as it says it will. We have no reason at this time to doubt Medusa's word. Some improvements have already been made. But it's still nice to know the DNR will be monitoring the plant to make sure Medusa abides by the conditions of its permit.

The suits were effective because had the community not objected, in all liklihood the DNR would not have re-examined the Medusa plant, after the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission approved its expansion application in February. The objections brought about further investigations, and, as a result, more stringent restrictions. In the long run, it will not only make Charlevoix a cleaner place to live, but it will make Medusa a cleaner place to work. And that will be a direct benefit to Medusa's employees.

Unfortunately, the lawsuit tended to split the community. Many people believed the committee was trying to close Medusa.

"The committee realizes the need of industry in Charlevoix and at no time did it intend to close down the company," Aull said.

"Our intention was concern about what appeared to be almost total apathy by Charlevoix Township, the DNR and Medusa toward the health and environment of Charlevoix. We were concerned by the fact Medusa specifically appeared totally indifferent and insensitive to the complaints of the community, and that it only acted on issues when it was forced to do so. We hope and trust the litigation has made all parties more aware of the total needs of the community, and that local and state government will fulfill their promised responsibilities. We further hope Medusa will become the good neighbor it claims it wants to become."

It is now time to mend the fences. The ball is on Medusa's side of the net. It is their responsibility to make good. And we sincerely hope Medusa will make good.

Why election of Pope is important

Why is the election of a new pope so important to folks who aren't even Catholic?

That was the question a good friend put to me Friday as cardinals from around the world closeted themselves in the Sistine Chapel to select a new spiritual leader for the world's 700 million Catholics.

It is not an easy question to answer in five minutes, 10 minutes or even half a day. And it is particularly difficult to answer at a time when many otherwise good Catholics are openly defiant of the Vatican in such important areas as birth control and abortion.

But the fact remains that the philosophy of the pope – what he stands for and what he is against – is a powerful influence on the thinking of the western world. The pope is a moral benchmark against which people of all faiths may measure their own positions in important areas of human conduct.

Furthermore, what the pope does or fails to do can create ripples, if not tidal waves, throughout the civilized world. His stand on birth control, for example, could have grave or salubrious repercussions in nations where food production is barely adequate to meet the demands of expanding populations.

What the pope has to say about priestly celibacy in the dying days of the 20th century could well determine the fate of the church itself.

It augurs well that Pope John Paul has selected his pontifical name from his two immediate predecessors. In retrospect, Pope John XXIII was the pope of all Christendom, embracing people of every faith to his amble bosom. Although Pope Paul VI was more conservative, he stood for 15 years as a beacon of hope to the divided peoples of the world.

If the new pontiff can combine the qualities of both John and Paul, the Christian world is in good hands.

HAVING survived the tension concomitant with the election of four popes, I am beginning to wonder if smoke signals from the chimney of the Sistine Chapel are really the best way to inform the world: "Habemus papem."

I cannot recall a single papal election in my lifetime in which there has not been considerable confusion over whether the smoke emanating from the slender stack was white or black.

It seems that when the ballots are burned, wet straw is added to the conflagration if the cardinals have failed to reach a decision. The resulting smoke, in theory, should be black. If a pontiff has been elected, the ballots are burned with dry straw and the smoke, in theory, should be white.

But it never seems to work that way. Saturday evening, Rome time, when the last ballots were burned, the smoke appeared to be both black and white by turns, causing no end of confusion among the 30,000 spectators in St. Peter's Square.

At one point, a Vatican radio station announced emphatically that the smoke was black and there was no new pope.

A few minutes later, the papal party appeared on a balcony of the chapel and the election of Pope John Paul was announced to the world.

In this age of miracles, a simple schoolboy should be able to design some sort of electric circuitry to announce such a momentous decision with more accuracy and less confusion.

But old ways died hard, don't they?

A recap of the primary

Election flashback. A review of how Charlevoix County residents voted in the August primary.

Governor: William Fitzgerald easily outdistanced his three Democratic challengers here. Out of 31 precincts, Fitzgerald lost only three. The 36-year-old bachelor lost in Evangeline Township and in both precincts in Charlevoix Township. Fitzgerald was most popular in East Jordan, where he picked up 73 votes. Pat McCollough was second in East Jordan with 16 votes. Overall, Fitzgerald received 507 votes in the county. Second place went to Zolton Ferency with 178 votes. Republican Gov. William Milliken running unopposed gathered 1,356 votes. Milliken did exceptionally well in the City of Charlevoix's first ward, collecting 131 votes out of 190 cast. The other 59 votes were distributed among the Democratic candidates.

U.S. Senate: Democratic winner Carl Levin carried several precincts in the county. He did best in Bay Township, Hudson Township, Marion Township (precinct one), Wilson Township and Boyne City (precinct two). Levin received 294 votes altogether. Richard VanderVeen placed second with 187 votes. VanderVeen's strength was in Marion Township (precinct two) and the City of Charlevoix (precinct three). On the Republican ticket, incumbent Robert Griffin had no trouble disposing of L. Brooks Patterson, 1,113-421. Patterson did not beat Griffin in any of the 31 precincts. In the City of Charlevoix, Griffin beat Patterson 295-88. In Boyne City it was almost as bad, 127-28.

U.S. Congress: Favorite son Jim Hartwell of Horton Bay lost only four precincts; St. James Township, the third precinct in the City of Charlevoix and both precincts in South Arm Township. Hartwell did best in the township he resides in, Bay. Voters there gave him 32 of 37 votes cast for the Democratic candidates. Hartwell also received strong support in Boyne City, East Jordan, the City of Charlevoix, Melrose Township and Wilson Township. He finished with 378 votes. Meanwhile, on the Republican ledger, Robert Davis lost only one precinct to Ed Vandette. Davis did well in the cities, expecially Boyne City, which he won 113-41. The final score: Davis 1,069 - Vandette 491.

State Senate: In a close race, Charlevoix resident Bob Wise edged Rod Brown 613-587. Wise fared well in Hayes Township (precinct two), St. James Township and the City of Charlevoix (precinct two). Brown's strength was in Eveline Township, Boyne City (precinct two) and the City of Charlevoix (precinct one). Mitch Irwin, running unopposed on the Democratic slate, picked up 641 votes.

State Representative: Democrat Barbara Anderson bested Howard Campbell 316-222. Anderson received support from the City of Charlevoix, 82-52, Hayes Township (precinct one) and Charlevoix Township (precinct one). Republican Ralph Ostling, having no opposition garnered 970 votes.

In all, 2,843 residents voted in the primary election.

A basketful of love

It was something like playing musical chairs, without the music. The players laughed a lot, but they weren't fooling each other. They all knew they felt like crying.

The son was there, and his wife, and his sister and her husband. They are all middle-aged, somewhat thick around the middle, and inclined to grunt when they get up out of low chairs. But on this day they felt like children again.

The son's daughter was also there with her husband. They are the newlyweds, and they felt like ghouls. Because of their youth, they voluntarily stood first as the chairs slowly disappeared.

They had all arrived from out of town, on different highways, to meet in a small home in the city where the son and his sister had grown up, so many years ago. One couple drove a pick-up, and another couple had rented a trailer for the occasion.

Vodka and tonic was served. That's why the chairs and other furniture disappeared slowly. No one was in a hurry. They moved reluctantly, and sat and sipped gratefully, even when most of the chairs were gone, and 3 middle-aged spreads had to fit on one couch.

They didn't want to do what they were doing. They hated doing it. They didn't want to move the chairs and other furniture out of the home and into the truck and trailer and car trunk. But it had to be done.

In the basement, the son found the wicker clothes basket. It still looks huge. 40 years ago, the son thought it was probably the biggest basket in the world.

He was surprised that he remembered. The last time he saw that basket, Franklin Delano Roosevelt was president. He hadn't thought about the basket since before World War II. How could he even be sure it was the same basket?

He was sure. And the memories came back in a rush. He remembered carrying that basket when his arms were barely long enough to reach the handles on each side. The basket isn't round, like most clothes baskets, it's rectangular, and a little kid had to stretch to get a grip on it.

The son used to carry that basket from the basement to the backyard for his mother. It was usually full of just-washed clothes that had to be hung out to dry. He could smell those wet clothes again, and he could remember how proud he was to lift something for his mother.

When he was a very little boy, before he became a wiseguy teenager, the son was a fool about his mother. He knew she was the most beautiful mother in the world and he wanted nothing out of life except to be near her.

He sat under the grand piano while she played "Tiptoe Through the Tulips." He was always there, begging to lick the dish, no matter what she was cooking. When she visited neighbors, he literally hung onto her skirt for fear she might get out of his sight.

There was a day when the sister was leaving on a glorious vacation to visit an aunt in Toronto. The father was certain the son was jealous, so he gave his sister a squeeze and promised the son that some day soon he could also visit the aunt.

"I don't want to go anywhere," the son said, almost crying. He was horrified at the idea of leaving his beautiful mother.

The son remembered these things as he looked at the old basket so many years later, on the day of the non-musical chairs. He'd forgotten what a momma's boy he used to be. He was glad to be remembered, and sad.

The chairs and clothes basket and everything else must be moved out of the home because no one lives there anymore. The woman who used to live there is now in a nursing home and, on the way out of town that day, the middle-aged son stopped to visit her.

Her health is failing and she may never live in a home of her own again. She is almost blind, and when she passes a mirror, she can't see what the son can see. She is still the most beautiful mother in the world.

The son hopes she knows how much he aches because he can no longer lift her basket for her.

If man's home is his castle...

I have a little piece of costume jewelry I wear from time to time. It's a little button that reads, "If man's home is his castle...let him clean it."

I didn't flaunt that little message back in the days when I was a full-time serf and mother. Face it, I had whole days to devote to dust and static electricity on socks, but as time went on things in the castle began to change.

I became a three-time-a-week court jestor for a newspaper syndicate, took on a few more responsible things in the community, and the appearance of three children took a bite out of my long lunch hours.

Most men recognize the need to share some of the domesticity. Others refuse to believe that housework is an equal opportunity employer.

With the opening of school at hand when everything gets crazy, I've made out a manual for husbands who might like to pitch in.

HOW TO OPERATE CHILDREN: Push alarm button on the clock the night before to manual. Set three inches from child's ear. It will activate child at 7:00 who will rush around the house like an out-of-control garden hose.

To keep child in running order, fill with food six times a day and have regular checkups. (You...not the children.)

MATHEMATICAL FORMULA FOR GETTING FIVE PEOPLE AROUND THE TABLE AT THE SAME TIME FOR DINNER: As soon as one meal is finished, start to thaw for the next one. Gauge ½ pound meat per person, one potato and two vegetables, subtracting one potato for dieters, adding an extra portion of meat for football hopeful, and trying to anticipate who ate soft pretzels on the way home from school or who had a birthday at the office. Use six o'clock as fail-safe time for which there is no return, being careful to calculate interstate traffic on exit 16, overtime, ride home from friend's house and late practice.

KNOW YOUR LAUNDRY: Clothes in the dirty clothes hamper are not dirty – only discarded. Clothes on the floor have not been discarded, but are only dirty. Clothes on the bed are not dirty and not discarded – only in limbo. Clothes that are being worn are definitely dirty.

JOIN SOMETHING. It may help you with your frustrations, your anxieties, your loneliness, your boredom, nor will it clean your oven. But they give you little buttons to wear that make you laugh once in awhile.

Need speed signs

Editor:

Last week, after several cars passed my home at a high rate of speed, I decided to survey the approximate two and half miles of M-66 from Castle Farms to the intersection of M-66 and US-31.

There are 42 homes, two churches, one factory, two financial institutions, one state agency, four small businesses and Captain's Corner Shopping Center. Also, six other roads intersect M-66 within this stretch. Each of these conditions contribute to an increase amount of traffic either pulling out or making turns on M-66. These increasing amounts of slow-vehicle situations create momentarily hazardous conditions when mixing with the high speed through traffic.

My next observation surprised me. There are absolutely no speed limit signs posted in either direction from the intersection on M-66 and US-31 all the way to Ironton at which point I returned, still not finding any signs. Even as you approach Charlevoix, there are no signs of any wording warning motorists to reduce speed.

To accommodate the growth on M-66 and to improve the safety of all persons traveling M-66, it seems time to install prudent speed limits. My suggestion would be speeds no greater than 45 mph from Castle Farms to Kit Carson Lumber and further reduced to 35 mph to the intersection, vice-versa for traffic traveling towards Ironton and not attaining the 55 mph until past Castle Farms.

Perhaps the State Highway Department or the Charlevoix County Road Commission would have suggestions for safer limitations. At any rate, time is short and it would be nice to have some safer limits posted before school buses are running and children are loading and unloading on M-66.

Sincerely,
James D. LaFove

Statements misleading

Editor:

The misleading statements about the effects of low-level radiation which Consumers Power Company's health physicist, W.R. Strodle, recently issued at a press conference, give us warning of the great misfortune that will come upon Midland, the Tri-County area, and all of Michigan at the hands of Consumers Power and their n-plants.

Recent studies are now giving us the actual body count of the people who have died from cancer and leukemia due to exposure to low-level radiation at levels which the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) and utilities had told people were "safe."

Because of the serious implications of these studies, six Congressional committees have been investigating low-level radiation health effects. The Administration has ordered a re-evaluation of present radiation standards because these new data that are coming from many sources indicate that present standards are not "safe" at all.

Studies by scientists from the Johns Hopkins School of Public Health, and elsewhere, indicate that radiation increases the toxicity of chemicals and chemical pollution. This makes the Tri-County area even more vulnerable.

Dr. Rizki, geneticist at the University of Michigan, has pointed out that the radiation dose from tritium, which is produced in large quantities by these types of reactors, can be much greater than the current standards for tritium indicate, and can cause genetic damage.

Yet Consumers Power would have us believe there are no problems, and that the concerns of people are unwarranted.

The fallacy of "safe" radiation levels is also being exposed in the media. In an article entitled "Is Nuclear Power a License to Kill?", the conservative Saturday Review of Literature (June 24, 1978) described the increased incidence of cancer and leukemia in populations close to nuclear facilities.

Recently, the TV program "20-20" carried an interview with a young lawyer of 29 who was dying of cancer. He unfortunately had lived in Grand Junction, Colorado, where the AEC decided the radiation of the mill tailings from uranium mines was at "safe" levels and could be used in concrete for construction of homes and public buildings. Many people were exposed to the high levels of radon gas that came from the tailings because of this careless error. Now millions of tax dollars are needed to correct this error.

The deception of Consumers Power Company and its "experts" becomes even more troubling when we realize that they were never able to make their radioactive waste holding tank work at the Palisades nuclear plant. They released the radioactivity directly to the biosphere. Yet, Palisades had been licensed to operate as "safe" by the AEC. Consumers Power never disclosed to the public or the Atomic Energy Commission its failure to get the rad waste holding tank to work. It was revealed by a concerned technical man.

In August, 1973, the Palisades plant released radioactive iodine to the air continuously for nine days in excess of the license limits. Radioactive iodine concentrates in the thyroid and is especially harmful to infants and children. It is the most common radioactive poison in accidental releases at nuclear plants – and these releases and leaks have been frequent.

Yet, Consumers Power is now assuring the public about the care with which they will operate the Midland n-plants.

The greatest blow, however, can not be measured now or carried in any tidy tables and charts in an environmental impact statement. That blow is the genetic damage that radiation released here will deliver to the fine heritage of talent, intelligence and strength of the families and their children who live in this area. That toll of suffering and deterioration of human life in all our future generations can not be measured in numbers today.

But it is being registered in the growing awareness of the many people of the Tri-County area and Michigan who are now ready to continue to demonstrate and to protest against Michigan's nuclear plants. They will not tolerate the harm to themselves and their future generations, and they certainly will not pay through their utility rate base to be poisoned in this way.

It's cheaper to renovate

New homes are expensive. Mortgage money is getting tighter. And it's often a traumatic experience, especially for families with young children, to pull up roots and relocate in strange neighborhoods.

For these and a variety of other reasons, more Americans than ever are choosing to remodel or improve their present homes.

But having made that decision, says the National Home Improvement Council, the average homeowner is at a loss as to how to implement it.

NHIC, the largest professional organization in the $35-billion home improvement industry, suggests the following steps:

1. Choose a reliable contractor. There are only so many things the homeowner can do himself. An NHIC member contractor, on the other hand, has the equipment and manpower to do the job. He knows local building codes and ordinances. And he is an established businessman with roots in the community who has to do a good job to maintain his reputation and stay competitive.

2. Specify standard sizes and labor-saving products. Time and labor are the two most expensive items—in home improvement work. Anything you can do to cut either, cuts the cost of your job.

Discuss with your contractor the use of stock-size windows, doors and mouldings. There are literally dozens of standard products, available off the shelf, that snap, bolt or nail into place in a fraction of the time required for their more sophisticated counterparts.

3. Consider energy conservation. The installation of proper amounts of attic to wall insulation, says NHIC, can lower fuel consumption.

The additional cost of insulation is recovered in ten years or less, depending on location, through the use of less expensive heating and cooling equipment and reduced energy usage.

No nation is free from the threat of epidemics while diseases are permitted to run rampant in other countries. Modern transportation has many advantages, but it also provides for the rapid movement of insect vectors, as well as human carriers, of many communicable diseases. Breakfast in England, lunch in North America, and back to England in time for tea, and even greater speeds are forecast for the near future. Such rapid movement adds immeasurably to the problem of controlling the spread of communicable diseases from one area of the world to another.

Water Meter Reading Moves Outdoors

ENJOY MORE CONVENIENT AND PRIVACY IN YOUR HOME with the new Read-o-Matic outdoor register now available with water meters.

Read-o-Matic moves water meter reading out of the house. There's no need to interrupt household duties to admit the meter reader...no mud or snow tracked in during bad weather...no risk of in-house accidents. Installed on the outside of the house, the Read-o-Matic register is connected to the meter by low-cost wire. A generator on the meter supplies the power. Ask your water utility for details.

The City Council of Charlevoix in 1977 directed that all households have this installation made. City crews are now available for immediate installation. Cost to you is $1.50 per month added to your water billing for 12 months for a total charge of $18.00. Call Charlevoix Water Department to arrange your hook-up. 547-2221.

Charlevoix Historical Society to meet Tuesday at bank

The Charlevoix Historical Society will hold its monthly meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 5, at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Subject of the meeting will be Rex Beach, well-known author, who was born on a homestead ten miles south of Charlevoix on what is now known as Rex Beach Road. A year ago, in a special program, the Society, honored the centennial of Beach's birth. At the September meeting, Mrs. Arthur Wexstaff will report on the placement of a granite boulder in Rollins College's Famous Walk in Florida. The boulder, from the vicinity of the Beach homestead, was presented to Rollins College by the Charlevoix Historical Society.

In order to provide a clue as to some of the books that were being read in Charlevoix and in the rest of the United States during the early part of this century, Eleanor Carson will review Beach's "The Spoilers". This novel, with its Alaskan gold-mine background, propelled Beach to national fame and was the first of a long list of best-sellers, many of which were made into movies.

A news item in the Charlevoix Sentinel of Jan. 3, 1906, states, "Old Settlers are always glad to hear of the prosperity of a northern Michigan boy. Among those present at a New York banquet honoring Mark Twain on his 70th birthday was Rex E. Beach, now recognized as a shining light in the field of literature". At this time, Rex Beach was only 29 years old.

The Historical Society invites all those interested in the history of the area to attend this meeting.

Secretary, Board of Education

Shirley Roloff campaign chairperson

Gov. William G. Milliken announced Tuesday that Shirley Roloff of Charlevoix has been selected Charlevoix County Chairperson for the Governor's 1978 reelection effort.

"I am very pleased that she has agreed to direct the reelection effort on my behalf in Charlevoix County," Milliken said in making the announcement. "I know she will do an outstanding job in leading the coordinating and campaign and I am very gratified to have her assistance."

Mrs. Roloff serves as an active volunteer for the Department of Social Services in the senior citizen area. She also volunteers for the American Cancer Society. Mrs. Roloff is vice president of the Parent Advisory Council for a Charlevoix Elementary School. She is also a candidate in November for the Charlevoix City Council.

"Governor Milliken has always had broadbased support among Michigan voters and it is apparent that the support remains this year," she said in accepting the assignment. "I am confident that with the support I see forming for the governor, he will be reelected on the basis of his outstanding record of accomplishment."

As head of the Milliken effort in Charlevoix County, she will work closely with Dennis O. Cawthorne, state chairman of Milliken volunteers.

Wedding

Gallagher-Donaldson

Lilly Ann Gallagher of Charlevoix became the bride of Joel Donaldson of Ellsworth August 12 in the Norwood Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danford Gallagher, and the bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Levi Donaldson.

One hundred guests witnessed the double-ring ceremony performed by the Reverend Dan Minor before an altar decorated with fresh garden flowers.

Mrs. Frances Boss provided traditional organ music for the occasion, and Rodney and William Stevens presented special musical selections.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a full-length gown of off-white satin and lace styled with a high waist, scooped draw string neckline, and cap sleeves. Her headpiece was a cluster of satin ribbons and she carried a bouquet of white roses and baby's breath.

Mary Young, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a gown fashioned of multi-colored flower print polyester topped with a three-quarter length organza apron.

Connie Martin and Mrs. Steven Chellis were bridesmaids. Their gowns were multi-colored flower prints similar to that of the matron of honor, and they, too, wore three-quarter length organza aprons. They carried baskets of fresh garden flowers.

Megan Donaldson served as flower girl and Toby Young was the ring bearer.

Steven Chellis assisted the bridegroom as best man, along with Milton Pott and Jerry Tornga, who were groomsmen. Gregory Stevens and Roger Bothuis seated the guests.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Gallagher wore a salmon pink polyester gown similar in style to those worn by the attendants.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents at the K-5 gymnasium in Charlevoix. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. William Stevens at the Lamplight Inn in Central Lake.

Following a wedding trip to Washington, D.C., the new Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson will make their home in East Jordan.

Out-of-town guests attended the wedding from California and Illinois.

Radioactive water safe

Consumers Power Company said it has notified state and federal agencies that monitors at its Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant have detected radiation in part of the facility's demineralized water supply. This is the function of the detection system and it operated correctly.

The utility said it has notified the United states Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Michigan Department of Public Health of its findings.

The company said tests showed that the demineralized water, which is used in the plant's laboratory and workshop areas, had become contaminated when an apparently defective valve allowed contaminated water to seep into the laboratory's demineralized water pipe.

The company said some of the demineralized water was removed from the plant by employees for use in appliances such as steam irons and in automobile batteries. An investigation determined that less than one barrel of water was involved. Virtually all of the water has been recovered and monitored for levels of radioactivity. The testing has shown that the water would present no health hazard to anyone who came in contact with it.

Library needs books

The Charlevoix Public Library needs your help.

If you have an overdue library book, please return it. If you return any overdue book before Sept. 16 you will not have to pay a fine. In fact, no questions will be asked at all.

A library official said several books have not been returned lately.

Ellsworth opens Sept. 5

ELLSWORTH – Ellsworth Community School will open Tuesday, Sept. 5 with students attending only in the morning. The afternoon will be used for teacher meetings and preparation.

All day sessions will be held on Wednesday with school lunch available. Lunch tickets may be purchased. For elementary students it will cost $2 per week and for secondary students it will be $2.25 per week. Extra milk will cost seven cents per one half pint.

Some bus routes have changed and students are asked to be at their pick up site 10 minutes earlier until the routine is established.

Davis aide here

Senate Minority Leader Robert Davis will be sending his administrative aide, Bill Huber, to Charlevoix on Thursday.

Huber will be at the county courthouse from 9:30 a.m. until 11 a.m. in the jury room, and at high school from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. in the dining room.

Huber is Davis' district representative and spends most of his time in northern Michigan holding office hours. Anyone wishing to discuss opinions on state government, or having a problem which Davis could assist with is welcome to visit with Huber during scheduled hours. An appointment is not necessary.

Achievement Day

The 4-H Clubs in Charlevoix County invite everyone to attend the annual 4-H Fall Achievement Day, Saturday, Sept. 9 at Whiting Park.

Exhibits on display are the summer projects of 4-H members throughout Charlevoix County. Visitors should expect to see traditional fair exhibits such as baking, crafts, woodworking, camping and outdoor meals. Animal projects, including poultry, rabbits and dairy animals will also be present.

The park building will open at 8 a.m. and judging will begin promptly at 10 a.m.

The exhibits will be open for public viewing from noon to 3 p.m.

Also included in the activities will be games for the 4-H members and a potluck lunch.

The 4-H program in Charlevoix County is a year round activity open to all county youngsters. Members need not live in rural areas. Parents and children who are interested in the 4-H program should plan to attend.

Land to be fenced

As an outgrowth of recent meetings between the Committee for the Preservation of the Environment and the Medusa Cement Co., Medusa officials have agreed to fence their easterly property line between Lake Shore and Carpenter roads.

The committee objected to repeated trespassing on the property by motorcyclists, snowmobilers and outdoor persons.

Albert a candidate

When Charlevoix area residents get in the voting booth Nov. 7 they will find two candidates on the ballot for U.S. Congress in the 11th District, Democrat Keith McLeod and Republican Robert Davis.

There will be a third candidate, however.

Theodore Albert, who finished fourth in the recent Democratic Primary, has announced he will be a write-in candidate for the office.

Said Albert, "In the primary I pointed out that the party hierarchy was pulling strings and not intending to permit an open and free primary. They pulled so many strings that in their confusion the nominee, who landed on his feet on their stage, was not the one they really wanted...and was not one of them...or truly representative of the Democratic party."

Meet Charlevoix

Jim Whitley

Jim Whitley will retire Jan. 1 from his job as Superintendent of Charlevoix' Electrical and Water Departments. This week he recalls for the Courier some things about his early days on the job and changes that have occurred during the years.

COURIER: How long have you worked for the City?

WHITLEY: Thirty-seven years except for three years during World War II.

COURIER: What was your first job with the City?

WHITLEY: I started as a lineman, but in those days we did everything – tested water and electric meters, even dug with shovels.

COURIER: How many were in the Department then?

WHITLEY: Five outside workers. Carleton Ikens was line foreman, Pete Peterson was a lineman, Tom Carey was a meter reader, Morris Ackert was a meter reader, and I was a lineman.

COURIER: What was the source of your power in the early days?

WHITLEY: We had the Bellaire plant which we used in connection with other sources, first steam, which they took out in 1939 or 1940 then diesel engines. The Bellaire plant furnished enough power alone for evenings and weekends. At one time we had seven diesel engines with a 4,000 kilowatt peak. In the early days our big customers were the Beach Hotel, Belvedere Hotel, The Inn, and the Chicago Club. The only industry was the Foster Boat Company.

COURIER: Where do you get your power now?

WHITLEY: We buy it from Consumers Power. We started with them about 1962. Since then we've had only three major outages. In case of trouble, we have an emergency circuit and a diesel for emergency service. By having a sub-station and by buying power, we're able to sell it cheaper. Up to now we've been using some of the revenues for beaches, parks, etc., but under the new charter we can transfer only so much money at the end of the year. We have to keep a certain amount.

COURIER: Do you furnish power only to the City of Charlevoix?

WHITLEY: No, we also serve most of Charlevoix Township. In the last two years we've added two new circuits. Now we have two circuits feeding the north side instead of one.

COURIER: What are you doing in the Water Department?

WHITLEY: We're putting all the water meters outdoors. Most of the electric meters already are outdoors. Our big job right now is searching for water breaks. We're checking every half hour to read the amount of water pumped. It looks like we're losing about 45 percent. Most places lose about 12 percent. In fact, we're updating most of our electric and water maps. And we hope to get a grant for a new 300,000 gallon storage tower. The present one on Park Avenue holds 100,000 gallons and we can pull it down about half.

COURIER: Have there been a lot of changes in the Water Department through the years?

WHITLEY: Oh, yes. A well outside the present fish hatchery used to furnish all the water for town. It was a big, deep well and went out about 1919 or 1920. Then they built a new pump house on Lake Michigan Beach. Water mains used to be made of cast iron. Now the very newest ones are of fiber glass, so light that one man can carry an 18 foot length. They're more durable, too. The new fire hydrants have an opening for a pump so the fire truck can pump water right into the truck.

COURIER: What about your working equipment?

WHITLEY: We used to have only one old truck. Now we have two bucket trucks, a trencher, a line truck, and three pick-ups. We do all our own work now. We used to let some of it out.

COURIER: How many employees do you have?

WHITLEY: Eight, two of them in the Water Department. We need another man to help with the book work. That takes up a lot of time.

COURIER: What are you going to do when you retire?

WHITLEY: Travel. We're going to Alaska the first part of June, and some time I want to go to Nova Scotia, Texas and Florida. But our big trip will be in our motor home to Alaska. I've heard people talk about it so much I want to see it. Also, Reverend George Majors, who used to be at the Church of God here, is now in Fairbanks. I like the wide open spaces. We live in Clipperview and see wild turkeys and deer.

COURIER: Where did you grow up?

WHITLEY: In Charlevoix – on West Garfield. My father worked for the Beaver Island Boat, then took care of cottages. He was a painter by trade.

COURIER: They're a lot of Whitleys in Charlevoix. Where did the family come from originally?

WHITLEY: From Canada.

COURIER: How large a family do you have?

WHITLEY: Five boys and five girls – Nancy, twins Ed and Jim, May, Faye, John, Carl, Kassie, Sally, and Michael. My wife's name was Bessie Skeel. We've been married almost 37 years.

COURIER: What organizations do you belong to?

WHITLEY: The Church of God, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Disabled American Veterans. I served in the Infantry in Europe, Africa, and Italy.

COURIER: How do you feel about retiring?

WHITLEY: I enjoy the work. I used to work in a die casting factory in Detroit but didn't like it there and came back. I've seen a lot of men retire out of the Department.

Jim Whitley

Odmark elected president of local retiree group

Clarence A. Odmark was elected president of the Great Pines chapter of the Michigan Association of Retired School Personnel at the recent election of officers.

Other officers are Mrs. Dale Lamkin of Good Hart, vice president; Mrs. Aura Stevenson of East Jordan, treasurer; Mrs. Mary Shaum of Burt Lake, recording secretary; Mrs. Ernestine Benser of Boyne City, corresponding secretary.

Committee chairpersons are Mrs. Bernice Ruis of Ellsworth, membership; Mrs. Anna Warner of Charlevoix, legislation; Mrs. Katherine Walker of East Jordan, Sunshine committee.

The association meets four times each year. The next meeting is scheduled for Oct. 12.

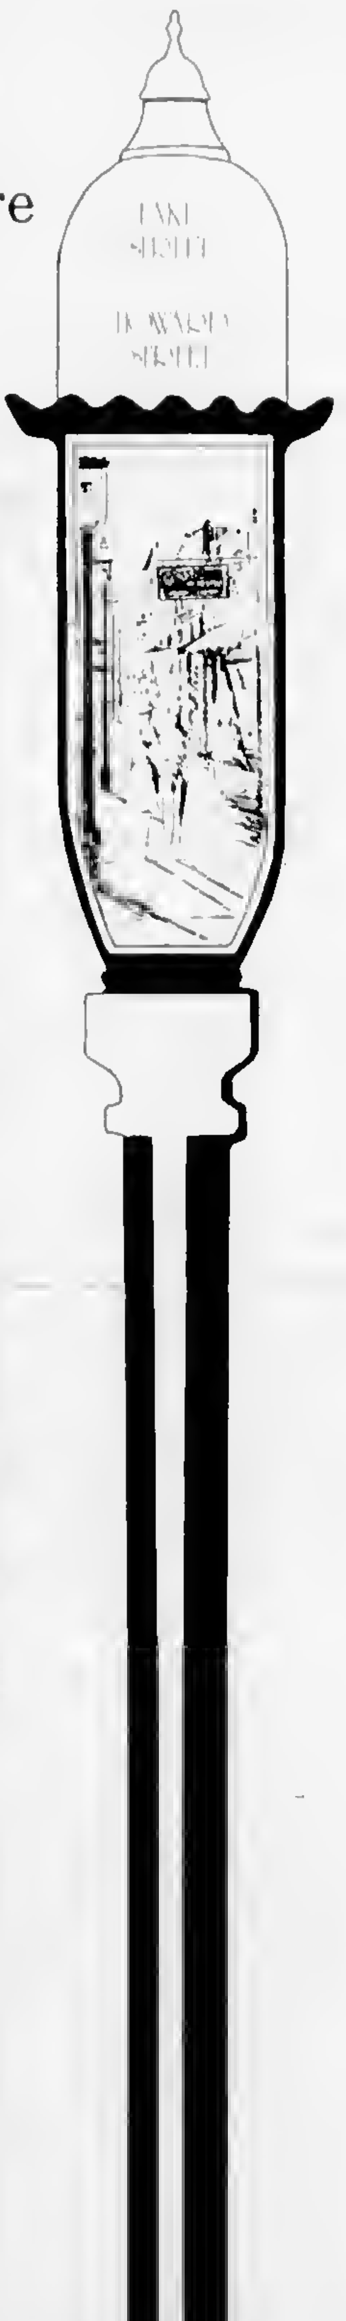
And You'll Know You've Found The Petoskey Shopping Area More Reminiscent Of Earlier Days, More Creative And Nostalgic Than Any Place You've Ever Been.

Petoskey, Michigan



Little Traverse Bay has quiet beauty and unforgettable charm When the setting sun spreads its radiance over the waters, it is indeed lovely from the vantage point of the limestone cliff on which the city of Petoskey now stands, the setting sun provides a spectacular show The Indians created a legend about it Since the first settlers and sightseers arrived over one hundred years ago, the beauty of the sunset has been a thing of wonder and awe to all

Very few white people had seen a sunset over Little Traverse Bay on that late fall day in 1863, when the first train whistled to a stop at the end of its line

On board was a reporter for a Grand Rapids newspaper, who in reporting on the wilderness scenery, dubbed it Petoskey's Million Dollar Sunset

The metamorphosis of Petoskey was rapid It grew from a small Indian settlement at the mouth of Bear river, to a dynamic, busy village catering to the needs of sightseers and homesteaders To house the visitors, the Arlington and other luxury hotels were constructed overnight. Rooming houses for the less affluent were soon to follow

By 1890 a substantial number of shops had sprung up along the main street, creating a very unique pioneer shopping area Along the Bear River waterpower was harnessed to run sawmills flour mills, hardwood flooring industries, butter bowl factories, and furniture-making industries The limestone cliffs along Little Traverse Bay provided Petoskey with lime, a natural resource of great importance to the industrial development of the town

Little steamers plied the Bay, and the summer visitors who registered at Petoskey hotels and rooming houses took advantage of the many excursions offered The most popular trip was the Circular or Inland Route. This lengthy excursion took the traveler up the coastline of Little Traverse Bay into Lake Michigan, around to Mackinac Island, on to Cheboygan and then down the chain of rivers and lakes to what is now Conway Until the quaint little dummy trains were in operation, the excursionists were jolted back to Petoskey from Conway by wagon and team

In 1880 the system was in full operation and trips were being made every fifteen minutes. By 1905 two trains ran from Petoskey to Harbor Springs at half hour intervals. Many of the people who had come to see the area on the train liked what they saw and became regular summer visitors By the 1900's the shift from tourism to settled summer communities was in motion Many resorts developed around the Bay and inland lakes of the area. The new-fangled summer resorters spelled the doom of the delightful little steamers on the Bay, the little dummy trains, and the luxury hotels. Many of the hotels burned and were not rebuilt; the dummy engines were sold for scrap, and the steamers sailed off over the horizon.

Although the modes of transportation have seen drastic change, Petoskey's magnetism remains. There is still an element of charm and friendliness in shopping adventure which belongs niquely to Petoskeys Gaslight District. One may still marvel at the beauty of Little Traverse Bay and experience the wonder of the Million Dollar Sunset

Wedding

Alger-Block

Nancy Jo Alger and Gordon Wilson Block, both of Charlevoix, were married Aug. 19 at the United Methodist Church.

Nancy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Alger. Gordon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Wilson Block of Big Rapids.

About 300 guests attended the wedding performed by Rev. Austin Regier. The altar was decorated with high lighted daisies, yellow mums and baby's breath.

The bride's wedding gown was of dacron polyester organza fashioned with an empire waist accented with Venice lace, Princess Ann neckline of lace, A-line skirt extending into a chapel train with two tiers of lace and ruffles around the bottom. A Juliet cap of lace held a fingertip imported illusion veil which was edged in lace.

Music was supplied by Marina LaBlance.

The maid of honor was Tori Alger, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Robyn Pardee, Terri Novotny, Camille Malpeli and Lynne Bradley. They wore layered yellow chiffon floor length gowns and carried Horn-of-Plenty's filled with daisies.

The best man was Jon Denison. Groomsmen were Don Britten, Tom Butcher, Mike Stadola and Terry Davenport.

Ushering were Bob and Jim Alger and Ed and Jim Block.

The reception was held at the Rod and Gun Club in Charlevoix.

The couple plan a fall trip out east. They will reside in Charlevoix.

The groom is a graduate of Ferris State College and is employed with District Health Department three. The bride is employed with Michigan Officeways.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Putman-Bunting

Elaine Marie Putman of Charlevoix and Gregg Martin Bunting of Petoskey were married Aug. 19 at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

Elaine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Putman. Gregg is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Enno Bunting of Iowa.

Two hundred and fifty guests attended the wedding performed by Fr. R. Dale Magoon. The altar was decorated with yellow and white gladiolas.

The bride wore a gown of silk organza and flowered lace with a scoop neckline and sheer bishop sleeves. The A-line skirt flowed into a cathedral length train and her fingertip veil was attached to a cap of matching lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias, Sonia roses, baby's breath and stephanotis.

Professor August Huybrechts supplied the music. Roger Putman, the bride's brother, wrote and read a special reading for the bride and groom.

Mrs. Michael Smith was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Linda Sendegas, Linda Krueger and Mary Fowler. They wore yellow Qiana blouson gowns and wore a Sonia rose with baby's breath in their hair.

Jennifer Bradac was flower girl and Shawn Putman was ring bearer.

Best man was Tom Willoughby. Groomsmen were Ted Bradac, Dean Bunting and Jere Murray. Ushers were Ron Toepke and Roger Peacock.

The reception was held at the American Legion Hall. The wedding cake was made by Marion Post, aunt of the bride.

The couple will make their home in Milwaukee, Wis. following a honeymoon to Canada and the Upper Peninsula.

The groom is employed at Faulty Health Services in Milwaukee as an assistant director.

Senior citizens eligible for lower electric rates

Consumers Power Company is alerting its electric customers who are senior citizens of a new program which could reduce their electric bills.

"We have begun preparations to implement the order of the Michigan Public Service Commission to provide an optional senior citizens rate for our electric customers," R.G. Dahlquist, area manager of the Cheboygan District of Consumers Power Company, said.

Persons at least 65 years old who are heads of households are eligible to receive electric service at lower rates under a new rate schedule established July 31 by the public service commission. The company estimates that 60,000 to 70,000 customers may meet the eligibility requirements.

The company is preparing contracts to mail to those who apply and is reviewing the use records of all customers to determine who would benefit from the new rate.

The new available rate was designed by the commission to provide savings for senior citizens who use lower amounts of electricity than the average family.

For electric customers without electric water heating, the special rate will result in a savings of 28.1 percent for a customer using up to 300 kilowatthours of electricity a month, and a savings of 4.9 percent for one using up to 500 kilowatthours. For customers with electric water heating, the special rate will result in savings on monthly usage up to 950 kilowatthours.

Once usage exceeds 500 kilowatthours a month for non-water heating customers under the special rate, savings begin to fall off. At the level of 550 kilowatthours, a slight increase in the bill would be noted. For a customer using 1,000 kilowatthours a month, the senior citizen rate would be much more costly.

"The commission intends for this rate to cut energy costs for senior citizens," Dahlquist said, "but those who use large amounts of electricity will be better off staying on the regular rate."

Employees of Consumers Power's rate, customer service and computer operations departments are doing the groundwork needed to implement the rate, Dahlquist said.

Once the mechanics are set up, customers who apply will be sent a one-year contract for the new rate. The customer must sign and return the contract to become eligible for the rate.

State drivers pay less

It is costing $29 less per year for Michiganians to own and operate cars than it does for motorists nationally, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"The Michigan motorist who drives his intermediate-size car 10,000 miles annually will pay 19.35 cents per mile, or $1,935 annually. The national average is 19.64 cents per mile, or $1,964 per year," explained Joseph Ratke, Auto Club Touring manager.

Those figures are based on a recent study made by Runzheimer and Company of Rochester, Wis., comparing second-quarter vehicle operating costs.

"The average per mile cost is a combination of fixed costs (insurance, depreciation, taxes, license, etc.) and variable costs (gasoline, oil, maintenance and tires)," said Ratke.

The survey shows that it costs an average of $3.78 per day to own a car in Michigan and an additional 5.49 cents for each mile it is driven.

Costs are computed for an intermediate-size car that is kept four years and driven a national average of 10,000 miles.

The most expensive place to own and operate a car is in the New England states, where it costs 21.02 cents, while the least expensive is in the Southwest, where it costs 18.83 cents.

Harrison picked medical director at health dept.

James T. Harrison, M.D., M.P.H. has been appointed by the Boards uf Health for District Health Departments 3 and 4 as their new regional medical director. Harrison will be in charge of the public health departments that serve the residents of Alpena, Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, Montmorency, Otsego and Presque Isle counties.

The region has been without a medical director since the death of Doctor Robert S. Libke on Aug. 22, 1977.

A native of Oakland, Calif., Harrison has over 25 years of service in the public health field. His experience includes work at the rural, urban, state and international levels. He is one of the few public health physicians in this state that is board certified in preventive medicine.

Before coming to northern Michigan, Harrison was health agency administrator for the county of Sacramento in California. He has also served as the assistant director for the Department of Health Care Services in California. Other positions held by Harrison have included regional medical co-ordinator, public health medical consultant, county health officer, and deputy district health officer of the City of Los Angeles.

Harrison received his bachelor of arts degree in physiology from the University of California at Berkley. In 1953 he became a Doctor of Medicine at the University of California at San Francisco. His internship was with the Long Beach Veterans Hospital. Harrison returned to the University of California at Berkley to receive a masters degree in public health, from the School of Public Health in 1956. His education has also included the study of public health administration in New Zealand and Australia, through a World Health Organization Travel Fellowship. Harrison is also a nominee for the chairmanship of the Administrative Division of the American Public Health Association.

Being a licensed private pilot, Harrison enjoys both flying and traveling as hobbies. He was also an aerial navigator in the United States Army Air Force from 1942 to 1945.

Harrison and his wife, Pat, will be living in Gaylord. Pat is a native of Australia and says she is looking forward to living in northern Michigan. The Harrison's have two daughters and one grand-daughter living in Sacramento.

In talking about his position as regional medical director, Harrison said, "I look forward to working in a rural area again." "The beauty of northern Michigan was a major factor in our decision to relocate here.

The Soo Locks with Poe Lock in middle.

Soo Locks a vital link in Great Lakes shipping

When ex-salesman/canal-builder Charles T. Harvey watched the first ship - the Illinois - pass through his crude lock system at Sault Ste. Marie, on June 18, 1855, he probably had not the slightest vision of that vital transportation link as it exists today. Although his efforts were legendary – a story of frustration and determination as two locks were dug literally by hand with pick and shovel – his results were modest.

In the first decade of the Soo Locks, average annual cargo through the locks was 120,000 tons with each ship carrying no more than 500-600 tons. Now the system averages around 100 million tons per year - a peak year in 1953 hit 128 million tons. Current cargoes dwarf the early passages. Leviathans, like the 1000 foot James Barker or sister ship, Mesabi Miner, each carry a maximum cargo of 59,000 tons of iron ore pellets - a single transit of both ships equalling the annual total during the early years.

The Locks Today

Obviously, much has changed in the past 128 years. The shipping industry has responded rapidly to transportation demands, building ever larger, more efficient vessels. Little has remained unchanged. A constant in the entire shipping picture, however, has been the significant role the Soo Locks system plays in Great Lakes shipping. Prior to the 1855 opening, commerce between Lake Superior and the lower lakes had been constrained. Cargo had to be transferred to a small rail link for movement around the dangerous Sault rapids. The locks allowed the grain and iron ore of the Upper Lake to reach lower lake markets more efficiently. Today, the locks do the same thing, moving far greater quantities.

Replacing Charles Harvey's primitive locks are four United States locks and one Canadian lock. They move more tonnage than the combined totals of the Panama and Suez Canals. As the only water connection between Lake Superior and the other Great Lakes, these locks are able to handle 12,000 to 13,000 transits annually to move growing volumes of iron ore, coal, limestone and grain to lower lakes ports. These basic commodities are vital to the entire Great Lakes economy. Nearly every Great Lakes Basin city depends in one way or another on the commodities passing through the Soo.

Lock And Vessel Size

Operated by the Soo Area Office of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the four U.S. locks vary considerably in size. The Davis and Sabin locks are 1,350 feet long, 80 feet wide, and have a depth of 23 feet. Built before 1920, both locks were designed to handle two ships in a single 21 foot lift, 600 to 700 foot ships being the largest vessels of that era. The MacArthur lock built in 1943 is 800 feet long, still 80 feet wide, but has a depth of 31 feet. The newest lock, the Poe, constructed in 1968, reflected the increases in beam of contemporary vessels. It measures 1,200 feet in length, 110 feet in width, and 32 feet in depth. It can handle the new generation of 1000 foot vessels with beams up to a maximum of 105 feet. For ships like the Barker and Mesabi Miner with a 105 foot beam, it's a tight fit with 2½ foot clearance on either side. It's important to note that if this single lock were to become inoperable, traffic to and from Superior would be limited to vessels 75 feet wide or less. Presently, 15 vessels operating in Lake Superior can use only the Poe Lock.

The Future

Maximum vessel size has, in fact, been a topic of active discussion in Great Lakes shipping circles. Ships in the 1200-1300 foot range with beams of 130 feet are currently being suggested. Such ships would require, of course, modification of the present Soo Locks as well as the other lock systems of the Great Lakes. Since the larger ships could require deeper drafts to take maximum advantage of their increased size, dredging of the connecting channels and harbor areas from their existing 27 foot depths to 32 feet or 36 feet is also a possibility under consideration. Many economic, environmental and social factors will be weighed and measured before any decisions are made. A major study - the Great Lakes Connecting Channels and Harbor Study - being conducted by the Detroit District Office Corps of Engineers will address the many complex issues arising from increased vessel size.

Alternatives

That study also will investigate the possibility of bypassing the Soo Locks with a direct route between Lake Superior and Michigan. An idea about a century old, the notion of a canal across the Upper Peninsula of Michigan (an often suggested route is Au Train to Escanaba) would require extensive study to determine its economic and environmental feasibility. Another alternative to the Soo Lock modification would be a rail connection between Marquette, an existing harbor on Lake Superior, and Escanaba, on Lake Michigan.

Winter Navigation

Increased vessel size and modification of the Soo Locks may not be necessary for several years if the Winter Navigation Extended Season concept becomes fully operational. The Extended Navigation Program would employ a fleet of modern icebreakers, air bubblers, ice booms and advanced electronic navigation aids to keep the entire Great Lakes - St. Lawrence Seaway system open twelve months a year, thereby increasing system capacity and delaying lock improvements. The capital investment for year-round navigation on the Great Lakes would exceed one billion dollars with annual costs (including interest and principal) of 112 million dollars and annual benefits estimated at nearly 400 million dollars. Since 1971, an Extended Season Demonstration Program has been ongoing (it is scheduled to end in 1979) to evaluate the practicability of winter navigation. Primary findings of this COE program show that extended season navigation is operationally feasible on the upper four Great Lakes and their connecting channels. Extensive economic, environmental and social studies will be conducted prior to final decisions regarding the implementation of the extended season concept.

Travel agency opens here

Planning a vacation? If you are, plan three to six months in advance. Particularly if you are thinking of a trip to Florida, Hawaii or the Caribbean Islands. And, if you are going to travel over the Christmas holiday, plan one to two years in advance.

This advice comes from Viktor Weyand, who has opened a new travel agency in Charlevoix. Weyand's travel service is located at 101 Park Ave. next to the Charlevoix Title Co.

Weyand, who has two offices in Traverse City, said his company has done "a lot of business in this area." He said by opening an office here he could "better service" the area.

Although summer bookings are up about 80 percent this summer, Weyand said winter is the busiest travel season. Many northern Michigan residents stay home in the summer and travel in the winter, he said, often to places with warm climates. This is why, if you are going to Florida, Hawaii or other warm spots, you should plan in advance. If you are traveling with a group, special group packages can be put together, Weyand said.

Weyand can also advise you, for instance, on air fares, lodging and other travel concerns. It's his responsibility and obligation to the public, he said, to separate the good products from the bad. And the service, he added, is free to the consumer.

Office hours at the agency will be 10 a.m. until noon and 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Viktor Weyond

Statements due

Candidates who ran for local office in the August primaries are reminded that their "Post-Election Campaign Statement" is due before Sept. 7.

Those who spent under $500 in their campaigns are required to file only a single-page statement. Those who spent over $500, or who stated on their Statement of Organization that they planned to spend over $500, must file a more detailed statement.

Purpose of the statements is to detail receipts, expenditures, loans, etc. A fine of $10 for each day the form is late, up to $300, may be levied against anyone who does not comply with regulations.

Do Business Where Business Is Being Done

County Bank eliminated

Charlevoix County State Bank was eliminated in two straight games this past weekend in Men's Class D Regional competition (fast-pitch).

County Bank dropped their Friday night opener to Murphy's Well Drilling 4-1. On Saturday, the bankers lost a tight battle to Sauble Bar 4-3.

The games were played in Scottville.

County Bank qualified for the regionals by winning the district tournament last weekend in Cheboygan. County Bank went through the district undefeated. They won the championship contest 3-2 over Ace Hardware - Charlie Bar.

Briefly

Tickets available

The Charlevoix High School athletic department has announced that athletic season tickets for the 1978-79 school year are now on sale at the high school office on East Garfield Avenue.

The first home varsity football game will be Friday, Sept. 8 with Kalkaska High School, and the first home junior varsity game will be Sept. 14 with East Jordan.

The season ticket price for adults is $25 for all sports, $10 for football only or $15 for basketball only. For students (K-12) the cost is $10 for all sports. A family ticket for parents and their children (K-12) is $45.

All of the tickets cover only home scheduled athletic contests. For more information contact the high school office from 7:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. daily.

Gymnastics camp here

Gymnasts from the Wolverine Gymnastics Summer Camp will present a program at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday under the direction of Jim Mitchell of Charlevoix, a certified gymnast who has been an instructor at the camp.

The gymnasts and the sound system will be supplied by the summer camp. Dannon yogurt will be supplied to all those attending the program which is being given without charge at the high school gym.

Parents and prospective students are invited to attend the show to see what will be offered in the way of gymnastics and dance in the community education program sponsored by the Charlevoix Schools when the program gets underway late in September. Anyone interested may register at the show on Wednesday. Mitchell, who comes from Taylor and who is now a resident of Charlevoix became a certified gymnast this summer. He will be teaching the dance and gymnastics to youngsters and adults in the Charlevoix area this fall.

Coaches, refs needed

The Charlevoix Recreation Department has issued a call for volunteer coaches and referees for the flag football program for boys ages nine through 14 years.

Dwight Boss, Charlevoix recreation director, has invited interested persons to meet at the recreation department office in the city hall at 7 p.m. Thursday.

The flag football program is scheduled to get underway with the draft to be held at the Carpenter ave. softball park at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 10.

Boys in the nine through 14 year age group will have an opportunity to sign up for the sport after school begins. The flag football program is for boys in the fourth through the eighth grades.

Tennis tourney Sept. 9-10

Dates for the annual Charlevoix Closed Tennis Tournament which closes out the season for hackers, good, bad and indifferent have been announced by Dwight Boss, Charlevoix recreation director.

The event will be held at the municipal courts on Sept. 9 and 10. Deadline for registering is 5 p.m. Sept. 7. The tournament is open to all residents of the Charlevoix School District.

Entry fees will be $4.00 for singles and $3.00 each or a total of $6.00 for doubles. The entry fee entitles the entry to a picnic to be held Sunday afternoon during the final matches and to drawings for tennis items to be held at 4 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday at the tennis courts. You must be present to win.

A randomly drawn mixed doubles fun match will be held during the final matches on Sunday afternoon. The drawing for this match will be held at noon on Sunday with participants to be drawn from entries who have already been eliminated.

According to the rules, entries must supply their own balls; the best two of three sets will be designated the winner; there will be a nine-point tie breaker (first one to five points) and mixed doubles fun match will be a pro set first team to win eight games, tie breaker at seven all.

Entry blanks with fees are to be returned to court attendant, recreating department office or Gerry Brindel by 5 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 7.

Carson's, County Bank Win titles

County State Bank and Carson Lumber came out on top in city slow-pitch tourney's last week.

County State Bank won the Women's Recreation Slow-Pitch League title on Wednesday by beating Kusina Motors 7-4. The win gave the bankers a two games to one edge in the best of three series.

Jodi Alger Block was the winning pitcher for County State Bank, tossing a seven hitter, while Cheryl Pence took the loss.

Meanwhile, Carson Lumber won the best of five series with Erber Auto in three straight games, the final victory coming Tuesday night, 18-14, to win the Men's Recreation Slow-Pitch League title.

Carson Lumber batters had the home run swing with Leon Smolinski and Tim Corey each clouting two home runs and Bernie DeVries, Pat Kerr and Jim Ciuk each hitting one. Gary Novotny and Dan Greene homered for Erber Auto.

Ironton Ferry bill higher than estimated

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners learned last week that the repair bill for the Ironton Ferry will be about $25,000 more than originally estimated.

The commission estimated it would cost about $50,000 to repair the ferry. However, the bill for renovation and the installation of a new engine came to $73,196.

The ferry was taken to the Kenneth Wyshochel Marina in Traverse City last November for its five year check as required by the U.S. Coast Guard. It was scheduled to be returned by April, but because of delays in the delivery of parts it was not returned until July.

The commission questioned two items, a $170 docking charge at the Elmwood Township dock, and $122 for absorbent pads following an oil spill which Wyshochel had agreed to remove from the total bill.

Lydia Hallberg

ELLSWORTH – Funeral services for Miss Lydia Hallberg, 85, who died Thursday at the Traverse City Osteopathic Hospital, were held Saturday at the Hastings Funeral Home. The Rev. Warren Lammers of the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church officiated. Interment was in the Ellsworth cemetery.

Miss Hallberg had been a patient at the hospital for two days. She had been a patient at Meadowbrook Medical Care Facility and a Kewadin nursing home for several years.

Born in Chicago June 23, 1893, Miss Hallberg had lived in numerous places before coming to Ellsowrth in 1972 to make her home.

She is survived by a brother, Clarence Hallberg of Ellsworth and a sister, Mrs. Ethel Yack of Muskegon.

Melva Schleicher

Melva L. Schleicher, 55, a native of Charlevoix, died August 27 in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor after an illness of four months.

Mrs. Schleicher was born August 25, 1922 in Charlevoix, the daughter of Orson and May Scott Cook. She graduated from Petoskey High School in 1939 and for five years worked for Dr. John Kelley in Petoskey.

On June 2, 1945, she married Douglas W. Bird, Sr. He preceded her in death September 9, 1972. Following her marriage, the deceased lived in Wyandotte, Dundee, Ann Arbor, and Tecumseh, where she made her home at the time of her death.

On December 1, 1974, Mrs. Schleicher married Glenn Schleicher, who survives. Other survivors include three sons, Douglas A. Bird, Jr. of Tecumseh, David S. Bird of Tipton, and Bryan D. Bird of Tecumseh; a daughter, Mrs. M. Richard (Cynthia) Miller of Lowell, Indiana; a brother, Vernon O. Cook, Sr. of Bee Branch, Arkansas; two sisters, Mrs. Clayton (Vivien) Trimble of Charlevoix, and Mrs. Harold (Rubye) Stueck of Petoskey; and six grand children.

Memorial services were held Sunday, August 27, at the Congregational Church in Ann Arbor. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that any memorials be sent to the St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Cancer Fund, the First Congregational Church Memorial Fund, or the Herrick Hospital Auxiliary.

Cross Country starts Saturday

The Charlevoix Rayder cross country team, which has been running all summer, will get an early start on the season when it travels to the White Cloud Invitational meet on Saturday, Sept 2, and to the Mackinac Island Road Race on Sunday Coach Pete Spieles has announced.

The Saturday meet will be over a three mile course and the Mackinac meet over an eight mile course.

"This should be good training for the team. They have been running alll summer, competing in the Little Traverse Trot at Petoskey, the Cheboygan Half-Marathon (over a 13 mile course), the National Cherry Festival Race, the Alpine Race at Gaylord and the Venetian Festival Foot Race staged here last month" Coach Spieles.

After this week's events, the team will not open its regular season until Sept. 19 when they travel to Gaylord to take on the Blue Devils and the Boyne City Ramblers.

Coach Spieles feels that he should have a strong team this year, barring injuries. Six regulars from last season are returning including Mark Russell whose best time was 15:47; Jeff Drenth, 16:08 and Brian Thompson, 17:05, all seniors; John Fiedorek, 18:48, a junior, and two sophomores, Jeff Landon, 16:56 and Jay Swartwout, 16:51.

In addition, there are four others who have had limited experience. They are Clay Patrie, Tim Hiller and Steve Mielke, all seniors and Jeff Peters, a junior.

Others will be joining the squad when school opens. However, at this time many are involved in summer jobs or are on vacation trips with their parents.

This week Coach Spieles and several of his runners are at Wilderness Park where they will work out in preparation for the weekend meets. Making the trip were Drenth, Russell, Swartwout, Jeff Landon and Mielke and two others, Jim Landon, a freshman and Larry Bradley, a junior, who show great promise.

COUNCIL MINUTES

August 21, 1978
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding. Aldermen present: Muma, Plumm, Wood, and Whitley. Absent: Aldermen Porter and Swanson.

The Minutes of the August 7, 1978 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Council discussed the request by Tom Duke to the Corps of Engineers to construct an 82' dock on the north side of Round Lake. Council agreed the dock would conform to the existing area and, therefore, the City would offer no objection to the Corps regarding the proposed construction.

Enter Alderman Porter.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Wood.

Resolution 78-8-1

WHEREAS, Section 2.15F of the City Charter of the City of Charlevoix states: "The City Council shall determine its own rules and order of business."

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that pursuant to said Section 2.15F, the following standing rules of procedure for the City Council be and the same are hereby adopted, and given effect as of the 21st day of August, 1978.

Resolution was passed by the following Yea and Nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Muma, Porter, Plumm, Wood, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Swanson.

Moved by Alderman Wood and supported by Alderman Porter to authorize Daverman and Associates to proceed with an engineering survey of the city electrical utility to include mapping, physical survey, land survey, and road forcast at a cost of $6,700.00. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Muma, Porter, Plumm, Wood, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Swanson.

Council adjourned to the Board of Appeals to discuss a lot split requested by Dawson Way and a variance requested by Tim and Tricia Doan.

Board of Appeals convened with Alderman Muma, Porter, Plumm, Wood and Whitley present. Absent: Alderman Swanson.

Moved by Alderman Whitley and supported by Alderman Wood to allow Dawson Way to split his property at 1522 Bridge Street, U.S. 31 S., into four parcels as recommended by the City Planning Commission. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Muma, Porter, Plumm, Wood, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent; Alderman Swanson.

The Board held a Public Hearing to discuss a variance requested by Tim and Tricia Doan at 203 Clinton that would penetrate the west side yard requirement by 7' and allow construction of a garage 3' from their lot line. Jeannine Wallace, a member of the General Public present and neighboring property owner, objected to the variance being granted due to the small size of the lots in that area. Mrs. Wallace also presented several letters from other property owners in the area objecting to the proposed variance. Drew Young, representing the Doans, stated the garage would be used for storage purposes only. Council agreed to study the matter further at their Committee of the Whole meeting on August 28, 1978, and to resume the Public Hearing at the next regular Council meeting on Sept. 5, 1978.

The Board of Appeals adjourned to the regular Council meeting.

Following the Board of Appeals meeting, roll call of the Council was again taken with Alderman Swanson being the only member present.

Moved by Alderman Wood and supported by Alderman Plumm to accept the proposal of Keystone Construction for a 600' sq. ft. addition to the City Garage at a total cost of $1,875.00. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Muma, Porter, Plumm, Wood, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Swanson.

Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Porter to accept the City Water Facility report submitted by Granger Engineering Inc. and that they be directed and authorized to prepare preapplication from this report for a grant consideration for improvement of the City Water Facility from Farm Home Administration. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Muma, Porter, Plumm, Wood, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Swanson.

Moved by Alderman Wood and supported by Alderman Muma to accept the following certification prepared by the City Clerk.

I do hereby certify that at a meeting of the Charlevoix City Council held on August 21, 1978, Judy D. Przybylski was appointed employer delegate and Jack Mol, employer alternate to represent the City of Charlevoix, at the Annual Meeting of the Municipal Employees' Retirement System to be held on Thursday, September 21, 1978. Also, the employees, by secret ballot, selected Scott Blanchard as employee delegate and Ann Willis as employee alternate to represent the employees at the Annual Meeting.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Muma, Porter, Plumm, Wood, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Swanson

Moved by Alderman Muma and supported by Alderman Porter to accept the Deputy City Clerk's reading of the Ordinance to adopt the Uniform Traffic Code and to authorize the City Clerk to publish a synopsis of the Ordinance in the newspaper and to set a date for a Public Hearing in regard to said Ordinance. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Muma, Porter, Plumm, Wood, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Swanson.

Council discussed the adoption of an Administrative Service Code to set down in detail the office of the City Administrative Services listing the various departments and the operation thereof. Mayor Supernaw asked that a final draft of the Code be prepared for the next regular Council meeting and that it be sent to Council members in advance for their studyf and consideration.

Council discussed securing a one year option on the Hiller property on Round Lake in lieu of taxes and insurance provided the property has not already been sold. They agreed to have Mayor Supernaw look into the present status of the property.

A proposal presented by Boss Engineering to complete the work at Mt. McSauba was referred to the next Committee of the Whole meeting for further study and evaluation.

Oscar Ward, a member of the General Public present, appeared before Council to protest the deepening of the channel to 25'. He stated that this depth would allow ocean-going vessels to enter the harbor which would result in numerous problems. Mayor Supernaw advised Mr. Ward that the City has written to the Corps objecting to the project as it would cost the City approximately $100,000 to lower the utility lines with little benefit to the City.

Dale Boss, a member of the General Public present, appeared before Council to object the closing of the parking lot at the end of Palmer Street, the closing off of the Scout cabin at Mt. McSauba, and the blocking of the road to the sand dunes at North Point. He stated that City equipment had been used to block a public County road and that this and many other areas previously available to recreation were being closed. Tom Duke, also present stated he had requested the road be closed as he had been advised it was part of his property and he wished to keep 4-wheel drive vehicles off his dune and beach area. Mayor Supernaw advised Mr. Boss that the parking lot on Palmer Street had been closed by the D.N.R. as they lease the property from the city. He stated that several area residents had complained of the dust problem resulting from the parking lot and that the D.N.R opted to close the lot as they do not have funds available at this time to correct the problem.

Mayor Supernaw read a letter from Alderman Swanson resigning his position on the Council due to illness. Moved by Alderman Muma and supported by Alderman Plumm that the City regretfully accept the resignation of Lawrence S. Swanson as Second Ward Councilman. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Alderman Muma, Porter, Plumm, Wood and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Swanson.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $144,042.48 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed and orders drawn for this amount. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Alderman Muma, Porter, Plumm, Wood and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Swanson.

Council adjourned.

Judy D. Przybylski, City Clerk

Open house at school

The Charlevoix Montessori School will have an open house Tuesday, Sept. 5 at the Congregational Church.

This is the first year for the Montessori school in Charlevoix. Ten youngsters, ages 2-4, have enrolled. Katie Donavan will be the teacher.

Tuesday's open house will be primarily to show parents the environment of the school, which is in the lower level of the church.

"The basic idea in the Montessori Philosophy of education is that, carried unseen within every child is the person the child will become. In order to develop his or her physical, intellectual and spiritual powers to the fullest, the child must have freedom - a freedom to be achieved through order and self-discipline. The world of the child is full of sights and sounds which at first appear chaotic. From this chaos, the child must gradually create order, and learn to distinguish among the impressions that assail his or her senses, slowly but surely gaining master of self and of her or her environment."

Contaminated fish on market

It has been learned that Lake Michigan Lake Trout and salmon are reaching the commercial market and being consumed by the public at large through retail outlets and licensed food service establishments. Dr. James T. Harrison, medical director of District Health Departments three and four, has advised that the majority of these fish contain elevated levels of PCB. Children, women who expect to bear children, and those who are pregnant or nursing an infant should avoid eating any trout or salmon taken from Lake Michigan waters. Other individuals should limit their intake of these fish to no more than an average of one meal per week (one-half pound).

District Health Department three is responsible for the licensing of food and drink establishments in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego counties and is advising reastaurant owners to be aware that food service establishments serving lake trout or salmon from Lake Michigan waters will be cited by the District Health Deparment for serving foods from an unapproved source.

Persons purchasing lake troot or salmon from retail grocery stores or fish markets should be aware of this advisory. Dean Mikulski, director of Environmental health, has been in contact with Michigan Department of Agriculture representatives and they have indicated that they will be surveying retail establishments to assure compliance with appropriate state and federal standards.

Eating of the following ffish should be limited to no more than one average meal per week (one-half pound) Children, women who expect to bear children, or those who are pregnant or nursing an infant, should avoid eating fish from any of the waters listed.

		Chemical	Year found
Carp, Catfish	Saginaw Bay, St. Clair River, Lake St. Clair, Detroit River, Lake Erie	PCB	1976
Steelhead	Michigan (and tributaries)	PCB	1976
Lake Trout	Michigan, Superior	PCB, DDT	1971 1976
Lake Trout	Superior	Mercury	1976
Salmon	Michigan, Huron (and tributaries)	PCB	1971 / 1976
Salmon	Michigan (and tributaries)	Mercury	1971
Sheepshead, Walleye, White Bass, Muskellunge	Lake St. Clair, St. Clair River, Lake Erie Detroit River, Lake Juron (south from Port Sanilac)	Mercury	1971
Large / Smallmouth Bass	Lake St. Clair	Mercury	1971

Removal of excess fat and thorough cooking will lower DDT, PCB, and PBB contaminant levels in fish eaten.

This advisory will remain in effect until data on fish from these waters show decreased contamination consistent with safe public health practice.

Doan heads campaign committee soliciting from area businesses

Ralph Doan and a committee of six volunteers are working for the Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Raising Campaign soliciting employees of area businesses for donations.

Doan, Plant Training Coordinator at Consumers Power Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant, is chairman of the "Employee Gifts Divisions" in the $750,000 fund raising effort.

"We're responsible for contacting employers of 10 or more people, requesting permission to solicit contributions from their employees," Doan explained.

"We look for an employee in each business to head his or her plant's campaign.

"We are approaching 34 businesses in the area served by the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

"Between 300 to 400 individuals will be asked to consider donating to the hospital project," Doan continued.

He explained that there are three methods of giving, the most popular of which is a pledged gift to be met through payroll deductions, arranged with the employer.

Others prefer to pledge a gift over three or five years and receive regular reminders from the hospital, Mr. Doan said. Others prefer a one-time cash donation.

The people working with Doan, contacting area businesses are Dennis Wojan Janet Potter, Jack Grubaugh, Barbara Skeel, Lillan Left and Bruce Henley.

Doan, who has lived in Charlevoix for the past 16 years, is the father of five boys and grandfather of four. He and his wife Cecelia live in downtown Charlevoix.

He says he decided to volunteer to lead his group's efforts, "After looking at the campaign and how the money is used and the need for a really good primary care center.

"I saw that we needed to continue on and expand on what we've got.

"This is the way we can attract more really good doctors: by having a good facility in which they may work."

Doan said his group has high hopes of bringing in between $50,000 and $100,000 to the campaign.

Campaign organizers pointed out that among the hospital's 95 full-time and 45 part-time employees, alone, $50,000 was raised.

Doan concluded, "We hope people will give generously because they know they will benefit directly by having such an excellent primary care community hospital."

Roy Bruneel of Boyne City and William Sherman of East Jordan have volunteered to lead Charlevoix Area Hospital's Fund Raising Campaign efforts in their respective communities.

Both Bruneel and Sherman are members of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors.

Special Recipe Of The Week:

SHORT RIBS HAWAIIAN (ON THE GRILL)

SHORT RIBS HAWAIIAN (On The Grill)

3 lbs. lean beef short ribs, cut in 6 pieces
Instant seasoned meat tenderizer
1 - 1 lb. 4-oz. can pineapple slices
¼ cup water
¼ cup soy sauce
1½ tsp. ground ginger
1 tbsp. brown sugar
¼ cup honey

Night before: Sprinkle ribs evenly with seasoned meat tenderizer (½ tsp. per lb. of meat). Then, with kitchen fork generously pierce ribs on all sides. In 12" x 8" x 2" baking dish, arrange ribs, cover them loosely, refrigerate.

On the day: In bowl, combine juice drained from pineapple slices, water, soy sauce, ground ginger, brown sugar and honey; pour over ribs, refrigerate 4 to 5 hours, turning once.

About 1½ hours before serving: Start fire. Drain short ribs, grill them 3" above hot coals about 15 minutes. Then turn ribs, spoon on some sauce; grill second side till browned. A few minutes before meat is done, brush pineapple slices with sauce; grill till golden.

To serve: Spoon leftover sauce over ribs. Makes 6 servings.

Crowded

AN ESTIMATED 30,000 people walked the Mackinac Bridge Monday, including several people from the Charlevoix area. Gov. William Milliken completed the five mile stroll in one hour and three minutes. Traffic on the bridge was interrupted briefly when farmers of the American Agriculture Movement blocked vehicles from moving with pickup trucks.

DON'T EXPLOIT NATURAL RESOURCES

This is in regard to the Indian fishing rights off Norwood. This whole matter has become out of hand and I can't blame the sportfishermen for getting angry. The Indians are asking for the same rights as the Indians on the West coast. Let's get the facts straight. The Indians on the West coast are fishing a body of water called the Pacific Ocean which consumes ¼ of this planet earth. Even there they are controlled as to what fish they can take. They net Salmon and must fish Tuna with hook and line. On the Pacific coast a Salmon school can be 4 miles wide and 15 miles long. That is a school of fish 4 miles wide and over half way to St. James, Beaver Island from the shores of Charlevoix.

Gill netting in Lake Michigan is against every conservation act that I can think of. The difference in smelt and Whitefish is not only in size but in count. Not in numbers of fish but in pounds. If the Indian must fish by a treaty agreement in the past century, how can they have the nerve to file civil rights charges against the sportfishermen.

The white man must live by the white man's law. If the Indian insists on living by the treaty that was established in the 1800's, maybe they should consider giving up their citizenship of the United States and living in their old ways. True, they are a proud people and have a good right to be. As the constitution states all are created equal. Let's make room for everyone and enjoy our natural resources, not exploit them.

KEEP CHARLEVOIX BEAUTIFUL

The people living on U.S. 31 south of Charlevoix should be praised and applauded. They keep their homes beautiful and their lawns looking neat and trim. We should be thankful for this is the entrance from the south to "Charlevoix the Beautiful". We have a neat looking Ford dealership and soon to come a brand new Chevrolet showroom which will replace an older building. This will enhance our beautiful entrance to "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

Now we have a truck terminal starting up in the defunct P.V.S. garage. This terminal will service cement trucks hauling out of the Medusa Cement Co. Will this terminal get to look as ugly as the unkept junkyard on the curve to Petoskey which services cement trucks out of Penn Dixie? Will it mar the beauty of our south entrance to Charlevoix as the truck terminal at Ellsworth has? I'd bet the people of Ellsworth are sorry. Now it's too late and they have to look at that ugly junkyard. Let's not let this happen to Charlevoix the Beautiful.

There are only four trucks parked there tonight. I understand they have seven and will eventually have seventeen. Soon, we will not be able to use our streets cause these trucks will be parked up and down the highway if you let them.

The junction at the Bells Bay Road entrance has been the scene of a few accidents this past year. It is getting worse and this terminal will even add to the hazardous condition.

I plead to the officials of our township, city and county. Do we want this to happen?

A concerned citizen.

Farmers put up a beef at Big Mac

Several Charlevoix area residents were among an estimated 30,000 people who participated in Monday's five mile stroll across the Mackinac Bridge. Also participating were some 2,000 protesting farmers.

The farmers, representing the American Agriculture Movement, confronted Gov. William Milliken on the bridge with banners and signs protesting beef imports. The governor spoke with some of the farmers and then later in the day issued a statement from his Lansing office urging passage of a bill to restrict beef imports according to demand and domestic supplies.

During the morning three pickup trucks decorated with protest signs blocked traffic on the bridge, holding vehicles at a standstill for 30 minutes or better.

According to UPI, a handful of farmers dumped several boxes into the water at the midway point. The boxes, they said, contained imported beef.

Milliken, incidentally, covered the five miles in one hour and three minutes.

SOME 2,000 farmers were at the Mackinac Bridge Monday protesting beef imports. Members of the American Agriculture Movement passed out literature and waved signs and banners. According to UPI, a group of farmers also dropped boxes into the water, reportedly containing imported beef.

Hospital campaign drive extended two weeks

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Drive has been extended two weeks until Sept. 29.

The campaign's time limit has been pushed beyond its original closing date of September 15 in order that workers caught in the Charlevoix summer maelstrom can complete their soliciting of area residents, the hospital Board of Directors determined at their Tuesday (Aug. 29) meeting.

Glenn Kenney, campaign general chairman explained that "While our goal of $750,000 is within our grasp, it would be a mistake to close down the campaign before all the workers have talked to all our potential donors.

"The press of summer activities has meant that many of our workers have not had the time to make their contacts.

"I expect that our donation and pledge total will balloon right after Labor Day," Kenney predicted.

The fund raising drive's total now stands at $453,475.

Fund drive organizers said that volunteers with the campaign have the names of some 800 individuals with whom they have yet to discuss the campaign.

"Summer is the best and worst time to hold a fund drive in Charlevoix," Kenney observed. "Everyone is here, but everyone is extremely busy.

"Now we hope that those who already volunteered to work and others who now find they have time to volunteer will help us push this campaign over its goal in the short time left," Kenney said.

Charles Duerr, chairman of the general gifts division, who has had considerable fund raising experience in his work with United Way of Michigan, observed, "We have an obligation to those who have given so generously thus far. If the people who haven't yet given will give as liberally as those who have and if the workers finish making their calls, we'll make our goal."

Fund raising organizers point out that with Labor Day past and the exodus of summer visitors, the communities which the hospital serves will now be seriously tapped to support the project.

"The summer community gave generously and helped us pass the half way mark," Kenney stated. "Those of us who use the hospital most, we year-round citizens of Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan and Antrim County, must consider that supporting the hospital project now will help insure the future of this community hospital."

Walter Hufford, president of Hufford Industries of Charlevoix, a supporter and donor to the campaign, observed when making his company's pledge. "We think this is an important campaign and the hospital is very important. We, as individuals and as a business, are part of this community and we feel an obligation to support the community hospital."

Expressing gratitude to Hufford industries, Kenney said, "This is a basic program. It is not large and grandiose. The Charlevoix Area Hospital expansion project meets basic needs. While the expansion project does not have the glamour of a CCU Unit, it does involve departments which all of us would be more apt to utilize. Pledges to this campaign from individuals and businesses, like Huffords, are gratifying."

The $750,000 fund raising goal is to be used as captial for the project, the total cost of which is $2.1 million.

Richard Krueger, Charlevoix Area Hospital administrator, explained that after the $750,000 or more is raised, the balance to meet the $2.1 million costs of the project must be borrowed.

"It is our intention to minimize the effect of this project on hospital patient costs," Krueger said. "Obviously the more we have to borrow the greater our interest payments."

The project revolves around the expansion of overcrowded departments – x-ray, laboratory, inhalation and respiratory therapy, and emergency room – out-patient services which are also used by in-hospital patients.

The hospital which was built in 1954 has an adequate number of beds, but with the trend in medicine today placing more emphasis on out-patient treatment to hold down costs, the out-patient departments have seen as much as 300 percent increases.

Also, in the past several years some seven new physicians have joined the hospital staff, bringing with them more patients, and thus more pressure on the already crowded out-patient departments.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital has been able to combine a high degree of medical excellence with its special atmosphere of personalized care. The expansion project, hospital directors and administrative staff point out, is designed to maintain that uniqueness.

"We are proud at Charlevoix Area Hospital that we can maintain high standards without sacrificing warmth and personal concern. Our project will allow us to continue," Thomas Carey, president of the Board of Directors, concluded.

Indian fishing tug not seen

If the Indian fishing tug, Irene, was in Charlevoix area over the weekend, local officials were unaware of it.

The tug, manned by Bay Mills Indians was reportedly en route to the Charlevoix area Friday to begin gill netting in Lake Michigan.

"I suspect it didn't come because of the heavy winds," said Myrl Keller of the Great Lakes Fisheries Station.

The boat reportedly is equipped with two freezers, a generator and a new diesel engine.

Indian fishermen have been spreading their nets from small craft transported to public access sites on pickup trucks. However, in recent weeks, area sport fishermen have confronted the Indian fishermen. About two weeks ago, 60 people gathered at Rex Beach in Norwood to watch Indian fishermen haul in their night's catch of whitefish and trout.

Area sport fishermen contend that Indian gill netting will deplete the newly established lake trout fishery in northern Lake Michigan. The Indians claim they are limiting their catches to whitefish, although area fishermen say they have seen trout taken, too.

Indian fishermen have asked Gov. William Milliken's office for more protection. Recently, two representatives from the governor's office met with the Indians. And this did not sit well with Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater or Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Scott Beatty. Both men said they were "shocked" at not being informed of the meeting or told of its results. Sheriff deputies have been keeping watch in the Norwood area.

The Michigan United Conservation Club has started a statewide petition drive aimed at halting "uncontrolled and unregulated Indian gill netting" in Great Lakes waters.

The petition urges U.S. District Court Judge Noel Fox to restrain Indians from gill netting until the controversy over Indian fishing rights is settled in the courts.

Judge Fox is presiding over a case in which the federal government is suing the State of Michigan to enjoin the Department of Natural Resources from enforcing state fishing regulations against Indians.

Courier will be one day late

Because of Tuesday's school election, the Charlevoix Courier will be published one day later next week.

The Courier will be printed on Wednesday instead of Tuesday so readers will have the results of the school election.

There are two proposals on Tuesday's ballot. Proposal one seeks $2.315 million for an addition to the high school. Proposal two asks for $885,000 for an addition to the physical education facility.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

The ballot, as will be presented to the voters, appears on page 14 of this week's issue.

Let's Talk Real Estate

by Jim Thomas

Have you noticed the prices of houses these days? Sometimes they are a little high aren't they? Well, if you can't quite afford that dream house, there are other roads to home ownership that might be more affordable now. For instance, did you ever consider buying a multi family dwelling? Certainly, the initial cost will be more than a single family dwelling, but often the rent from the apartments in the house will cover the mortgage. Living in an apartment in a house you own is not the same thing as renting as apartment. A multi-family dwelling can put you more than half way to your dream house.

Whatever style of housing you prefer you'll get experienced help from the professional staff at THOMAS REAL ESTATE, 101 Bridge St., 547-4494. We know the entire area and can help you find just the right home for your family. Stop in and check our selected listings of choice properties in all price ranges. Our friendly staff can give personalized service to sellers as well so if you are putting your property on the market be sure and call us for the listing. "Do business where business is being done". We can't blame other banks for being a little jealous of our Club. After all, it's hard for other kinds of checking accounts to compete with one that offers . . . A full house of... Banking Services for $3.50 a month...

- No service charge checking, without a minimum balance requirement
- Accidental death insurance for each Club member, regardless of age
- Free personalized checks, all you need
- Discounts on travel and lodging, nationwide
- No issue charge on travelers checks
- Additional benefits galore, described fully in The Club brochure

Unfair? Maybe it is a bit unfair to make our competitors compete with The Club . . . but what a deal for our Club members!

A photographic exhibition from the Detroit Institute of Arts, "To the Indus with Alexander the Great," is open to the public at the North Central Michigan College Administration Building in Petoskey through Thursday, Sept. 21.

The 50 photographs by George R. Booth, Jr., of Wayne State University, record the landscape traveled by the conqueror over 2200 years ago. The exhibition was organized by Bernard Goldman, also of Wayne State University.

Glimpses of Alexander's journey with his Greek legionnaires through the lands that are now Iran, Pakistan, Afganistan, and India are seen in both color and black and white photos taken by Booth in 1977. Ancient brick ruins remain as testimony to the advanced societies that preceded Alexander by more than 2000 years.

Among the dramatic views in the exhibition are the black tents of the nomads of Afganistan staked out against the mountains of the Hindu Kush., the mud-brick architecture with raftered roofs of Afganistan's villages, and the main streets of towns whose foundations were laid before Alexander.

Garden big hit at county jail

This spring Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater decided to fight something other than crime. He took on Inflation, which is no easy battle, either.

But it appeara Lasater hos won.

And all the sheriff did was make one simple suggestion ta Marge Warner, the cook at the county joil.

"The sheriff asked me one day if I thought it would pay to have a gorden," Mrs. Warner said. "I'm a farm gal, I thought it was a great idea."

Lasater's interest in a garden came as a result of increnses in food prices and prisoners. Translated, it was getting too costly to feed the prisoners.

So, this spring, with the help of Horry Potter, the head mointenance man for the county, a garden was planted on sheriff's department property.

"We'll save between $800 - $1,000," Mrs. Warner said.

"Just the other day, for instance, I picked 50 green peppers. Do you know how much green peppers cost in a store? About 50 cents a piece. That's $25 worth."

Mrs. Warner has also picked a lot of corn, tomatoes, string beans, carrots, onions, cabbage...and much of it has been frozen. Already in the deep freeze are 100 pounds of string beans, 100 pounds of sweet corn, about 125 green peppers, and 50 quarts of dill pickles. She expects 15-20 bushels of potatoes, tou.

The prisoners have been most helpful in this project. Besides keeping the garden weeded, they have also offered to help with the harvesting.

"They enjoy it, primarily because it enables them to get out of the cell for awhile," Mrs. Warner said.

The garden has been so productive that the sheriff's department has been giving away its excess to the Charlevoix County Senior Citizens Center in East Jordan.

"Yesterday I picked pickles," Mrs. Warner said. "But this morning when I came out I looked at the pickles and it looked like I had never picked them.

"And the tomatoes...they're gruwing everywhere."

So, not only hns the sheriff's department been able to stay within the budget, but it has also been able to provide its "trustees" with good fresh meals.

September gardener? Here's some tips from the experts

EAST LANSING – As the days get noticeably shorter, the home gardener must reluctantly begin thinking about winding down another gardening season. From Michigan State University Extension specialists come these tips on timely activities for September:

–When night temperatures start hitting around 55 degrees, bring in houseplants that spent the summer outdoors. Check plants carefully for insects and treat problems before you transfer the plants indoors. Be prepared for some leaf drop as plants adjust to lower light intensities.

–Dig and pot impatiens, lantana, fuchsia, fibrous-rooted begonias, coleus and geraniums. Cut the tops back to half their size and treat for insect pests before taking the plants indoors for the winter.

–Dig gladiolus corms. Allow them to dry and then remove the foliage. Store them in a cool, dry place in perforated bags so air can circulate freely around them.

–Keep picking the deod or fading blossoms from annual flowers.

–Dig tender bulbs like dahlias, cannas and tuberous begonias after frost has killed the tops. Cut off the dead foliage, leaving a short stub. Then store bulbs in damp sand or peat moss. A cool, dry storage place is best. Check the stored bulbs occasionally and throw away any that shows signs of mold, disease or insect damage.

–Plant peony, iris, day lily, phlox and other spring or summer blooming perennials.

–Harvest strawflowers for winter arranging when they are about half open.

–Beginning around Sept. 1, give your Christmas cactus 12 hours of complete darkness and night temperatures close to 70 degrees F to induce it to bloom around the holidays. (If your plants were outdoors for the summer and were exposed to a number of 55-degree nights, they will probably bloom without the darkness treatment – but not necessarily at Christmas time.)

–Order spring flowering bulbs for forcing and for planting outdoors in October or November.

–From Sept. 20 to about Dec. 1, keep poinsettia plants in total darkness from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. each day to bring them into bloom by Christmas.

–Continue to spray roses for insect and disease control.

–Do not fertilize roses, trees, shrubs and other ornamentals in September. This could stimulate new growth that would not have time to harden off before injuriously cold weather arrives.

–During dry periods, water trees and shrubs – especially newly planted stock ond evergreens. To help plants go into winter well provided with moisture, water thoroughly once a week until the ground freezes.

–Plant shrubs, trees, ground covers and evergreens. Water thoroughly and mulch after planting.

–Prune dead, diseased or damaged limbs from trees.

–Remove old fruiting canes and diseased canes from raspberry plants. Canes that produced fruit this year will not bear again, but may harbor insects or disease organism. Also thin out weak or broken canes.

–To get as much as an extra month of production, protect vegetable crops against the first frost or two.

–Let pumpkins and winter squash ripen thoroughly before you harvest them. The skins should be tough so that you can't easily puncture them with a thumbnail.

–Continue disease and insect control on fruits and vegetables.

–Keep the garden weed-free to prevent weeds from going to seed.

–Clean up fallen leaves, twigs and fruits to minimize next year's insect and disease problems in fruit trees.

–Store leftover flower and vegetable seeds in tightly sealed jars in a cool, dark place.

–Harvest herbs for drying. Dig and pot parsley, chives and other herbs to grow indoors during the winter.

–After the final harvest, plow the garden and plant a fall cover crop of rye to plow under in the spring. This will add nutrients and organic matter to the soil.

–Spray established lawns to rid them of broadleaved weeds.

–Spot seed bare spots in lawns with similor grass species. Loosen the soil surface before seeding and firm it afterward. Water daily – more than once, if necessary – until seedlings are well established.

–Before Sept. 15, sow grass seed on a seedbed prepared last month.

–Continue to water established lawns once a week during dry periods. New lawns need daily light watering until the grass plants are firmly established.

–Rake leaves as they fall to keep them from accumulating and matting on lawn areas. Chop leaves or grind them and put them on the compost pile. If chopped fine and mixed with soil and fertilizer they will decompose quickly to provide a good supply of leafmold for mulch or soil improvement.

–Apply a complete fertilizer – a 4-1-2 ratio such as 20-5-10 – to established lawns around Labor Day.

–Plan to apply nitrogen at a rate of one pound per 1,000 square feet in early November after the final mowing of the season. A combination of slow and fast release fertilizer is best, but urea or ammonium nitrate is good, too.

–Dispose of leftover dabs of pesticide and empty containers safely. Store large amounts of pesticides and other lawn and garden chemicals in airtight containers in a dark, dry storage place that can be securely locked. Such chemicals should not be allowed to freeze or draw damp.

–Watch for elm leaf beetles invading homes while looking for overwintering shelter. They do no damage outdoors but can be a nuisance. A malathion spray around doors and wall cracks may help to control them.

SHOULDN'T WE UPDATE OUR SCHOOL SYSTEM?... FOR OUR SAKE

Proposal I would solve overcrowding

When voters in the Charlevoix School District approved a bond issue about 19 years ago for construction of a new junior-senior high, the school building was designed to fit the needs of the community at that time.

Times have changed, though.

Despite moving junior high students to another facility, there are still more students in the senior high than the building can accommodate.

In past years, the board of education has purchased three portable classroom units to try and help alleviate the situation. But the overcrowding still exists. And now the portables, which cost taxpayers plenty to heat and maintain, are getting old.

Next Tuesday, voters can correct this problem of overcrowding. On the ballot is a proposal that asks if the school district should borrow $2.315 million for "the purpose of erecting, furnishing and equipping additions to and remodeling and partially re-equipping the high school facilities; and developing and improving the site?"

The proposed building addition and remodeling would correct several problem areas. Foremost:

1) The library would be relocated and expanded. (This would help meet accreditation needs).

2) A science room would be added. (Presently, some students cannot take science classes because of a lack of facilities).

3) The cafeteria would be expanded. (There are now three lunch periods and still not everyone can be seated).

4)Additional corridors would improve traffic flow in the hallways.

5) Filling in between the two buildings would conserve energy since fewer rooms would be exposed to the lake wind and doors would not be continually opened from students going back and forth to the portables.

6)A storage room would give the school officials adequate place to store supplies.

Other problem areas would be corrected, too, like the flooring in the present building.

Granted, $2.315 million is a lot of money. But this project will not get any cheaper.

Charlevoix is not expected to experience a drastic decline in enrollment like other area schools, particularly Petoskey. Enrollment is expected to be fairly stable.

Structurally, Charlevoix has a fine school. It's now time to update it and meet the needs of today.

Everyone should know National Anthem

O.K. So I made a fool of myself. I'll admit it. But I'm not sorry.

It happened Wednesday night at the gymnastics exhibition in the Charlevoix High School gym. As is common at all athletic events, the program started with the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

Since no band was present, the music was supplied by a record player hooked up to the P.A. system, which is a perfectly acceptable practice. However, the music wasn't quite as rousing as it is when Gary Stutzman and his bandsmen cut loose over in the corner.

Members of the audience dutifully rose to their feet when the first strains of "O say can you see" emanated from the loudspeaker and I started to sing as I was taught to do in grade school.

But it wasn't long before I discovered I was singing alone. Solo. Like Jose Feliciano.

I stopped for a minute to make sure. Not a mouth around me was moving. There wasn't a sound except for the rasping voice of the P.A. system.

I started singing again, this time a little louder. I hoped that at least my own progeny would join in. But they didn't. So I increased the volume a few more decibels.

Some children further down the stands turned around to see who was making all the racket. They weren't singing, so I went up another notch. My own Jennifer didn't turn around, but she hunched her shoulders and tried to disappear into her collar.

It's awful to be embarrassed by your old man.

Everyone around me was visibly relieved when we arrived at last at "the land of the free and the home of the brave."

When we got home, I asked the kids why they hadn't sung their own National Anthem. After considerable hemming and hawing the truth came out: They don't know the words.

"Don't they teach you the 'Star Spangled Banner' in school," I asked.

"We had to sing it in the second grade," Katie answered. "But we didn't have to learn it.

Jennifer and Allison owned up to singing the National Anthem a few times in elementary school, but they don't know the words and were never asked to learn them.

Don't get me wrong. I am not a super-patriot. Goodness knows I've had my innings with every administration since the days of Harry Truman. The federal government has made some mistakes, some serious mistakes during my lifetime. We have had some scoundrels in Washington calling the shots.

But the United States still has the best form of government of any nation – past or present – on the face of the earth.

The very fact that we have survived the Richard Nixons and Spiro Agnews is evidence enough that the system not only works but works very well indeed.

That is why I feel that the United States deserves a modicum of respect from her citizens, if only in the singing of the National Anthem when the opportunity is presented.

When I was a kid in school during World War II, there were days when the fate of the nation was in the balance. Japanese troops were climbing up the Aleutian Islands toward Alaska. Hitler's armies were exploding across Europe. The United States was not ready to fight a major war on two fronts.

We didn't know how much longer we would be able to sing "The Star Spangled Banner," but we sang it loud and lustily whenever we had a chance. And I think we all felt better because of it.

I believe one of the goals of the Charlevoix school system during the 1978-'79 school year should be the teaching of the National Anthem to all of its students.

End of sermon.

It pays to be careful

A word to motorists: Be careful. Drive defensively. Watchout for other drivers.

—I was driving east on US-2 near Naubinway listening to the Rose Bowl game on the radio. It was snowing and the wind off the lake made visibility poor. I crept along the deserted road - 15 to 20 miles below the speed limit.

In the rear view mirror I saw the red light of a police car. I pulled off the side of the road and the police car continued on. The car disappeared in the blowing snow but the red light was still partly visible. I got back on the road and drove about a mile. The police car was parked on the shoulder and the officer was peering into a car that was stopped on the eastbound lane of the road. I pulled over and got out.

I walked over to the officer. There had been a head-on collision. Both cars had been going about 50-55 mph. The officer pried open the front door on one of the two cars and I helped him take the driver out. His ankles and femurs were broken and he was having difficulty breathing.

By then an ambulance arrived and the five people in the second car were taken out. The driver had died instantly and one of the four passengers looked unconscience.

It was tragic. I learned the following day that three had died. According to police, the car with five people in it was heading west and went to pass a vehicle in front of it. Apparently, the driver never saw the car heading in the opposite direction.

—Just over a week ago I was coming into Petoskey on US-131. An officer was in the road detouring traffic. Several cars were parked along the detour route. I stopped to see what was going on.

As I walked up to the highway I saw two vehicles smashed together – again head-on. It brought back a sad memory.

The paper the next day said one man had died and others were hurt.

So, to all you motorists out there, take your time, be observant and be careful. You may save a life.

Nine innings with 'The Bird'

This column is for Bird watchers. It's usually not my style to gossip about celebrities, but Mark Fidrych had to get up and give me his seat.

Having spent 3 hours close to the most famous baseball player in the world, I would be remiss in my duties as a conscientious journalist if I didn't brag about it.

So turn green, Shirley Eder, our beloved Free Press gossip columnist. I'm here today to tell the world The Bird has a gorgeous girlfriend and they touched each other lovingly – usually on the arm or knee or back of the head – about 6 times an inning during a 9-inning game in which the hitters prevailed and the pitchers were changed 5 times.

And the Bird's bodyguard was changed in the middle of the sixth inning.

Don't you just adore it?

It was because of my son-in-law, Mike the Jock, that I got close to The Bird. Mike was a college football player and a high school coach. He is now a school administrator in northern Michigan, still playing muscle games and generally intimidating his father-in-law, who never played anything rougher than marbles.

So when Mike sent word that he'd be visiting in Detroit and would like to see a baseball game, I was determined to impress him with my stature in the sports world. With a lot of help from a friend, I got the best seats in Tiger Stadium for a game with Cleveland.

When the usher showed us to our box, just a few feet from home plate, he had to shoo out a young couple who had inadvertently sat in our seats. Half of the young couple was The Bird, who, as you know if you don't live on Mars, is sitting out the balance of this baseball season because of a lame arm.

"It is frequently necessary for ushers to move aside more obscure people to make room for me when I attend sports events," I explained to Mike, who even looks athletic when his mouth is hanging open.

Fidrych and friend sat directly ahead of us the rest of the game. Of course, you want to know what they were wearing.

The Bird wore an almost-white T-shirt that didn't reach the top of his blue corduroy trousers, and green tennis shoes. It's a casual look which Mark could probably achieve even if he didn't make $90,000 a year. My son Nerd achieves it every day and he is unemployed.

The Bird's companion wore a checkered blouse and blue jeans with "Chic" lettered on the hip pocket. There is no way she could ever fit her hand into her hip pocket.

She has a deep tan and her sun-streaked blond hair hangs long and loose. As she watched the game, she frequently tilted her head backward and slightly shivered her torso, causing her golden tresses to fall away from her high cheekbones and rest lightly in the soft curves made where her neck meets her bared shoulders.

A couple of times, I drank my bag of peanuts and stuck my hand in my glass of beer.

A man who looked like Omar Sharif sat directly across the aisle from The Bird, wearing a 3-piece suit. He sat side-saddled, with a leg over the arm of his seat, so he faced Fidrych instead of the ball field. He carried a walkie-talkie into which he occasionally muttered.

It was Omar's job to keep autograph-seekers away from The Bird. He would block the aisle, explaining politely that Fidrych wanted to enjoy the game, so please don't bother him. But the security wasn't 100 percent.

Many fans approached The Bird from his blind side, sometimes stepping on my feet. He always signed their score books graciously. And Omar was also a softie. He sometimes accepted score books from little kids and quietly got The Bird to sign them.

The second bodyguard was stationed several rows back, at the ramp entrance. His job was to give Omar someone to talk to on the walkie-talkie, and to bat for him in the sixth inning when Omar had to go to the john.

The Bird and his friend left at the top of the ninth inning but we stayed until the end. Mike the Jock knows the game is never over until the last out is made, and I had more peanuts to drink.

Detroit won, 9 to 5, Shirley Eder never would have told you that.

Parental discretion full-time job

At a time of my life when it is difficult for me to make a decision between a cheap weak bleach or a stubborn stain fighter, I am hit with yet another responsibility: PARENTAL DISCRETION.

PARENTAL DISCRETION is a full-time job in this country. You can't turn around without a child shoving a movie ad or a TV guide into your face with a little box that reads, "Due to mature subject matter, PARENTAL DISCRETION is advised."

I used to read a lot...and needlepoint...now all I get done is "discret."

Last week alone I had to "discret" on a drama dealing with a necktie strangler, a young girl who murdered both of her parents with an axe, Requium For a Nun, a hotel full of weirdos and a chaplain who fooled around.

"Mom, can't we watch the show on the nun?"

"No, the listing says the language and the racial epithets are offensive."

"What are racial epithets?" asked my son.

"Something naval officers wear on their shoulders."

"Are you sure?" he squinted.

"How about a poem on a tombstone?" I asked.

"Can't we watch the show on the chaplain? He's only fooling around."

"Yes, but he's doing it on prime time ... as a career. Why don't you see a nice movie?"

Actually, my kids and I witness more violence between one another on what they're going to view as they're likely to see on a screen anywhere.

"Can we see Lenny?" one asked.

"No. It's loaded with perversion."

"What's perversion?" he persisted.

"The extra point after a touchdown. How about Old Yeller?"

"How about Confessions of a Window Cleaner?" he pursued.

"Absolutely not. I've never trusted anyone with clean windows."

"How about Blazing Saddles?"

"I heard there are enough four-letter words in it to open a branch Navy in every country in the world. And the same goes for Young Frankenstein."

As I slumped exhausted into a chair I said to my husband, "You discret for awhile."

"How can you exercise discretion on movies and TV shows you've never seen? I mean, how do you know Young Frankenstein is objectionable?"

"Easy. Everyone in their class loved it!"

Township board responds to coverage of lawsuit

Editor:

The Charlevoix Township Board has patiently waited for the editor of the Courier to make a balanced presentation of the charges made by the Committee to Preserve the Environment. Not once have any members of the township board been contacted. The reporters who have been present at the court hearings have given detailed accounts of the charges, but no one has ever presented the answers of the township.

The publicity regarding Medusa's expansion has continued for over a year, yet less than three months ago the committee filed suit. The township board had indicated to Medusa that they would be favorable to the proposed tax exemption if Medusa agreed to several stipulations regarding pollution at the plant. Late in the year we were given written assurances of compliance by the Medusa officials. These specific matters were:

1. On Oct. 18, 1977 a three page letter from Kaiser Engineers of Michigan, based in Oakland, Cal. regarding pollution control equipment states that with the new process the dust emission will be reduced by more than 20 percent; the must odors originating from the wet process will be eliminated; the sulfur oxide emission will be reduced by more than 50 percent and under most meteorological conditions there will be no steam plume.

2. In a letter dated Oc. 27, 1977 from Medusa Cement Company; "Medusa hereby reiterates and confirms its committment to effect hard surface paving of Bells Bay Road...contingent upon approval by the County Road Commission...and would proceed with paving immediately, weather permitting".

3. A letter dated Oct. 27, 1977 from Cement Transit Company, a Subsidiary of Medusa Portland Company advising us that this winter the Medusa Challenger would be refitted with dust control equipment that would substantially reduce and all but eliminate any dust emissions during loading. (This has already been done.)

We contacted the Alabama Air Pollution Control regarding the dry process cement plant in Raglan, Ala They assured us that this plant meets EPA standards.

In January this information was made public at the hearings held then for the Tax Exemption Application. The Committee to Preserve the Environment first of all did not contact our Air Quality Board with any of their complaints about Medusa. For nearly 10 years this board effectively enforced our ordinance, calling in Dr. Thomas Sweeney an environmental specialist from Ohio State University. Under his recommendation the amount of allowable pollution was reduced by amending our ordinance in 1970, and Medusa willingly complied. Since 1975 the DNR has been, by state law, the major enforcing agent regarding air quality

We have repeatedly asked the DNR for reports on their inspections and have not received any since they took over The committee also passed our township zoning ordinance which requires a complaint to be brought before our zoning board of appeals. If satisfaction is not obtained, then the next step is to appeal to Circuit Court.

The Township Board is very concerned with pollution in the area; but we are also mindful that this year has been unusually dry, that Medusa has been shorthanded with two strikes being staged at the plant during this construction phase, and with the lack of cooperation of the Charlevoix County Road Commission in hardsurfacing Bells Bay Road. You will note that last year, even before any action by this committee the township board required Medusa to start a revegetation program.

In closing, we feel that had efficient reporting been done regarding this lawsuit many of the harsh statements and the division among the local people might have been avoided. Also, had the Committee to Preserve the Environment been present at these public hearings they would have realized that the township board had spent many hours of effort and research to ensure a high degree of air quality in the community. We feel that the charge of apathy made against Charlevoix Township Board by the committee is unjust.

School board asks support on proposals

Editor:
To the Citizens of the Charlevoix School District:

On Tuesday, Sept. 12, you will be deciding the future of our high school. This is a crucial election, and the accreditation of our high school depends on your vote.

Proposition I includes additional classrooms, a larger Instructional Materials Center (library), new science laboratories, larger cafeteria, and building repairs. Approval of Proposition I is essential for maintaining our accreditation.

Proposition II includes additional physical education room and locker rooms. This is required by new federal regulations and community recreation programs.

Our schools are an integral part of our community and Charlevoix deserves to have an accredited high school. For the past two years, the North Central Association has warned us that we can lose our accreditation because of overcrowding and inadequate facilities. A yes vote on Tuesday, Sept. 12, will mean that Charlevoix will continue to have an accredited high school

As your board of education it is our responsibility to plan and provide for our community's education. We urge you to vote YES on Tuesday, Sept. 12, at the elementary school

Sincerely,
Board of Education
Charlevoix Public Schools

Teenager defends cohorts

Teenagers have long since been named rowdy, troublemakers, or juvenile delinquents. And in some cases all three at once.

This, in few cases, is a true discription. But for most teenagers it is quite undeserved.

All teenagers should not be judged by the actions of a few, just as all adults should not be judged by the actions of a few.

For example: If an adult noticed a senior citizen sitting in the park, watching the town, they probably wouldn't give it a second thought. But if this same adult saw a teenager doing the same thing as the senior citizen, they probably would consider the teenager a juvenile delinquent out looking for trouble.

Some teenager might be out looking for trouble, but most of Charlevoix's teenagers are to busy to worry about getting into trouble

Teenagers, like a lot of people, like and need to be active, so, they get jobs, sometimes a couple, they get involved in summer sports, march with the band on Venetian, or play for the city band. Sometimes a teenager will get involved in all of these activities

So the next time you see a teenager "hanging around" town, or sitting on a park bench, think twice before you pass judgement, they might just be relaxing.

And why not downtown, it belongs to all of us.

Meet Charlevoix

...Jim Hater

Jim Hater, general manager of the Charlevoix Manufacturing Company on Martin Road, is operating the newest industrial plant in the Charlevoix area. This week he tells the Courier something about his business and himself personally.

COURIER: What do you manufacture?

HATER: Cylinder brake pistons for automobiles. General Motors is our main customer. We also make replacement parts and sell them to auto parts companies.

COURIER: Where did you move from and why?

HATER: We came from Cincinnati. Two years ago Cincinnati had a gas shortage and we had to cut down our melting operation. We need natural gas for our business, so we checked other parts of the country – Oklahoma, Florida, Texas, and Michigan. we chose Michigan because it was nearest aur market area. Charlevoix was the next logical step.

COURIER: How many men and women do you employ?

HATER: Right now, 20. They are all skilled because we put them through a five-week training program. We're going to start a second shift shortly. Our employees are all local except Bill Dreyer, who came with us from Cincinnati. All the others were unemployed and hired through the Michigan Employment Security Commission. They did the screening for us. I'm excited about being here because we've hired nothing but unemplayed people. I believe our presence here will benefit the area. I feel there is a need here for industry to support the population. I don't want Charlevoix to become a metropolis but I do like a mixture of resort and industry.

COURIER: How's business?

HATER: We got off to a slow start but now it's starting to pick up.

COURIER: How do you market yuur product?

HATER: We have a limited number of customers because it's a highly specialized product. Not many others make it. Most af our customers we've had for years.

COURIER: This is an attractive building. Who built it?

HATER: Jim Behling of Boyne City. It has 17,000 square feet of office and factory space. We started production July 17.

COURIER: Have you jained any local organizations?

HATER: We're joining the Northwest Michigan Industrial Association and the Chamber of Commerce. I also want to join the Lions Club. I was a Lion in Cincinnati.

COURIER: Where did you grow up?

HATER: In Cincinnati. I went to Kentucky Military Institute and to Marquette University in Milwaukee. Studied Business Administration.

COURIER: What did you do before coming to Charlevoix?

HATER: I worked for Hater Industries in Cincinnati. I've spent summers in Charlevoix for the last 15 years and also crewed on a yacht.

COURIER: What are yaur hobbies, besides boating?

HATER: My true lave is flying. I'm a pilot and am trying to get into the Flying Club.

COURIER: Your family has summered in Charlevoix for a long time, haven't they?

HATER: Yes, my grandparents, the late Harry and Viola Hater, started coming to the Belvedere Club in the early 1940's. My uncle, Bob Hater, now has their cottage. My parents have had a place on the south Arm for about 15 years.

COURIER: You had several good reasons for coming to Charlevoix, didn't you?

HATER: Yes, it's a dream come true to be able to live here. I've never spent a winter here, but I can't imagine it's much different from Milwaukee. I'd like to give cross country and downhill skiing a shot.

COURIER: Are you married?

HATER: I married Mary Beth Ferguson in Cincinnati on June 18. We live on Central Avenue here.

Jim Hater

Apartment plans to come before city council

Once again there are plans for some low income and senior citizen housing in Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix Planning Commission has approved two sets of plans submitted by developers, one for an apartment complex for rental to people over 62, and one for a complex that would serve both low income people and senior citizens.

It will now be up to the City Council to make its recommendations.

The senior citizens housing is proposed by the Henry J. Spieker Company of Toledo. It would consist of 42 one bedroom units, located on May Street near the present "Charlevoix Apartments", on property now owned by Florence Forbes.

To be eligible to rent an apartment in the senior citizens project, the family income could not exceed $11,000, and the amount of rent would be based on income.

Financing for the senior citizens housing would be through the Farmers Home Administration. However, before this financing could be arranged, a feasibility study showing housing needs in the city would have to be made by the developers.

Also, since the senior citizens complex is planned for property now zoned R-1 (single family), action to rezone the property to R-4 (multiple family) would have to be taken.

The low income housing is proposed by Frank Vaydik, who built and owns the "Charlevoix Apartments."

This project would consist of 56 units, half two-bedroom and half one-bedroom. It would be built on the May Street property now owned by Frank Smith. This property is already zoned R-4.

It is expected that the Vaydik project would also be financed through the Farmers Home Administration and a feasibility study made. Rents would be based on income with the renter receiving a government subsidy if necessary.

Sings-Spiration slated Sept. 10

Community Sings-Spiration, sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association, will be held Sunday evening Sept. 10 at 8:30 p.m. at the First Baptist Church off Charlevoix on M-66.

Rev. Dan Abner, pastor of the church, will be in charge.

Special musical numbers will be featured from various churches of Charlevoix. Other such programs are being planned later on in the year by the Ministerial Association.

Sale nets $600

Ethel Wiesinger, who was chairman of the Charlevoix Women's Club book sale, reports that the sale netted $600.

"We did not receive as many donations as we did last year when we made $800," Mrs. Wiesinger said, "but we feel it was a big success."

ALICIAN JOY HOFFMAN will celebrate her first birthday September 10. She is the daughter of Ronald and Mary Hoffman of Charlevoix. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William Hoffman of Atwood, and maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kayner of Charlevoix.

Two county youths finish near top at 4-H show

Two Charlevoix County 4-H Horse Club members successfully competed with nearly 500 other horses and riders from through the state at the 1978 State 4-H Horse Show, recently at Michigan State University.

Riders were divided into 10 sections, according to type of horse and age of rider. There were a total of 180 classes in the event.

Sarah McFall, of Bay Township, competing in her second state show, finished fifth in both Saddle Seat Equitation and English Pleasure. Sarah competed in the registered horse section, with her registered Morgan, Grand Major.

Jenny Michael, 12, of East Jordan, in her first state show, rode her pony Michigan Proud Pace, in the pony section, finishing fourth in both Fitting & Showmanship, and Western Pleasure. Jenny also finished seventh in Western Equitation.

Both girls qualified for the State 4-H Show by winning the most points in the four 4-H Horse Shows held in Charlevoix County this summer.

The annual State 4-H Horse Show is an educational event which brings together the top riders from each county. It is organized by Dr. Richard Dunn, Michigan State University Extension Specialist in Animal Husbandry. For more information on 4-H Horse Clubs in Charlevoix County, call the Boyne City Extension Office at 582-6232.

Local artists in fair

Three area artists will exhibit their work at the 1978 Lafayette Park Art Fair. They are: jewelery maker Linda Beers Aydlott, textile artist Nancy Riggs Bouchy, and printmaker-potter Susan Bolt. They will join more than 80 Michigan artists and craftspersons at one of the season's very best fairs on Sept. 9 and 10.

Every year this juried fair features the best of Michigan's artist craftspersons in an event that is just the right size. This year 80 participants will exhibit, demonstrate and sell their work. Woodcarving, dulcimers, handcrafted furniture and soft sculpture will be the more unusual offerings along with the traditional media.

The place is the Towers Shopping Plaza on Lafuyette, one and one-half blocks east of the Chrysler Freeway near downtown Detroit. Hours for the fair are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. The annual art auction will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

Commission on Aging serve nutritional lunches

With the opening of the school year, the time for the nutritional lunches served at the Charlevoix High School by the Commission on Aging has been changed to 1 o'clock on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Meals are also served at the Senior Center in East Jordan on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays at 12 o'clock; at the American Legion Hall in Boyne City on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and on Fridays at 12 o'clock; and at the High School in Boyne Falls on Mondays at 12:45.

Art Saworski, administrator of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, reports that he expects the Nutrition Program for the coming year will be funded on the same basis as it was last year, when the budget was $33,204. In addition to this amount, the Nutrition Program also received help from the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) which provides money for the salaries of some program workers.

Another program administered by the Commission on Aging is called "Title III." This encompasses Home Chore Services, Transportation, Vial of Life, Information Referral, Health Screening, Senior Citizens I.D. Cards, and a new service called "Personal Care."

Play Ball!

The Charlevoix Red Rayders will open their football, golf and girls basketball seasons within the next week.

The varsity football team, coming off an undefeated season, will host Kalkaska. Kick-off time is slated for 8 p.m. The junior varsity will play at Kalkaska Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

The golf team swings into action on Monday hosting Elk Rapids. The meet starts at 4 p.m.

The girls basketball team opens its season the following night by hosting Alanson. Tip-off time is scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

The cross-country team, which competed in two invitationals last weekend, start the conference season by traveling to Gaylord. The triangular will also feature Boyne City. The meet will start at 4:30 p.m.

Football Coach Don Carey says he has an "enthusiastic" team this year. Carey lost several "talented players" and he admits he has "a lot of openings."

Craig Boss and Doug Buday are the team's co-captains this year.

Assisting Carey are: Roger Gowell, Hal Evans (junior varsity) and Charles Bentley (freshman).

ARE YOUR CHILDREN TRULY READY FOR SCHOOL?

With summer vacation nearly over, you have undoubtedly been getting your children ready for the opening of the school year; and by now their clothes, etc., are probably all in order. However, how do they stand on manners, discipline, attentiveness and respect for authority such as the teacher, the bus driver, the crossing guard, etc? If you have trained them properly, they should rate at least a passing grade in all these things. The school should not have to do your job of imposing discipline to keep order in the classroom. The Sunday school at the Church of your choice can be of great help in teaching your children the good conduct they will need in the regular school or indeed, everywhere in life.

Gymnasts perform at high school

Gymnasts from the Wolverine Gymnastics Summer Camp performed Wednesday night at Charlevoix High School.

The gymnastic show was directed by Jim Mitchell, a resident of Charlevoix and a certified gymnast. Mitchell will be teaching dance and gymnastics to youngsters and adults in the Charlevoix area this fall in the community education program.

Following Wednesday night's display, a pre-registration was held.

The gymnasts performed on the vault, uneven bars, pommel horse, parallel bars, balance beam and also did a series of floor exercises. An appreciative crowd encouraged the gymnasts from Harry S. Truman High School in Taylor with applause.

Mitchell explained each event:

VAULT: This event is similar to the mens event, except the horse is turned sideways and is lowered. The gymnast has two jumps, and receives the best score of the two jumps.

UNEVEN BARS This event is the newest event and the most spectacular. The gymnast must keep a continuous movement in and out of the two bars. She will transfer from bar to bar with kips, casting movements, turns and jumps and dismounts with a two-handed release.

BALANCE BEAM: The beam is 16 feet long and only four inches wide. The time limit: 1:15 minutes to 1:35 minutes. The gymnast will perform ballet movements, jumps and even tumbling movements.

FLOOR ECERCISE: The most beautiful event of all: Floor exercise is performed on a 40' square and has a time limit of 1:00 minute to 1:30 minutes. The gymnast must perform to music played on a single instrument (piano). The music will emphasize quality and style, she will combine ballet, tumbling and agility movements into a flowing routine.

MEN'S GYMNASTICS: For the men, competition consists of floor exercise side horse, still rings, parallel bars, horizontal bar and tumbling.

FLOOR EXERCISE: The floor exercise routine should include tumbling, balance, and strength movements. All available floor space in all directions should be used. The men do not use music to do their routines.

POMMEL HORSE: The performer must possess excellent timing and balance. The entire exercise should include changes of balance and the use of the three parts of the horse and facing both directions. Movements are predominatety double leg circles, single leg cuts and scissors in both directions with a change of direction.

HORIZONTAL BAR: The gymnast must show strength and agility. Must show giant swings in both directions; working close to the bar as well as away from the bar, the gymnast must have a two-handed release and a well-planned routine will include movements where the bar is towards the gymnasts' back.

PARALLEL BARS: The gymnasts' routine must involve swinging movements, flight, and strength moves. A release of both hands either above or below the bars is required. The gymnast is allowed no more than three stops.

STILL RINGS: The still rings has become one of the most popular of events. It is quite evident that strength is a predominant factor, however, the gymnast must alternate his strength moves with those of swing and holds. The rings must remain still. Two hand stands are required, one from a swing and the other, from strength.

TUMBLING: Tumbling, better known as Strip Tumbling, is not an Olympic event, but is used in some competitions. The gymnast is given 1:00 minute to complete three passes down a 60 foot mat. During the routine, the gymnast must show one front tumbling pass, one back tumbling pass and one mixed tumbling pass with twisting movements and consistence in height. (Shoulder high or better.)

BUILT ON A ridge overlooking Lake Michigan at Beaver Island, these buildings were constructed as shelters for 36 mentally/physically handicapped adults most of whom had never camped before for periods of as much as four weeks. The program was initiated by the Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Board.

Area health board develops camp for handicapped

"If you give people an opportunity to establish their own community, that is, if you place them in a primitive or undeveloped setting and they come out of it feeling they have powers they never realized they possessed, then you have accomplished your goal".

That is how Paul Krepel, director of Little Traverse Enterprises, evaluates the pilot program for mentally/physically handicapped adults undertaken by the Northern Michigan Community Health Services Board. The program was a camp established in a primitive setting on Beaver Island in which 36 adults, both men and women, have participated during a 12-week period beginning in mid-July and ending Sept. 12.

Under the program, a staff of five adults engaged by the Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Board staked out a camp site on property assigned by the owner, the Charlevoix School District, assembled a group of 10 mentally/physically handicapped adults from the four-county area served by the board and set off for Beaver Island. In a most primitive setting, they set up camp and went about the business of clearing and constructing shelters.

As Krepel tells it, "That first group certainly worked hard. The camp site we were assigned was on a ridge with no flat surfaces which, at first, was very discouraging. However, it turned out to be a challenge as these people, some of whom had never used an axe, a hammer or a saw laid foundations of wood, and covered them with flooring. They then cut poles, stripped them and made them into frames. They then covered them with plastic, utilizing the bark to hold the plastic in place". This work was done under the guidance of Robin McMillan of East Jordan who, with his wife, Rebecca, were members of the staff.

They built pyramid, lean-to and A-frames before finding that pyramid frames were the most satisfactory. As a result their largest structure, a 24 x 24 foot all-purpose building which houses the kitchen, mess hall and main living quarters was this type of structure. They also built a 12 x 12 ft. arts and craft building and four 9 x 12 structures for sleeping quarters. Of course, the buildings had to be adequately furnished so they built tables of every description to meet their needs, stools, chairs and even their bunks. The latter were of poles strung with bailing twine on which they placed their sleeping bags.

"Their first efforts were pretty crude" Krepel said of their early efforts. However, as they went along they improved and when the project was completed it was a pretty efficient camp. There were steps and railings to some of the buildings as can be seen in the picture, he pointed out.

Everyone, staff and campers alike, joined in the camp chores. A rigid routine was established early to assure a safe and healthy camp life. All the campers received daily assignments that included hanging sleeping bags to air, collecting trash and laundry, preparing food and helping with the cooking, washing dishes, keeping the camp site clean and even limeing the latrines daily.

Once the initial building project was completed, there was the refurbishing and reenforcing to improve the buildings and furniture. Mornings were confined to work detail, the afternoons devoted to arts and crafts, recreation of various types including swimming, hiking, and organized sports and the evenings to completing the day's chores, cards, games and free time.

In organizing the staff Krepel said the aim was to select people who could adapt to any situation including the primitiveness of the camp, people who could work and yet handle any contingency that might arise. They had to be people who were enthusiastic, warm, loving and with different talents to share. "We ended up with a well-balanced staff that met the criteria we established. They have met every problem head on and come up with solutions. When we started we weren't sure how the campers themselves would re-act to primitive camp life devoid of all the ordinary comforts. But they have all come through with flying colors". He said most of them had never been camping or had to do for themselves under primitive circumstances. "Everything became a challenge to them...everything from building their shelters to preparing meals, all done with two small Coleman stoves, a griddle and a refrigerator".

The staff planned the meals, he said, and have come up with some fine ones on a limited budget. Most staff members had gardens on the mainland and have shared their fresh vegetables as have others including island residents who have donated fresh fruit and vegetables. A couple staff members are vegetarians and have prepared numerous dishes not usually found on menus. "No one has complained about the meals which is a good sign. There always seems to be a variety to satisfy all tastes" he said of the meals.

Parents or guardians of the campers were skeptical of the program in the beginning. Some thought four weeks would be too long for the staggered sessions, others just knew the program would be too strenuous and most felt the campers would become homesick before the first week was out. However, it turned out that the campers had a great time and were reluctant to return home at the close of the four week period. It was the parents and guardians who became homesick and many visited the camp to reassure themselves that all was well with their loved ones.

In summing up the results of the pilot program, Krepel said that everyone involved in it feels it has been very worthwhile. "It accomplished what we wanted it to. It proved that these people, given the opportunity, could and would adapt to situations they had never before experienced. Every camper proved to himself that he was capable of accomplishing more than he ever dreamed possible. All the campers adjusted to social situations that were new to them such as living together, working together and sharing.

"If these people are to become a part of society these are things they must learn. It is the consensus of the camp staff that it accomplished these goals," Krepel said.

The final week of camp, Sept. 5-12, will be devoted to the severely disabled.

The staff included Krepel who coordinated the program along with Susan Miller who will be activities specialist at the Little Traverse Enterprises when it opens later this year; Virginia Berg of Charlevoix, a teacher; Linda Hall of Petoskey, a Special Education teacher, and the McMillans. On the mainland Mrs. Lillian Bergmann served as client services coordinator in charge of all arrangements for the camp.

In all, 36 mentally physically handicapped people will have been in the program financed by the Michigan Department of Mental Health (90 percent) and local funding (10 percent) by Boards of Commissioners and contributions including one from the Knights of Columbus in Boyne City. Campers came from Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Otsego counties with a few from Antrim county.

When camp closes, all reuseable materials including frames, foundations, plastics and other materials will be stored for further use in a storage building at the lighthouse property. As compensation for use of the camp site, the campers helped reclaim the storage building.

CAMPERS, under the direction of Robin McMillan of East Jordan, worked together to build frames for what would become their 'homes' while participating in a camping program for mentally/physically handicapped adults in a four-county area serviced by the Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Board headquartered in Petoskey.

Milliken, Fitzgerald to speak at convention

An array of national speakers, including Anthony Downs of the Brookings Institution and Alan Beals of the National League of Cities (NLC), will address the 80th annual convention of the Michigan Municipal League to be held Sept. 14 to 16 in the Grand Hotel at Mackinac Island.

Using as its theme "Return to Main Street," the convention will focus on such topics as the rehabilitation and preservation of neighborhoods and downtown areas in municipalities, economic growth and population trends.

Michigan Governor William G. Milliken and Democratic gubernatorial candidate William B Fitzgerald have been invited to speak at the opening luncheon at 12:15 p.m.

Campbell to work as investigator for Friend of Court

Brad Campbell has joined the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office as Support Investigator for the Friend of the Court.

He will be counseling those persons making child support payments through the Friend of the Court and doing whatever investigative work necessary to determine the proper amount of support.

Campbell has lived in the Charlevoix area for seven years. He has taught sociology, history, and government in the Community Education program of the East Jordan Public Schools, and at one time managed the dining room of the Petoskey Holiday Inn.

Campbell grew up in Cedarburg, Wisconsin. He is a graduate of Western Michigan University with a degree in secondary education.

"I came up here several years ago to get a summer job," he recalls, "and liked it so well I decided to do my student teaching in Traverse City. I also married a Charlevoix girl, Judy Ann Perrin."

Shipping is big business on the Great Lakes-Seaway

Commercial shipping is big business on the Great Lakes - St. Lawrence Seaway System. Over 200 million tons of commerce flow through the system in an average year causing ripples of economic benefits throughout an entire 19 state Great Lakes tributary area and shipping activitly is expected to increase. By the year 2000 Great Lakes - St. Lawrence Seaway traffic is being projected to carry about 375 million tons of cargo.

Employment, income, tax benefits and general economic development potential rides with the Great Lakes fleet. The Great Lakes - St. Lawrenee Seaway obiously is an important factor in industrial development. It extends the range of the mid-American manufacturer's marketing options as well as generating localized economic activity at the lake ports.

A study of the Great Lakes states of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois, Michigan and Ohio determined that direct income from 1968 Seaway traffic totaled $283 million. This economic activity triggered an additional $360 million in income through the multiplier effect.

Employment generated by Great Lakes - St. Lawrence Seaway shipping interests in 1968 totaled 37,770 persons with an additional 85,710 jobs dependent upon the system.

The effect of Great Lakes traffic on a single location is perhaps a better way to measure its economic significance. In a 1977 study of the Port of Ouluth, it was estimated that 6,700 workers (or 15 percent of Duluth's total work force) were dependent upon the port for employment. These people received $87.7 million in wages in 1976 and stimulated much more economic activity in the surrounding area. The return to the state of Minnesota was $112.5 million. The other half of the Twin Ports, Superior, has even higher port related employment. A 1974 study in Superior indicated that 9,500 persons, nearly two-thirds of the work force, depended upon the harbor for employment. The Duluth Port report concluded that "without the Ouluth-Superior Port the structure of agriculture and industry in the Midwest would be substantially altered." Because the economic benefits involve the economic organization of an entire region, it is quite difficult to accurately measure the total economic impacts.

A similar picture could be painted for many other Great Lakes Port cities. The Chicago area ports of Indiana Harbor and Calumet are major shipping centers as are Oetroit, Toledo, Cleveland and Buffalo. The ports of Lorain, Ashtabula, Sandusky and Conneaut – all in Ohio – each handle about 10 million tons of cargo annually. Milwaukee, Manitowoc and Green Bay in Wisconsin are important ports as are Muskegon, Ludington, Saginaw, Grand Haven and Alpena in Michigan. All of these cities and many smaller Great Lakes Ports depend heavily upon the flow of commerce through the 2,300 mile Great Lakes - St. Lawrence system.

All of these economic activities did not just happen. Federal investment in the Great Lakes - St. Lawrence Seaway system has been substantial. According to a 1970 Great Lakes Basin Commission commercial navigation report, nearly $.5 billion was spent to develop the necessary locks and channels in the system and an additional $1.2 billion of federal money was invested in harbor related construction and improvements. The Canadian expenditure for their part of the system was even higher, exceeding $2 billion.

Tolls charged for vessel use of the US portion of the system are paid to the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, the US agency involved in the international venture. In 1976, the corporation had revenues of $7.3 million and had reduced its corporate indebtedness to $116 million. The US government has forgive interest charges on outstanding bonds.

It is often observed by Great Lakes shipping interests that the "fourth coast" generally receives less federal support than the Pacific, Atlantic, or Gulf Coast.

Ouring the 1946 to 1970 period for example, port development for the Great Lakes totaled $85 million while the North Atlantic received $454 million. Great Lakes interests also claim that the other coasts have pressured the government to force the Seaway to operate on a self supporting basis through tolls while the ocean coastal ports bear no such costs. Great Lakes commercial shipping interests are also quick to note that virtually every transportation network in the country has received massive federal support, the railroads and highways particularly. In that context, they urge that spending federal money on the Great Lakes commerical navigation systems not be viewed as unusual.

Although predictions regarding the future of the Great Lakes Seaway System suggest large increases in shipping activity and corresponding economic benefits, projecting future impacts is difficult without resolution of several major questions. Increases to about 572 million tons of commerce by the year 2020 have been estimated, with most of this increase projected for bulk commodities of iron ore, coal and limestone. Such increases might not be possible without major modifications of the present system. Others have raised questions as to whether the natural resource base will support such traffic.

Some of the potential changes in the wind include extending the navigation season to 12 months to increase capacity, deepening of the harbors and connecting channels, and expansion of the lock systems to accommodate longer and wider vessels. Each of these alternatives involve major costs. The extended navigation season program would demand an investment of just over $1.2 billion. Preliminary estimates indicate that deepening of the upper lakes to a 32 foot draft (34' depth) would be a $9.5 billion project, while expansion of the Sault Lock System to allow 130' wide vessels and deepening to 32' draft (34' depth) channels was estimated to be a $92.2 million project.

Many millions of dollars of increased economic benefit are estimated to result from any of these improvements. The Corps of Engineers (Detroit District) will soon begin studying the cost-benefit of these various alternatives in this Great Lakes Connecting Channels and Harbors study (GLCCH) which will also assess the environmental and social aspects of any proposed changes. A revised plan of study for GLCCH has also been distributed to interested citizens, and suggested alternatives will be evaluated in a series of workshops conducted by Great Lakes Tomorrow at 10 Great Lakes port cities by local citizens.

Whatever the final decision regarding the future of the Great Lakes - St. Lawrence Seaway System it is a safe bet that commercial navigation will remain a significant factor in the economic development of the Great Lakes region. The dollars from the lakes will find their way into the mainstream of the American economy.

ALMA – Choosing what to take and what to do next during Alma College's freshman pre-term orientation will give the 350 members of the class of 1982 a sampling of the choices which lie ahead in their college careers.

Among the freshmen attending the ten-day orientation session from Sept. 2-11 will be Daniel C. Schmittdiel of Boyne City. A graduate of Boyne City High School, he is the son of Mrs. Marie Schmittdiel of 302 State Street.

Michigan Northern gets vote of confidence

Cadillac – Michigan Northern Railway officials learned recently that the Interstate Commerce Commission has decided in a vote of 5-1 in favor of the Cadillac-based railroad. The I.C.C. decision said that the attempt by major carriers to close MN's routes was not "just, lawful, or reasonable."

To Michigan Northern, this was a "life and death decision," according to Elizabeth Andrus, president of the railroad. "The decision allows us to move forward on our plan to attract sufficient traffic to make the railroad profitable within the remaining subsidy period.

"We have increased our traffic from 2,200 to 9,000 cars this past year," she added," and with this decision from the I.C.C. and the Highway Department's decision on Aug. 23 to extend our contract we are confident we can make the railroad self-supporting."

Michigan Northern's position in the case was actively supported by several Michigan and West Coast shippers. U.S. Senator Robert Griffin also testified on behalf of the shortline citing the necessity of maintaining railroad service to the northwestern lower peninsula and the commitment of Michigan Northern management to the long-term viability of the railroad.

School officials say most seniors face no hike

According to school officials, "the majority of local senior citizens will not face a tax hike if the Charlevoix High School improvement bonding proposal is approved Sept. 12."

Said Superintendent Gordon VanWieren, "Senior citizens can vote for the ballot issue based upon their educational convictions and now their pocketbook."

There are two proposals on the ballot. Proposal one asks for $2.315 million for "erecting, furnishing and equipping additions to and remodeling and partially re-equipping the high school facilities." Proposal two asks $885,000 for "erecting, furnishing and equipping a physical education addition to the high school."

"All senior citizens living in the City of Charlevoix with a taxable income of less than $8,000 and living in homes assessed at less than $24,000 for tax purposes (state equalized valuation) would have the entire tax increase returned to them as a rebate in the Michigan Income Tax Program," say school officials.

"Senior citizens who live on fixed incomes can even make arrangements to avoid paying any tax increase at all. They should apply for their rebate immediately after receiving a tax bill in December. In most cases the rebate can then be used to pay the tax and there is no out-of-pocket cash used. Senior citizens can contact their local city or township clerk to obtain the reimbursement form. The rebate limit this year is $1200."

City asks state legislators to support road, transportation package

The City of Charlevoix, through City Manager Norman H. Gaffney, has asked state Congressman Ralph Ostling and state Senator Robert Davis to support the Michigan Municipal League Road and Transportation Package.

The city is urging quick action on the proposal so that increased revenue from motor fuels will begin to be returned to cities and villages as soon as possible to partly offset the serious impact of inflation during the past five years.

Gaffney told the Courier that the Municipal League proposition is an attempt to help small cities and municipalities get their fair share of gasoline tax and motor vehicle license funds rather than having them funneled to the large metropolitan areas for public transportation purposes.

The cost of street repairs has increased 65 percent over the last five years, according to Gaffney. These increases "more than negated the shortlived gains derived from the 1972 motor fuels tax increase which went into effect only a few months before the oil embargo and the consequent inflation," he pointed out.

If the Municipal League Tax Package is adopted, every city and village will receive about a 25 percent increase in its 1979 street fund returns. In addition, the package includes a new Municipal Snow Removal Fund to aid cities and village that incur extraordinary snow removal costs.

"The only alternative many cities and villages have is to increase their property tax rates in order to generate more revenues for their street programs," Gaffney wrote Ostling and Davis. "Unfortunately, however, Charlevoix is at its tax limit.

"There is no way the City of Charlevoix can maintain its road program and snow removal without your help. We urge your cooperation."

Corps says use caution on breakwall

The U.S. Army, Corps of Engineers, is once again stressing the importance of using extreme caution when walking on the breakwaters of harbors.

The Corps of Engineers built the federally owned breakwaters and harbors of refuge around the Michigan shores of the Great Lakes.

During the fall and early winter months, high winds and rough waters make traversing on the breakwaters extremely dangerous. People have been swept off the breakwaters and into the water only to drown because they are unable to swim back to safety.

The primary purpose of the breakwaters is to protect recreational boaters and ships entering or leaving the harbors. A secondary benefit is fishing or strolling.

Utmost descretion is needed when traversing the breakwaters. They should be used for fishing or strolling only in calm weather.

Preserving tomatoes

The Spaniards brought tomatoes back from the Mexican highlands because they believed that the red fruit had aphrodesiac qualities. The French named them "pommes d' amour" (love apples), and the Germans called them "paradise apfel" (apple of paradise) because of a legend that this was the apple that Eve used to bring down Adam. Recent publications have offered another treatment in the long history of the tomato - a method of preserving "fresh" sliced tomatoes. Tomatoes thus preserved are suitable for salads or sandwiches. The directions are as follows:

Select firm, ripe tomatoes with no soft spots. Wash in mild detergent solution and rinse. Scald in boiling water for 15 seconds; cool in cold water. Cut out stems and peel tomatoes. With sharp knife, slice about 3/8-inch thick. Do not use wood cutting board since such boards may be contaminated. Using a colander or wire strainer, dip slices in a 5 percent solution of calcium chloride for 5 minutes. One cup (8 ounces) powdered calcium chloride to 6 quarts warm water is about the right mix. Separate slices during the dipping to allow the calcium chloride solution to reach all of them. Drain. Pack carefully into pint jars containing 2 ounces hot water, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon sugar, and 2 teaspoons lemon juice. Fill jars with boiling water, leaving ½-inch headspace. Put on lids. Process in boiling water bath, pint jars 10 minutes, quart jars 15 minutes. Store in refrigerator.

Calcium chloride, which you can get from a feed store or druggist, acts as a firming agent.

Change in church schedule

The First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, United Church of Christ, will revert to its regular schedule on Sunday, Sept. 10. Worship will be at 11 a.m., preceded by Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. for all ages from nursery through high school seniors.

The preacher at 11 a.m. worship on the 10th will be the Rev. Mrs. Murdale Leysath, area minister for the Michigan Conference of the United Church of Christ.

Fuller's horses win honors at fair

First place and reserve champion honors were won by Lenny Fuller and his Appaloosa yearling stallion at the Emmet County Fair Aug. 26.

Grand champion was won by another of Fuller's Appaloosa's - a two-year-old filly, shown by his wife, Debbie. The filly K-Bar's Gin Wizz is a Canadian national champion and Michigan futurity champion.

Fuller raises Appaloosa horses in East Jordan.

"Many people ask us why we show our champion horses at the local fairs," Fuller said. "The reason is, we are trying to promote Appaloosas in northern Michigan and improve the breed by buying and raising the best.

"Appaloosa's make excellent youth show horses as each one is colored and marked differently, which gives a child an added plus in the show ring. Appaloosas don't get lost in a crowd."

Fuller also coaches 15 kids for Charlevoix in the soccer league and works fulltime at Olson's food store and one day a week as a deputy for the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

Obits

Lynn Coleman

Funeral services for Mrs. Charles A. (Lynn) Coleman, 40, of Gregory, who died Aug. 27 at Chelsea Community Hospital, were held Aug. 30 at St. Mary's Church in Pinckney. The Rev. Hugh Conklin officiated. Interment was in St. Mury's cemetery.

Born at Big Fish Lake, Minn., Feb. 27, the former Magdelen Ann Loso came to Michigan with her family as a child. She was married to Mr. Coleman June 14, 1969, at Gregory where they had always made their home. She had taught in the Gregory school system prior to her marriage.

She is survived by her husband; a daughter, Michelle Ann, and son, James Thomas, both at home; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Loso; a sister, Mary Beth, and three brothers, Peter, Jr., Michnel and Richard, all of Gregory.

Anna Johnson

Funeral services for Mrs. Irving J. Johnson, 68, who died Saturday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital where she had been a patient for nine days, were held Tuesday at the Klein-Stangel Funeral Home at Two Rivers, Wis. Interment was at Forest View Cemetery.

Born at Manitowoc, Wisc., March 19, 1910, the former Anna Rose Sullivan was married to Mr. Johnson at Two Rivers, Wis., where they lived until moving to Charlevoix in 1967.

Surviving are her husband and one daughter, Mrs. Mabel DeBosch of Two Rivers, Wis.

Lee Begrow recipient of Custer Scholarship

Lee Begrow, 1976 Charlevoix High School graduate, has been awarded this year's Custer Scholarship.

The scholarship is given annually by the J.L. Shipman family of Ann Arbor in appreciation for the care given their son following an automobile accident in July, 1970. The scholarship was named for Dr. Harry Custer, surgeon, who cared young Mr. Shipman while a patient at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Lee is the son of Mr. Jack Begrow of Charlevoix and Mrs. Frank Fox of Philadelphia, Penn. For the past two summers and during vacations from college, Lee has worked as an orderly at Charlevoix Area Hospital. He will be returning to Michigan State University where he will resume his studies in pre-medicine.

The $1,000 scholarship is available on a competitive basis to full and part time employees of the Charlevoix Area Hospital, their children and grandchildren. The applicant must have completed high school and have been accepted in an academic program of at least one academic year and be financially worthy.

Selecting this year's applicant was an employee committee including: Cindy Ruis, LPN, ICCU, Michael Bonello, Anesthetist, DeeAnn Wynsma, Admitting, Curt Ferber, Inhalation Therapy, and Jeanne Caviteh, Housekeeping.

Davis to resign as minority leader

LANSING, -- Senate Republican leader Bob Davis announced today that he will resign his leadership post this week.

Davis, who was selected to lead the 14-member Senate Republican Caucus in 1974, is seeking to fill the 11th Congressional District seat being vacated by Phil Ruppe of Houghton.

"The role of Republican leader is a very time-consuming and demanding one. I feel that I can no longer devote that much time to the position. Running for Congress in a district as vast and unique as the 11th demands all of my free time," Davis said. "I do fully intend to continue carrying out my responsibilities as the 37th District State Senator."

Davis said his resignation is effective upon selection of a new leader.

Legion Post 226, Auxiliary to meet

The Leslie T Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, and its Women's Auxiliary will hold a joint installation of officers at the post home Saturday, Sept. 9. Plans for this and other fall events were made at a recent meeting of the Auxiliary

A potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. Sept 9 will precede the installation ceremony.

The Lower 11th District meeting will be held at the post home in Boardmon Sept. 10. There will be a dinner at 1 p.m. followed by the business meetings of both the Legion and the Auxiliary at 2 p.m.

The fall round-up will be held here Oct 1 with a potluck dinner at 1 p.m. at the post home.

At the recent meeting the nine members present signed 17 cards for shut-ins and members who are out of town. Among them was one for Mrs. Ethel Pearsall who is recuperating from surgery

The group voted to contribute $25 to the Jerry Lewis Telethon to be held over the Labor Day weekend and $50 to the Mt. McSauba camping program.

Mrs. Lester Smith and Mrs. Josephine Bindi will host the Sept. 14 meeting of the Auxiliary.

Wedding

Kenney-Buitendorp

Cheryl Kenney became the bride of Samuel Buitendorp Saturday, August 26, at St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Kenney of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom in the son of Mrs. Isaac Buitendorp and the late Mr. Buitendorp of Muskegon.

Father Andrew Lewandowski and the Reverend James Larson officiated at the mid-day double ring ceremony before 300 guests.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and mother. She wore a full-length gown of satin with a sheer overlay and carried a bouquet of ivy and other greens.

Mrs. David Ledingham served as matron of honor. Her gown was of multi-colored floral fabric and her bouquet consisted of variegated greens and yellow chrysanthemums. Katherine Ledingham was flower girl and Daniel Ledingham carried the wedding ring.

Dr. David Ledingham served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Don Jaquith, Joel Greenway, Douglas Greenway, and Richard Kenney, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Kenney chose a green and white print calf-length gown for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Buitendorp's gown was fashioned from a coral fabric.

The bride's parents hosted the wedding reception at Stafford's Bay View Inn following the ceremony. The rehearsal dinner was also held at Stafford's, hosted by the bridegroom's mother.

Music Ministry, under the direction of Ron Jay of Petoskey, provided music for the ceremony.

Following a wedding trip to Maine, the newlyweds will be at home in Petoskey.

Wasoski-Moore

St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix was the setting for the wedding August 26 of Rita Wasoski and Thomas S. Moore.

The bride is the daughter of Lois Wasoski of Oklahoma and the late Robert Wasoski. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Moore of Charlevoix.

Approximately 100 guests witnessed the afternoon single-ring ceremony performed by Father Dennis Magoon in which the bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, William Tanner.

Organ music was provided by Mrs. Charles Bellinger and vocal music by Mrs. Maurice Cudd.

The bride's gown was fashioned of white satin with a chiffon overlay. Her veil was finger-tip length, and she carried a bouquet of daisies, carnations, and baby's breath.

Denice Wasoski, a sister of the bride, served as maid of honor, while two other sisters, Tammy and Lisa Wasoski, served as bridesmaids. They wore matching gowns of pastel yellow, blue, and pink and carried wicker baskets filled with strawflowers.

Joe Moore, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man. Another brother, James Moore, and Robert Wasoski, the bride's brother, served as groomsmen and ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception at the Rod and Gun Club was hosted by the bride and the groom's family.

The rehearsal dinner was given at the home of Louis Sharrow, an uncle of the bridgroom, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Moore and Dianne Eggers, a sister of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Wasoski wore a floor-length green and white flowered gown for the occasion and Mrs. Moore wore a floor-length powder blue gown. Their carnation corsages matched the dresses.

The newlyweds are at home in Grand Rapids, where the bride attends Davenport Business College and the bridegroom Junior College.

Out-of-town guests from Oklahoma, Ohio, and Lower Michigan witnessed the ceremony.

My son likes jeans for school

Marlene C. Cassatt
Extension Home Economist

Getting my young son ready for school always presents a challenge in the wardrobe department. The challenge lies in getting him to take interest in something besides blue jeans. A situation I've not been able to influence these past six years. I don't know why I should complain. Buying for him is simple - each year I order five new shirts and five new pairs of jeans exactly like the year before only one size larger. As far as he is concerned that's all the consideration one needs to give a new wardrobe.

Most children do enjoy wearing jeans because they are comfortable and durable. They hold up well during rough and tumble play and most of their friends wear them.

If you are a parent of the jean generation be aware that the price of jeans is rising. Shopping wisely for well constructed easy care jeans will save you money in the long run.

Jeans are usually made of 100 percent cotton or blends of cotton and polyester. Regardless of fiber content, check to see that the fabric is firmly woven, or durable. Loosely constructed, lighter weight fabrics will not hold up as well under rough wear.

Examine seams to make sure they are closely and evenly stitched. Seam allowances should be finished to prevent fabric raveling. Flatfell seams are often used With this finish, seams are sewn twice and completely enclosed seam allowances on both the inside and outside of the garment. Double stitching is strong and long lasting. If seams are not flatfelled, they should be overcast to prevent raveling.

Look for reinforcements on jeans. Thread bar tacks or rivets at places of stress — such as pocket corners, where belt loops are sewn to waistbands, and zipper plackets – will help jeans last longer.

To keep their fit over time, jeans should be shrink resistant. If the label does not say "no shrinkage" or "guaranteed not to shrink more than 1 to 2 percent," you cannot be assured the garment will not shrink. However, buying a large size and hoping it will shrink to fit your child is not a good idea.

Remember to check the permanent care label attached to one of the seams for directions on how to maintain the garment. Follow the care instructions carefully.

Jeans are usually washed in warm water. Wash dark colored jeans with other dark clothes, and pastel and white jeans with your regular wash. Use bleach in the wash cycle only if you want the jeans bleached. Bleaching is not necessary to make blue jeans fade – this process occurs naturally.

To prepare jeans made of cotton and polyester blends for washing and drying, turn them inside out. This will prevent pills of fiber from forming on the garment face as the fabric moves about within the machine. Also, close zippers and snaps to prevent their rubbing against other garments in the machines.

Tumble dry jeans on medium heat or your dryer's permanent press cycle and remove them promptly after the dryer stops. This usually eliminates the need for ironing. If pressing is necessary, a steam iron will do the best job.

Charlevoix voters defeat proposals

YES 664	PROPOSITION I	NO 787

Shall Charlevoix Public Schools, Charlevoix and Antrim Counties, Michigan, borrow the sum of not to exceed $2,315,000 and issue its general obligation unlimited tax bonds therefor, for the purpose of erecting, furnishing and equipping additions to and remodeling and partially re-equipping the high school facilities; and developing and improving the site?

YES 502	PROPOSITION II	NO 948

Shall Charlevoix Public Schools, Charlevoix and Antrim Counties, Michigan, borrow the sum of not to exceed $885,000 and issue its general obligation unlimited tax bonds therefor, for the purpose of erecting, furnishing and equipping a physical education addition to the high school facilities?

Voters in the Charlevoix School District defeated two separate bond issues Tuesday.

A request for $2.315 million for classroom addition and renovation at the high school was turned down 787-664. And a request for $885,000, for an addition to the physical education facility was rejected 948-502.

There were 12 spoiled ballots on proposition one for the $2.315 million and 13 spoiled ballots on proposition two for the $885,000.

Approximately 1,500 residents in the school district cast ballots in Tuesday's election or slightly over 35 percent of the total registered voters. There are about 4,200 registered voters in the district.

The polls closed at 8 p.m. After the ballots were counted, the Charlevoix Board of Education, which was meeting at the high school, was informed of the outcome.

Superintendent Gordon VanWieren said the board was "disappointed" upon learning the news.

VanWieren said little about the election.

"My only comment," he said, "is the public has spoken."

School officials fear the high school will lose its accreditation because of inadequate facilities and overcrowding. School officials have been warned about this.

The high school is designed for 472, school officials say. Last year there were 640 high school students. And although enrollment at the high school is expected to decline slightly in the future, school officials predict the school will still be overcrowded by more than 100 students in 1990.

If the request for $2.315 million had passed, a building project would have included new laboratories, additional classrooms, a larger Instructional Materials Center, a larger cafeteria and building repairs. It would also have eliminated the three portables.

The addition would have connected the two buildings at the high school plant.

If the request for $885,000 had passed, the building project would have included an additional physical education room plus locker rooms.

Charlevoix residents were not the only voters to reject millage requests Tuesday.

In Manistique, voters rejected a 19.64 mill ballot by seven ballots. Ionia voters turned down a proposed 2 mill tax increase for construction and operation of a vocational education center. Bellaire voters opposed a 3.965 mill increase for operation and Freesoil voters rejected a $390,000 bond issue to build a new physical education building.

In action Tuesday, the Board certified the taxes to be levied for schools on December tax bills, voted to re-admit a student suspended during the 1977-78 school year, voted to purchase two lots as sites for building trades houses, approved a trip for the marching band and accepted a bid for the trampoline.

The certification of taxes to be levied was merely a formality for the taxes have already been approved. The total millage to be levied will be 27.95 mills or 9.1 allocated; 16.25 voted; .7 old debt (high school) retirement; 1.4 new debt (elementary school) retirement and .5 library. In the City of Charlevoix, only 50 percent of this amount will be levied in December. The remainder was collected with summer taxes.

The board voted to re-admit Mark Smith to high school under a number of conditions. He will be on probation for one year, will be required to make restitution for damage done when he and a fellow-student set fire to drapes in the high school cafeteria and work a given number of hours at the school. The restitution is to be made through the district court.

Approval was given the purchase of two lots near the high school as sites for future building trades homes. One lot is located in Hampton Village and a second on May Street south of Hampton Village. The lots were purchased because of their proximity to the high school which cuts down on transportation costs for students.

A bid of $250 for a trampoline offered for sale by the high school and submitted by John Haggard was accepted. It was the only bid received. The trampoline was sold when insurance rates were increased to $500 per trampoline. Many schools throughout the state are offering them for sale because of the cost of insurance.

Approval was given to the Charlevoix High School marching band trip to Northern Michigan University on Oct. 14. The Band Boosters are financing the trip.

The remainder of the meeting was devoted to goals the board is setting for itself during the current school year.

Monday, Sept. 18, was set as the date of the next meeting.

Miracle?

Patricia and Raymond Bruce believe in miracles.

The Bruces are former residents of Charlevoix who now reside in Mission Viejo, Ca.

Less than a month ago, the Bruces five-year-old son, Shad, fell through a window. His thigh was badly gashed and shards of glass severed his femoral artery, the veins and the nerves.

Shad was rushed to Mission Community Hospital. His body was nearly drained of blood and his heart had stopped beating. Doctors at the hospital said he was dead.

But Shad fooled them.

Two days later his eyelids started fluttering and, sure enough, his bright blue eyes opened.

"It's a miracle," Patricia, 27, told the local newspaper.

"The doctors, the paramedics, these nurses, oh God, what wonderful people," Raymond said from the hospital room as he watched his boy breathe oxygen from a mask fitted over the lower part of his face. "They saved my boy, they brought him back to life, what can I ever do to repay them."

It took nine pints of blood to help save young Shad. And more blood is needed. Shad is presently paralyzed on the left side and is wearing a neck brace. According to Patricia's mother, Betty Ross, Shad did not suffer brain damage – as was first feared.

The family is now faced with large hospital and medical bills, but that does not bother Shad's father, who recently started a janitorial business.

"What difference does money make in a situation like this," he said. "We have our boy, and he's a wonderful little man, let me tell you, I don't care if it costs $10 million, we'll get it."

Community rallies behind fund drive

The community is rallying to support the Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Drive, campaign organizers agree.

As the campaign enters its final weeks, the workers have reported more than $560,000 in pledges and donations, despite the fact that only twenty per cent of the potential donors have been solicited thus far.

The campaign is expected to balloon during its final weeks, as the hectic pace of Charlevoix summer slows down, giving campaign workers and donors more time to organize their support.

Enthusiasm is growing in the hospital's service area – Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and northern Antrim County – the campaign staff reports.

Glenn Kenney, General Chairman of the Campaign said he was amazed to learn that "Individual gifts average $2,300.

"Therefore," Kenney continued, "With 230 workers out seeing people, we should have some exciting results very soon.

"We don't expect that everyone will give $2,300. Some people will want to give more and some will be able to give less. But together it will push us well over our $750,000 goal," Kenney told his executive committee last week.

A survey of some of the fund drive's supporters shows that the major reason most have donated to the Charlevoix Area Hospital campaign is because they value their community hospital.

"I think our small hospital is the finest in the area," John Haggard told an inquirer. "I was born and raised here and my heart belongs to Charlevoix. I believe in the physicians and the hospital. I support the campaign because of those beliefs and I hope the rest of the community will join me."

Chuck Center of Charlevoix responded, "I think the biggest thing from my standpoint and my wife's is that they have given us such good care.

"My seven year old was born in the Charlevoix Area Hospital and everyone was professional and caring.

"As a small community we are awfully fortunate to have this facility," Center continued.

"With the community growing the hospital must grow.

"When I use the hospital, I will be proud of the fact that I did support the hospital campaign," Center concluded.

The community hospital theme was everyone's major point.

"There is something about a community hospital, its friendliness, that's a bonus to good medical care," said Helen Emmons.

"We native Charlevoixans should support our local hospital and keep it local," Mrs. Emmons stated.

When the Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Drive began, about 2600 people were listed as possible donors, based on a survey conducted last winter. To date, less than 20 per cent of those have been presented the hospital's plans and given an opportunity to contribute to the project.

The 230 workers, who volunteered to assist the campaign are expected to be calling on the remaining 80 per cent during the final weeks. A snowball effect is predicted, with pledges and gifts surpassing the campaigns $750,000 goal.

As Charlevoix City Mayor Sam Supernaw said, "Charlevoix Area Hospital is a great asset to the community.

"Sometimes it is a matter of life and death to have a facility such as ours in the area, for immediate treatment.

"Our community is large enough to support this hospital, and that's why I am personally behind this project," Supernaw stated.

"We have a good staff of doctors," the mayor continued. "The times I have used the hospital, I've received excellent care.

"This hospital serves the community well.

"It is there for the citizens of the area, to give them good health care and the citizens of the area should support the hospital in order to continue to have good health care," Supernaw concluded, urging people to show their support now for the hospital.

If you are looking for land to build your own home on, make sure you check local building regulations before you make your final purchase. There may be laws concerning local water table depths, distance from already existing underground pipes or lines, or those all important zoning laws that might prohibit building in the spot you have picked out. This research ahead of time can save a lot of heartbreak and expense later.

If you are looking for land or buildings in this area visit the office of THOMAS REAL ESTATE, 101 Bridge St., 547-4494. We have the experience, the staff and the know how to accomplish your goals and needs in the real estate area. We have building lots available in Hayes Township. "Do business where business is being done." Hours 9-5 daily, evenings and Sun. by appointment.

Women's Guild to host annual membership meet

The Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Area Hospital will host its annual membership gathering at the lounge of the LaCroft condominium Tuesday, Sept. 19, Mrs. William Squire, president of the group, has announced.

The event will be held from 3 until 6 p.m.

Old members are urged to renew their membership and former members to return to the group while persons interested in the guild are encouraged to attend the meeting and join this service group.

In extending the invitation, Mrs. Squire said "we are a group dedicated to serving the patients at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. We sponsor a number of volunteer units within the guild designed to suit the talents of a wide membership. I find that a guild membership gives me an opportunity to meet a new group of people and at the same time give a service where it is needed".

Among the groups within the guild are volunteers who work at the hospital delivering trays at meal time and mail during the day plus similar services; working in the guild-sponsored gift shop in the lobby of the hospital known as The Showcase; making puppets and stuffed animals for the children's ward; knitting articles for layettes and sewing layettes for indigent mothers; operating a book and sundries cart for the convenience of the patients; offering a television service for patients; decorating the hospital at Christmas time and making tray favors for all holidays.

In addition, the guild sponsors Child Birth classes for expectant parents; offers scholarships to persons entering the health field and gifts and memorials for anyone wishing to honor or remember a loved one.

The main purpose of the guild is to raise funds for equipment of all kinds. At the present time, the guild has pledged $15,000 toward the renovation and expansion project now being planned for the Charlevoix Area Hospital. "These funds must be raised over a five-year period so an active membership dedicated not only to service to the patients but to the hospital is very important. Our hospital is an important part of our community. We, as members of its guild, must put forth our best efforts to do our part to keep it the finest primary care hospital in the area"

Artists add to economy of area

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

Art is one of Charlevoix's business, as well as one of its major attractions, businessmen, artists, bankers and the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce agree.

"Art contributes measureably to this community," Louis Hollow, President of the First State Bank of Charlevoix, said in a telephone interview.

Art and its impact on Charlevoix is "an unvicious circle" Norwood artist Judy Brumm commented.

"People who come here to vacation provide our retail business," Mrs. Brumm said.

But Jacquie Merta, Executive Director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce feels that "the artists draw people to our area."

Thus the "unvicious circle" or the unanswerable question, "Does Charlevoix's reputation as a fine arts community draw people, or do the tourists come first and patronize the area artists second?"

Which ever comes first, Bill Staffel, who, besides running the Staffel Pottery studio with his wife, Bonnie, publishes the Art Trails brochure, said he has found more fine artists working in Charlevoix County than in Grand Traverse.

The annual Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair draws artists and art lovers from all over the midwest.

Suzi Reis, owner of Charlevoix's Reis Gallery, and Jacquie Merta estimate that nearly 20,000 people walk through the art fair each year.

"These people spend at least $150,000 at the fair," Mrs. Reis said.

Gordon Wellman, President of Charlevoix County State Bank, told the Courier, "In talking with most merchants and restaurant owners, they say the art fair is their best business day."

In addition, Mrs. Merta said she is often asked to arrange tours to artists' studios in the Charlevoix area, for conventioneers and their wives from Boyne Country, Shanty Creek and Schuss Mountain.

"The quality of art is very high," she said. "Local artists are shown in important collections and galleries around the country.

"Besides the economic impact on Charlevoix, this is very exciting for the community," the Chamber executive observed.

"We're getting a lot of new business and industry in the area, and it seems to me the arts become the 'soul' of the area," Suzi Reis said. "It's important to have business and industry, but we need 'soul' or we'll fall apart."

Difficult as it is, one can look at art in Charlevoix County for a materialistic aspect.

There are nine thriving artists' studios in the immediate environs of Charlevoix, and several more in Boyne City and East Jordan, each run as a small business.

Some are well established. Some are still in that fledgling stage of growth, familiar to anyone who has started a small business – in the black, but hoping to increase margin of profit, soon.

The largest employers are Norman and Judy Brumm, with 15 full time employees. They produce enamel or copper sculptures of birds, wild flowers and butterflies in natural settings on gnarled wood bases.

"We used to employ 20 to 30 people," Mrs. Brumm said. "But we've found that we are more efficient with 15. I read an article in Business Week Magazine about this – it's called diminishing efficiency."

The Brumms' works are displayed in 60 galleries scattered across the country, as well as their Norwood showroom.

"We have as many as 60 people come through on a good summer day," Mrs. Brumm estimated.

Up the road from the Brumm's, nearer town, Staffels Pottery is overseen by Bill and Bonnie Staffel.

The Staffels began in Charlevoix in 1966 and their reputation has grown to such an extent that they no longer travel to art fairs or sell wholesale. All their sales originate in their showroom or at the Charlevoix Art Fair.

"On a good summer day we have a couple hundred people," Bill Staffel estimated. "There have been times when I have had to direct traffic in our parking lot."

Staffel Pottery is all hand thrown, hand decorated, yet utilitarian work. Pieces range from small goblets to large planters, all hand crafted.

The Staffels employ one full time assistant and frequent part time help.

"You can be an artist and a businessman," Bill observed, "If you get off your pedestal. It's not prostituting yourself to be a good businessman," he stated emphatically.

Both Staffels can speak in marketing and business terms with the same fluency they can discuss art and the intricacies of glazes.

"People don't realize what an artist-craftsman is. If you had a shoe store or grocery store people would understand," Bill continued.

"We work six, seven days a week. We treat our shop as a business, because it is a business."

And as the artists prosper so do other community businesses.

Todd Warner, whose nationally acclaimed whimsical stoneware animals are displayed in galleries from Honolulu to the Virgin Islands, Province Town, Mass., to Sarasota, Fla., ("requiring a certain amount of hand delivery") is expanding his operations.

Todd and his wife Vicki – he works on or finishes every piece and she oversees the nuts and bolts of the economics – have just awarded a $7,000 electrical contract to a local firm for the complex wiring of his kiln room and workshop in a new 30 by 60 building, another firm is constructing.

Warner's studio currently employes three workers and a secretary, plus a consulting business manager.

Warners also operate a retail shop in downtown Charlevoix – the Bull Frog Bazaar, employing three persons – and another shop in downtown Bay Shore – Tree Toad Galleries – which will reopen before Christmas.

Todd, like other artist-businessmen talks equally articulately about either art of business.

"One of my major gripes is the single business tax," he stated. "Since it is a payroll based tax, if we give raises or employ more, our taxes go up. But we'd get a break if we'd automate. And this economy needs more employment."

Warner leaned back in his chair shrugging sardonically.

The Warners have been diversifying their business. Toys have been added and plans are being layed for a bronze foundry, "which will make production items" – he displayed a brass bell with one of his whimsical giraffes perched on top – "and larger fine art pieces."

No self-employed businessman wants to put a dollar value on his business, but some idea is gained when Warner says a Parker Motor Freight representative walked through spring thaw and mud and slush to solicit their business.

Russel and Sue Bolt talked about economic goals for their pottery studio.

Together they'd like to produce $200 worth of pottery a day, with a $40,000 annual gross.

They are also expanding to the point that they are employing an almost full time assistant.

In addition to their pottery the Bolts produce fine art – Russel's medium is water colors, Sue's is water colors and prints. Their paintings and prints are accepted by highly competitive shows around the country.

Their Marion Center Road showroom draws a constant stream of shoppers through the summer, and they do considerable business through shops and galleries.

Bill and Laurie Lesser Murray recently opened a studio-showroom in rural Hayes Township, from which they retail their stoneware creations.

Laurie Lesser Murray estimates that their business will soon reach a point where Bill could devote full time to it and drop his work as art teacher for Charlevoix schools.

"The number of artists making a living here is amazing," Mrs. Murray observed. "And I know many others are thinking of coming to the Charlevoix area."

On M-66 between East Jordan and Charlevoix, Chuck and Nancy Riggs Koucky run their pottery and weaving business. They retail from their shop at home and through art fairs and wholesale through Michigan galleries.

Chuck's wood fired pottery "gives me something a little different," he said.

Nancy Riggs Koucky's weaving ranges from $225 pure Mohair wall hangings to functional weavings such as place mats.

She confesses to having a hard time meeting the demand.

While their business is young, they live comfortably with the help of produce from their garden and farm, and by bartering art work for many services.

"I traded a side of pork for our wedding rings," Chuck said.

Charlevoix is benefitting from the success and good reputation of its resident artists.

"Many of our customers have told us," said Bill Staffel, "that they have planned their vacation to tour artists' studios in this area."

Suzi Reis sees art in Charlevoix as an "economic multiplier."

"People are moving to the area. These are energetic creative people. They are producing art, buying art and appreciating art," the gallery owner observed.

Area artists, art patrons and others agree that the quality of Charlevoix art is high and that is enhancing the area's reputation.

"There is no room for mediocrity," Ms. Reis observed. "There are too many good artists. This is a competitive business too."

Blu Dot Farms

Famous horse farm to be auctioned

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

The Blu Dot Farm goes before the auctioneer's gavel September 16 at 1 p.m.

Auctioneer Jim Brannan guessed in a recent phone interview, that the well-known horse race breeding and training landmark will be sold by 3:30 p.m. that day.

Owner Robert Dyksterhouse hopes that when all the bidding on the 12 parcels is completed one person will step forward to top the bidding to take over all 180 acres.

"I spent twenty years putting this together and I really hope it goes as a whole," Dyksterhouse told the Courier in a phone interview.

Dyksterhouse said he has had some inquiries from out of town buyers who are interested in the whole farm and who have also indicated they would be continuing in the race horse business.

Blu Dot Farm's colors have been in the winner's circles around the pacing and trotting tracks for many years.

Every spring Charlevoixans have seen new born colts trying out their legs beside their dams in the fields along the Boyne City Road.

But Dyksterhouse, who is also well known as an inventor of automotive parts, holding many patents, including the windshield wiper harness, is beginning some new businesses with new patents in Mancelona.

And, he says, with his children all off in college or on careers of their own, the Blu Dot Farm is too big for his wife and himself.

The twelve tracts into which the farm has been divided for the auction, range in acreage from just over 25 acres to just under 10.

Flyers with the descriptions of the parcels and buildings to be auctioned are scattered throughout Charlevoix County.

Last spring Brannan conducted an auction of almost all the farm's attendant equipment. At that time Dyksterhouse thought he had a buyer for the whole complex.

"But that fell through," Brannan said. "Now we are receiving many inquiries, but people are cagey, you know."

Buildings to be included in the auction are the Dyksterhouse's four bedroom ranch home, a garage, repair shop, hay barn, horse stable with 25 box stall and office and a free stall pole barn, according to the auction flyer.

Another training barn, with 16 box stalls, adjacent to the ½ mile regulation race track, will also be auctioned.

Some equipment, including grain bin, bulk feed tanks and a Sanyo Vido TV with three cameras and receiver are being auctioned separately.

Brannan explained that each parcel will be auctioned separately and then all bids will be held until the end, when there will be an opportunity to bid on all the property as a whole.

He noted that space indoors in one of the barns would be used for the auction in case of inclement weather.

"You don't have to be too clever," Brannan admonished an inquirer. "Just get in there and bid."

It's time to wrap up campaign

It's encouraging to learn that the Charlevoix Area Hospital is within sight of its $750,000 campaign goal.

Over $500,000 has already been pledged or donated. This demonstrates the support the hospital has in the community.

What's surprising is that only 20 percent of the potential donors have been solicited thus far. The fund drive has been extended two weeks - until Sept. 29 - so campaign workers can call on the remaining 80 percent in the final weeks.

We hope the campaign workers get busy on this assignment immediately. The deadline will be upon us before we know it.

Hospital officials are predicting a flurry of pledges and donations at the end. We hope they're right. But it can't happen unless the campaign workers get to work.

It's important the fund drive be wrapped up soon because this fall United Way will be embarking on a fund drive of its own to help support several area agencies. It would not be beneficial to have two campaigns going at once.

We would like to see in our Oct. 3 issue - or sooner - a headline announcing that the hospital has reached - or surpassed – its goal.

Let's get busy.

Good luck to students

Vacation is over. Another school year is upon us.

And with all the excitement a new school year brings, we wish the students in our community success in their school endeavors.

Let us not forget that education is the foundation of our society. It's importance cannot be overstressed. We hope our students remember this, especially during periods of difficulty when it would be easy to give up.

We must understand that learning is not always easy. It takes an honest and sincere effort. And we hope our students are willing to put forth that kind of effort.

The opening of a school year means a fresh start. Forget the past and concentrate on the present. Take school seriously. Students who don't are shortchanging themselves.

Keeping busy in a crawl space

I may have to take back some of the bad things I have said about so-called "crawl spaces" over the years.

If you live in an apartment building or a tree house you may not know that "crawl spaces" are those architectural nightmares that exist under many of Michigan's older homes.

Newer homes either have full, bonafide basements with carpeting, beamed ceilings, ping-pong tables and cute little bars illuminated by a psychedelic Tiffany lamps, or they are built on a slab and have no basement at all.

The Clocks' house in Charlevoix actually has a very large fieldstone basement which accommodates the furnace, the hot water heater, assorted pieces of laundry equipment and a fruit cellar.

But the basement, unfortunately, does not extend to the rear of the house, which apparently was built some time later than the front of house. In its place is a miserable little "crawl space" which can be reached only by means of a secret panel in the shed.

Now this is a place you don t want to visit very often at all since it is impossible to stand up in a "crawl space." However, you can maneuver from one area to another on your hands and knees through trenches dug in mother earth.

And you have to watch where you're going because the ceiling is festooned with a bewildering maze of water pipes, valves, electric wiring and cobwebs.

Needless to say, I don't spend a great deal of time in our "crawl space." But this weekend a pipe leading to our outdoor hose connection sprang a leak and I had no choice but to make a foray into the nether regions to see what could be done about it.

The first step was to clean out the shed, because it was impossible to reach the secret panel because of a horrendous pile of "collectibles"; gallon cans with a splash of paint left in the bottom, literally dozens of flower pots, sodden bags of charcoal from bygone summers, sleds, skis, an 1890-vintage ice cream freezer, a roll of roofing, cans of chemicals to make things grow or keep them from growing, tent stakes, horseshoes, assorted playground equipment, kettles, pots, pans – all too good to throw out but none of them really worth keeping.

At length, when the backyard looked like a garage sale, I reached the secret panel, opened it and eased myself through on my back while I groped for the light switch. When I finally found it I was surprised to find that I was not alone. The kids were delighted to find a secret passage right under their own house, and had followed me into the murky depths.

As I examined the faulty plumbing, they oh'd and ah'd over such marvels as two broken bird baths that one of the former owners had abandoned. They also found a honest-to-goodness orange crate – the kind they don't make any longer. Danny found enough barbed wire to start his own concentration camp, if he ever decides to rule the world.

My business under the house didn't last more than a few minutes. I found out what has to be done and I am still studying how to do it. However, the kids have more or less set up housekeeping in the "crawl space," along with certain selected friends who have been made privy to their secret.

They spent most of the weekend down there, examining the cast-offs of a bygone age. Katie even came across copies of the Chicago Tribune, the Chicago Daily News, the Grand Rapids Press and the Detroit Free Press dating back to 1906. The newspapers apparently had been wrapped around water pipes as insulation and some of them were in surprisingly good condition.

There is talk, of course, about turning the "crawl space" into a fort or club house. Several throw rugs already have disappeared from the backporch, and I think they're down there now, mute evidence that the nesting instinct is still alive and well on Dixon Avenue.

Probably more important, the "crawl space" has proved an excellent place for kids to keep busy during an otherwise humdrum weekend in early September.

Bridge walk is fun

Potpourri:

Bridge Walk - The past three years I have spent Labor Day morning walking the Mackinac Bridge.

Some people think it's foolish, driving 50 miles or so to walk a five mile bridge with thousands of others. I don't. In fact, I think it's fun, especially if you can start the walk early when the air is crisp and invigorating.

I will admit this year's bridge walk did not go as smooth as past walks, primarily because of the truck blockage on the bridge.

I, for instance was one of several passengers on a bus who waited patiently while police worked to clear the blockage. Traffic was at a standstill for 30 minutes or better. The bus lines kept getting bigger and bigger. By the time all the people in line boarded a bus and got over to St. Ignace to start the walk it was after noon.

This prompted bridge officials to throw their time schedule out the window. In the past, officials have not allowed anyone to start the walk after 10 a.m. This year they had no choice.

Hopefully, things will be back to normal next year.

Beef Auction - At the Northwestern Michigan Fair in Traverse City two weeks ago, the grand champion steer sold for $5.70 a pound. The steer weighed 1,123 pounds, netting owner Melissa Barley $6,401.10.

In comparison, at the Emmet County Fair three weeks ago, the grand champion steer sold for $1.35 a pound. The steer weighed 1,180 pounds, netting owner Malinda Gregory $1,593.

Quite a difference, isn't it?

The Barley family enjoyed a lot of success at the fair.

Melinda Barley had the grand champion lamb which Reef Petroleum bought for $10.10 a pound.

"That certainly has to be some sort of national record," fair publicity director Arthur Glidden told the Traverse City Record-Eagle.

Melinda also had the grand champion swine which sold for $7.23 a pound. Between the lamb and the swine she netted almost $3,000.

The steer auction, all 73 steer went for over $1 a pound. At the Emmet County Fair, only a handful of the steer - out of 30 - went for over $1 a pound.

Irene - Last week there was a lot of talk in town about the Indian fishing tug, Irene. Supposedly, it was on it's way to the Charlevoix area for gill netting purposes.

The skipper fooled everybody, though. The Irene was reported seen off Bois Blanc Island in Lake Huron netting "sizeable" catches of lake trout.

Another lost weekend

Constant readers (Mother and Aunt Madeline) will remember my report on that Monday when a co-worker asked me what I'd done over the weekend. "I softened the water," I told him. "That doesn't take all weekend," he said. "It does if you do it with a hammer," I said.

Well, this will be a similar report on what I did last weekend. I changed the license plates on my car.

I was armed with a screwdriver. I've been changing license plates for 25 years and a screwdriver has always been sufficient unto the task. But not this time. Not with the tricky, flippy plate-holder that hides the gas cap on my merry lousy Oldsmobile.

Honest, I thought I'd lost my mind. There were 2 screws with no slots for the screwdriver. What type of horrible mutation is this? I asked myself after skinning several knuckles in a vain attempt to carve my own slots.

I have cried real tears while attacking – slotted screws with a + screwdriver. I've worried about violating the Carpenter's Code of Ethics while using a – screwdriver on a + screw.

But never before, dear God, have I thrust a screwdriver into a screw and found no slot.

Could it be a nail? Whoever heard of nailing a license plate to a car?

I looked at the flip side of the plate. Both screws were screwed into nuts. After thinking and cursing for several minutes, sitting there on my cold driveway, I hit upon the answer. I would have to unscrew the nuts, rather than the screws.

You can't do that with a screwdriver, + or –.

"I need a monkey wrench," I said to myself, wondering where I might borrow one. My do-it-yourself carpenter's kit is limited to 2 screwdrivers, a hammer no one can ever find, and a rusty saw borrowed from my father-in-law 14 years ago to shorten a Christmas tree.

It took awhile, but I finally found a neighbor willing to lend me a monkey wrench. By this time it was getting dark out and my wife appeared on the scene with news about dinner. She looked at me and the monkey wrench and the license plate.

"What you need is a pair of pliers," she said, making public a secret suspicion which had been slowly prickling my skin as I discovered there was no room behind the license plate for both my hand and a monkey wrench.

It was then that I began to blubber and roll down the driveway. By the time I regained my composure, my wife had located a pair of pliers. Back to the job.

Unless I crawled into the gas tank and reached back up the spout, it was difficult to get decent leverage on the nuts. The plate hadn't been changed in 2 years and the screws were rusty. I finally loosened the nuts but the screws simply spun around with the nuts. Clearly it would be necessary to hold the screws firm while unscrewing the nuts. But how could I hold the screws firm when there were no slots for the screwdriver? My sobbing became uncontrollable.

"You need 2 pair of pliers and another person," my wife said.

She was right. She dug up another pair and she held the screws still while I finally removed the nuts and changed the plate in the moonlight. She then helped me into the house where I collapsed in a state of shock for 4 hours.

That's what I did last weekend and I really don't give a damn what you did.

Dealing with peer pressure

Everyone, at one time or another, has had to deal with peer pressure. Somewhere, there is an invisible, prevailing, dominant force that dictates that we either act like the majority of people act, or we're subject to censure. You either fight 'em...or join 'em.

In Jane Howard's book, "Families," she touched upon one form of it when she described an agnostic divorcee who moved to Atlanta from Minneapolis. She got so tired of having neighbors ask which was the church of her choice that she finally hit upon a plan to get them off her case.

Every Sunday morning, she and her children would don their best clothes at half after ten and pull out of the driveway in their car to return a couple of hours later. It was a Sunday ritual.

They never told anyone that they spent the entire time at Dunkin' Donut.

An elderly woman once confided to me that she got so bored with people who appraised her white hair, her age, and her status as a grandmother and said with shock, "You're kidding about not being able to knit, aren't you?" that she finally bought a knitting bag with little legs on it, filled it with yarn and carried it everywhere she went to ward off people bent on her conversion.

Somehow, I always feel sorry for the non-drinker at a cocktail party when he or she announces, "Just something non-alcoholic please."

Better to admit he drinks the blood of an ox or request hemlock over ice than to bring the room down on him.

It is incomprehensible to anyone that in this day and age of legalized alcohol there is someone who doesn't indulge.

I've seen people one at a time try to break the mystique of someone who stands around with a soft drink all night.

"My uncle had a problem too," offers one.

"I'll bet it's an allergy, isn't it?"

"I knew it. You're on a diet. Don't you know Scotch has fewer calories than..."

I know one teetotaler who starts out the evening spilling his diet soda on the rug. It seems to make everyone feel better about him.

Meet Charlevoix

Mary Ann Farkas

Mary Ann Farkas

Mary Ann Farkas was installed as president of the American Legion Auxiliary last week. This week she tells the Courier about some of the things the Auxiliary does.

COURIER: What is the purpose of the Auxiliary?

FARKAS: Really, it's the same as the Legion. We set no policies of our own but follow those of the Legion. Our activities are designed to carry out the parts of the Legion program which women can do best.

COURIER: Who is eligible for membership?

FARKAS: Mothers, wives, daughters, sisters and granddaughters of members of The American Legion. Also mothers, wives, daughters, sisters and granddaughters of all men who served in the Armed Forces of the United States or a government associated with the United States during a specified time. Another category is women who of their own right are eligible to membership in The American Legion.

COURIER: How do you carry out your work?

FARKAS: We have committee chairmen for various departments such as Americanism, Children and Youth, Community Service, Education and Scholarships, Foreign Relations, Girls State, Legislative, and National Security. I've worked on Americanism. What we try to do is keep up on what's going on in the various fields.

COURIER: Specifically, what would the Americanism chairman do?

FARKAS: One thing would be to go to the schools and talk about Americanism, about the flag, the Pledge of Allegiance, the Star Spangled Banner, things like that.

COURIER: How often does the Auxiliary meet? How many members do you have?

FARKAS: We meet once a month, the second Thursday, at the American Legion Hall. We have 77 members.

COURIER: How do you raise money?

FARKAS: Mostly by renting out the hall and giving dinners.

COURIER: What do you do with the money you raise?

FARKAS: We gave $300 to the Grand Rapids Veterans Hospital, sent Christmas gifts to the Battle Creek Veterans Hospital, and Mother's Day cards and hankies to the Veterans Hospital in Kalamazoo. We've also given to the Band Boosters, Girls State, the Jerry Lewis Telethon, and the Mt. McSauba Camping fund, among others. Every Thanksgiving we send a basket of fruit to Grandvue, and at each meeting we sign and send out cards for shut-ins and people in the hospitals.

COURIER: Does the Charlevoix Unit of the Auxiliary have uniforms?

FARKAS: No, but we're planning on getting them. We're trying to decide whether to buy or make them.

COURIER: How did you happen to join the Auxiliary?

FARKAS: Our son Eugene served in Vietnam so I was eligible. I knew a lot of the members and liked the work they were doing.

COURIER: What other Auxiliary officers were installed with you?

FARKAS: Pat Whitley is vice-president, Nancy Wood is second vice president, Genevieve Smith is treasurer, Lyda Johnson is secretary, Betty Pearsall is chaplain, Angie Borths is sergeant-at-arms, and Roselynn Goldstick is the historian. Edna Miller, Katherine Curtis, and Patty Muma are on the executive committee.

COURIER: How long have you lived in Charlevoix?

FARKAS: Twenty-two years. I was born in Grand Rapids but grew up in Muskegon County. My husband, too. We were married there. We came up here because we had a lot of relatives here and my husband thought it would be good for his arthritis. It was.

COURIER: How many children do you have?

FARKAS: Two boys and four girls. Besides Eugene, there's William who lives in Lansing, Rosemarie Lusk in Ellsworth, Shirley Zinsky in Charlevoix, Beatrice Parton in Charlevoix, and Judy Vander Ark in Ellsworth. We also have ten grandchildren and one great grandson.

COURIER: What does your husband do?

FARKAS: He's a plant guard at Freedmans.

COURIER: What organizations do you belong to besides the Legion Auxiliary?

FARKAS: The VFA Auxiliary and St. Mary's Altar Guild.

COURIER: What are your hobbies?

FARKAS: Cooking, canning and gardening.

Wild animals not good pets

"Let It Be – Wild and Free", a 12-page pamphlet designed to teach children what to do if they find an apparently orphaned baby wild animal is now available.

It may be obtained from the National Wildlife Federation, Dept. WF, 1412 18th Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20036. The first copy is free and additional copies are 25 cents each.

The Federation points out that a baby raccoon looks like the perfect pet to a child. The temptation to carry the animal home is often too great to resist, but wildlife babies do not make good pets.

Also, while a wildlife pet can be cute and cuddly as a baby, the animal can grow up to be destructive and even dangerous. In many instances, catching and keeping a wild pet can even be a violation of wildlife conservation laws.

What should a child do if he or she discovers an abandoned or injured baby bird? The pamphlet anwers that question in detail, outlining ways to repair broken wings and legs, how to keep birds warm, and what to feed them. But, the pamphlet concludes, "Nobody is as good a parent to a baby bird as the parent birds themselves."

Laurie Howell joins prosecuter's staff as child support investigator

Laurie Howell

Laurie Howell is a new employee of the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office.

She will be working with the Friend of the Court and the Department of Social Services in investigating Aid to Dependent Children support cases as well as other child support cases outside the State of Michigan.

Mrs. Howell has most recently been working with the Emmet-Charlevoix County Probation and Parole Department with David Bailey. Other jobs include that of Alcohol Counselor at the Half Way House in Petoskey and a year with Action Vista in Atlanta working with ex-offenders.

The latter project was a pilot program which won a national award for Mrs. Howell and her co-workers. She worked inside the institution in Atlanta counselling the inmates so they could become a viable part of the community when they left.

Mrs. Howell, the former Laurie Lyons, was born and raised in Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School. She studied at Lake Superior State College for two years then went to Grand Valley State College, where she earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Criminal Justice.

Mrs. Howell and her husband Tom live in Walloon Lake. He is employed by Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering.

"I'm glad to be back in Northern Michigan," Mrs. Howell says. "I'm a small town girl born and bred and I hope to stay here."

Vet counselor makes contacts

Ronald Geer, Charlevoix County Veterans' Counselor, reports that he had 68 contacts with veterans and/or members of veterans' families during the month of August.

Of these, seven were World War I veterans, 28 were World War II veterans, nine were Korean Conflict veterans, two were Post-Korean Conflict veterans, six were Vietnam Veterans, three were other veterans, one was Active Duty Personnel, one was National Guard, and 11 were people other than veterans.

Thirty-two of the contacts were personal, 27 were made by telephone, and nine were made by letter.

Invest elsewhere

To me, it is more businesslike for the City Fathers to invest in properties between Bridge and State Streets rather than even consider the quarter million dollar investment for the Hiller property.

Without parking for the merchants in the downtown area you are going to have future problems that you can't believe.

The Captain's Corners is the beginning. A drug Store, Grocery, 5 & 10, Bank, Appliances, etc. The downtown merchants pay a pretty healthy chunk of taxes also. Up those parking meters to a nickel and leave them up year around would be a start.

The City of Charlevoix doesn't need more property taken off the tax rolls. It needs income so the downtown area won't end up with just clothing stores and offices.

PINCHED NERVES

PAIN...Headache, backache, shoulder pains, arm and chest pains, a multitude of assorted pains in all parts of the body...develops quickly when the spinal cord or one of its nerves is pinched. Pain may appear at the point where the nerve is pinched, or it may make its appearance in that part of the body served by the pinched nerve. A pinched nerve can and often does lead to the development of disease conditions in the kidneys, bladder, liver, lungs, heart or other vital organs. The Chiropractor is an expert in of the most advanced healing arts known to man. Through his soothing, professional spinal adjustments, he restores the normal flow of powerful nerve energy through the spinal cord and the nervous system to all parts of the body to bring lasting, effective relief.

With proper nerve energy flow restored, nature heals from within, eliminating discomfort and banishing disease. Another Health and Life Article from the Office of:

Rayders whip Kalkaska

By BILL MERCER

The 1978 version of Charlevoix High Schools' Red Rayder football team celebrated the opening of the season with a 21-6 victory over visiting Kalkaska this past Friday night. With last season's nine straight, this win gives Coach Don Carey a string of 10 victories in a row.

As might be expected, both teams showed off early season jitters in the opening moments of the contest. Charlevoix received the kickoff, and, after failing to negotiate the first down, punted to the visitors. Kalkaska prompy fumbled the ball back to the Red Rayders.

Following two more possessions, with neither team able to find the right combination of blocking and running or passing, the Blue Devils took the football on its first sustained drive. Starting from their own 38 yard line, the Kalkaska squad converted 3 first downs and moved the ball to Charlevoix's 12 yard line. The Rayders held at this point, taking possession early in the second quarter.

Charlevoix was still unable to find momentum, and had to relinquish the football after three plays from scrimmage. Punter Scott Morgan helped the Rayder fortunes here, as he boomed a high 40 yard kick to move Kalkaska back into its own territory.

On the next exchange, following good defensive line play by Charlevoix's Wayne Hoffman and Dave Britton, Morgan returned a Blue Devil punt to the Rayder 31 yard line. The stage was set for quarterback Gil Noirot to find the key to scoring against the visitors.

Using a combination of runs by Bob Russell and Mike Keller, Noirot set-up the Kalkaska defense for two key passes to Rayder end Pat Schmidt. The first catch was good for 39 yards, and came on a crucial third down situation. The second was for 12 yards, and set the stage for the first Red Rayder touchdown of the year. Three plays later, Keller slammed in from the three yard line for the score. Morgan's point after kick was good, and Charlevoix had the winning points on the scoreboard, 7-0.

Meanwhile, the defensive line play of Hoffman, Britton, Jerry Sladek, Ron Paul, and Dennis Whitley helped Charlevoix control the tenor of this early season contest.

Early in the second half, the Rayders were handed another opportunity to score, as Kalkaska's Paul Bricker fumbled the football into the waiting arms of Hoffman on the Blue Devil 47 yard line.

Nine plays and three first downs later, Russell quick stepped around two defenders into the end zone for the second Rayder touchdown. Again Morgan's kick for conversion was good, and the Charlevoix lead had expanded to 14-0.

The home team was not void of mistakes during this first contest of the year, as, on the ensuing kick-off, Kalkaska was allowed to take over on their own 37 yard line. Three plays later, following a sack of the quarterback by Whitley and Sladek, fleet footed Blue Devil Bricker skirted left end for a 66 yard touchdown. The conversion attempt failed, and the Rayder lead now stood at 14-6.

Charlevoix countered on the next series of plays by featuring their quarterback on a nifty 30 yard touchdown run from scrimmage. The excellent field position enjoyed by the Rayders was provided by a 31 yard kickoff return by Doug Buday. Noirot's score followed a 39 yard pass play which also featured senior end Buday. Morgan's third conversion kick brought the score to 21-6 in Charlevoix's favor.

The remainder of the game saw both teams play to a stand-off. Kalkaska once penetrated to the Rayder 25 yard line, but they were stopped there by heads-up defensive play.

On the next series, Noirot and Schmidt once again combined for good passing yardage, however Charlevoix's drive was halted at the Kalkaska 36 yard line. Morgan's punt put them further into the hole, as they took possession of their own 8 yard line.

This week Charlevoix will travel to Benzonia to face Benzie Central. Another non-league encounter, the Huskies were losers in their first contest, 9-8 to Mason County Central.

Rayder JV's prevail

The Charlevoix Rayder Junior Varsity football team opened its 1978 schedule last week with a 27-20 victory over the Kalkaska JV's.

This week the young Rayders will host East Jordan at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Kipke field.

In its opener the Rayders scored twice in the first period to take a 14-0 lead which they never relinquished though Kalkaska scored three times before the final whistle.

The first touchdown came on a 23 yard pass play from quarterback Jeff Drury to Mike Zednicek. The conversion attempt was broken up.

Later in the period, Drury romped 62 yards on an end sweep to score and then ran the conversion to make the score 14-0.

After a long drive, the Blue Blazer quarterback scored from the five yard line to trim the Rayder lead to 14-6 to end the half.

The Rayders came back strong in the second half to score on a five yard run off tackle Mark Beaudoin. Joe Sladek booted the conversion fru a 21-6 lead before Kalkaska scored again, this time on a 30 yard pass play as the period ended 21-6.

Beaudoin went through tackle again midway in the final period for a 42 yard jaunt for the Rayyders' final TD. Kalkaska scored late on a three-yard run and a conversion pass to make the final score 27-20.

Pat Klooster

Klooster vying for starting job

ALBION — Among the 108 candidates in Albion College's 1978 pre-season football camp is Pat Klooster, a freshman from Charlevoix.

Klooster is vying for a starter's role as a defensive back, one of the seven positiona on defense the Coach Frank Joranko has to fill this season.

Pat lettered in football and track at Charlevoix High, winning all-league honors in the grid spot. In his two years on the CHS varsity, the team's record was 16-2.

Albion compiled an 8-2 record in 1977, winning a second straight Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association title, and participated in the NCAA Division III playoffs. Albion is one of the co-favorites to win the league crown in 1978.

Pat plans studies in psychology at Albion. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klooster, of rural Charlevoix.

Harriers second at White Cloud

The Charlevoix Rayder Cross Country team came in second among 18 entries in the White Cloud Invitational meet held Saturday Coach Pete Spieles has announced.

Charlevoix with 115 points came in second behind St. Louis which won the meet with 82 points. Grand Rapids Christian with 150 points was third and Clare with 158 was fourth.

Jeff Drenth posted the team's best time, 15:32, to place fourth in the meet. Mark Russell with a time of 16:23 placed 13th; Jay Swartwout, a sophomore, 16:36 for 24th place; Jeff Landon, also a sophomore, 25th with a time of 16:38 and Brian Thompson, 49th, with a time of 17:34.

Drenth and Russell received medals and Swartwout and Landon, ribbons.

In the meet at Mackinac Island on Sunday, two members of the team ran as individuals. Drenth covered the eight-mile course in 45:23 to come in 14th among the 600 official entries and fourth in the 19 year and under age group. Steve Mielke had a time of 54:12 to come in 149th overall.

The Rayder harriers will officially open their 1978 season at a triangular meet with Gaylord and Boyne City at Gaylord on Monday, Sept 19.

Golfers ready to defend title

The Charlevoix Rayders golfers, defending Michigan-Huron Shores conference champions, will boast four regulars from last season as they take to the golf course to defend their title, according to Coach Barry Anderson.

Heading the list of players are Mike Custer, Bob Ranger and Mark White, seniors, and Roxy VanLoo, a junior, all of whom saw Varsity action during the 1977 season.

Other players who will be vieing for a spot on the team are Dave Olach, Larry Nunemaker, Dave Cole, Ike Dyksterhouse, Kurt Heckendorn, and Mike Umlor, juniors, and three freshmen, Dave Staublin, Ken Kane and Dale Pleszko.

The team will be going into the 1978 season with an 18-2 record.

The Rayders were not only Conference champions, but finished second in the regionals and were 11th in the state.

The Rayders will open their league schedule at St. Ignace Monday and will host Petoskey the following Monday, Sept. 25.

Soprano soloist in East Jordan

Soprano soloist Cathy Barrow will appear at the Missionary Church in East Jordan Wednesday, September 13, at 7 p.m. The church is located at the corner of M-66 and Rogers Bridge Road.

Mrs. Barrow will appear as a representative of World Vision International. She will include in her concert a look at the needs of the world and report on the help that has been given to thousands of needy people through the ministries of World Vision.

Mrs. Barrow's musical career has taken her around the world to Vietnam, Cambodia, Thailand, The Holy Land, Africa, Europe, and most of the United States. She was trained at the Community Music School in Detroit, and studied under Gordon VanRye of Grand Rapids, Alice Dutcher of Grand Valley State College, and at Interlochen Arts Academy. She also had the leading female role with the western Michigan Opera Company, was soloist with the Grand Rapids Symphony, and has appeared across the nation on numerous television programs.

World Vision International is a nonprofit Christian humanitarian agency which has programs of child care, emergency relief, development, evangelism, and leadership training throughout the world. It currently sponsors over 110,000 needy children in over 40 countries.

The public is invited. There is no admission fee.

Tennis season comes to a close with tourney

The tennis season in Charlevoix was concluded over the weekend with a successful closed tourney for men's and women's singles and doubles.

Second-seeded Mark Lignell won the men's singles by defeating top-seeded Bruce MacArthur 6-3, 6-2; second seeded Don DeMoor and Mike Dickens took the men's doubles in one of the toughest matches of the meet by a score of 6-7, 7-6, 6-3 over top-seeded Tim Elenbaas and Vaughn Littrup.

In thwe women's bracket, the top-seeded duo of Paty Janiro and Gina Lepman captured the women's doubles by a score of 7-5, 6-4 over Elizabeth Swanson and Edith Gilbert. Lepman then defeated Cricket Uhrick 6-3, 6-0 to win the singles and become the only double winner in the meet.

After drawing a first round bye in the men's doubles in which 11 teams were entered, DeMoor and Dickens defeated Tom Merta and Dan Iannotti 6-0, 6-1 to advance to the finals. Elenbaas and Littrup, on the other hand, defeated Frank Parodi and Dick Lepman 6-0, 6-1 before going into the finals against DeMoor and Dickens. DeMoor and Dickens were down 6-7 before coming back in an uphill battle to take the next two sets 7-6, 6-3.

The singles champion, Lignell, made his way through a field of 16 players to take the title. His first victory was over Merta 6-0, 6-0 and former high school teammate, Dave Morgridge, whom he defeated 6-2, 6-0 before going against Reed Friedinger. Lignell downed him in two sets, 6-3, 6-1 before meeting MacArthur.

MacArthur had to defeat Guy Swanson 6-2, 6-0; Bob Anderson 6-1, 6-2 and Elenbaas 6-1, 6-4 to reach the finals.

The Janiro Lepman combo, after drawing a first round bye, won over Nancy Fowler and Carolyn Klooster 6-0, 6-1 before clashing with the second seeded duo. This paired, Swanson and Gilbert, after drawing a first round bye, defeated Cricket Uhrick and Lynn DeMoor in a match that went three sets, 6-1, 4-6, 7-5. Lepman and Janiro won the finals 7-5, 6-4.

Six teams were entered in the women's doubles.

In the women's singles in which there were six entries, Lepman defeated Lynn DeMoor 6-4, 6-2 after DeMoor had won over Jan Wade Littrup 6-2, 6-0.

Cricket Uhrick won over Doris Lundteigen 6-2, 6-0 before Uhrick defeated Janiro, who had drawn a first round bye. The score was 6-4, 6-2. Lepman then defeated Uhrick 6-3, 6-0 in the finals for the single's title.

In a mixed doubles fun match, Topper Carey and Irene Richardson teamed up to edge Mike Bonello and Pat Taylor 8-7 in a tie breaker.

Prizes were given during the two day tournament. The prizes were donated by Kaden's Emporium, Bit of Finland, Hamilton's, Liberman's Ace Hardware and Mettler's by the Bay.

Gary Brindel was the tournament manager.

Clothing costs up 20 percent

Along with all the other price increases we experience daily it is no surprise to note that fall clothing costs will be approximately 20 percent more.

Hand-me-downs are one way some of us try to cut costs and get ready for school. Fortunate are those who have enough wear left from the first child's clothes to pass on to the second or third. The receiver of the hand-me-downs may be more appreciative, however, if you do something to change them before passing them along.

Hike, slide presentation planned

People looking for something to do this coming Saturday, September 16, may find the ranger-guided walks and evening slide programs at Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore, near Frankfort, to their liking.

At 10:30 a.m., there will be a presentation of "Shipwrecks and Lifesavers". This is a one and a half hour tour of the old Lifesaving Station and walk to Sleeping Bear Point. To get there, go to the end of M-209 in Glen Haven, then turn left and go to the Lifesaving Station at the end of the pavement.

At 2:30 p.m., there will be a presentation of "Food for Thought" – how to survive on natural foods in the wilderness. Participants will learn what to eat and what to avoid on a two-mile, two and a half hour walk. To get there, take M-22 to Esch Road (about three and a half miles south of Empire), then go west on Esch Road to the end of the road at Lake Michigan.

At 3:30 p.m., there will be a presentation of "Cedars vs. Sand", showing how forest and sand dunes are in constant conflict, and how the sand is winning in this area. Hikers will meet at the Dune Climb for this one-hour easy walk designed for everyone.

At 8:45 p.m., "1978, a Campfire Odyssey" will be presented.

Yeas: Aldermen Porter, Plumm, Wood, Whitley, and Muma. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjourned.

Judy D. Przybylski,
City Clerk

BOARD OF APPEALS
SEPTEMBER 5, 1978

The Board of Appeals convened with Aldermen Porter, Plumm, Wood, Whitley, and Muma present. Absent: None.

The Board resumed a Public Hearing initiated on August 21, 1978 regarding a variance requested by Tim and Tricia Doan of 305 Clinton which would permit them to reduce their east side yard set-back to 3 foot to allow construction of an accessory building.

Moved by Alderman Porter and supported by Alderman Wood to approve the variance requested by Tim and Tricia Doan of 305 Clinton reducing their east side yard set-back to 3 foot. Motion was denied by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: None. Nays: Aldermen Porter, Plumm, Wood, Whitley, and Muma. Absent: None.

The Board discussed a variance requested by Harold and Juanita Black of 207 Antrim to reduce their rear and west side yard set-back to 1 foot. Mr. Black stated that the variance would allow him to enlarge his garage and add a covered patio. He also stated that his present garage is located 1 foot from the rear and west side yard lot lines and that the variance would allow an extension of the present conforming use.

Moved by Alderman Whitley and supported by Alderman Muma to approve the variance requested by Harold and Juanita Black of 207 Antrim. Motion was denied by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Whitley and Porter. Nays: Aldermen Plumm, Wood, and Muma. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Wood and supported by Alderman Porter to approve the Site Plan as presented by Pizza Hut Corp. to be constructed on Lots 51 and 52 of Mason's Second Addition to the City of Charlevoix, provided the structure has a shake shingle roof, a 3 foot green belt on Bridge and Carpenter Streets, and a wooden sign as recommended by the City Planning Commission. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Porter, Plumm, Wood, Whitley, and Muma. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The Board of Appeals adjourned.

Judy D. Przybylski,
City Clerk

Bertha Bennett

ELLSWORTH – Funeral services for Miss Bertha E. Bennett, 69, who died Sept. 5 at Little Traverse Hospital where she had been a patient for two days, were held Sept. 7 at the Hastings Funeral Home. The Rev. Robert Bentley of the Central Lake Congregational church officiated. Interment was in Antrim City cemetery in Banks township.

Miss Bennett was born in Banks township Jan. 2, 1909, and always made her home on the family farm near Atwood.

She is survived by a brother, Orva, of Atwood, and two sisters, Mrs. Walter (Edna) McElroy of Central Lake and Mrs. Albert (Ida) Edwards of Charlevoix.

Maynard Alward

ELLSWORTH – Funeral services for Maynard W. Alward, 73, who died late Friday at the Traverse City Osteopathic Hospital where he had been a patient for one day, were held Monday at the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church. The Rev. Warren H. Lammers officiated. Interment was in Ellsworth cemetery.

Born in Antrim City, Banks township, May 9, 1905, Mr. Strange was married to the former Pearl DeVries June 2, 1933, at Atwood. They always resided at Ellsworth where he was custodian at the Ellsworth Community Schools for 20 years before retiring in 1967. He had also been a member of the Village Council for 20 years. He was an avid hunter and fisherman.

Surviving are his wife; four daughters, Mrs. Leonard (Polly) Strange, Mrs. Chester (Shirley) Farrell and Mrs. Donna Heeres, all of Ellsworth, and Mrs. Robert (Betty) DeYoung of Bellaire; three sons, William, Jerry and Ray, all of Ellsworth; 22 grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Ethel Gablinsky of Ellsworth and three brothers, Steve of Anchorage, Alaska, Nelson of Flushing and Charles of Marquette.

Donald Chase

Donald O. Chase, 61, of DeWitt, father of Dennis Chase, editor of the Charlevoix Courier, died at his home Sept. 5.

Funeral services were held Friday at Holy Cross Catholic Church in Lansing. Interment was in St. Joseph's cemetery, Lansing.

Mr. Chase had been a resident of the Lansing area for 45 years. He was a veteran of World War II, having served in the U.S. Navy. He was a member of Holy Cross Church; a member of the Board of Realtors and the Builders Association and vice president of LaNoble Realty for the past 20 years.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret; one daughter, Sharon, at home; a son, Dennis of Petoskey and Charlevoix; three sisters and four brothers.

Mrs. Robert Duff

Funeral services for a former resident, Mrs. Robert Duff, 72, of Elmira, who died Sept. 4 at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City where she had been a patient for a month, were held Friday at the Nelson Funeral Home in Gaylord. Interment was in Maple Hill cemetery at Elmira.

Born in Charlevoix Aug. 28, 1906, the former Dorothy Gill was graduated from the Charlevoix High School in 1926, attended the Charlevoix County Normal School and taught in rural schools in the Elmira area prior to her marriage to Mr. Duff. They always resided in the Elmira area. He preceded her in death in 1973. She had been employed in the cafeteria of the Elmira School prior to retiring.

She is survived by a son, Martin Duff of Central Lake; four daughters, Mrs. Ralph (Roberta) Vroman of Wolverine, Mrs. Charles V. (Jean) House and Mrs. Jerry (Jackie) LaTusek of Gaylord and Mrs. Scott (Gina) Lewis of St. Matthew, S.C.; 19 grand-children; five great-grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Vernon Snyder of Port Washington, Wis. and five brothers, Glenn of Phonix, Ariz., Albert A. of Siren, Wis., Donn R. of Dyer, Ind., Benjamin S. and Robert of Charlevoix.

LeClair appointed

Sherri C. LeClear has been appointed the new regional director for the Northwest Region of the Michigan Lung Association, it was announced recently by Brick Lancaster, president of MLS'a Northwest Regional Council.

She succeds Michael A. Mortimore who held the position since the fall of 1975.

LeClear was graduated from Central Michigan University this year with a master's degree in public health education. She received her bachelor's degree in public health education also at CMU.

The Northwest Region of MLA covers Mecosta, Isabella, Mason, Lake, Osceola, Clare, Manistee, Wexford, Missaukee, Roscommon, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Crawford, Antrim, Otsego, Charlevoix, Emmet, Leelanau and Cheboygan counties.

The regional council identifies local problems related to lung health and develops programs to solve them.

4-H meet Monday

There will be a meeting of the new 4-H sponsored Rabbit Marketing Club on Monday, Sept. 18, at the East Jordan Middle School, beginning at 7:30.

The club leader will be Ray Fisher of East Jordan. Fisher is one of Michigan's best known rabbit breeders, and has been a local 4-H leader for many years.

Bob Bellairs, 4-H youth program assistant, notes that rabbits are one of the easiest animals to raise and maintain, and through this program rabbit raising can become a source of income for area young people.

"With proper management and record keeping, rabbits can be raised efficiently and economically. In fact, rabbit is the most economical meat animal you can raise," Bellairs says.

"However, as with any agricultral endeavor, you must have a market for your animals. I am happy to say that Mr. Fisher makes weekly trips to the rabbit market in Grand Rapids, and he will transport all marketable stock that project members raise," he adds.

The cost of the project will be kept as low as possible. Perhaps the young people will build their own cages, and if enough people are interested, they may be able to purchase feed cooperatively. Interested participants will be able to make arrangements with Fisher for initial breeding stock. It is recommended that only New Zealand White or Californian breeds be used.

Parents are asked to attend the first meeting with their children. Further information can be obtained from the 4-H office, phone 582-6232.

Cystic Fibrosis drive Sept. 18-30

The Breath of Life Campaign, an annual appeal for funds to help children with Cystic Fibrosis and other lung-damaging diseases, will be conducted in more than 400 Michigan communities during the latter part of September, the month officially assigned to the CF Foundation by the National Health Council.

Locally, the Charlevoix Welcome Wagon Club is handling the Cystic Fibrosis drive this year for the city. The drive will be from Sept. 18-30.

The Breath of Life Campaign vital funds for research to find a cure for Cystic Fibrosis. It also supports clinical care and education programs which lengthen the lives of all children who struggle to breathe with life-threatening pulmonary diseases.

Cystic Fibrosis, a disease which causes a thick glue-like mucus to clog the respiratory and digestive systems, takes the lives of half of its victims before the age of 18.

The Cystic Fibrosis Foundation is asking residents of Michigan to give as generously as they can when a volunteer Breath of Life marcher comes to their door. "Through contributions to this campaign we will see a day in which lung-damaging diseases, including Cystic Fibrosis, no longer take more children's lives than any other disease except cancer," stated Greater Michigan Chapter President, Jeanne Mayan.

Are you cut out to finish a Capp Home yourself?

Come to our Open House and find out.

In 32 years, Capp has made quality custom built housing affordable for over 50,000 families.

We don't build pre-fab or modular houses. We erect the home of your choice stick by stick on your lot and the foundation you provide, using only top quality materials.

By the time our carpenters leave your house is fully enclosed and ready for you to finish.

We provide all the necessary materials you need to finish it yourself. Following our concise step-by-step instructions you can complete your dream home at an undreamed of price.

By finishing it themselves, many Capp customers save thousands of dollars compared to what they'd pay a general contractor to build the same home on the same lot.

You don't have to be a craftsman, either. Just crafty. You can act as your own general contractor, hiring local help, and still come out money ahead.

Either way, you'll get a home that's uniquely yours. A custom built home designed to your personal specifications.

One that will be worth far more than you paid for it the day you move in.

Capp Homes are such a good value they qualify for FHA, VA, Farm Home and conventional mortgages. If you can't get financing from another lender, Capp has millions in mortgage money available at conventional terms to qualified buyers.

You may even be able to use the equity built up in your present home or building site to get started on a new Capp Home.

Come see for yourself at a Capp Open House. You'll have a chance to inspect a Capp Home that's partially completed and decide whether you're cut out to finish a Capp Home.

Timms appointed to council

The City Council has appointed former Councilman Robert Timmis, 44, as Second Ward councilman to fill the unexpired term of Lawrence "Stub" Swanson, who resigned in August for health reasons.

Swanson was elected to the council in April and has almost a year and a half remaining in his term.

Owner of Timms' TV Appliance Service in Charlevoix, Timms is a native of Petoskey and served two terms on the council from 1972 to 1978.

Timms, Mrs. Billie Smith and Larry Feindt, a member of the former Charlevoix Charter Commission, were candidates for the seat at last Tuesday's council meeting. Feindt was eliminated in the first secret ballot cast by council members and Timms won the run-off.

Timms and his wife, the former Barbara Thompson, have three children.

In other action the council:

–Approved a site plan for a proposed Pizza Hut, to be located at the corner of Carpenter and Bridge Streets. The plan includes a greenbelt on both streets.

–Denied variances requested by Tim Doan, 305 Clinton St., and Harald Black, 207 Antrim St., for the construction of out-buildings an established set-backs.

–Agreed to seek funds from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for the construction of a surge control pier from the north side of the bridge east to buoy A in Round Lake. The council has learned from Richard Donaldson that the Corps has $1 million available to correct erosion problems caused by earlier Corps of Engineers projects, such as the revetment on Pine River Channel.

–Agreed to send invoices to participating townships for fire and ambulance service for the coming year, based on township valuations. The rate for fire protection is .004 mills and for ambulance service .0001 mills.

–Named Councilman Earl Muma delegate and Councilman Ray Wood alternate delegate to the upcoming meeting of the Michigan Municipal League on Mackinac Island.

–Learned that the city has made the down payment on the Wycoff property on State Street just north of the city hall.

–Heard an appeal by Councilman Wood to repave Dixon Avenue. He called it one of the roughest streets in town.

City Manager Norman Gaffney said he would invite Petoskey City Manager to a committee meeting of the council Sept. 12 to explain details of the rate class settlement with Consumers Power Co.

Huber in East Jordan

Bill Huber, administrative assistant to State Senator Robert W. Davis, will hold office hours in East Jordan on Thursday, September 14.

He will be at the Council Chambers of the East Jordan City Hall from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

Carol Louiselle

Greenhouse, florist shop opens here

Carol Louiselle has opened a green house and florist shop on U.S. 31 South near Erber's Auto.

The shop will feature house plants, potted flowers, dried flowers, ceramic pottery, baskets, gifts, and similar items. Bulbs will be available soon, and nursery stock will be for sale in the spring.

Mrs. Louiselle says she and her 76-year-old father-in-law, Niley Louiselle, built their building, doing everything including laying blocks.

"This is something I've wanted to do for a long time," Mrs. Louiselle adds. "I've been studying on my own and have worked hard at it."

Mrs. Louiselle came here seven years ago from Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario. Her husband, Richard, is a native of Charlevoix. He and other members of the Louiselle family will help in the florist shop from time to time.

Wedding

Whitley-Lawson

Kathy R. Whitley and Allen D. Lawson were married Saturday, September 2 at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Whitley of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom's parents were the late Donald Lawson and Mrs. Helen Ball.

Pastor Walter Hasting performed the afternoon double-ring ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Organ music was provided by Mrs. James Jensen and guitar music by Mrs. Dane Whitley, who also sang "Follow Me" and "A Song for Baby".

The bride's gown was fashioned of ivory knit crepe with an ivory Alencon rose-patterned lace overlay, lace yoke, full sleeves, and a Victorian neckline. Her bouquet consisted of white roses and a single red rose.

Mrs. Greg Skeel served as maid of honor, and Dorothy Arthur and Sally Whitley, a sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore sleeveless floor-length gowns with floral patterned capes that hung below the elbows and carried bouquets of white and yellow rose buds with blue forget-me-nots. The maid of honor's gown was sky blue and those of the bridesmaids a lighter shade of blue.

Stacy L. Russell and Amy Fiendt, nieces of the bride, were flower girls. Their dresses were styled like that of the matron of honor. Edward T. Nachazel of Ellsworth, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer.

Arthur Lawson of Detroit, the bridegroom's brother, acted as best man. Chuck Peters of Detroit and Ray Notestine of Boyne City, uncle of the bridegroom, served as groomsmen, and Greg White of Detroit and Michael Whitley, brother of the bride, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception at the V.F.W. Hall was hosted by the bride's parents. They were assisted by Mrs. Ruth Hawkin, Mrs. Larry Feindt, Debbie Lawson, and Kathy Morse. The rehearsal dinner was served at the Community Church of God Fellowship Hall, hosted by the bridegroom's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Notestine of Boyne City.

Mrs. Whitley wore a dark green floor-length knit gown for her daughter's wedding. Her corsage was of peach-colored roses. Mrs. Eugene Notestine wore a cranberry color floral floor-length gown.

Following a wedding trip to the Upper Peninsula, the newlyweds will make their home on the Marion Center Road in Charlevoix.

Delegates help nominate party leaders

By PEG OHLE

When local voters went to the polls in the August primary election, many of them probably thought they were nominating candidates for all offices in the November general election.

Not so. They did nominate Republican and Democrat candidates for governor, United States senator, representative in Congress, state senator, representative in the state legislature and county and township offices.

However, on the November ballot, there will be 12 candidates from each party for state offices who were not nominated in the primaries. These will be lieutenant governor, secretary of state, two justices of the supreme court, two members of the state board of education, two members of the Michigan State University Board of Trustees, two members of the University of Michigan Board of Regents, and two members of the Wayne State University Board of Governors.

These candidates were chosen at Republican and Democrat state conventions late in August by convention delegates appointed by party county conventions, mostly from the lit of those who were elected delegates to the Republican or Democrat party county convention in the primaries.

The importance of the party county conventions and the party state conventions is not understood by the average citizen, if lack of interest is any criteria.

In the primaries, there were candidates for Republican county convention delegate in only 12 of the 27 precincts in Charlevoix County. Twenty were elected. They came from Bay Township, Boyne Valley Township, Charlevoix Township, Evangeline Township, Hayes Township, Marion Township, Norwood Township, South Arm Township, Boyne City, the City of Charlevoix and East Jordan.

Candidates for Democrat party county convention delegate appeared on the ballot in only three precincts. Five were elected: from St. James Township, East Jordan, and the City of Charlevoix.

When the Charlevoix County Republican convention convened after the primaries, there were only four volunteers to attend the state convention: Arthur K. Rouse and Casimir Totan of Boyne City, Ronald Geer of Charlevoix Township, and William H. Ohle of Bay Township. The only volunteer the Charlevoix County Democrat convention could muster up was James Hartwell of Bay Township.

The four Republican delegates traveled to Detroit to the State Republican convention, where they had a hand in nominating James Brickley for lieutenant governor, Melvin Larson for secretary of state, Stephen Bransdorfer for attorney general, and two candidates for each of the four educational boards.

Hartwell went to Lansing to the state democrat convention, where the delegates nominated Olivia Maynard for lieutenant governor, Richard Austin for secretary of state, Frank J. Kelley for attorney general, and two candidates for each of the four educational posts.

A delegate to the state Republican convention explained that it was run in much the same manner that national conventions are run. Television viewers have become used to seeing the frantic campaigning of candidates, brochures, buttons, and flags, group caucusing, and hospitality rooms. County delegations are grouped by congressional districts, so Charlevoix County delegates were seated with others from the 11th District.

When it was all over in Detroit and Lansing, only two Northern Michigan residents had been nominated for office: Democrat Paul Brown of Petoskey for the University of Michigan Board of Regents and Democrat Barbara Sawyer of Menominee for the Michigan State University Board of Trustees. Republican Mary Sharp, of East Lansing, who was nominated for the MSU Board of Trustees, has a summer home in Boyne City.

Women's Club to meet

The Charlevoix Women's Club will hold its first meeting of the year on Monday, September 18, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon at the home of Mrs. Louis J. Hollow on Pa-Ba-Shan Lane in North Point.

It will be the Club's annual membership coffee and open house, to which all women in the community are invited.

Members of the Executive Committee will host the open house. They are Mrs. Joseph C. Morris, past president; Mrs. Arthur Reibel, president; Mrs. R. J. Murray, first vice president; Mrs. Donald Farrell, second vice president; Mrs. John Schmidt, third vice president; Mrs. William Dietrich, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Louis J. Hollow, treasurer.

Crown Drug offers free blood clinics

Crown Drug will sponsor free blood pressure clinics on Sept. 23 and Sept. 30. Crown Drug is located in the Captain's Corner shopping center at the intersection of US-31 and M-66.

Qualified medical personnel will be at the store from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. on the two Saturdays to take blood pressure.

"Hypertension is the nation's No. 1 silent killer," Jack Urben of Crown Drug said. "Many times it goes undetected."

Urben suggests that people middle age or older should have their blood pressure taken every six months. He emphasizes the free blood pressure clinics sponsored by his store are not intended to replace a visit to the doctor, though.

Besides reading a person's blood pressure at no charge, Crown Drug will also send a copy of that reading - if it is not normal - to that person's family physician, if so desired. Again free of charge.

Urben said some side effects experienced by hypertension are dizziness (headaches), drowsiness, blurred vision and confusion.

As treatment for hypertension, Urben suggests cutting down on sugar and salt intake, and dieting in general. Quit smoking is also helpful, he added.

Urben said he plans to sponsor the blood pressure clinics every six months. He said the free blood pressure clinics have been tried in metropolitan areas with success and it is one way he can demonstrate his interest in the community.

"This is for the local people," Urben said. "This is their store and I want to help them."

Jack Urben of Crown Drug.

READ OPEN MEETINGS ACT

How is it possible that a garage is being expanded within the City of Charlevoix, after having been denied a variance to build by the Charlevoix City Board of Appeals? The denial was included in minutes of the board, which were published in the Charlevoix Courier. After reading the minutes, I was quite surprised to see the garage being built. When the matter was checked at the City Hall, it was stated that the Board of Appeals had changed their minds. I feel all residents of the City are entitled to know how to get a permit, after being turned down in a public meeting. The Open Meetings Act was enacted to prevent decisions being made in private.

Perhaps the City Administrator and the City Council all should spend one of their meetings reading the Open Meetings Act.

REMEMBER IN NOVEMBER

Since Milliken is coming up for election in November, he has decided to look into the gill netting of fish by the Indians. Who does he think he is kidding? He's looking for votes from the sportsmen and Indians, too. Sportsmen, beware as to how you vote this coming November.

Office closed Tuesday

The Office of Veterans Affairs for Charlevoix County will be closed Tuesday, Sept. 25, Ronald Geer, Veterans' Counselor, has announced.

On that date Geer said he would be at Mid-Michigan College at Clare to attend a training, workshop for Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Control officers. He holds that position in Charlevoix County along with serving as a veterans' counselor.

With prejudice

Bank suit dismissed

It has been announced by Gordon R. Wellman, president of the Charlevoix County State Bank, that the pending suit brought by Gwendolyn M. Wexstaff and Tom and Gail Duke against E.D. Hawley and a number of the bank's directors and shareholders has been dismissed with prejudice.

As part of the dismissal all references to and allegations of fraud and deceit against E.D. Hawley were ordered stricken by the court. All counterclaims previously filed against Gwendolyn M. Wexstaff and Gail and Thomas Duke also were dismissed with prejudice.

Wellman stated that, prior to it's dismissal, Russell C. Henderson, who previously had purchased a substantial block of stock in the bank formerly held in the name of Gail Duke, had been added as a party and agreed to the dismissal with prejudice. Dismissal with prejudice means that the claims brought by the parties cannot be reinstituted.

Wellman further announced that as part of the settlement of the suit, Henderson would purchase the shares owned by Gwendolyn M. Wexstaff which were the subject of the original claim. Henderson and other shareholders will deposit a substantial block of shares of the bank's stock in a stock pool to be sold to local interested persons within the next three years.

The stock pool will not be administered by the Charlevoix County State Bank, but rather by Wellman and Henderson, who will act on behalf of the owners of the shares to be sold. They stated that at this time they did not know the price at which such stock would be offered but did indicate that such determination would be made as soon as the bank's month end financial statements had been finalized.

Wellman further stated that the primary purpose of selling the shares would be to increase the stockholder base of the bank. Toward that end it is anticipated that the stock will be sold in blocks of not more than 1,500 share each. Wellman further stated that certificates for such stock would include a legend reflecting certain restrictions agreed to as part of the settlement of the pending litigation.

Wellman and Henderson expressed pleasure at being able to amicably resolve the pending dispute. They stated that since his purchase, Henderson had been added to the bank's Board of Directors and that he agrees with the existing policies of the board. Henderson indicated that he was enthusiastically looking forward to a harmonious long-term relationship with Charlevoix County State Bank.

Wellman noted that Henderson's substantial investment and the substantial investment of existing shareholders showed their continued confidence in the policies of Charlevoix County State Bank and in the growth of this area, and would enable the bank to continue it's long standing commitment to growth and local ownership of the bank.

Rezoning approved for 56 unit apartment complex

All systems are go for a 56 unit apartment complex proposed for May Street.

The Charlevoix Common Council, acting as the board of appeals Monday night, approved a rezoning of the property and several variances to go along with it.

The property, owned by Frank Smith, was rezoned from R-1 (single family) to R-4 (multiple family). After that was approved, the board OK'd variances allowing 56 units, a reduction in the square footage requirements for one bedroom apartments and a sideyard setback on the south side for parking.

The developers, the Economic Development Group, has tentative plans to start construction in the spring. If construction does not start within six months, the property will revert back to its former zoning unless the developers ask for and receive an extension.

Also, as part of the agreement, the developers must self-contain all run-off water.

In the proposed development, half of the 56 units are to be two bedroom and half one bedroom.

The project is expected to be financed through the Farmers Home Administration. Rents would be based on income with the renter receiving a government subsidy if necessary.

The board also heard plans for a 42 unit senior citizen apartment proposed for May Street near the Charlevoix Apartments.

The board tabled action on the proposed development for two weeks.

The developers, the Henry J. Spieker Company of Toledo, presented a site plan showing four different structures on the property, presently owned by Florence Forbes. This drew criticism from Ralph McRae of the housing commission, who said the commission favored a one building concept. McRae also said one laundry facility for 42 units - as proposed - is inadequate.

The apartment would be for senior citizens 62 and older. To be eligible to rent an apartment, the family income could not exceed $11,000 and the amount of rent would be based on income.

Financing for the senior citizen housing project would be through the Farmers Home Administration. However, before financing could be arranged, a feasibility study showing housing needs in the city would have to be made by the developers.

The property must be rezoned from R-1 to R-4.

In other action, council:

- Accepted a salt bid from the Morton Salt Company.
- Approved authorization for City Manager Norm Gaffney to attend the League of Cities Convention from Nov. 27-30.
- Approved the uniform traffic code which will take effect Jan. 1.
- Agreed to have Ross Engineering complete the engineering work at the Mt. McSauba Ski Hill.

School board sets tuition rates

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday night, set tuition rates for the 1978-79 school year; accepted bids for gasoline; acted on two requests and saw a slide presentation of the summer's work at the Beaver Island Lighthouse property.

The tuition rates for the current school year will be $1,630.64 for elementary students and $1,687.71 for secondary students.

Four bids for regular and lead-free gasoline were received. The bids ranged from .4663 to .485 for regular and from .491 to .516 for lead free fuel. The bid of .4663 for regular and .4983 submitted by Total Petroleum, Inc., were accepted. Vincent Olach, business manager, said that approximately 50,000 glallons of regular gasoline and 2,000 gallons of lead free gasoline are used during a year. The overall difference of approximately $120.40 a year was offered by Total, he said.

The final approval was given the Charlevoix High School Marching Band trip to Northern Michigan University in mid-October with the understanding that the entire cost will be financed by the Rand Roosters.

The senior class request for the concession booth during the forthcoming basketball season was also approved.

The request by Michigan Bell to place an underground cable on property owned by the school district was tabled until the Oct. 2 meeting because of a lack of information.

Dan Kaczynski, who supervised the renovation project at the Beaver Island Lighthouse owned by the Charlevoix School District, made a slide presentation depicting the progress of the program as a result of two grants made available to the school district. He also outline the proposed program for those utilizing the site.

A discussion of goals for the 1978-79 school year concluded the meeting.

Mrs. Perry Smith, a member of the election board during the recent school election, addressed the board regarding the election.

The next meeting is scheduled for Oct. 2.

Governor intervenes in dispute

Gov. William Milliken met recently in Lansing with representatives of Indian fishermen, sport anglers and various state and federal agencies in an effort to try and solve the fishing dispute between Indian and sport fishermen.

According to UPI, Milliken said, "As October approaches there's a real danger of confrontations and even violence and I am determined to see that this meeting, if necessary, goes on around the clock to attempt and resolve some of the basic issues so we can reduce the possibility of violence.

"There is recognition...that the potential for violence is very high."

Milliken said afterwards he was pleased with the outcome of the meeting because "of the willingness of everyone in the room to listen to everybody else in recognition that all have a common stake in the outcome of this issue.

"A recurring theme in the meeting was the need to preserve this resource," he said. "Everyone realizes that whatever the final court decision over Indian fishing rights, we must all insure that in the end there is something left to be concerned about – after the lengthy court struggle resolves the basic issues."

A legal advisor to the governor, Kenneth Frankland, said he is hopeful a settlement can be reached within a week to 10 days. There was no indication as to what that settlement might be.

The fishing dispute has heated up in the Charlevoix area this summer as Indian fishermen have been using gill nets to catch fish in Lake Michigan. The Indians claim they are not bound by state statues prohibiting gill nets. They also claim they are limiting their catches to whitefish. Sport fishermen claim gill net fishing will destroy sport fishing. They also claim the Indians are catching lake trout in addition to whitefish.

The case is currently pending in federal court.

Let's Talk Real Estate

by Jim Thomas

A person cannot just decide to become a real estate broker and hang out a shingle. Generally, a prospective broker will take courses on various aspects of real estate and study the legal, financial, and moral ramifications of the profession. Then, a state examination must be taken in order for a person to get a license to be a broker. So, a broker, by training at least, must take his or her business seriously, and it follows that he or she will subsequently take your needs seriously.

Blue Dot Farm sold

Going... ...Going... ...Gone!

The Blu Dot Farm was sold by auction Saturday and Jim Brannan won a bet.

"I've got a bet here with Mr. Dyksterhouse," Brannan told a crowd of about 250, as he warmed them up for the sale, Saturday afternoon, in front of the Blu Dot's barns and home.

"I got a bet, here that the country boys boin' to buy this farm, Mr. Dyksterhouse thinks someone is goin' to buy it all. We've got $20 on this bet. Whose goin' to win?"

By 5 p.m., four hours after the slated beginning of the auction, Blu Dot Farm was sold to seven different people with Paul Olsen of Charlevoix buying the major portion.

Olsen purchased the central parcels of the race horse breeding and training farm, including the home, workshops, barns and track – about 75 acres. The total bidding price was more than $200,000. In addition Olsen bid for and acquired another 26 acres on the east and south sides of the farm.

The remaining portions of the farm were sold in parcels, by the acre, to six other individuals.

The farm had been divided into twelve parcels for the sale, ranging 9.5 acres to 26.4 acres. The parcels at the western and eastern borders of the farm were sold by the acre, while the bidding for the central portions, containing buildings and the race track was as a whole.

The parcel which brought the lowest per acre bid, at the northeast corner of the farm, sold for $530 an acre, to an unidentified buyer

The largest per acre bid for a parcel was $1860, for a parcel on the eastern edge of the farm, adjacent to See Road. That was Olsen's first purchase.

Parcels at the western edge of Blu Dot Farm sold for $870 an acre, and the four other parcels' per acre price ranged from $720 to $1100.

When the bidding turned to the home, barns and shop, on the 13.3 central parcel, the air grew tense.

The bidding was initiated by a distinguished looking man, standing quietly on the fringes of the crowd. He was later identified as Richard Georgi Sr., an official with the United Nations in Brussels, Belgium.

Olsen joined in and the bidding began climbing from $120,000.

Brannan, aided by his brother Sam, kept the bidding jumping between the two., When it reached $130,000 it seemed to be stuck.

Twice Olsen and Georgi conferrred and then the bidding resumed. The audience turned to watch the principals and Brannan mixed up the pace, speeding up, slowing down. Bidding jumped furiously several thousand dollars and then paused. Finally Georgi lowered his hand and walked to the refreshment table for a cup of coffee.

Olsen's final bid of $166,000 stood.

The crowd thinned out as the auctioneer turned his attention to the parcels adjoining the house and barns, which Olsen also purchased.

When the last parcel had been auctioned, Brannan called for any bids to top the accumulated total of $322,219. Had Olsen or anyone else bid higher they would have in Brannan's words, "Bucked everyone else out of the saddle" – taken the whole farm.

But no one bid

At 5 p.m., Jim Brannan's gavel fell for the final time on Blu Dot Farm.

Olsen indicated that he intended to use most of his new land for his personal home. He does not plan to use the barns for horses, he said. He also told the COURIER he was not sure whether or not he would sell some acreage later.

Mr. and Mrs. Dyksterhouse said they were pleased with the results of the auction, despite it becoming divided.

Looking out over the heads of onlookers, Mr. Dyksterhouse mused, "This farm did what we wanted. We raised our children here and loved it."

Should I or shouldn't I?

Going over the plans.

Governor relieves tension

Perhaps, the best news to filter out of the state capitol this year came from Gov. William Milliken's office Tuesday.

Reportedly, the Bay Mills and Sault Ste. Marie bands of Chippewa Indians tentatively agreed to suspend all commercial fishing operations in Lake Michigan south of Good Hart, which is approximately halfway between Petoskey and the Straits of Mackinac.

The Indians made the concession during a closed door meeting with Milliken and representatives of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and sport fishermen. It has not yet been ratified.

Tension between Indian and sport fishermen has been mounting in the Charlevoix area all summer. Indians have been using gill nets to catch whitefish and, sport fishermen say, lake trout. Sport fishermen say Indian gill netting will deplete the newly established lake trout fishery in northern Lake Michigan. Indians claim they are limiting their catches to whitefish. There have been confrontations, but the clashes have been verbal and not physical.

Fearing "possible violence" this fall, Milliken called the involved parties together last week in an effort to squelch the unrest. It was at this meeting the Indians "reluctantly" said they would not fish south of Good Hart.

Hopefully, this will make for a calmer autumn. The issue of whether or not Indians should be able to use gill nets to catch an unlimited number of fish is a complicated one and is far from solved.

We are thankful the governor has decided to get involved. Without his involvement, one can only speculate if the Indians would have offered to cease fishing operations in the Charlevoix area. Some people say it's a political maneuver because of this being an election year. Maybe so. But this issue is critical enough to warrant the governor's attention. And we are glad he is bringing both sides together to work out a temporary solution until the federal court can resolve it.

Quints a $5 million asset

Social psychologists are still trying to explain the madness that swept the world in the spring of 1934 when word filtered out from the wilds of northern Ontario that five baby girls had been born at one time to Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne in their log cabin home.

Although I was only a kid at the time, I remember how my mother devoured every word written about the Dionne quintuplets. She even kept a scrapbook of press clippings on the five little girls.

During the middle and late 1930's, Callender Ont., a tiny village just north of North Bay, became one of the world's busiest tourist meccas as thousands upon thousands of people from around the world made the long trip over wretched roads to Callender to see the quints.

The doctor who delivered the little girls, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, became an international celebrity, assuming the months of the world's foremost expert on child care in the days before Dr. Benjamin Spock. When Dr. Dafoe offered child-rearing advice in the press, his suggestions were immediately implemented in the Clock household.

I grew up thinking that Dr. Dafoe was our family physician.

Pierre Berton, in his forthcoming book, "The Dionne Years," says of the quints:

"They were an authentic modern miracle: five physically perfect, identical babies, all developed from a single egg. They gave those frightened millions in the grip of the Great Depression something to believe in again, a few months of escape from grim reality and the hope of a happy ending. The public, almost literally, suffocated them with love."

Berton claims that the furor surrounding the quints was one of the earliest manifestations of the hyperbole or "hype" syndrome, a massive outpouring of publicity carefully calculated to generate massive inpouring of public response. A more recent example of the pehnomena is the meteoric rise in the popularity of John Travolta.

But there were no publicity men in grey flannel suits on hand the morning the quints were born. In fact for several days, Papa Dionne is reported to have looked on his new additions as simply more mouths to feed. But it soon became evident from the reaction of the public that the quintuplets could be turned into an adventure in making money.

"At the peak of their unparalleled celebrity – as valuable a resource as good, nickel, pulpwood or hydro power -- these five little girls represented a $5 million asset to the province of Ontario. Along with Mickey Mouse and Charlie Chaplin, they were among the most popular of international celebrities," Berton writes.

The arrival of the quintuplets not only improved the fortunes of the Dionne family, but turned out to be a boon to the entire Callender-North Bay area. Although both towns are located on the shores of beautiful Lake Nipissing, tourism was practically unheard of before the quints arrived.

Thelma Harcourt, who operates a cabin complex on the lake, recalls that anyone with a garage to spare suddenly found himself in the tourist business after the quints arrived.

"You'd put in a bed, a wash bowl and pitcher. Then you'd put up a sign advertising 'overnight accommodations,' " Mrs. Harcourt told the Clocks when we stayed at her resort one night in August.

Since then, tourism has become a major factor in the economies of both North Bay and Callender, which are connected by a long string of posh motels, restaurants and fast-food establishments.

Mrs. Harcourt worked in a grocery store in North Bay when the quints were born and Mr. Dafoe was one of her best customers.

"The morning after the girls were born, Dr. Dafoe stopped at the store and I asked him if it were true about the quints at Callender," Mrs. Harcourt recalls.

"I'm not going to say it's true, and I'm not going to say it isn't true," Mrs. Harcourt quoted Dr. Dafoe as answering. He explained that too much publicity would not be good for his little charges.

Although the three surviving quints are now 44 years old and live in far-off Montreal, the mystic surrounding them still lingers around the shores of Lake Nipissing.

The Dionne's old log house has been moved down to the highway and visitors still pay a fee to see the place where they were born.

How gals should dress

Victor Costa, the fashion designer for Suzy Perette, has invited me to "a special press showing of his daytime, casual and cocktail clothes."

The invitation adds that a continental breakfast will be served in Hudson's Horseless Carriage Room.

What do you bet you can't get oatmeal with brown sugar at a continental breakfast?

It beats me how I got asked to such an affair. I don't know Suzy Perette and Victor Costa from Lum 'n Abner. I am bewildered by the idea of daytime, casual and cocktail clothes. What are the differences? It seems 1 outfit should cover all occasions. If you can't be casual in the daytime, when else? And it's just good sense to wear casual clothes while getting swacked on cocktails. You don't want to dribble all over your Sunday snit, do you?

What's probably happened is that Suzy and Victor somehow heard I am the world's foremost girl watcher. They want to know what I like most to watch -- micro, mini, midi or maxi? They want to observe my reactions as their lovely models parade past my bulging eyeballs. Saliva tests will be administered at regular intervals.

I'll be happy to lend my expertise to such a humanitarian project. Generally speaking, women are lovely, liberated or enslaved. But many of them appear in public looking as if they snuck out on the porch to get the morning paper and the door locked behind them. Or as if all their "sanforized" labels were phony. Or as if they lost an election bet and were forced to wear their infant daughters' clothes for a year.

My advice to Victor and Suzy will be simple:

Young gals with smashing legs should wear minis, the micro the better. The same thing goes for old gals who look young. But the majority of women over 30 should face facts, as flabby or scrawny or wrinkled or blue as those facts may be. Their skirts should reach their knees and should be flared enough so as to cover all situations adequately when they sit down. When Mary Margaret Mead sits down to talk to Johnny Carson, I wonder how she can be so smart about some things, and so dumb about others.

The midi and maxi are atrocious. Any woman who has that much to hide might better just stay home.

Those knee-high boots make me think the women's lib has won, a matriarchal government has been installed, and those boots are made for stomping men.

The decolletage should be mentioned, seeing as it borders on the part of the female anatomy with which America is most fascinated. The key word is "border". The border should always be north, and not too far east and west, of the main points of interest. Never south. Topless waitresses turn me off and prompt me to shield my soup with my hands.

And I'm told that real swinging gals are now going braless. They're the ones who shouldn't. Think about it.

That's it, except to Xerox my usual request that the Almighty topple stacks of canned food down upon all women who wear curlers to the supermarket.

Onward and Upward, Suzy and Victor.

Ali-Spinks fight a dud

Potpourri:

Ali-Spinks fight - A dud. Almost as boring as watching the Detroit Lions play - not quite, though.

Ali, for his part, looked great. He took this fight seriously. The expression on his face showed it. There was no clowning. It was all business.

And he fought wisely, too. Never letting Spinks sustain an attack. His physical condition had a lot to do with that. Ali was in shape.

Spinks was a disappointment. I thought he would put up a better fight. I didn't think he could beat Ali, but I thought he would at least give him a workout. He paid for his inexperience.

The pre-fight buildup proved to be the best part of the extravaganza, especially the mob scene and the noise when Ali and Spinks entered the arena. It was unbelievenble. Too bad the fight wasn't.

Ali - Spinks III? I hope not.

Intercepted letter - Recently, Mayor Sam Supernaw received a letter from a Maryland resident. The letter was quite interesting. It read:

"Recently my wife and I spent some delightful days in your lovely city. My compliments go to you and the citizens of Charlevoix for the friendliness shown visitors and the cleanliness of the city.

While the lift bridge in the heart of town is a distinct benefit for those engaged in water sports it has obvious damaging effects when the bridge is open. I found the long ques of cars a real damaging impact on the environment of the downtown. The many cars standing and idling, their engines pollutes the air unnecessarily, wastes hundreds of gallons of costly gas. If the bridge is open 12 minutes out of the hour, a car idling for that period consumes about one tenth of one gallon of gas.

At many railroad crossings in Europe motorists are instructued to turn off the engine if the stop is longer than 2 minutes. Wouldn't it be nice if that were the case in Charlevoix.

I would like to respectfully suggest to you that signs be posted, approximately spaced and in sufficient numbers to cover the full length of the ques instructing motorists to turn off engines. A message such as the following should be sufficient: Open Bridge? Turn Off Engine When Stop is Over 2 Minutes.

A city ordinance to help enforce this would be most helpful. I think the business community would be supportive of this action and the citizens should be thankful for the reduced pollution."

Good idea. The man's comments as to the bridge, traffic tie-up and sign placement are being considered, City Manager Norm Gaffney said.

Health department not telling truth, woman claims

Editor:

Recently the Michigan Department of Public Health issued a press release publicizing the fact that their monitoring system had found no radioactivity in the vicinity of Michigan's nuclear plants. This message is little more than propaganda for the utilities and the nuclear industry. It does not surprise us that the Michigan Department of Public Health (MDPH) has measured no radioactivity because they haven't been able to measure any radiation even when large accidental releases at nuclear plant sites were known to have occurred.

For example, Consumers Power Company was unable to make the radioactive waste-holding tank work when the Palisades Plant was started up in 1972. They released these wastes directly to the environment. Neither the Michigan Department of Public Health nor the Nuclear Regulatory Commission knew this or measured it. Only Consumers Power Company knew it, and they wouldn't tell. A concerned technical man finally resigned from his position at the utility and released the internal memos that revealed this story.

Even when these acts became known, the Michigan Department of Public Health did nothing to penalize the utility.

Again, in August of 1973, Consumers Power Company released high levels of radioactive iodine, in excess of their license limits, to the air, continuously for nine days. When a reporter interviewed Mr. Van Farowe, who is in charge of radiological "protection" at Michigan's Department of Public Health, about these releases, Van Farowe explained that two of the monitoring devices at Palisades were out of order during that period, and two of them indicated nothing unusual.

We must ask what, indeed, is the Department of Public Health capable of measuring"

This interview between the reporter and Van Farowe is on tape and is a part of the testimony presented before Legislator David Bonior (now Congressman Bonior) during hearings he held on the need for a nuclear power moratorium in Michigan.

The Michigan Department of Public Health may not be able to find any radioactivity, but a Water Resources Commission study in 1971 stated that concentrations of radioactivity in the aquatic life near the Big Rock nuclear plant at Charlevoix were as high as those measured during the peak of atmospheric bomb testing. Those levels were high enough to cause both the United States and Russia to agree to the nuclear atmospheric test ban treating 1963.

Radiation reduces the capacity of the body's natural immune systems to combat disease – but the Department of Public Health doesn't tell the people about that.

Emergency evacuation procedures that the public knew about in the vicinity of nuclear plants would save thousands of lives in the event of a nuclear accident. Only seven states have emergency plans that are approved by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. Michigan is not among them, even though four nuclear plants are operating in the State. This is another public health responsibility that is not being met.

Once its useful life is over, every reactor will remain too "hot" with radioactivity to dismantle for 140 years. During that time, though it is no longer productive and will be off the tax rolls, the radioactive plant will continue to be a public health hazard and a possible target for sabotage and will require monitoring & surveillance. Yet, the public health department does not tell the public about this.

It is time that the people of Michigan realized that the same public health officials who told that PBB contamination was nothing to be concerned about, even while families became sick and animals died, are now telling them that the radioactivity released routinely and accidentally from nuclear plants isn't really there at all – because they haven't been able to measure it.

The last Kiss concert

I like music. When I was nine years old I often slept with a pillow over my head while my father's barbershop quartet attempted to make chords ring into the wee hours. I still loved my father.

It was for music that I sang the part of Solveig in a seventh grade production of "Peer Gynt." I sang the lullaby with one arm actually around Jim Tunney's shoulder. When the line "Close to my breast I'll hold my darling boy" came up and all the boys snickered, I hardly even flinched. It was for music that I did this.

Only if you have endured the back row of a riser for as many years as I, could you appreciate the feeling coined as "riser rigor mortis." One thinks of these things after three hours of practice on Verdi's "Requiem." And it was for music that I developed the highest soprano in the college choir. As our director intimated to my father, "she'll never have a strong voice (her chest isn't big enough) but she has such a clear descant." It was my love of music that kept me from beating upon the person of Sister Paraclita, O.P., director, with her very own baton.

Subsequently there were attempts made at mastering the ukelele, the banjo and the guitar. It was certainly for music that I persisted long after realizing that the talent just wasn't going to be there.

For the love of music, I became a peddler of my lyrics for unimpressed composers, subscribed to "Songwriter Magazine" and entered national contests which didn't even have the decency to send rejection slips. And for what other reason would I ride a bike two miles to Castle Farms and sit under a yellow slicker to hear Seals and Croft in the rain? I like music.

It is no surprise, then, that at least one of the children should inherit some of these genes. No prodigy on the piano bore we. No nightengale with perfect pitch. What then? A pantomime rock star with back-up group. What group? Kiss.

Like Kiss bubble gum cards, the idea took hold. We have rocked around the clock this summer. Our son and his nine-year old friends have rocked, I should say, and the rest of us have held onto the house. Picture if you will the scene after three Kiss and two Grease concerts already staged, and daily practices in the back room.

"This will be your last Kiss concert, Scott...yes, you may use the living room..yes, you may use the stereo and the ladder...no, you may not spit ketchup even if you're very careful and put newspapers down."

The neighbors have been conned into being the audience. Paul Stanley in the person of Scott is sitting on the top rung of the ladder, tennis racquet (guitar) in hand with replacement near-by. He always breaks one during the performance, Mom. Not my tennis racquet Scott. Make up is sculptured black paper stuck on faces with rolled masking tape.

Peter Criss is seated at drums – yellow plastic horseshoe stakes in hand. Gene Simmons and Ace Frehley are in their mother's high heeled boots. Peter Criss' whisker is coming off. Time out "Christine Sixteen" goes without a hitch; strong hook, not many lyrics. Applause

It's a hot August night. With "Shock Me", Ace Frehley jumps up on my desk nearly capsizing a statue of The Thinker. I'm thinking, "Be careful Ace." Gene Simmons sticks out his tongue and unzippers his warm-up jacket. A member of the audience who knows better asks that the stereo be turned up as he's just now getting into it.

Paul Stanley jogs into the playroom to borrow an ironing board so he can play keyboard in the final number. The audience is in a frenzy. Two baby sisters are crawling into the set at their own risk. The crescendo: Ace turns the living room lamp on and off several times for lighting effect. Overwhelming screams from the seven-year-old girls. Unbridled applause from the rest. Closing night.

I like music. I'm afraid our son does too. History repeats itself in our progeny.

Sales seminar held here

'International Conference and Sales Seminar' was concluded recently with a cocktail party at the Midwest Tower Suite located at the Weathervane Terrace.

Although, Teruo Oouchi had visited Charlevoix prior to the meeting, this was the first visit for John Rooney of Melbourne, Australia and John Bienfait of Holland

Bienfait's borther, Daan, however, was a recent guest of Midwest and Geoff Bosanquet, John Rooney's associate located in Sidney, Australia also visited Midwest late last year

After a full day of rest and sightseeing in the local area, Midwest arranged an international welcoming dinner at the Grey Gables. Dave and Gale Phillips of the Grey Gables prepared and served a variety of international selections on the porch of their 100 year old restaurant

The business meeting included international inventory and distribution procedures related to the new 'International Regional Distribution Centers' recently established in Antwerp, Tokyo, and Melbourne.

Bienfait, Oouchi, and Rooney, are Midwest International sales agents and will be responsible for sales distribution of the new Midwest metric product line in those countries

Association formed

The Captain's Corner Retail Merchants Association was formed last week.

The purpose of the association is to promote the shopping center through aggressive advertising, seasonal promotions and various activities of community interest, Jack Urben, association president explained.

Besides Urben other officers elected to one year terms were: Don Miller, vice-president; Phil Kluczynski, treasurer; Ray Gilmore, secretary.

Urben said the association will meet monthly. Committees have been formed to handle special projects, he said.

Urben said the association would like to receive input from the community.

"We'll welcome response, suggestions and recommendations," he said. "This shopping center is for the people of the community and we would like to hear from them."

All input can be directed to Urben, who will forward the information to other members of the association.

Tickets selling

Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Manager Jacqui Merta says she is "pleased" with ticket sales thus far for the four color cruise tours which start Saturday, Sept. 30.

The two hour cruises aboard the motorship Beaver Islander will start at 1 p.m. The color cruise will wend its way along the shoreline of Lake Charlevoix for a view of Michigan's autumn hues.

Besides Sept. 30, cruises will also be on Oct. 7, 8 and 14.

Over 100 tickets have already been sold for the Oct. 7 cruise Mrs. Merta said. The boat can accomodate about 250 people. The cruises will be held rain or shine. The boat does have a protected cover.

Tickets can be purchased at the Chamber from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday.

Construction planned

The Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation has released an updated schedule for future highway construction programs.

One of the highways the state is going to work on is US-131 in Charlevoix County. The state plans to reconstruct 3.3 miles from M-75 to the north county line.

The projected completion date is mid-1983.

Concert season starts Oct. 9

The Northern Michigan Community Concert Association is processing membership cards for the 1978-79 season, and they will be mailed out shortly.

Concerts will be held, as usual, in the Petoskey Middle School Auditorium, and the schedule is as follows:

SCOTLAND ON PARADE (Monday, Oct. 9 8:30 p.m.) a thrilling exhibition of popular and traditional folk songs and dances of the Highlands and Islands of Scotland, features a cast of vibrant young performers. Folk-singing guitarist Alistair MacDonald and TV and concert singing star Morag McKay head a cast of singers, pipers, fiddlers and dancers, together with a band.

RONNIE BROWN (Thursday, Feb 8 8:30 p.m.) with bachelor's and master's degrees from the New England Conservatory, has been touring and introducing his own distinctive brand of music-making to audiences who come to hear his Trio mingle Mozart with such moderns as Gershwin, Rogers and Hammerstein and Ellington. The program will include classics, pops and jazz.

Pianist VIRGINIA ESKIN (Sunday, April 1 8:30 p.m.) an authority on 19th century American music and major women composers of the U.S., has won critical acclaim for her performances and recordings throughout the United States and Europe. A treat is in store for all who hear this sensitive, talented pianist's Sunday afternoon concert.

The TAPIOLA CHILDREN'S CHOIR AND ORCHESTRA (Tuesday, May 1 8:30 p.m.) of Finland has won numerous contests and acclaim throught the world since their organization in 1963. They have toured Sweden, Norway, England, Japan, France, Poland the U.S.S.R. and taped a special UNICEF program with Danny Kaye.

Teacher feature

Mary Ann Chew

By PEG OHLE

"I love teaching. People are very lucky when they find the occupation that makes them happy."

This is how Mary Ann Chew describes her job.

Mrs. Chew teaches fourth grade at the Charlevoix Elementary School, which is also good.

"I've taught art, third grade, and summer school first through seventh grades, but fourth grade is the age I enjoy teaching the most," Mrs. Chew adds.

She didn't always plan on being a teacher, Mrs. Chew admits with a smile.

"I took two years of retailing and have an Associate degree in that field. I was even named the most promising student in my retail class," the teacher recalls.

"But with teaching the rewards are great. You can see the results, especially when a child has behavior or learning problems. You can see them blossom and have a rapport with them. Retailing could never provide that feeling."

Mrs. Chew's enthusiasm for teaching punctuates her conversation as she describes her class work.

"In fourth grade, the greater part of the day, two and a half hours, is spent in language arts," she explains. This includes reading, spelling, penmanship, creative writing, grammar, and reading.

"We also spend one hour and ten minutes a day on math, learning how to add, subtract, multiply, tell time. We even do some work with the metric system.

"The science program is the weakest aspect of fourth grade work. The children make leaf collections, learn about electricity, and study winter birds, simple machines, and the environment," the teacher goes on.

Last week a science project was much in evidence when this reporter visited Mrs. Chew's classroom. There was a large glass jar filled with spiders.

"At the start, the children said 'yuk', but they fed the spiders flies then became interested in their color, variety, and beauty," Mrs. Chew said

Social studies in fourth grade consists of units on forest regions, desert regions, farming, fishing, manufacturing, trading and political. Each unit is divided into sections covering part of the United States and one other continent or country. These include South American forests, African deserts, European fishing, Asian manufacturing and trading, and the politics of Hawaii.

In addition to these academic subjects, fourth grade children go to classes in art, gymnasium, and music, one hour a week for each class.

Enlarging upon the subject of reading, Mrs. Chew explains that the children work at their own level.

"The program is individualized," she says. The students can read any book in the library or order from the list of paperbacks. They write book reports and every two weeks I discuss the books and reports with each child. I correct any mistakes and talk about the summary. We keep track of the number of books read. Last year one of the students read 100 books."

While she agrees there are many good programs on television, Mrs. Chew believes that watching television can hinder a child's progress in reading and stifle his creativity.

"We got rid of our TV two years ago because our nine year old son wasn't reading as he should," the teacher admits.

"On the whole, we're delighted with his progress in reading since then. Michael is in my reading group this year, so I don't have to ask him in the evening what he did in reading that day. At first I was a little concerned about having him in my room, but he's like another student and realizes that I play two separate roles in his life."

Mrs. Chew believes it is important to encourage children to read:

"There are so many good books -- hundreds and thousands of them. I love to read myself. It has been such a pleasure in my life. I love to teach reading, and when my students leave my room, most of them have become skilled in reading."

This reporter was especially impressed with the fourth grade language arts curriculum, which is also an individualized step-by-step program.

Each student has his own set of cards on which his progress is recorded.

Punctuation is one phase: periods, commas, quotation marks, apostrophes. Then on to parts of a sentence: nouns, pronouns, verbs, prepositions, adjectives, adverbs. Use of the dictionary and other reference sources is another phase.

For books reviews, there is information on context, main ideas, sequence, author's purpose, and other areas.

The fourth grade child who masters this and the rest of the subject matter could write as well as, if not better than most adults.

The math program also progresses through steps, with the completion of each step by each student noted on records. Each step calls for two tests, one before the student undertakes the step, and one after he studies the step.

Mrs. Chew says she corrects each math paper immediately after it is completed so the student can see his errors and correct them. The paper is then filed in the student's own folder, which is emptied every four weeks so the student can take his papers home.

"It is important for parents to know how the child is progressing. Praise helps when he is doing well," Mrs. Chew tells parents.

Who is Mary Ann Chew, the teacher who is guiding a group of fourth graders through the school year? She has been teaching in Charlevoix for 11 years and before coming here taught five years in Flint and one year in Grand Blanc. She is the wife of Vincent Chew, principal of the Charlevoix Middle School. And she is a woman of many interests.

She is interested in learning to fly and has taken a pinch-hitter's course in landing a plane. Presently she is taking regular flying lessons from her husband but plans on further lessons from an instructor.

Her list of community and academic activities is a long one. She is assistant superintendent of the Congregational Church Sunday School; she was on the Waterfront Art Fair committee; last year she was chairperson of the Northern Michigan Reading Association. She is a board member at large of the Chip Counseling Center; she is a member of the American Association of University Women; she is a committee member of the Academically Talented Program, she was a presenter at the area-wide inservice session of Char-Em schools of a unit on creative writing; she was a committee member to write a program for creative writing for the Char-Em district with Ken Swan; she is a division leader for the hospital expansion program; she is curriculum chairman for Social Studies for all three Charlevoix schools; and she does other things, too.

Mr. and Mrs. Chew have built both the houses they have lived in in Charlevoix, but Mrs. Chew admits that her husband did "most of the carpentry", when asked if she wielded a hammer.

"How do you find time to do simple things like housework?" Mrs. Chew was asked.

"You have to be organized" was the reply.

Heart disease, the experts tell us, is not a single disease. To say that an individual has "heart disease" without a more specific definition of the nature of the condition is somewhat like saying that he is ill. Many diseases involve the heart and blood vessels while others exert a secondary effect on these organs. The identification of different diseases makes it possible for the physician to provide specific treatment for each and more effective control is the result.

ust was the busiest of the year for the voix County Depart- nt of Building Inspection. he department issued 91 mits for construction nting to $922,177.

nty of the permits were residences, which will 25,807. There were also rmits for residential ad- at the cost of $72,435; permits for residential delling, at a cost of $26,300; permits for residential ges, at a cost of $70,030; one permit for a porch, at a of $2,300.

n the commercial category, re were three permits for buildings, at a cost of ,800 and six permits for mmercial additions, at a t of $71,555.

Also, five permits were ued for residential outldings, at a cost of $14,150; d one permit for a comcial outbuilding, at a cost 0,000.

Twelve of the permits were mobile homes and mobile home additions. For these, nine were for placing new mobile homes and three were for additions to already-placed mobile homes, at a cost of $4,800.

So far this year, the Building Code Department has issued 451 permits, for construction amounting to $12,084,010. This includes 122 new homes and 124 additions to the remodeling of homes.

By township and city, the permits were issued as follows last month:

Boyne City, 13; City of Charlevoix, 13; Bay Township; nine; East Jordan, seven; Hayes Township, seven; Peaine Township, six; Wilson Township, six; Hudson Township, six; Marion Township, five; South Arm Township, five; Evangeline Township, four; Eveline Township, three; Norwood Township, three; Boyne Valley Township, one; Chandler Township one; Melrose Township, one, and St. James Township, one.

THREE NEW TEACHER AIDES have been added to the elementary school staff this year. They are, left to right, Kay Campbell, Sam Sharp, and Chris Bentley

THERE ARE THREE NEW teachers in the Charlevoix school system this fall. They are, left to right, Mrs. rene Cohen, Mary Gengle, and Tori Alger. Mrs. Cohen is a special education teacher in the elementary school, Miss Gengle is a special education teacher in the high school, and Miss Alger teaches 7th grade math.

Motorists should be careful around children

School bells are ringing gain. Although the summer cation may have seemed all o short to the children, it was ng enough that they can rget the daily dangers of oing to and from school. otorists, too, may forget the eed to watch for children raveling to school.

But now it's time for otorists to get back in the abit of slowing down in chool zones and watching for hildren traveling between chool and home.

The Insurance Information nstitute points out that tudies show 1,380 American chool children under age 14 ere killed in pedestrian ccidents in 1976. The same ational Safety Council study hows that another 36,000 oung school children were njured. So it is important for rivers to take the responsibility to follow the traffic laws designed to protect the children.

Drivers must also remember that school buses will be on the road once again. Buses are often a source of confusion to motorists. Many are not sure when to stop for the buses.

The Institute points out that buses' red flashing lights or large red "stop" sign always signal that motorists are required to stop. Drivers must stop whether they are approaching the bus from the front or the rear.

The bus driver uses the lights and stop sign when the children are getting on or off the bus. Law requires that motorists stop for the bus so that the children can make it safely across the road.

–Keep in mind that some crosswalks may be visible to children, but too faded to see from within a car. Watch for and obey crosswalk signs where a crossing guard may not be on duty.

Remember, the children are assuming the motorists will obey that law so they run across the road as a matter of habit. The motorist who disregards the signal to stop is endangering a child's life.

The Institute also recommends these safety tips for motorists to follow throughout the year:

–Stay alert while driving, not only in school zones, but throughout the city.

–Don't assume children have seen your vehicle – even though they may be looking in your direction.

–Watch for kids behind parked cars. Young children are small so they often cannot be seen behind cars and other obstacles blocking the view.

–When passing children on bicycles, give them plenty of room; don't crowd them into the curb.

Circuit Court cost increase

Charlevoix County's share of the cost of running the Circuit Court will increase next year.

At the present time, the 33rd Circuit consists of Charlevoix, Emmet and Mackinaw counties. However, as of January 1, 1979, Mackinaw County will join an Upper Peninsula circuit, leaving Charlevoix and Emmet to operate the 33rd.

This means that these two counties will have to absorb the operational costs formerly paid by Mackinaw County.

Speaking before Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week, Circuit Judge Martin Breighner suggested that this be divided between Charlevoix and Emmet counties on the basis of number of cases filed in each county. This would leave Charlevoix County with 44 percent of the cost and Emmet County with 58 percent. In dollars, this would amount to $4,620 for Charlevoix County.

In addition, Judge Breighner asked that Charlevoix County assume its own share of operating the court on the same basis, with 1979 salaries paid at the same rate as 1978. However, Judge Breighner said he hoped his employees would be given the benefit of any cost of living increases afforded other county employees.

Judge Breighner told the board of commissioners that the change in the Circuit Court set-up was made by the state legislature upon the recommendation of the Supreme Court. He said that he did not ask for it but supported the change because of the large caseload the three-county circuit presented.

"I am handling 35 to 50 percent more cases than most circuit judges in the state," he added.

The increased costs of operating the 33rd Circuit Court and the manner in which they are to be divided did not set well with the commissioners. A resolution approving Judge Breighner's suggested plan passed by the narrow margin of eight to six, with commissioner Dun Meggison absent.

The "nay" votes were cast by members of the Ways and Means Committee, Lee Moerland, Oral Sutliff, and Keith Annear; Ira Davis; Ralph Harmon; and commission Chairman Clyde Cunningham.

Further re-structuring of the 33rd Circuit is scheduled for January 1, 1981, when, by act of the legislature, Cheboygan County becomes part of the circuit, with two judges to handle the cases.

Commissioner Ralph Richardson pointed out to the other commissioners last week that this could double the cost of operating the circuit.

CHARLEVOIX VOLUNTEER Fire Department President John Martin and Fire Chief John Curtis presented the Charlevoix Area Hospital a check for $500 on behalf of the volunteer organization. Accepting the check, Richard Krueger, hospital administrator, stated that the gift of the volunteer organization to the hospital was symbolic of the volunteer fire department's continuing concern for the hospital and community

Hospital fund drive near goal - $650,000

Charlevoix Lions Club pledged $3,500 to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Drive, to be given over the next three years, president of the Lions Club, John Lignell announced Thursday.

This and other recent donations has brought the fund drive's balance to $650,000 as of press time.

"The Lions' pledge is a generous and significant contribution to our hospital," General Chairman Glenn Kenney said in thanking the organization.

Most large donations to the hospital campaign are in the form of pledges, covering three to five years, organizers explained.

"Pledges allow a donor to budget and plan for their own tax situations," Campaign Audit Committee Chairman Jim McGarry said.

Organizers said they encourage donors to consider pledges when they think about their contribution.

They gave as an example an individual who might want to give generously but cannot afford to write one large check.

"A pledge of $2,000 over five years would mean donating $400 a year, less than $35 a month, not even 2 cents a day," Kenney pointed out.

"A small price to pay for good health care," he said.

The atmosphere at campaign headquarters, as the deadline of Sept. 29 looms days away is mixed.

"The goal, $750,000 is within sight," one worker commented, "but we need people to make pledges now if we're going to meet the deadline."

Some of Charlevoix's industries have made pledges, organizers said, including Huffords, Site Planning Development Inc., Medusa, and the banks; but many major employers have yet to make their committment known.

"If our businesses and citizens who have yet to pledge would, we'd easily surpass our goal," Pat Hawley, honorary co-chairman said.

Charlevoix Area Hospital Administrator Richard Krueger, in accepting the Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department's check for $500 said, "It's the generosity and concern of people, like this group which will help insure the future of this hospital."

People who give to the campaign are able to "memorialize" their donations in many ways.

Plaques with donors names will be hung by specific rooms or areas for which donors may earmark their gifts.

For example, a two-be d- patient room can b "memorialized" with a $6,00 donation, a nursing office f $5,000, a dark room in the X ray department for $2,500 an so on.

In addition, those who woul like recognition for thei donations to the hospital, wi see their names on a Four der's Memorial Plaque (fo donations of $10,000 or more) a Cornerstone Memorial (gift of $2,500 to $10,000) an Benefactors Memorial (gift of $500 to $2,500).

A "Signature Tile Wall" also planned as part of the ne construction. People who hav given $360 or more to th hospital can have their per sonal signatures baked onto ceramic tile which will be par of the "Signature Tile Wall," permanent part of th hospital.

DR. LARRY GRATE MEMORIA

CHARLEVOIX LIONS' CLUB President John Lignell gave a pledge card for $3,500 to E. D. "Pat" Hawley, honorary co-chairman of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Drive, for the hospital's expansion and renovation project last Thursday. Standing in front of the Coronary Care Unit for which the community raised over $200,000 several years ago, Hawley and Lignell noted that continued community support is vital to the hospital.

Great Lakes shipping has grown

Great Lakes vessel

What can travel over 2,000 miles without going uphill? Takes a century to grow 700 feet? And can carry nearly 60,000 tons? If you guessed bulk cargo carrier, you know your Great Lakes navigation history pretty well.

The evolution of Great Lakes cargo vessels from modest wooden ships to awesome 1000 foot carriers is a fascinating story which dates back exactly 300 years. When in 1878 the French constructed a 10 ton vessel at Fort Frontenac which dwarfed the other craft then plying the Great Lakes, the era of bigger ships had begun. A hundred years later the enterprising fur trader, Alexander Henry, built a 40 ton sloop near the "Soo" in eastern Lake Superior. During these early days, wooden ships of less than 100 feet handled the transportation needs of the time quite nicely.

In the first half of the 19th century, however, vast deposits of copper and iron were discovered in the Lake Superior region. To move these mountains of newly found wealth, larger ships were required. Even before the Soo Locks opened in 1855, vessels exceeding 100 feet in length were literally rolled around the portage at the Soo. This required weeks of effort by oxen, horses and manpower. The 433 ton side-wheeler Sam Ward was brought to Lake Superior this way in 1853.

After the Soo Locks opened and grain and ore could flow directly to lower lakes markets, vessel designers developed a new type of ship specifically built for the bulk freight trade. These ships - the first was the steamer R.J. Hackett launched in 1869 - had engines and stack to the rear with the pilot house forward and long holds in between. They were the prototype of today's giant carriers. In the last decades of the 1800's, many such vessels were built in lake shipyards, at Cleveland, Detroit and Bay City. By the turn of the century, these ships stretched over the 300 foot mark. Generally these steam powered vessels towed one or more barges loaded with ore, grain or coal.

In the late 1800's, a unique ship began to appear on the Great Lakes - the whaleback or pigboat. Designed by Alexander McDougall, these blunt nosed, cigar-shaped ships were built exclusively in Duluth-Superior area shipyards. Between 1888 and 1897, 43 of these unusual vessels were built, ranging from 178 feet to 366 feet. The Franklin Rockefeller, built for the ore trade as were most of the whalebacks, was launched in 1896 and sailed the Great Lakes under three names until 1967. Today known as the S.S. Meteor, it rests as a delightful marine museum in Superior, Wis., just a mile from her original berth.

Perhaps a more famous whaleback was the Christopher Columbus which was built for the 1893 Chicago World's Fair. A grand and ornate vessel furnished with Persian rugs, Italian marble, crystal chandeliers and even Tiffany lamps, the Columbus carried 7,000 people on her trial run and many more thousands during her 40 years of passenger service, mainly between Chicago and Milwaukee. Though interesting in design the whalebacks lost the survival race to larger and more efficient carriers.

By 1900 ships in the 500 foot range began appearing. In 1907 the Joseph S. Young reached to 579 feet. Between the turn of the century and World War II, ship length increased only slightly, 600 feet being the standard length for several decades. With the modernization of the Soo Locks after the war, vessels over 700 feet long were built. Launched in 1952, the John G. Munson was 768 feet in length. Ships slowly grew in length, but it took another twenty years to break the 1000 foot mark.

In 1972, the Stewart S. Cort, a 1000 foot long vessel with 105 foot beam, was launched. More 1000 footers followed: the Presque Isle in 1973, the James Mesabi Miner in 1977 and the Lewis Wilson Foy and George A. Stenson in 1978. By the early 1980's such leviathians may be a common sight on the Great Lakes. However, small ships still carry the bulk of Great Lakes and the world's commerce. In 1970, of the 19,500 ships in the world fleet, 92 percent were under 700 feet and only 81 ships were 1000 feet or over in length. Most of today's ocean "superships" are crude oil carriers which do not ply the Great Lakes.

This rather dramatic increase in length has had a predictable effect upon the number of ships in the Great Lakes fleet. As ships grow larger, fewer of them are needed. The new breed of 1000 foot ships can carry about double the load of the 1950's era 700 footers. Beam is an important consideration also. The new 1000 foot ships on the lakes are being constructed with 105 foot beams - the current maximum size which can pass through the 110 foot wide Poe Lock at the Soo. That lock will permit some additional increase in length (up to 1100 feet) but does effectively freeze Great Lakes vessel size for the near future.

Beam is an even more critical consideration for the "salties" which travel as far as 2,300 miles from the Atlantic to the Upper Lakes. The Welland Canal - the link between Lakes Ontario and Erie - limits ships to 75 foot beams. Sixty-seven of the world's bulk carriers would be able to use this canal and transit to the Upper Lakes.

The depth of the navigation system is the most severe limitation to commercial ship size. The Soo Locks and the connecting channels of the upper lakes have a controlling draft depth of 25.5 feet, (27 feet channel depth), while some segments of the St. Lawrence Seaway have a maximum draft depth of 26 feet. Only 27 percent of the world's carriers have drafts (when fully loaded) of under 26 feet. In 1970, over 60 percent of the ocean vessels using the Seaway had to travel with less than full cargo capacity. In that year alone nearly one-half million tons of cargo were forfeited due to draft limitations.

What are the ships of tomorrow? How will the system handle them? These are tough questions. According to marine designers, technology will permit construction of ships with 150 foot beams to travel the Great Lakes. Despite this increase in size, maneuverability can be excellent due to the development of multi-screw and multi-engine arrangements. Existing ships could also increase their capacities tremendously by being able to ride deeper in the water. The seven currently operated 1000 footers could sail at 32 feet of draft instead of the maximum 25.5 foot draft depths for the Upper Lakes.

But any of these potential increases in capacity will mean major changes in the entire system. Dredging costs to accommodate ships with 32 foot drafts would be enormous. Also, many harbors on the Great Lakes are upriver and larger ships would encounter bridges and power lines designed for an earlier breed of ship. Many under-harbor pipelines were laid with 27 foot maximum harbor depths in mind, rather than 32 or 34 foot depths. Docking sites and turning basins would also have to be modified. So would the locks and connecting channels. The job market would also be affected. Costs for modifying and maintaining the system to accommodate larger, wider and deeper ships on the Great Lakes will no doubt be in the billions of dollars.

Many questions regarding increases in vessel size need to be answered before 1200 foot x 130 foot ships with deeper drafts than present are calling at Great Lakes ports. The Army Corps of Engineers (Detroit District) is beginning to tackle these questions in a major study of the Great Lakes connecting channels and harbors. A revised plan of study for the project has been developed and is being evaluated by citizens in the Great Lakes. Public workshops at 10 port cities are being held during August and September.

Ships have come a long way from the more primitive craft that sailed the lakes a century ago. Ships are safer and more efficient today. The question remains: should Great Lakes vessels continue to increase their size or should they live within the present limitations of the system? Can shipping capacity be increased in other ways than enlarging ship sizes? With considerable help from "fourth coast" citizens, the Corps of Engineers' study will bring that decision to a head within the next few years.

Child abuse problem to be discussed

"The Child Abuse Problem" will be the topic of two community forums in East Jordan at 7 p.m. on Sept. 28 and Oct. 5 in the high school auditorium.

The forums are sponsored by East Jordan Community Education and the Char-Em Multi-Disciplinary Team for the prevention of child abuse.

The forums are free and everyone is welcome to attend. Please register in advance by calling 536-3241.

Corps to continue demonstration projects

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has agreed to continue two demonstration projects in the St. Mary's River this winter, Congressman Philip E. Ruppe, R-Houghton, announced.

Ruppe said the corps would again install temporary ice anchoring structures in the Sault Ste. Marie harbor to prevent dock damage caused by shifting ice. Also the corps plans to add rip-rap along the shoreline areas to minimize erosion.

In July, the corps indicated that they might not be able to continue the demonstration projects this winter season.

Ruppe quickly asked the corps officials to reconsider their position on the St. Mary's projects in a letter sent to the Detroit District headquarters.

The corps agreed to take another look and now says that they will make every effort to accomplish at least a limited demonstration on the St. Mary's.

"I consider the proposed demonstration projects most critical to public acceptance of the winter navigation program," Ruppe said in his letter. "The long-suffering residents of the Soo area must not be abandoned-especially if Congress finds upper lakes winter navigation acceptable as an operational program."

The five-year demonstration program of extending the navigation season into the winter months enters its final year this season.

The question of whether or not the program will become operational in 1979 will be decided by Congress this fall when the Public Works bill is considered.

Estate planning seminar

Laws and principles governing estate planning have been changing rapidly in the last two years. In an effort to clarify the new laws and help individuals plan for their futures, Munson Medical Center's Development Council will conduct its 10th Estate Planning Seminar each Wednesday evening beginning Oct. 4 through Nov. 1.

An in depth discussion of wills, trusts, insurance, stocks, taxes and the legal aspects of estate planning will be led by local attorneys, certified public accountants, stock brokers, insurance men and bank officers. The seminar is presented in the interest of both men and women and old and young people who wish to become more knowledgeable concerning such matters as probate and joint ownership and tax-saving principles.

DIVERSIFIED COMPUTER SERVICES INC

Diversified Computer Services, Inc. (DCS) of Petoskey, is the area's only major service-oriented corporation offering the following services:

*Management Consulting Services
*Automated Data Processing Services

The staff of DCS is experienced and qualified to fulfill the two divisional services to management in the following areas:

*Financial Analysis and Planning *Financial and Management Information Reporting *Manufacturing *Marketing *Organization Management and Development *Personnel Management and Development *Systems Planning *Word Processing

MANAGEMENT CONSULTING SERVICES

Management consulting is a valuable resource to businesses in today's competitive business world. More than three-fourths of the Nation's large and small businesses have utilized the services of management consultants.

The DCS consulting staff, through the means of a feasibility study, can determine whether or not it is economical and reasonable to install a business computer system (or any other new system or procedure).

A computer, when properly selected, installed, programmed and operated, can lead to smoother operations and higher profits. But in all too many cases, computers are poorly chosen, misused and misunderstood, so they become liabilities rather than assets.

The best way to guard against this type of situation is through outside independent advice in the proper selection and installation of an appropriate business computer system.

AUTOMATED DATA PROCESSING SERVICES

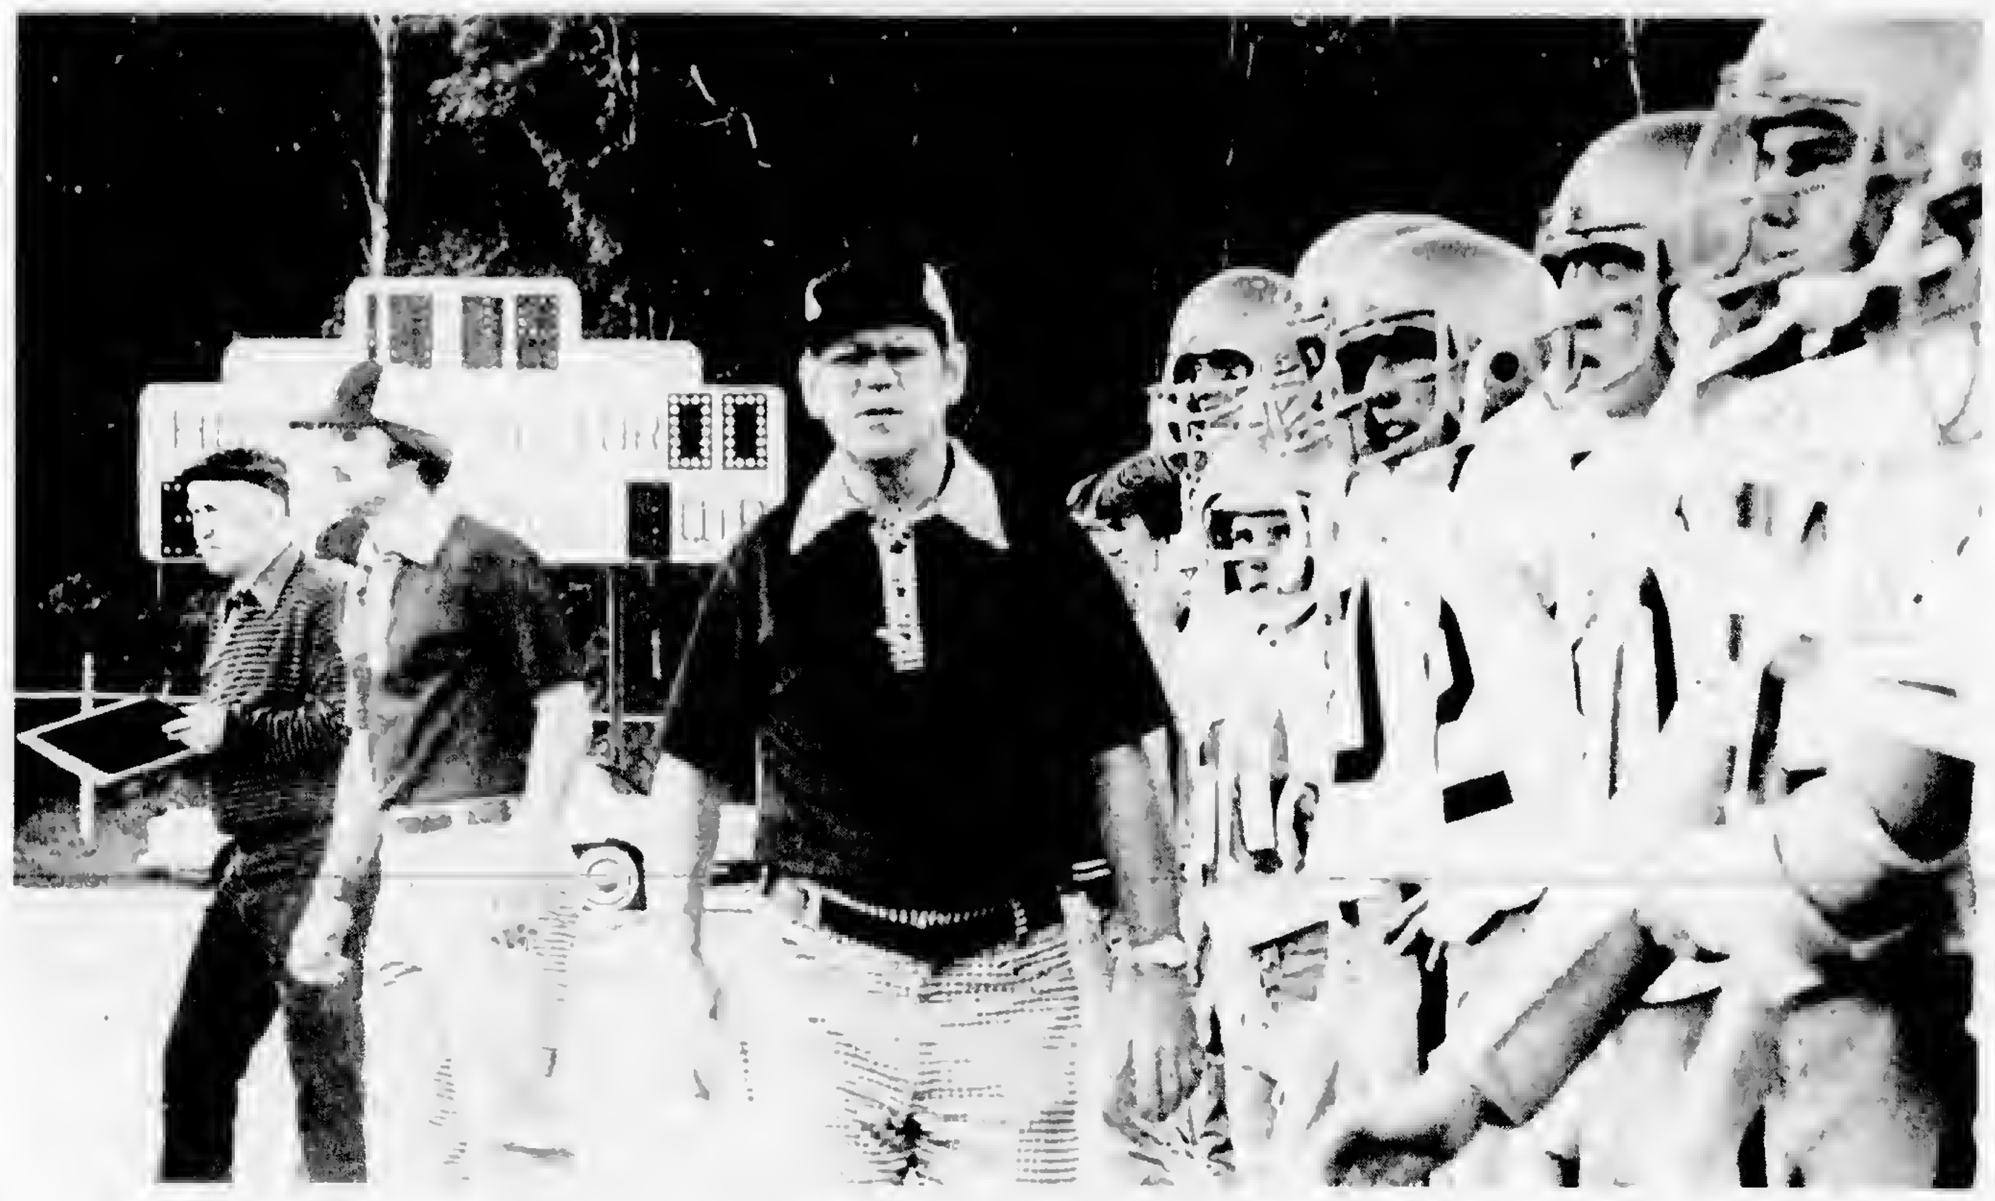
Through the analysis of reports generated timely by automated data processing, management then has the information it needs to achieve improved customer service, tighter cost control, increased production efficiency, and higher profits.

Since business computer users typically start with no programming staffs of their own, it is important that appropriate program packages (software) be available to fit their requirements. Data processing packages from DCS will incorporate the necessary applications for the businesses.

DCS offers their services to the following organizations:

*Accounting Profession *Clubs *Educational Systems *Governmental Facilities *Groups *Health Facilities *Individuals *Large, Medium & Small Businesses *Legal Profession *Manufacturing Firms *Medical & Dental Professions.

If we can be of assistance to you in any of the foregoing areas, please contact us so that we can discuss your particular needs.



Coach Don Carey paces the sideline while his players watch intently.

Rayders thrash Benzie Central, face tough Gaylord team next

The Charlevoix Red Rayders geared up for their important clash with Gaylord this week by thrashing Benzie Central, 34-0, Friday night.

The win improved Charlevoix's season record to 2-0 and it increased the Rayders winning streak to 16 games - spanning three seasons. The last time the Rayders tasted defeat was in 1976 when Cheboygan took a 6-0 verdict.

But the Rayders winning streak will be jeopardy this week when Coach Don Carey's squad travels to Gaylord. The Blue Devils are also 2-0 and are considered a bonafide threat to take the Michigan-Huron Shores football crown away from the Rayders. Gaylord owns victories over Sault Ste. Marie and Onaway.

"They have an outstanding team," Carey said. "It will be a real test for us."

The Rayders left little doubt who had the best team Friday night. In fact, Benzie cheerleaders started throwing souvenir footballs into the stands during the second quarter to keep its cheering section entertained.

Meanwhile, on the opposite side of the field, Charlevoix fans were enjoying every minute of it.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Rayders with Gil Noirot at the throttle went to work. Mixing the pass with the power running of Bob Russell and Craig Boss, the Rayders hit paydirt twice in the second quarter. First, Boss scampered 11 yard for a score and then Noirot teamed with Doug Buday on a 31 yard pass. Scott Morgan converted after both scores to give Charlevoix a 14-0 halftime lead.

The Rayders continued to push the Huskies around in the second half.

Senior Pat Schmidt made a leaping grab of a Noirot pass for Charlevoix's third touchdown. The 10 yard toss came midway through the third period. Morgan again converted to make it 21-0.

The Rayders salted the game away by scoring twice in the final frame. Buday recovered a Huskie fumble and went 31 yards down the sideline for a score and Nick Anderson tallied from the 11 yard line. Morgan connected on one out of two to make the final 34-0. Morgan's streak of seven consecutive extra point conversions was snapped.

The statistics clearly show Charlevoix's dominance. The Rayders gained 380 yards. Benzie, in comparison, had 136 yards. The Rayders had 100 yards in the air and 280 yards on the ground while Benzie had 77 yards in the air and 59 yards on the ground.

Individually, Russell was the game's top rusher. The junior running back picked up 123 yards in 20 carries. Boss ended 77 yards in eight carries.

Noirot completed four of six passes for 77 yards and two touchdowns. Junior backup Scott Kerridge finished the game and went two of three for 23 yards. Buday and Schmidt each caught two passes and scored a touchdown.

The Rayders also had more penalty yardage than Benzie. Ten penalties were marched off against the Rayders for 110 yards. Benzie was penalized twice for 20 yards.

Charlevoix will now play seven conference games in succession.

Statistical Summary

	Charlevoix	Benzie

Alger co-captains Ferris State

Ferris State College is trying to improve on a 3-7 record this football season. And one man the Bulldogs hope will provide leadership is Charlevoix's Bob Alger, a junior roverback.

Alger is one of the squad's top all-around athletes. He captained the team as a sophomore and played cornerback.

He will be one of four captains this year. The six foot, 188 pounder had 52 tackles and one pass interception a year ago. He will also handle the snaps on field goal and extra point attempts.

In Ferris State's opening game two weeks ago against St. Joseph's of Indiana, Alger was credited with seven tackles and two assists, earning the praise of Coach Nick Coso.

Ferris and St. Joseph's battled to a 10-10 tie.

JV's lose, 32-0

There was no joy in Charlevoix last Thursday – as far as the junior varsity football team was concerned.

The Rayders lost, 32-0, to East Jordan.

The setback evened the Rayders record at 1-1.

"We were totally outplayed," Coach Hal Evans said afterwards. "We'll have to go back to the basics."

East Jordan's touchdowns came on runs of 21 and four yards by Bill Spence, 10 yards by Randy Morris and three yards by Ian Wasageshik. Spence added a conversion and a safety while Jeff Fuller also had a conversion and Steve Hilden had a safety.

East Jodan Coach Ted Jeffery was pleased with his team's performance especially the depth.

Jeffery said his defensive was exceptional and he pointed out Fuller, Steve Graham, Delbert Ingalls and Mike Cihak as its ringleaders.

The offense wasn't bad, either. Fuller rushed for 91 yards, Graham 60, Spence 58 and Morris 49.

Charlevoix will try and get back on the winning track Thursday when they tangle with Gaylord. The game will be played in Charlevoix.

First 500 mile race (almost)

On Sept. 9, 1901, the Automobile Club of America sponsored the first long distance race in America. Announced as a 500 mile race from New York City to Buffalo, the winner, D. W. Bishop, in a French Panhard auto, actually covered 464.2 miles. An endurance rather than speed race, it took Bishop five days to cover the ground. A number of important racing vehicles grace the Hall of Technology of Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn, Mich. These include Henry Ford's famous racer, "999", a 1913 Rolls Royce specially designed for Alpine racing, and the 1903 Packard, "Old Pacific", which set a transcontinental record that year.

Paul, Faust on Adrian team

ADRIAN – Adrian College sophomore Steve Vickery (Adrian) fired a round of 72 at the Centerview Golf Course in Adrian to earn medalist honors. However, the Bulldogs dropped a 394-419 decision to Siena Heights in the season opener for both schools Wednesday.

Greg Schoonover was Siena's low man with a 74.

The Bulldogs return to golf action on Thursday when Adrian meets the other Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association (MIAA) schools at Duck Lake Golf Course in Albion.

Vanderbilt drops football

Vanderbilt High School has terminated its football program, effective at once, Coach Michael J. Allen has announced.

He said the decision to terminate the program and forfeit the games resulted from an insufficient number of players out for the sport.

Allen said the decision was an arduous one and made only after considerable deliberation.

In announcing the decision, he expressed his gratitude to the athletes who showed a serious interest in the sport and apologized to those people who are inconvenienced by the decision.

The Yellow Jackets are members of the Northern Lakes League. Teams in the league effected by the decision include Mackinaw City which had two games scheduled with Mackinaw City and one each with Ellsworth, Johannesburg-Lewiston and Central Lake.

Flag football starts, refs still needed

The Charlevoix Recreation Department will launch the annual flag football program Tuesday with six senior league teams and four junior league teams taking to the gridiron Dwight Boss, city recreation director, has announced.

The games will be played at the Carpenter Street ball park with the senior league playing on Tuesday and the junior league on Thursday for this week only. Beginning Sept. 25 the games will be played on Monday and Wednesday.

The schedule for this week will find the Rams meeting the Patriots at 6 p.m.; the Cowboys and Vikings clashing at 7:15 p.m. and the Raiders and the Bucs at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

On Thursday, the Dolphins and the Lions will play at 8 p.m. and the Steelers and the Chargers at 7:15 p.m.

Next Monday, Sept. 25, will see the Vikings and the Bucs playing at 6 p.m.; the Patriots and the Raiders at 8:15 p.m. and the Rams and the Cowboys at 8:30 p.m.

Both leagues will play a six-game schedule.

The teams and their coaches follow: Cowboys, Curt Ayres; Patriots, Don Trimper; Bues, Dave Reinhart; Rams, Jiggs Whitley and Paul Parrish; Vikings, Don Potter and Raiders, Dan Gillispie of the senior league.

The junior league teams and coaches are: Lions, Mike Reinhart; Steelers, Dan McKenzie and Kerry Speer; Chargers, Dick Putman and Dolphins, Art Kamrowski.

Game officials are still needed Boss said. Anyone wishing to volunteer as officials may call Boss at 547-9098.

Rayders win again, Elk Rapids victim

It was not quite as easy as the first game, but the results were the same Thursday night, nonetheless, for Charlevoix's girls basketball team.

The Rayders beat Elk Rapids 49-38 and are now 2-0 on the season. The Rayders beat Alanson 61-19 on Tuesday.

Thursday night's game was close the entire first half. The Rayders grabbed a 10-8 lead after the first quarter. The team played even the second quarter and Charlevoix went into the locker room at halftime ahead 15-13.

But an explosive third quarter gave Charlevoix the cushion it needed to win. The Rayders outscored Elk Rapids 20-7 to increase their lead to 35-21 entering the final quarter.

Sophomore Melinda Klooster topped all scorers with 23 points for the Rayders. Lisa Fowler added 10 points. Elk Rapids was paced by Lynn Brand with 12 points.

Elk Rapids won the junior varsity contest, 31-21.

The Rayders will entertain Central Lake Tuesday night.

Post 1153 meets Thursday

The Auxiliary of Charlevoix Post No. 1153 will meet at the post home at 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 21, for a work bee and social meeting it was decided at a recent meeting of the group held at the post home.

At the same meeting, it was announced that family potluck suppers the last Saturday night of each month will be resumed beginning with one scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 30. The event will be held at 6 p.m. It will be for members of the post and the auxiliary, their families, friends and prospective members. Each family is to bring a dish to pass and its own table service. Rolls and coffee will be furnished.

Plans were also initiated for a casserole and salad luncheon and mini-bazaar to be held at the post home Wednesday, Oct. 18. All members are asked to contribute to the mini-bazaar.

Mrs. Henry Wagner, who renewed her membership recently, reported on the results of the flea market held at the post home during the summer. The program will be continued next summer. Anyone wishing to reserve space may call Mr. Wagner.

A report was also given on the results of the concession booth sponsored by the Auxiliary during the regular bingo parties at the post home. The Auxiliary will continue to operate the concession booth.

Mrs. Lillian Holm has donated a hand-crocheted afghan to the Auxiliary. The drawing will be held at the Nov. 2 meeting.

Cards were signed and sent to 10 shut-ins or members who are ill.

Mrs. Albert Russell of the Legislative committee reported that letters had been sent to Michigan Congressmen asking for their support of the bill for veterans preference in jobs. Replies were sent to members.

Mrs. Clarence Rabach and Mrs. Robert Miller hosted the recent meeting.

Republicans to meet

The Charlevoix County Republicans will meet Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. in the court room of the Charlevoix County building.

Bliss wasn't too happy

Henry H. Bliss had the misfortune to become America's first automobile fatality. Bliss, a real estate broker, was struck by a car driven by Arthur Smith as he stepped off a streetcar into traffic in New York City on Sept. 13, 1899. Smith was jailed and eventually fined $1,000. Attempts to improve traffic conditions can be seen while strolling through the Transportation Collections of Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn, Mich.

Joseph Etienne honored

Joseph Etienne, who has retired as a deputy from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, was presented with a plaque in recognition of his years of service. The presentation was made before the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners at the office of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

The plaque, presented by Corrine Russell, Communications Officer, bore the insignia of the department and the years of his service, 1962-1977.

This marks the conclusion of a second career for Etienne who retired as a Senior Lieutenant from the U. S. Coast Guard in 1960 after 28 years of service.

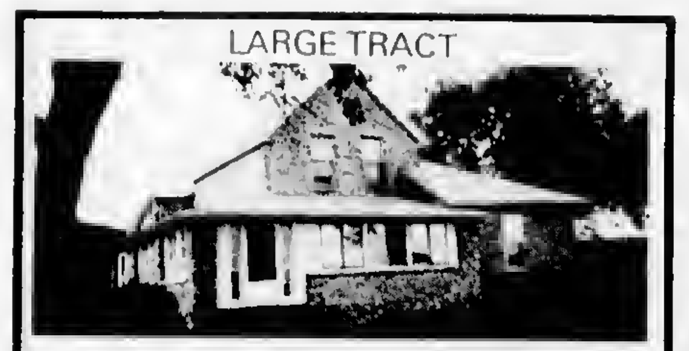
LARGE TRACT



Large tract that challenges comparison, a rolling countryside of 200 acres of hardwoods, a small orchard and pond. Add 70 acres of cropland, some pasture and you may have the answer to your dreams. This 300 acre parcel is one of the last large tracts that you could call country estate. Very old stone farmhouse. Has plenty of character and there is a large barn and many outbuildings. Lots of beauty with lots of value. Presented at $125,000.00. The owner would like a sale before the end of summer and will negotiate terms. There is a happy future here for some family. ARE YOUR CHILDREN TRULY READY FOR SCHOOL?

With summer vacation nearly over, you have undoubtedly been getting your children ready for the opening of the school year; and by now their clothes, etc., are probably all in order. However, how do they stand on manners, discipline, attentiveness and respect for authority such as the teacher, the bus driver, the crossing guard, etc? If you have trained them properly, they should rate at least a passing grade in all these things. The school should not have to do your job of imposing discipline to keep order in the classroom. The Sunday school at the Church of your choice can be of great help in teaching your children the good conduct they will need in the regular school or indeed, everywhere in life.

Selling is old hat for Ellen

What's a nice English war bride doing in Charlevoix selling shoes?

Ellen Haartikainen is here because she enjoys the work and because she's good at it. She came here to work for Golden Shoes when they opened their store here this summer and brought with her 24 years of experience covering the feet of men, women and children.

She met and married Pete Haartikainen (he's of Finnish descent) in England and came to live in Iron River.

"A friend of mine had a shoe store in Iron River," Mrs. Haartikainen recalls, "and when one of her employees was injured in an accident, she asked me to go to work for her.

"I said I couldn't because I had never worked in a store in my life. I had always done maid and waitress work."

But she kept that job in Iron River for 11 years and later worked for Russell's in Petoskey for over 12 years.

Mrs. Haartikainen has seen many changes in shoe styles through the years.

"When I started working and high school girls came in for dress shoes, it was pumps with a bow or buckle, not bulky. Then they went to spike heels and pointed toes. When the first shipment of spike heels came in, I laughed and said they'd never sell.

"It used to be that for 'back to school', all a store needed to stock was black penny loafers, brown penny loafers, black and white saddle shoes, and white bucks with red soles."

Mrs. Haartikainen points out there are at least 50 different styles to choose from now.

"Topsiders and Bass 100's have been the most popular shoes for girls in the last four years. Right now, Bass is the most popular for girls in the area."

Children's shoe styles haven't changed so much through the years, Mrs. Haartikainen notes, "except for the new jogging type with the molded upturned toes. And shoes for younger children have become much more colorful."

Women's shoes are bulkier today than they used to be, thick soles and wedgie heels. Not all women are happy with them, though, Mrs. Haartikainen says: "Many women wish they could buy spectators again.

"Men's shoes haven't changed so much through the years, except that the younger men like them bulkier and higher, and, of course, the more mod men wear some platforms and higher heels."

Which customer is the hardest to please? "On the whole, most people are very nice, but usually men are the easiest," the saleswoman admits. "However, when you get a fussy man, he can be worse than 20 fussy women.

"You have to know what you're doing when you fit children. They have short toes. You measure the foot from the heel to the ball of the foot and then heel to toe. If you only measure the toe length, then the ball of the foot is crowded," she warns.

"I remember when we used to X-ray the children's feet. They would come in, put their feet in the machine and study their bones. But if you know what you're doing, you don't need an X-ray machine."

Reflecting on her career, Mrs. Haartikainen believes she should have kept a diary. "I have met so many lovely people. Today I received a card from a 'summer lady' wishing me well over the winter. I feel that people who aren't nice probably have a problem."

Mrs. Haartikainen lives in Boyne City with her husband and son, Peter Craig. Mr. Haartikainen is employed by Freedman Artcraft.

The one thing she does do besides work is travel back to England to visit her mother in Court Durham. "I came here in 1946 and went back in 1953, 1965, 1971, 1972, 1973, 1975, 1976, and this May."

William Cooper

Marine Lance Corporal William D. Cooper, son of Richard and Else Wells of Route 1 P.O. Box 235, Ellsworth, is participating in the major NATO exercises "Bold Guard '78" and "Northern Wedding '78" in northern Europe.

He is assigned to the 2d Tank Battalion, based at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

"Bold Guard '78" and "Northern Wedding'78" are designed to refine coordination, command and control capabilities in the external reinforcement of NATO's northern flank and in conducting combined land operations. Taking place over wide areas of the Eastern Atlantic, North Sea and English Channel, maneuvers will include amphibious landings in the Shetland Islands and Southern Norway. A large scale landing on the west coast of Denmark's Jutland Peninsula will be followed by an overland movement of the combined allied forces for large scale maneuvers in Germany.

Participants number approximately 40,000 men, 170 ships and submarines and 800 aircraft from Belgium, Canada, Denmark, the Federal Republic of Germany, the Netherlands, Norway, the United Kingdom and the United States. This represents the largest combined NATO exercises ever held in Northern Europe.

Planners for "Bold Guard" and "Northern Wedding '78" include General Alexander M. Haig, Jr., USA, Supreme Allied Commander, Europe; Admiral Isaac C. Kidd, Jr., USN, Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic; and Royal Navy Admiral Sir Henry Leach, Allied Commander-in-Chief, Channel.

Cooper joined the Marine Corps in October 1875.

Maurice Dixon

Funeral services for Maurice G. Dixon, 67, who died Wednesday at Little Traverse Hospital where he had been a patient for two weeks, were held at the Winchester Funeral Home Friday. The Rev. Ramond Giffin of the First Congregational Church officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Dixon was born in Charlevoix April 5, 1911. On June 26, 1935, he was married to the former Dorothy Pedersen. They always resided here. He was a veteran of World War II having served four years in the U.S. Army. For the past 30 years he had been in the employ of Mrs. John P. Wilson, Sr., and the later Mr. Wilson as crew member aboard the yawl, the Comet, and later as caretaker and chauffeur. He was a member of the First Congregational Church, Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, and Charlevoix V.F.W. Post No. 1152.

Surviving are his wife; two daughters, Mrs. David (Julie) Christiansen and Mrs. Dennis (Marlene) Safko, both of Charlevoix; two grandchildren; a great aunt, Mrs. Edith Davy and several nieces and nephews.

The family suggests Memorials in Mr. Dixon's name to the First Congregational Church Memorial Fund.

Kenneth Pierce

Funeral services for a former local resident, Kenneth H. Pierce, 72, who died in Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 13, were held Friday at the Gilligan Funeral Home in Cincinnati Saturday. Burial was in a Morrow, Ohio cemetery.

Born in Charlevoix in 1906, Mr. Pierce had graduated from the Charlevoix High School in 1926. Following graduation he had gone to Morrow, Ohio, to live. Later he made his home in Cincinnati where he was employed at the Indian Hills United Methodist Church. He was a member of the United Methodist Church.

He is survived by his wife, Alice; two sons, Donald of Denver, Colo., and Edward of Cincinnati; six grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. William (Bertha) Parsons of Charlevoix and one brother, Newton Pierce of Sturgis.

Don't work harder, work smarter

By MARLENE CASZATT

Food service people who want to simplify their work efforts in the kitchen while still developing quantity recipes will have an opportunity to learn how by attending a food service workshop in Boyne City.

Michigan State University is sponsoring the workshop designed for food service personnel in the northern Michigan area. The workshop will be held on Saturday Sept. 30, from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. at the new elementary school on Brockway Street.

The morning session will include Jean McFadden, food service management specialist at Michigan State University, whose program "Don't Work Harder, Work Smarter" will include work simplification in the kitchen and development of quantity recipes. Other morning programs will include Robert Kage, branch manager and Dennis Hutchinson, area supervisor for Gordon Food Service, addressing portion control, unit cost, fast entrees for an emergency need and nutritional breakdown of commercial products. Joe Mack, Graubner & Associates, will address seafood and poultry in commercial food service.

The afternoon session will feature Bert Notestine, health educator for the Public Health Department No. 3 discussing "Cold Food Sanitation", and Marlene Caszatt, extension home economist for Antrim, Kalkaska and Charlevoix counties discussing nutrition labeling.

The program is open to all interested food service personnel. For reservations contact Julie Michael, extension home economist, Emmet County, City-County building. Phone: 616-347-2596.

Our certification point will be given to ASFSA members who attend.

Irvin Sturm

Sturm resigns

By PEG OHLE

Irvin H. Sturm, engineer-director of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, has resigned the position effective Jan. 1.

He submitted his resignation to members of the road commission last week citing his desire to begin the practice of civil engineering as a consultant.

"We are parting on a perfectly amiable basis," Sturm told the Courier.

"I have wanted for a long time to leave to set up my own practice which will be in the area of site development and structural engineering. I want to use my experience in structural work."

Sturm said he is staying on until the first of the year to effect an orderly transition. The road commission is already advertising in trade magazines for a replacement.

Sturm came to Charlevoix County Jan. 1, 1972 from Detroit where he had worked with the city as an engineer for 17 years. He is a graduate of the University of Detroit, a registered professional engineer in the state of Michigan, a member of the Michigan Society of Professional Engineers, and a fellow in the American Society of Professional Engineers.

"I have enjoyed working with the road commission but feel that now is an appropriate time to change," Sturm said in conclusion.

"Ding" Darling

Society to observe Darling's work

By PEG OHLE

When the Charlevoix Historical Society meets for its regular meeting on Oct. 3, it will be to commemorate a native son who achieved national fame and left his mark on the history of his time.

He is Jay Norwood "Ding" Darling, who was born in Norwood on Oct. 21, 1876, the son of a minister.

Ed Beutner, past president of the historical society, who has researched the life of Darling, comments:

"Interestingly, Darling was born less than three miles from the birthplace of another native son, Rex Beach, and their birth dates are separated by less than a year. The families probably were acquainted, but since they did not live long in the area, their marks were made elsewhere. Darling became a famous cartoonist and Beach a widely read novelist."

At the meeting, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Brumm of Norwood will discuss some of the biographical material and cartoon illustrations which were obtained by Beutner from a number of sources. He particularly mentions the Des Moines Register, the newspaper with which Darling was associated during much of his active career; John Henry, an old friend and associate of Darling's; and David Lendt of Iowa State University, who is writing a biography of Darling.

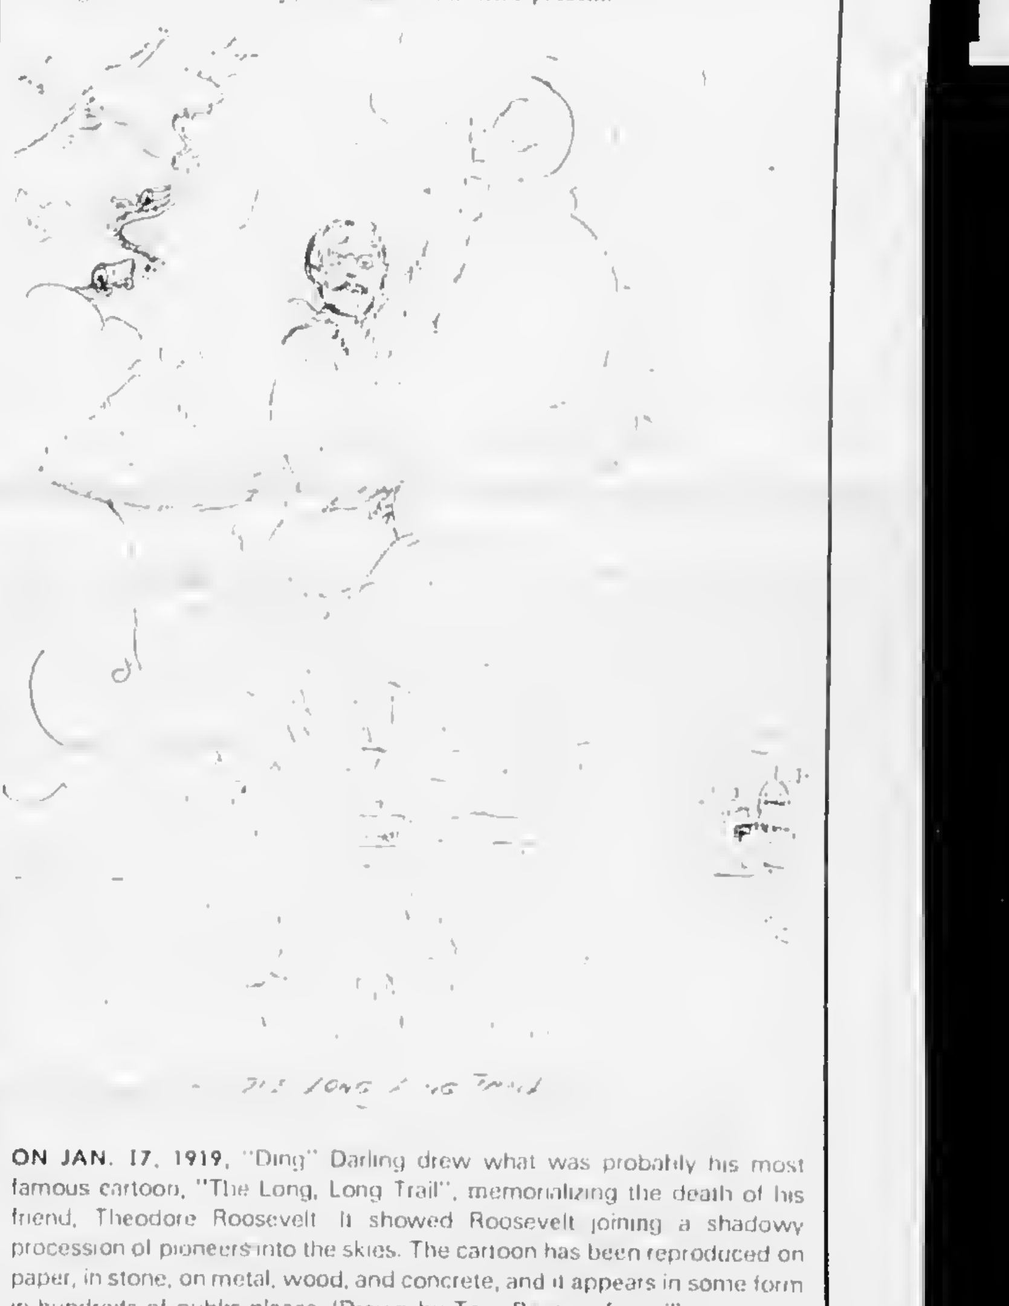
Commenting on Darling's career, Beutner remarks, "Ding's incisive brain and eloquent pen earned him a million dollars long before he reached the height of his active 48 year career. His cartoons were carried by 130 daily newspapers and he was twice awarded Pulitzer prizes.

"His portrayals covered politics, the human condition, and many reflected his deep concern with wildlife conservation. He was the best friend ducks ever had, and he received national acclaim for the part he played in saving habitat of migratory waterfowl during the drought years of the 1930's.

"Though Ding was a Republican from birth, he let slide his cartoonist's income during 1934 and 1935 to take a job as chief of the Biological Survey in Washington under Franklin Roosevelt's administration. He got hunters and conservationists together, wrung money out of Congress to establish a national wildlife refuge system, and designed the first duck stamp, sale of which to this day provides revenues for acquisition by the federal government of additional wet lands."

Although Darling retired in 1949 as an active cartoonist, he continued to support conservation until his death in 1962. His concerns remain active today through the Ding Darling Foundation. In February of this year, the 4,000 acre J. N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge was dedicated on Sanibel Island off the coast of Florida.

The Oct. 3 meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the First State Bank. All who are interested in sharing the history of this area are invited to attend. Copies of a special brochure furnished by the J. N. "Ding" Darling Foundation will be provided to all those present.



ON JAN. 17, 1919, "Ding" Darling drew what was probably his most famous cartoon, "The Long, Long Trail", memorializing the death of his friend, Theodore Roosevelt. It showed Roosevelt joining a shadowy procession of pioneers into the skies. The cartoon has been reproduced on paper, in stone, on metal, wood, and concrete, and it appears in some form in hundreds of public places. Fund drive tops $700,000, campaign in final days

Less than $50,000 is left to be raised in the Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Drive, which has now topped $700,000, organizers announced today.

The campaign, now in its final days, is expected to meet the $750,000.

This last week will be used to finish soliciting area businesses, many of whom have not announced their pledges, and individuals who have yet to complete their pledge cards.

Campaign organizers urge anyone in the community who has not been seen by volunteers or anyone who wants to ask questions or make donations directly to the campaign office to telephone 547-9165.

The campaign is to raise funds for the expansion and renovation of the Charlevoix Area Hospital's out-patient service departments.

These departments have experienced tremendous growth in use over the past several years, both because the population of the hospital's service area is growing rapidly and because some six new physicians have joined the hospital's medical staff in the last several years, bringing with them an increased number of patients.

Trends in medicine today, also lean toward as much treatment on an out-patient basis as is possible, to hold down hospital costs, as Charlevoix Area Hospital Administrator Richard Krueger explains.

All these factors have meant increased pressure on already crowded departments, such as Xray, Lab, Physical and Inhalation Therapy, and the Emergency Room.

These departments will each be expanded and in some cases moved to better locations within the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

To accommodate these expansions and moves, a new wing is to be built, which will house patient rooms moved from within the present structure. No new beds are being added.

The total cost of the project will be about $2.1 million. The difference between funds raised and the cost of the project will be borrowed through conventional financing institutions. Thus, the campaign organizers hope to exceed the $750,000 goal, as the more they raise the less must be borrowed, which will keep interest payments down.

The campaign was given a significant boost last week when Consumers Power Company announced its pledge of $12,500 , to be given over the next five years.

Jon Goense, Northern Regional General Manager for Consumers Power Company, signed the pledge card in the Consumers Power Company Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant just north of Charlevoix.

Goense told Thomas Carey, president of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors, that the Consumer's pledge was motivated because, "Consumers Power Company is interested in being a good, cooperative neighbor.

"We are pleased that we are able to respond to this drive in the manner we did," Goense said. "We believe in involvement with our community and we want to help provide good medical facilities for our own employees, their families, and others in the community."

Goense noted that the Consumers Power donation to the hospital was as large as it is because "We received a very strong recommendation from Cy Hartman, plant superintendent, here at Big Rock."

Thomas Carey, board president, responded, during the presentation of the pledge, at Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant, saying, "On behalf of the capital fund raising drive, I accept this very generous contribution. It is because of individuals, companies and corporations all giving to their limits, that we are going to attain our goal.

"We are going to make the necessary improvements and renovations so the Charlevoix Area Hospital can continue to attend to the ill and injured in this community."

Board President Carey concluded saying, "This gift is a tribute to so many fine people who are working so hard in this fund raising endeavor in Charlevoix and northern Antrim counties.

JOHN GOENSE, Consumers Power Company's northern regional manager, signs a pledge of $12,500 to be given to the Charlevoix Area Hospital over the next five years. Cy Hartman, plant superintendent at the Big Rock Nuclear Plant; Ralph Doan, training supervisor at Big Rock and volunteer with the hospital fund drive; and Thomas Carey, president of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors watch the signing.

MARSHA TRIMPER, chairman of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Drives Speaker Bureau, accepts a $500 check from Louis McKenzie, finance officer of the Charlevoix American Legion Post. Post commander Paul Stephan watches. The Legion pledged $500 this year and told hospital officials if their budget permits they will donate another $500 next year and possibly the following years.

Auto show, blood pressure clinic at Captain's Corner

In the market for a new car?

If so, you might want to attend the auto show Saturday, Oct. 7 in the parking lot at the Captain's Corner shopping center.

All five car dealers in town – Parsel, Erber, Fochtman, Kusina and Village Car Care – will be displaying their respective 1979 models. Company salesmen will be present.

Promoter Dan Miller, of Ben Franklin, said about 20 cars will be displayed. The auto show will start at 10 a.m. The shopping center is at the intersection of US-31 and M-66.

"I hope the weather cooperates," Miller said.

The auto show is sponsored by the Captain's Corner Retail Merchants Association.

The association also plans on sponsoring a winter sports show later in October. The show would include displays of snowmobiles, skis, snow removal equipment and winter apparel. According to Miller, Silent Sports and The Bahnhof will exhibit skis.

Miller added that a boat show will be held in the spring.

Saturday, area residents will have a chance to get their blood pressure checked – free.

Qualified medical personnel will be at Crown Drug – also in the Captain's Corner – from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Last week about 200 area residents took advantage of the free check-up service, said Jack Urben, of Crown Drug.

Grandvue plans fall festivities

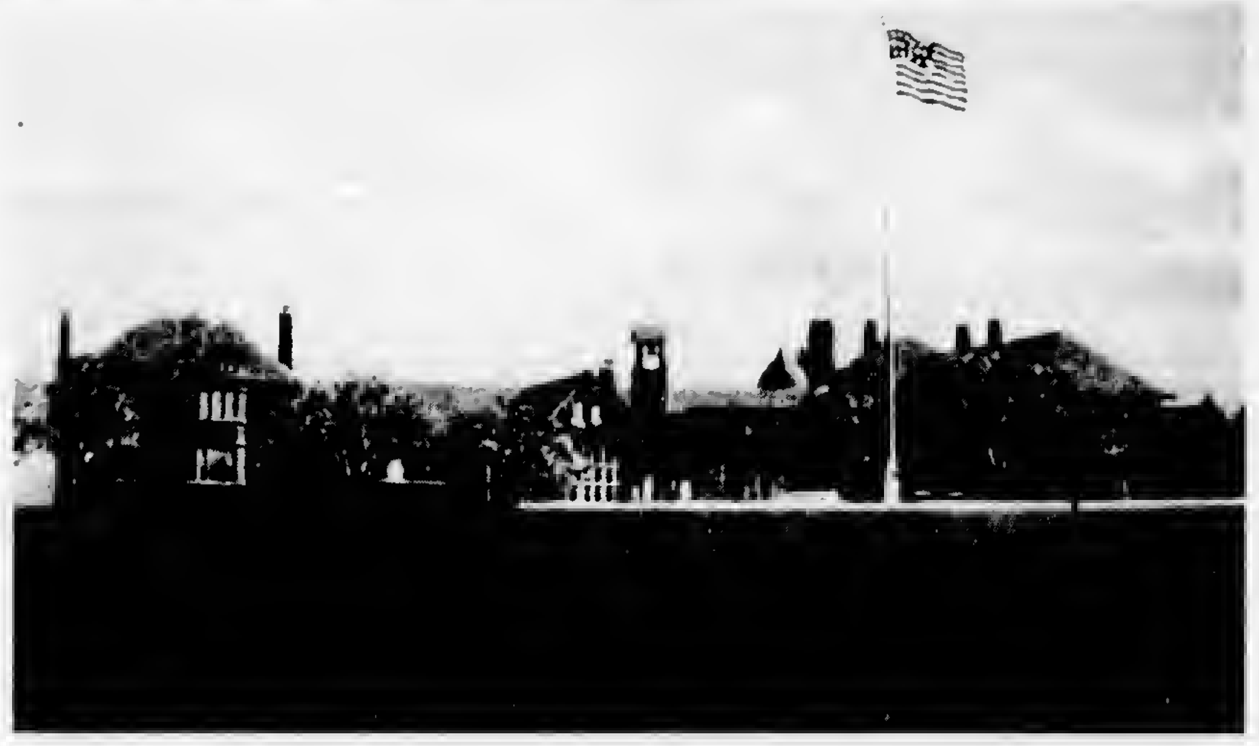
The Grandvue Medical Care Facility Auxiliary made plans for the annual fall games party and bake sale to be held at the facility Oct. 26 at its recent meeting. Each member is asked to bring guests, door prizes, baked goods and tea cookies. Mrs. Harriet Gerrie will be in-charge of tickets and Ms. Flo Davis, Ms. Alice Bellinger and Ms. Ardith Hawley will arrange the bake sale.

The Rev. Earnest Knight of the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene, chaplain at the facility, conducted a meaningful dedication ceremony for the communion service the Auxiliary has provided for the patients. Music was provided by Mrs. Bellinger. She also accompanied Ms. Joanna Gunn and Rev. Knight who presented solos. The service concluded with those present singing the hymn, "How Great Thou Art".

At the business session, Mrs. Phyllis Malpass reported $1,129.75 in the savings account; $2,755.39 in the checking account and $529.50 in the memorial fund. An additional $52 collected in Charlevoix brought the Tag Day total to $2,661.97.

Plans were made to attend the fall meeting of the North Central Michigan Association of Hospital Auxiliaries to be held at Cadillac Sept. 25. A delegation headed by the president, Mrs. Gunn, who attended.

A revised copy of the Constitution was approved by the membership present.



Charlevoix Yesterday

THE LOEB RESIDENCE on M-66 south of town was probably considered the grandest house in Charlevoix when this picture was taken for a postcard many years ago. Today, all that is visible to the passerby is the stable area which has been remodeled for the production of concerts. (Card courtesy of John Sparrow)

NOTE: The Courier would appreciate the use of old local pictures for "Charlevoix Yesterday". They will be handled carefully and returned to the owners.

Lasater receives Dignitary Award

George T. Lasater, Charlevoix County Sheriff, has become the most recent recipient of the Dignitary Award given annually by Gideon International.

The award, a Dignitary Bible, is given in recognition of a person's Christian attitude, actions and work.

The award was presented at a recent meeting of the Charlevoix County Camp of the organization devoted to promoting the aspects of Christianity, serving as testimony of their belief and distributing the Bible.

The Charlevoix County Camp of Gideon International was organized only recently. Until then it was affiliated with the Emmet-County Camp.

Homecoming '78

By SUE MILLER

Recently, the Charlevoix senior class nominated five candidates to the 1978 fall homecoming court.

On Oct. 5th the student body will elect a queen from among the five candidates. It will be announced that afternoon at the high school pep assembly.

The queen will then reign over the homecoming festivities, climaxing with the varsity football game between the Charlevoix Red Rayders and the Grayling Vikings.

Gayle Hansen

Shocked and embarrassed were Gayle Hansen's initial reactions to being chosen for the homecoming court. These feelings, she adds, quickly turned to happiness.

The daughter of Ed and Joan Hansen, Gayle was her sophomore class president and is currently the managing editor of the school paper.

After graduation Gayle is unsure of where she wants to attend college, but she does want to study either business administration or communications.

Cindy Sandahl

"I was ecstatic," Cindy Sandahl said after being chosen to the homecoming court.

The daughter of Jerry and Gertrude Sandahl, Cindy has been a cheerleader every year she's been in high school.

Cindy plans to attend Central Michigan University after graduating in hopes of becoming a dance instructor. She also plans to travel extensively in the future.

Lori Fels

When asked her reaction to being chosen for the homecoming court, Lori Fels said she was scared at first, and then very happy.

Lori, who has been a cheerleader and a member of the Spanish Club, is the daughter of Jack and Barbara Fels.

After she graduates from high school, Lori wants to study computer programming at Michigan State University.

Shari Mol

Shari Mol, the daughter of Jack and Nomis Mol, said she was both surprised and honored to be chosen for this year's homecoming court.

Shari has been active in the marching band – as a member of the band's flag corp – since her freshman year. This year she was elected by the corp to act as their captain. She is also a member of the school yearbook and the school paper staff.

When she graduates from high school Shari plans to attend Michigan State University.

Brenda Boss

"I was honored," Brenda Boss said about being selected for the homecoming court.

The daughter of Ken and Myna Boss, Brenda was Campus Life's 1978 Sweetheart Queen. She is currently senior class president, a member of the yearbook staff, and the marching band's "golden girl."

Brenda plans to major in elementary music education at Central Michigan University after graduation.

Council takes time to study housing plan for senior citizens

Sometimes, the best decision is no decision at all. Such was the case last week at a meeting of the Charlevoix Common Council.

Council - acting as the board of appeals - tabled action on a proposed 42 unit senior citizen complex.

Why, when Charlevoix is in need of senior citizen housing, would council deliberate so?

Council's thinking is this: It's a one shot deal. There is only room - at present - for one senior citizen housing development here. And council wants to be certain the development they approve is a good one.

That's why the delay.

Council wants to take a close look at this proposal from the Henry J. Spicker Company of Toledo. They do not want to make a rash decision - and possibly have to regret it later. This proposal may be a good one. Then again it may not. That's what council must decide. One thing is sure, council does not want to get stuck with a white elephant.

Although nothing concrete has developed yet, the Charlevoix Housing Commission has also been exploring housing for the elderly. For almost five years, in fact. The problem is money, or the lack thereof.

The commission has even picked a developer to help plan the project. The groundwork has been laid. What the commission needs is dollars.

At last week's council meeting, Ralph McRae of the housing commission questioned a couple components of the Spieker proposal. For instance, he said, should all the units be contained in one building or in four buildings as Spieker proposes? Should there be more than one laundry facility for 42 units?

These are the types of questions which must be answered.

Charlevoix needs senior citizen housing, that cannot be denied. But we must also try and get the best development possible. We applaud council for taking the time to carefully study this proposal before rendering a decision.

A northern Michigan cold

There's only one thing wrong with the good, old-fashioned Northern Michigan "Work Ethic."

If you have it bad enough, you can't even enjoy a good, old-fashioned Northern Michigan cold.

For the past four days I have been victim of a particularly virulent bug that has been making the rounds. You know the kind. It starts with sneezes and sniffles, matures into a full-blown runny nose, watery eyes and sore throat, and climaxes (usually at 2 a.m.) with a high fever and chills. The ensuing days are characterized by assorted aches and pains, stuffiness and a general feeling of disenchantment with the medical profession for not coming up with a cure for the common cold.

But colds wouldn't be all that bad if it weren't for the Work Ethic and the terrible guilt feelings it imposes upon those afflicted with it. I wish sometime I could get a cold, pop a couple of aspirin, got to bed and stay there until I felt like getting up.

But there is no bed rest for victims of the Work Ethic, not while potatoes are begging to be dug, fat chunks of maple are yearning to be split, the grass is aching for one last cutting, blistered walls are crying for fresh coats of paint and storm windows are howling to be released from their basement prison.

This was my predicament over the weekend as my annual cold moved into its final stages. I didn't want to move a muscle, but I knew my conscience wouldn't give me a moment's peace if I stayed in bed.

So I made a compromise with the monster within me and agreed to handle only one chore – the city garden potato crop – and devote the rest of the weekend to the lost art of pleasure reading.

In 48 hours I have dug 150 pounds of potatoes and read books by Jan Anson and George Orwell. I'll finish a third by Jack London before I go to bed tonight. So all in all it's been a pretty nice weekend and I'd like you to meet my author-friends, two of whom you probably know.

Jan Anson, the author of "The Amityville Horror," is a newcomer to the publishing business and has come up with a real chiller – which happens to be true.

In "Amityville," Anson tells the story of a Long Island, family which moves into a home six persons had been murdered a few years before. The moving van has hardly departed when George and Kathy Lutz discover that something is terribly wrong with their new domicile. Green slime appears mysteriously on walls and floors; rooms remain chilly even with the thermometer registering 80 or 90 degrees; strange "presenses" and perfumes come and go; windows spring open without being touched; doors are wrenched from their hinges. The list is endless.

The book – which was first recommending to me by Lillian Bergmann who read it while she was alone in the house one night and later wished she hadn't picked it up – is fine reading for a sunny fall afternoon. Please don't read it after dark, for your own peace of mind.

I also raced through Orwell's "Animal Farm," a book that I have intended to read for the past generation but never got around to. Although Orwell probably is more famous for his dire predictions in "1984", the main thrust of "Animal Farm" remains as valid today as it was in 1945 when the book was published. In a word, totalitarian systems are for the birds.

The third book I am working on is Jack London's "The Call of the Wild," something every boy was supposed to read before his 12th birthday – back when I was a boy. But I couldn't understand all the big words, so I never got beyond Chapter One.

In the past 38 years, however, I have learned a number of big words and I find "The Call of the Wild" is fine, exciting reading.

You'll excuse me, I'm sure. I've just got to find out what new calamity lies ahead for the dog Buck...

Where's lottery luck?

In January of 1977, a group of middle school teachers from Petoskey struck it rich in the lottery.

The State Street Players of Petoskey - as they called themselves (the middle school is on State Street) – matched the double and triple digit numbers on a 50 cent lottery ticket. In addition, they won the right to appear on the television show "Michigame."

The lottery club sent Bob Hartmann to Detroit to represent them on television. After all, Hartmann founded the club. Most of the others met at the Elks Club to watch and whoop it up. And whoop it up they did.

As luck would have it, Hartmann and the State Street Players won over $100,000.

A celebration followed, of course, and it had a New Year's Eve atmosphere. When Hartmann won it was as if the clock had struck midnight and a new year had been ushered in.

Everyone was laughing and having a good time. Nobody could believe what had happened.

Bob Motley, a counselor at the school, said he was going to take his share and take his family to Florida for spring vacation. Until that night, Motley said, he had enough money to take the family to Grand Rapids. Now, he said, he would call the airlines. If all flights were booked, he would charter his own plane.

Moments later, Motley, an avid antique car collector, said he would no longer dabble in the antique car business. He would start buying Rolls Royces instead.

And so it went.

Needless to say, interest in lottery clubs blossomed overnight. All hoping the same fate could strike twice here.

One of several clubs that was born in the aftermath of the State Street success was the Blue Ribbon Gang - a group of 9 editorial staffers from the News-Review plus Dave Walker of WJML.

The group - of which I am a member - has been in existence for nearly 20 months. The lottery thrives because of players like that in the Blue Ribbon Gang. We're constant losers. Yet, we don't give up. We have spent nearly $840 on lottery tickets and have won just $60. Not a very good investment, is it?

Oh, sure, there are winners.

According to the Bureau of State Lottery, in the last two years lottery clubs have won over $2 million on the "Michigame" television show. Overall, lottery clubs have accounted for 13 percent of the television show contestants and over 14 percent of the "Michigame" super and grand prize players.

I just wish some of that luck would rub off on the Blue Ribbon Gang.

A reunion at Houghton Lake with Nerd, Ferd and gang

"There's no plug," the son hollered.

"You'll find a plug hanging from a nail behind your bedroom door," his mother hollered back.

The son soon appeared with an electric plug swinging from an extension cord.

"I tried, but this won't work," he said. "The water still runs out."

The kid wanted a plug for the sink.

We were vacationing in a rented cottage on Houghton Lake, where there are thousands of cottages for rent, each one built near the lake and a saloon. Rented cottages never have plugs for the sink. This is so the tourists can return home and brag about spending 2 weeks so close to Mother Nature they were awakened every morning by the sound of running water.

It's no secret that I am anti-outdoors. The extent of my pioneer spirit is to remain brave in the face of ice cube trays that refuse to release their ice cubes. This is another thing about rented cottages: Their refrigerators always contain ice cube trays strong enough to protect their ice cubes from attack by ax.

In view of my urban attitude, you might well wonder why I forsook my beloved city in favor of roughing it in a wilderness where even the natives can get only 3 channels on the TV. There's a reason. This was a family reunion.

My oldest daughter lives in Houghton Lake. She's the one whose name begins with "T" and rhymes with the names of her little brother and sister, Nerd and Ferd. She lives there with her husband and their 3 children.

My wife decreed it would be a marvelous idea for her and me and Nerd and Ferd and Ferd's new husband to vacation in Houghton Lake. She also decreed it would be a pretty lousy grandfather who wouldn't gladly wrestle a balky ice cube tray to be near his grandchildren.

She takes grandparenting very seriously and is always fearful that I'll be mistreating the little darlings when Norman Rockwell drops by to paint our picture.

Actually, I'm as sappy as the next grandfather. I like to spoil the kids, and I enjoy teaching them all I know. The youngest is John, age 4. He has an unusual voice. When he talks, it's like pushing a doorbell and hearing a foghorn. I taught John how to burp on command. He can now do it as loud as his grandfather, and that's loud enough to make his grandmother sob 5 blocks away.

Much of the vacation was spent in the grandchildren's backyard, sitting around a grill, waiting for the hamburgers to burn.

"There are flies out here," my wife said one night.

"Certainly there are flies out here. This is where flies live," I said. "That's why people built houses and bought Westinghouse ranges – to cook inside and get away from the flies.

"But now you women have moved the cooking outside in a clever ploy to get the men to do the cooking. And you have nerve enough to complain about the flies being outside. Do you want me to shoo them into the kitchen?"

But all the fireside sitting wasn't devoted to harangues from Grouchy Grandpa. There was also much nostalgic remembering, with great whoops of laughter. For instance, we remembered when Ferd was 16 and she drove my car into a drive-in restaurant where you are supposed to eat off a tray permanently attached to a post next to your car window. But Ferd somehow parked so that the tray protruded far inside the car. After much backing and forthing, all futile, the tray had to be removed by surgery.

Six years later, it's funny. That's what happens when your children grow beyond their teens and go off to live with other people. The rare get-togethers are occasions for great merriment, for some tenderness and for making the old days good.

They were good, and so was the vacation. No matter how much The Old Grouch gripes, his kids know he'd rather be with them than with an automatic ice maker, and he knows they know it.

Community Chest asks for support

Editor:

The East Jordan Community Chest Drive will soon be underway again. We can help by supporting worthy agencies through the East Jordan Community Chest in conjunction with the United Way of Michigan.

By giving your fair share we can help with those less fortunate than us. The East Jordan Community Chest has done a tremendous job in the past and hope to do as well this year.

We wish to thank each and every one who so faithfully in past years contributed so generously.

Our goal this year is $14,000. With the help of everyone we will be able once again to reach 100 percent of our set goal.

We are in dire need of volunteers to participate in our fund drive. Anyone wishing to donate some time to helping with our drive this year please contact Delia Dixon (536-2173) secretary, or Walter Goebel (536-2924) president.

The United Way helps numerous agencies – local, state and national. Some of the local agencies are: Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Big Sisters Big Brothers, Bergman Center, Area Mental Health, Little League, Drug Awareness, Salvation Army, American Red Cross.

State agencies include: Arthritis Foundation, Child and Family Services, Children's Leukemia, Epilepsy, Kidney Foundation, Leader Dogs, Better Hearing & Speech, Association for Retarded Citizens, Crime & Delinquency, National Council on Alcoholism, Heart Association, League for Human Services, Mental Health, Multiple Sclerosis and Cerebral Palsy.

National agencies are American Social Health Association, Jackson Laboratory (Health Research), National Council on Alcoholism, National Urban League and United Service Organization (U.S.O.)

Our kickoff drive will be Oct. 1

Davis opposed to use of gill nets, vows action if elected

Sen. Bob Davis, candidate for the 11th Congressional District seat, said he is opposed to anyone being allowed to fish with gill nets, and will introduce legislation in the U.S. Congress to abrogate the Indian Treaties of 1836 and 1855.

To provide yet another alternative, Davis said he will sponsor a separate bill to negotiate a cash settlement compensating for the loss of unlimited hunting and fishing rights which the Indians say these treaties grant them.

"In the mid-1800's, when these treaties were written, there were no fish and game regulations. Since that time, however, we have learned that our natural resources must be managed in order to be maintained. Sports fishermen pay to restock our waters through their license fees," Davis pointed out. "The federal government pays in only about one-tenth of what the state pays to maintain this fish supply. The sports fishermen have rights which must be guaranteed also."

Gill nets, which Indian commercial fishermen have continued to use despite a 1974 Michigan law banning them, are composed of a very fine clear nylon thread. They are extremely strong and are capable of lifting many hundreds of pounds of fish at a time.

"Gill nets are not selective as to species and retard efforts to maintain endangered fish populations. Neither are gill nets selective as to the size of fish taken," Davis explained. "Many fish are taken before they are matured, which disrupts the total management program. We certainly don't want to see the day when fish in the Great Lakes are as rare as buffalo on the prairie."

Davis said he would also actively support a bill which has been introduced in Congress by John Dingell, giving each state the right to manage and protect its own resources.

Lotte thought I was an introvert

My Aunt Lotte said to me the other day, "Boy, you certainly have changed since you were a child. You used to be so shy and introverted, you wouldn't say butter if it melted in your mouth. Why, I couldn't get you to say two words to me."

My mind went back to the days as a child and in my defense I have to say that children would love to talk. They really would. It's just that the questions adults ask them are tough. I defy any adult to answer some of them.

She's the aunt who used to come into a room and upon noticing me would stoop down and ask, "Where did you get those blonde curls?"

(I'd think, "Oh boy, here we go again. That's got to be one of those inherited trait questions with the genes and chromosomes. Maybe I'll just spit on my handkerchief and twist it around my tooth and she'll go away.")

"What's the matter?" she pursued. "Has the cat got your tongue?"

("Where does she come up with this stuff? Besides, that is the most gross idea I've ever heard. Oh, oh, here she comes again.")

"You're not talking to Aunt Lotte. Do you want Aunt Lotte to cry?"

("What kind of a question is that! Good heavens, she's putting her face in her hands and going boo-hoo.")

"Talk to Aunt Lotte. What are you going to be when you grow up?"

("Good grief. I can't wash my hands without standing on a stool and she wants to know what my goals are.")

"Would you look at that pout? Do you want your face to freeze that way?"

("She's always asking that and I haven't heard of a single case of frozen face since I was born.")

"Do you know what I think is wrong with you, missy" I think you need a N-A-P."

("Why doesn't she just come right out and say it. She's always spelling in front of me. Last time she misspelled overbite...put a Y in it."

Aunt Lotte jarred me back to reality with, "Would you like me to give you a penny for your thoughts?"

"Aunt Lotte," I said, "with the present devaluation of our currency 1/100 of a dollar is barely sufficient for remuneration for my reflections. Frankly; I can get more with mass syndication distribution."

Aunt Lotte said, "I liked you better when you sat there like a stick."

A review of The Thorn Birds

What is it about human frailty that makes us cheer when a hero of awesome consequence bends to err?

I am always relieved when the main character in a novel I'm reading reveals even a momentary glimpse of his tragic flaw. Perhaps this is due to the vulnerability that riddles my own character, but it still makes me feel better. Just so the icon doesn't crumble altogether. That's degradation.

So it was with Ralph de Bricassart, the almost-impeccable saintly cleric of "The Thorn Birds." I found myself admiring his strength, forgiving his weakness und you're right, nearly pulling for his degradation.

Whereas Ralph deplores his own personal shortcomings, Meggie Cleary, his counterpart, would like to chuck her pride and become vulnerable for that classic raison-d'etre – an undying love for her man. Unfortunately she doesn't get much co-operation. But not unfortunate in another sense. Her plight exists for the sake of a good story. Pride and acceptance and the interaction of these two main characters, sustain the reader through three generations and make it possible for "The Thorn Birds" to have netted nearly six million copies in print as of the September issue of "Bookviews."

The skeletal plot is uncomplicated. The Clearys, an industrial New Zealand family, emigrate to Australia where they become the eventual guardians of the family estate, Drogheda. Meggie, the only girl of the family, carries on her life in the tradition of her mother's proud and accepting attitude.

It is at Drogheda, a cultural oasis in the Australian Outback bush country, that Meggie advances in beauty and age if not always in grace. It is here that she comes to terms with her love for the one man who can fulfill her ever-growing need for all that life beyond Drogheda has to offer. And that one man, as destiny would have it, is the victim of his own pride and acceptance along with the obstacle of the irrevocable vow of priestly celibacy.

Ralph and Meggie confront life as parallel lines futily awaiting Divine intersection. It is in the eventual mothering of two children that the circle of life completes itself for Meggie, and inadvertantly for Ralph. Enlightened by the wisdom of age and the workings of circumstances, Meggie, her mother and eventually her daughter all come to grips with the bittersweet message of the legend of the thornbird.

The legend tells of a bird which searches throughout its brief lifespan for the very instrument of its death. It is said to sing only once and more sweetly than any other creature when it finally impales itself on the thorn of a certain tree. The price that Ralph and Meggie and in fact many minor characters in the story must pay for their finest hour, appears to far surpass that which they came to suffer and accept as their lot.

It is interesting to note the preoccupation with the changing face of Catholicism in contemporary literature. We catch a glimpse of that which was sacrilege to mention a generation ago – the fallability of the Church as it pertains to the inherent humanity of her ordained. "Trinity" by Leon Uris and "Final Payments" by Mary Gordon also dare to trespass on that forbidden territory of yesterday. It must be that fascination with the crumbling icon again.

"The Thorn Birds" is not a novel of historical significance, though historical data serves to mark the chronology of the text. I can't say why I subconsciously found myself checking to see if the author was minding her skirt lengths from generation to generation. I can't say why I found Meggie's daughter Justine to be lacking just a little bit of credibility. The fact remains that regardless of any minute flaws the reader might have found disconcerting, Colleen McCullough is a storyteller of the first magnitude and "The Thorn Birds," No. 1 bestseller, is her finest hour.

Lake elevation up over year ago

The elevation for Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of August was about six inches above what it was one year ago and about the same as one month ago. The end of August level of the two lakes was at 578.98 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec.

The August monthly mean level was about four inches above the long-term average and about 24 inches below the all-time monthly mean high for August, which was set in 1973, and about 36 inches above the all-time low August monthly mean set in 1964.

For mariners, the end of August level was 26 inches above chart datum.

The six-month forecast of levels for Lakes Michigan-Huron, as contained in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels (a free, on request, graphical presentation of lake levels past, present, and future), shows that the lakes are expected to be above the long-term average level during the next six months.

The forecast shows that at the end of September, Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about two inches below what they were at the end of August.

Custer joins AOMA

Dr. Harry R. Custer has recently become a member of the American Occupational Medical Association.

The American Occupational Medical Association is a professional organization for physicians concerned with the relationship between health and work and the work environment. Its purposes are to further the education and to advance the knowledge and skills of its members.

The association also promotes interest, stimulates research, encourages education, and disseminates information directed toward improvement and conservation of the health of employees. It endeavors to represent the interests of its members in cooperating with industry, labor, government, and other medical organizations on matters pertaining to the health of people who work.

The Association seeks to aid in the placement of job applicants with an acceptable degree of efficiency without hazard to themselves or others. It guides and assists all employees in achieving and maintaining optimal health. It reduces the incidence of illnesses and accidents, provides for the diagnosis and treatment of occupational injuries and illnesses, promotes maximal rehabilitation of all employees and to aid in the assessment of the work and community environment and control of hazard to health.

Boosters plan sale

The Charlevoix Band Boosters will be holding a bake sale on Saturday - Sept. 30, 1978 at both Glens Market and Oleson's beginning at 9 a.m.

The money being raised will go to help pay for a trip the marching band is taking to Northern Michigan University on Oct. 14 to perform in their halftime show.

CETA jobs continue

Present Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) jobs in Charlevoix County will probably continue through the next several months.

Helen Phillips, assistant director of the Public Program Administration for the county, reports she anticipates sufficient funds will be allocated to cover the salaries of the workers.

There are CETA employees in most branches of county government, the schools, cities, some townships, health agencies, and courts.

CETA funds are appropriated by the federal government and are funneled through the state and a consortium made up of 10 northwestern Michigan counties.

Between November, 1974, when the CETA project started, and April, 1978, Charlevoix County received $1,455,261 to fund CETA jobs.

UMW plans luncheon

The United Methodist Women in Norwood will have a salad casserole luncheon Wednesday, Oct. 4 from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. at the school house.

A bake sale will also be held.

Price for the luncheon is $2.

Chamberlain cited

James H. Brickley, running mate of Gov. William Milliken in November, was the featured speaker Saturday at a dinner honoring newly-registered surveyors in Michigan.

Brickley spoke on "The Value of Professionalism."

Among the 63 to receive certificates from the Michigan Board of Registration for Land Surveyors was Sherman A. Chamberlain, who is a surveyor for Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Company.

Health agencies plan joint meet

The Northern Michigan Health Systems Agency and Northern Michigan District Health Departments will be holding joint meetings to receive community input for health planning in northern Michigan.

The public hearings are important in the planning process for the Health Systems Plan and in gathering the preliminary list of Health Problems of Michigan as an element in implementing the new health code of the state of Michigan.

Interested individuals are urged to participate in this joint effort to inform and receive input from northern Michigan residents in regards to health care.

Locally, a public hearing is scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 28 in Petoskey. The hearing will be held at the Michigan Consolidated Gas Company on US-31. The hearing will be from 7:30 p.m. until 9 p.m.

Leaves of bright red, yellow and gold form a patchwork quilt of autumn color that is at its vivid best on biking trails and bike paths in city parks and urban nature centers, reports Automobile Club of Michigan.

Animals at the state's many fine municipal zoos can be a little friskier with the arrival of autumn's cooler temperatures. Arboretums, scenic gardens and island parks within city limits or easily accessible to urban dwellers become a riot of color at this time of year.

The Detroit Zoo is a lush, wooded sanctuary for people and animals alike. Visitors in autumn will find the colorful fall foliage an attractive backdrop for photographing some 500 species of mammals, including the largest collection of polar bears in captivity.

Lansing's Potter Zoo on the banks of the Red Cedar River is another favorite spot for fall color watchers, while visitors to Clinch Park Zoo at Traverse City see not only animals native to Michigan but also beautiful Grand Traverse Bay — at its sparkling best.

Deer, timber wolves, coyotes, bear cubs and a bobcat are the animal attractions at the zoo on Marquette's Presque Isle Park. Perhaps an even bigger lure is the riot of color awaiting motorists on a drive through the heavily forested peninsula jutting into Lake Superior.

At the 90-acre Fernwood Inc., near Niles, visitors who take the half-mile, 45-minute, self-guided nature trail can see 88 different ferns, a rock and bog garden and native trees in varying hues of crimson and gold.

Ann Arbor's Nichols Arboretum is a 138-acre tract of land situated along the Huron River in the center of town, and a winding trail leads hikers through lush foliage of rainbow colors.

Five miles of self-guided nature trails await fall color watchers at the Carl G. Fenner Arboretum in Lansing, where all the trees are labeled for easy identification. Battle Creek's Leila Arboretum contains not only native Michigan trees but many rare plantings on its 205-acre tract.

Combine fall color viewing with bird watching at the Wildfowl Sanctuary in Alpena, where a nickel buys corn from a machine to feed the ducks. Kensington Metropark near Milford is a photographer's dream. Its scenic overlooks capture a panorama of Canada geese swooping gracefully over lakes bordered by foliage in glorious color.

Two well-known Michiganians are responsible for the lush gardens which are among the state's most famous. The Gardens of Cranbrook surround the family home of publisher George G. Booth in Bloomfield Hills, near Pontiac. Dow Gardens at Midland were started in 1899 by Dow Chemical Co. founder Herbert H. Dow.

Some city-owned island parks give visitors a chance to combine fall color viewing with ship-watching. Bell Isle in the Detroit River and Ojibway Island in the Saginaw River are tree-lined with paths for walking and benches for sitting while watching giant freighters or pleasure boats pass.

Best color viewing in Michigan this year will be Sept. 22 to Oct. 15 in the Upper Peninsula and in the Lower Peninsula north of a line from Ludington to Standish. Advancing south to a line from Muskegon to Port Huron, fall color is at its peak in Michigan's mid-section Oct. 6-22. Extreme southern Michigan will have its best color viewing Oct. 13-22.

The fall color schedule was earlier the past couple of years because of lengthy summer dry spells, but with better rainfall last spring it is almost back on target.

Rain — or the lack of it — plays a major role in fall color. Chlorophyll, one of the many kinds of coloring matter in trees, makes it possible for trees to absorb energy from sunlight and turn carbon dioxide and water into sugars and starches. It is those sugars that help create the trees' colorful pigments.

Chlorophyll keeps leaves green but with less water in the soil, less of the chemical forms, allowing the other colorful pigments to take over

Antrim board gets grant

The Antrim County Board of Commissioners has received a $111,312 grant from the State Commission on Services to the Aging.

The grant, awarded under the Community Nutrition Services Program, will be used to provide a hot meal and other services to the elderly in Antrim, Emmet, and Charlevoix counties during the next fiscal year, Oct. 1 through Sept. 30, 1979.

The county board has been authorized to serve 307 meals each weekday by the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging, the agency that administers the statewide program. The meals will be served in 12 different locations.

Funded primarily by Title VII of the Older Americans Act, the nutrition program provides senior citizens, especially those with low incomes and minority persons, with a hot meal and other services in a congregate setting.

Any person age 60 and older, and their spouse regardless of age, is eligible to participate in the Community Nutrition Services Program. There is no charge for the meal or services, however, contributions are accepted and used to purchase other meals and services.

Nursing conference slated for Oct. 6

One hundred nurses from all over northern Michigan are expected to attend the first annual fall nursing conference on Oct. 6, sponsored by the nursing department of Northern Michigan Hospitals, Inc., and the Northern Tri-County District Nurses Association.

"The conference is being presented," says Sheron Chishold, R.N., a clinical specialist at Northern Michigan Hospitals, Inc., "to help nurses increase their awareness of professionalism."

"We're trying to encourage nurses to feel a greater sense of accountability for their professional practice," said Amelia Barbus, assistant vice president, patient services. "We want to hear about the latest trends in nursing, especially about the increasing numbers of independent nursing practitioners."

Nurses everywhere, she added, "need to feel an identity with their profession and with their colleagues. We need to speak the same language and, through such dialogue, continue to explore new rules and new ways to better serve people."

Practitioners and students from Grayling to Alpena to Sault Ste. Marie have been invited to the day-long conference, which will be at the Petoskey Holiday Inn.

The topic of the conference, "Nursing: Where is it going?" will be emphasized by three nationally known speakers.

Mildred Gottdank, R.N., M.S.N., professor of nursing at Wayne State University will discuss, "Where are We and Where are We Going: Current Issues and Trends" from 9 to 11 a.m.

Lorene Fischer, R.N., M.S.N. dean of nursing at Wayne State University, will discuss "A Few Notes of Caution Before You Begin; Socialization of Nurses and Developing a Positive Approach to Relationships," from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

Doris Slater-Stewart, R.N., M.S.N., associate professor of nursing at Wayne State University, will speak on "Directions In Nursing: Applications of Mental Health Theory to Clinical Practice," from 2:45 to 4:30 p.m.

The nursing staff of Northern Michigan Hospitals, Inc has outlined six objectives for this first nursing conference:

–Describe the meaning of current trends of nursing and society

–Predict the status of future issues and their possible effects on nursing practice

–Determine factors that promote sound relationship with health professionals

–Identify practices useful for maintaining workable relationships

–Develop strategies for applying mental health concepts to clinical practice

–Propose a plan of action for implementing components of professionalism into daily practice

Enrollment in the conference is limited to 100 persons. The fee: $12 for Michigan Nursing Association members, $18 for non-members, and $7 for students, includes lunch, coffee breaks and printed material. Students may also pay $3, which does not include lunch.

Those interested should contact Sheron Chisholm at the Department of Nursing Service, Northern Michigan Hospitals, Inc., 416 Connable Ave., Petoskey, on or before September 29

Richards host seniors

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Richards were host to the Senior Citizens Sleepy Hollow Park gang at their home in Meadow Lane for the last picnic of the summer season, on Saturday, Sept. 16.

Those present comprised most of the Charlevoix contingent at the park in Zephryhills, Florida: Jule and Helen Guild, Ted and Myrtle Kibbe, Clyde and Anna Warner, Charles and Alice Beltinger, Roy and Elsie Bennett, Arthur and Bernice Wexstaff, Betty Burns and Florence Moeller joined out hosts for a final get-together before joining the park "family" later in the fall.

The next get together will be held at Hillsborough State Park north of Tampa. The time will be decided when all the Charlevoix contingent has returned to the Florida resident park for the winter.

Millie Brown and Morion Beatty at Guild meeting.

Women's Guild reports contributions to hospital

The Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Area Hospital purchased $8,362 worth of equipment for the hospital during the 1977-78 year Mrs. William Squire of Boyne City, Guild president, reported at the annual meeting of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Association held recently.

The purchases included an ultra-sound machine, diathermy unit and a micro-wave oven.

The report revealed that Showcase sales for the year totaled $6,711 and expenditures $4,899 resulting in a net profit of $1,811. The Guild also had an inventory of $3,197 in preparation for the 1978 Pre-Christmas sale scheduled for Nov. 8-9.

Receipts for TV rentals amounted to $5,071 and expenditures $1,632 including repairs, cables and refunds for a profit of $3,438.

Gifts and memorials brought in another $118 while $138 was spent for magazines subscriptions for use of patients.

The Guild sponsors Expectant Parents Class which grossed $506 in fees with expenditures for the instructor, Lou Ann Henry, totaling $504

New and continuing nursing scholarships accounted for an expenditure of $600.

During the year, the local Guild hosted the spring meeting of the North Central Michigan Association of Hospital Auxiliaries at the Argonne with 131 members attending.

The annual membership meeting was launched last week with a membership gathering at the lounge of the LaCroft condominium The 1978-79 membership drive is expected to top the 1977-78 drive which brought in 206 members including three life members. The revenue from memberships was $522.

The Guild is presently working toward raising $15,000 over the next five years to meet its obligation to the Charlevoix Area Hospital renovation and expansion project.

The Women's Guild is a service organization dedicated to supporting the Charlevoix Area Hospital through a number of volunteer services.

Mrs. Boak celebrates 89th birthday

Mrs. Pauline Boak celebrated her 89th birthday anniversary at a party held at Grandvue Medical Care Facility where she had been a patient for the past year.

Joining her for the occasion were her younger brother, William Meyer, her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hilda Meyer, her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Smith, Mrs. Walter Jarvis and Mr. and Mrs. Pete Scott. She was presented with gifts of candy and flowers.

Mrs. Boak, the former Pauline Meyer, was born in Germany Sept. 15, 1889, and came to this country as a child. Her parents settled in Chicago. Like children everywhere, she was the first to learn to speak English so, at the age of 10 years, practically operated the neighborhood store because she was the only one in the family who could converse with the customers. In 1916 the family moved to Charlevoix and operated a saloon at the site of the present Wharf Party Store. The family lived at 204 May St. at the corner of East Upright St.

She was married to Mr. Boak in Charlevoix. They later lived in Petoskey where he was employed at what is now the Penn-Dixie Co. In 1931 they moved to Chicago. Following Mr. Boak's death in 1971, Mrs. Boak returned here to make her home at the Hillcrest Apartments, where she lived until health problems made it necessary for her to enter the Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Warning

Infant exposure to honey can be health hazard

Infant exposure to honey can cause crib death says officials from the local health department. Honey may contain botulism spores which, under some conditions may produce the poison that sometimes causes deadly botulism infection.

The worlds largest honey producer, Sioux Honey Association of Sioux City, Iowa, issued a press release in July of 1978 which stated that there is "...the possibility of a risk factor in feeding any raw agricultural product, including honey, to infants under one year old."

According to a report issued originally by the California Department of Health Services, "...only honey was found to contain clostridium botulism organisms." These botulinal organisms have been truced directly to 13 documented cases of infant botulism in California.

Of over 60 honey specimens tested in California, about 13 percent have contained C botulinum. In addition, the Microbial Diseases Laboratory's initial finding that some honey specimen's contain C botulinum has been confirmed independently by four laboratories in other parts of the United States.

Botulism spores are found in dust and soil, but do not become harmful until put under vacuum conditions. Canned vegetables, for example, are heated to destroy the botulism spores that may be in the food.

Research by the California Department of Health suggests botulism spores may produce a bacterlain which produces deadly botulism poisoning in the intestines of infants.

Honey may account for less than one-third of all California cases of infant botulism, there are many other factors involved with infant botulism. Since honey is not an essential infant food, Dr. James T. Harrison, regional medical director for northern Michigan suggests "That honey not be fed to infants under one year of age."

Research on infant botulism casts no doubt on the safety of honey as a food for older children or adults.

HONEY
CAUTION: may be hazardous to your infants health!

Mrs. Farkas installed president of Auxiliary for Shapton Post 226

Mrs. William Farkas, recently installed president of the Auxiliary for the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, named committee chairman for the year at a recent meeting of the group held at the post home.

They are as follows: Mrs. Bertha Sternaman, Americanism; Mrs. Josephine Bindi, Children and Youth committee; Mrs. Lyda Johnson, Communications; Mrs. Bindi, Mrs. Evva Smith and Mrs. Perry Smith, Community Service; Mrs. Gerald Muma, Constitution and By-laws; Mrs. Ray Wood, Education; Mrs. Farkas, Foreign Relations; Mrs. Robert Miller and Mrs. John Curtis, Junior activities; Mrs. Bindi and Mrs. Robert Nowakowski membership; Mrs. Edward P Hansen, National Security; Mrs. Johnson, Poppy; Mrs. Bindi and Mrs. Lester Smith, Veterans Affairs and Rehabilitation; Mrs. Angela Borths, Energy Conservation and Mrs. Clarence Goldstick, historian.

The Auxiliary voted to contribute $350 to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Renovation and Expansion project. Mrs. Donald Trimper had addressed the meeting regarding the expansion plans and the need for it prior to the decision to contribute.

Plans for the Fall Round-up to be held here Sunday, Oct. 1, were formulated. On that date, the local Auxiliary will host members from the 11th District and hear reports on the recent state convention. The meeting will open with a potluck dinner at 1 p.m.

Danya Rothenberger and Pam Hilton who had attended Girls' State under the sponsorship of the local Auxiliary reported on the event at the recent meeting. Mrs. Harry Pearsall who had attended the state meeting as a delegate reported on this event.

A new member, Mrs. George Lockner, was inducted.

Initial plans for a dinner the Auxiliary will serve to the members of the Shrine Band when it presents a concert here next month were made.

Seventeen cards were signed and mail to shut-ins, members who have been ill or who are living away from Charlevoix.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held at the post home Oct. 12. Mrs. Farkas and Mrs. Goldstick will be the hostesses.

New officers were installed at a joint installation on Sept. 9. Mrs. Arminda Burns of Petoskey was the installing officer.

Registration held for cub scouts

The Cub Scout Roundup was held Thursday night at the elementary school. Present was Jeff Conway, area executive director of scouting, who discussed cub scouts and what it means to be a cub scout.

Binsfield to speak on violence

State representative Connie Binsfield will speak before the Charlevoix Council of Social Agencies on Sept. 29, at noon, at the Weathervane Restaurant.

Mrs. Binsfield will talk about "Domestic Violence", a subject in which she is well versed since she is the prime mover behind recent Michigan legislation to establish shelters for abused wives.

The speaker is serving her second term as the Republican state representative from the 104th District. In the Legislature, she is presently serving on five standing committees: vice-chairman of Mental Health; member of House Policy, Marine Affairs, Public Health, and Tourist Industry Relations.

Mrs. Binsfield was named Michigan Mother of the Year in 1977. At home, she serves as a member of the Traverse City Osteopathic Hospital Corporation, the Traverse City Osteopathic Steering Committee Building Fund, Traverse City Industrail Fund, and the Corporate Body of the Traverse Area Foundation, Inc. She is the mother of five grown children. Her husband, John, is a professional engineer.

Rayder winning streak snapped, Gaylord claims 14-7 victory

GAYLORD – Charlevoix's 16 game winning streak was snapped Friday night by conference rival Gaylord.

The Blue Devils recorded a 14-7 victory over the Rayders to improve its record to 3-0 in pigskin play. Charlevoix dropped to 2-1. It was the conference copener for both teams.

For the most part, the game was dominated by the defenses. Charlevoix could only garner 109 yards in total offense. Gaylord managed 193 yards.

Gaylord started the game as if it was going to blow Charlevoix right off the field. On Gaylord's first play from scrimmage, Blue Devil quarterback Doug Fleming teamed with Rich Grzelewski on a 60 yard pass play. Grzelewski was tackled on the one yard line. But, on the following play, Fleming fumbled and the Rayders recovered, thus stopping Gaylord's early advance.

Charlevoix finally put together a sustained drive early in the second quarter. Junior running back Bob Russell powered his way into the end zone from the one yard line to put the Rayders on top. Scott Morgan kicked the extra point and it was 7-0.

But the lead was short lived.

Gaylord came storming back. Speedy halfback Doug Mead circled right end and scampered 54 yards down the sidelines and, after Eric Kehler converted, the score was knotted 7-7.

That's the way it stood until the third quarter when the Blue Devils pushed across their second score of the night. Junior Scott Hanson got the six points on a three yard run. Kehler again added the point after.

Charlevoix, trying to play catch-up, moved the ball into Gaylord territory in the game's final minutes. But the Blue Devil defense stiffened and held off the Rayder rally.

Charlevoix's ground game was stopped in its tracks by Gaylord. Russell finished with 57 yards in 23 carries to lead the ground-gainers. Craig Boss had 23 yards in eight carries.

Quarterback Gil Noirot, under heavy pressure most of the night, completed three of six passes for 32 yards. Senior end Pat Schmidt hauled in all three passes.

For Gaylord, Mead ended up with 84 yards in 12 carries, but take away the 54 yard jaunt and the Rayders held him in gear. Fleming was two of seven passing for 62 yards.

The Rayders will try and get back on the winning track Friday when they host always tough Cheboygan. The Chiefs are 3-0 on the season.

Flag football gets underway

The flag football season got underway in Charlevoix last week and the Dolphins, Chargers, Cowboys, Bucs, and Rams opened with victories.

In the senior league, The Cowboys blitzed the Vikings 35-9. The Cowboys jumped out to a 19-0 halftime lead. Dave Batdorff passed three yards to Tim LaBlance. Todd DeLong passed 30 yards to LaBlance and LaBlance scored from one yard out. LaBlance also added an extra point.

Each team scored nine points in the third quarter. The Cowboys scoring on a 12 yard pass from DeLong to LaBlance with LaBlance adding the extra point and then Bill Dohm got credit for a safety. For the Vikings, Jeff Reynolds got a safety and Chris Putman scored on a three yard run. Steve Keller added the extra point.

The Cowboys closed out the scoring with a touchdown in the final quarter as LaBlance passed 27 yards to DeLong. LaBlance added the extra point.

The Bucs handled the Raiders 12-2. The Bucs scored all their points in the third quarter as Brent Cole passed to Neil LaCroix for a 34 yard tally and then Cole scored on a one yard run.

The Raiders lone points came on a safety credited to Richard Bartz in the fourth quarter.

In the other senior league contest, the Rams beat the Patriots 20-6.

The Patriots scored first as Jeff Trimper passed 22 yards to John Pearl. The Rams bounced back on 19 and 23 yard touchdown passes from Jeff Klooster to Chuck Klooster, a 35 yard run by Dean Kerridge and a safety recorded by Thad Morgan.

In junior league competition, the Chargers blanked the Steelers 14-0.

The Chargers scored on a seven yard pass from Jody Putman to Brian Wilmott and a 17 yard run by Putman. Matt Lignell added a safety.

Meanwhile, the Dolphins exploded for a 31-12 win over the Lions.

The Dolphins scored on runs of 25, 11 and 1 by Kevin Pearsall, a 25 yard run by Casey Richardson and an 11 yard pass from Pearsall to Neil Britton. Mark Himbauch added an extra point. For the Lions, Scott Mitchelltree scored on a 35 yard kick-off return and Allen Geer passed 20 yards to Mitchelltree.

JV's lose, 39-6

It was another long Thursday afternoon for the Charlevoix Rayder JV football squad.

The Rayders were humbled by Gaylord, 39-6.

The Blue Devils started the scoring early, registering six points on the first play from scrimmage on a 60 yard run. After a Gaylord safety, Charlevoix got on the board when Jeff Drury passed 30 yards to Mike Zednick. But that was all the scoring Charlevoix could manage.

Gaylord exploded for 31 second half points to drop the Rayders to 1-2 on the season.

For Charlevoix, Scott Golovich, Frank Kaufman, Mike Loper and Jim Knight were cited for their fine play.

Harriers beat Gaylord, Boyne City

The Charlevoix Rayder cross country squad had an easy time of it Tuesday. The Rayders posted wins over Gaylord, 18-43, and Boyne City, 16-47.

Jeff Drenth took first place honors in the meet with a time of 16:25. Mark Russell finished second, 22 seconds behind Drenth.

Charlevoix had seven finish in the top 10. Jay Swartout came in fourth, 17:16, Jeff Landon, fifth, 17:23; Brian Thompson, seventh, 18:12; John Bradley, ninth, 18:28; and John Fiedorek, tenth, 18:36.

The Rayders also won the junior varsity contest against Gaylord, 17-42. Clay Patrie took first with a time of 18:15. Jim Duke came in second with a time of 18:35, Jim Landon, third, 19:19; and Steve Mielke, fourth, 19:58.

BOARD OF APPEALS
SEPTEMBER 18, 1978

The Board of Appeals convened with Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, and Timms present. Absent: None.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the proposed 56 unit Charlevoix Apartments Complex at the Frank Smith property on May Street. David Strawbridge, Chairman of the Planning Commission was present and reported on the Commission's recommendations regarding the project. John Michael, attorney for Frank Smith, presented maps showing the property involved and stated that Mr. Smith would retain one 67 x 150 foot parcel of the land. Ken Staley, a member of the Planning Commission, presented a list of signatures of property owners in the area of the proposed project who are in favor of such a development.

Moved by Alderman Timms and supported by Alderman Muma that the following property be rezoned from R-1 to R-4 to allow construction of the proposed Charlevoix Apartments as applied for by the Economic Development Group, a Michigan Co-Partnership, Suite 222 Plaza, No., Fashion Sq. Blvd., Saginaw, Mi., provided such construction commences within six months from this date or the property will revert to its original zoning status.

Franklyn W. Smith Property – Deed Liber 210, Page 296, less 1 exception.

In the city of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan Commencing at an iron stake at the Northwestern corner of Section 35, Township 34 North, Range 8 West; thence East along the North line of said section 1117 feet; thence South 183 feet to the point of beginning of this description; thence West 105 feet; thence South 147 feet; thence West 187 feet to a point being 825 feet (50 rods) East of the West line of said section; thence South 330 feet (20 rods); thence East 462.00 feet to the West eighth line of said section; thence North along said West eighth line 264.00 feet; thence West parallel with said North section line 183 feet; thence North parallel with said West eighth line 126 feet; thence West 20 feet; thence North 87 feet to the point of beginning; being a part of the Northwest Quarter of the Northwest Quarter of Section 35, Township 34 North, Range 8 West. Subject to the rights of the public and of any governmental unit in any part thereof taken, used or deeded for street, road or highway purposes.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Porter ansd supported by Alderman Plumm that the variance to decrease the density requirement for the Charlevoix Apartments from 54.5 units to 56 units be allowed. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Porter that the variance requested by the Charlevoix Apartments project to reduce the required number of square feet for a one bedroom apartment from 780 to 621 be allowed. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Muma and supported by Alderman Timms to approve the variance requested by the Charlevoix Apartments project decreasing the number of parking spaces required from 2.5 to 2 per unit. Motion was denied by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Muma and Timms. Nays: Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Whitley, and Porter. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Timms and supported by Alderman Plumm that the south side yard set-back for Charlevoix Apartments be reduced to 5' to allow the parking of vehicles, with the remaining 5' to be used as a green belt. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Porter and supported by Alderman Wood that all variances granted to the proposed Charlevoix Apartments be granted on the condition that the project be properly drained and that all run-off be self-contained. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Mayor Supernaw initialed the Site Plan as presented for the Charlevoix Apartments to be henceforth known as Exhibit A.

A Public Hearing was held to discuss the 42 unit complex proposed by the Henry J. Spieker Company for Senior Citizens Housing. The project would require a re-zoning of the property, a variance in the set-back requirements, and a variance of the required square footage per unit. Several members of the General Public present expressed their opinions for and against the proposed project. Ralph McRae of the Charlevoix Housing Commission stated that the Commission objects to Mr. Spieker's plan due to its multiple story construction and the fact that the laundry facilities are in a separate building. Mayor Supernaw stated that in addition to Mr. Spieker's plan and the plan being worked on by the Housing Commission, he has been advised that a third plan for elderly housing is being initiated. Therefore, the Board of Appeals agreed to table the Spieker Company request for re-zoning and variances for two weeks to allow them time to study the merits of each plan and assure the City of the best possible elderly housing.

The Board of Appeals adjourned.

CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

SEPTEMBER 18, 1978
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding. Alderman present: Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, and Timms. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the September 5, 1978 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Council discussed a letter from Jo Ann Elzinga, Charlevoix Township Clerk, stating that the Township would not commit themselves to supplying water to the Mt. McSauba Ski Project at this time. She also stated that supplying water for a snow making machine could possibly jeopardize the Township residential water supply. Mayor Supernaw and the City Manager agreed that the Township may be under the impression that the City expected the water to be supplied free of charge; and, they agreed to send a letter to the Township stating that the City fully intends to pay for the water and inquiring as to the exact rate the City would be charged.

At the request of Charlevoix Products Company and Charlevoix Manufacturing Company, Council discussed the Industrial Facilities Tax Exemption, a program designed to encourage expansion of those industries presently in the area and to encourage new industry to locate here.

Moved by Alderman Wood and supported by Alderman Porter to authorize the City Attorney and the City Manager to secure forms and information regarding the formation of an Industrial Zone for tax relief purposes. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yes: Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Timms that the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix hereby appropriates $4,725. of Anti-Recession monies received to be used to help meet the Police Department payroll for the month of October, 1978. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjourned to the Board of Appeals.

Following the Board of Appeals meeting, roll call of the Council was again taken with all Council members being present.

Exit Alderman Whitley.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the adoption of Ordinance No. 371, an Ordinance to adopt the Uniform Traffic Code.

Moved by Alderman Porter and supported by Alderman Wood that the following Ordinance be adopted.

ORDINANCE NO. 371

The City of Charlevoix ordains:

The Uniform Traffic Code for cities, townships and villages promulgated by the Commissioner of State Police on February 14, 1958 and published in Supplement No. 13, and as amended both on February 14, 1961 and published in Supplement No. 25, and on February 26, 1968 and published in Supplement No. 54, and on August 4, 1976 and published in Supplement No. 88, to the 1954 Michigan Administrative Code, in accordance with Public Act 62 of 1956, State of Michigan, is hereby adopted by reference as in this ordinance modified.

The City Clerk shall publish this ordinance in the manner required by law and shall at the same time publish a supplementary notice stating forth the purpose of the said Uniform Traffic Code and of the fact that complete copies of the Code are available at the office of the Clerk for inspection by and distribution to the Public at all times.

All other ordinances inconsistent with the provisions of the Uniform Traffic Code are, to the extent of such inconsistency, hereby repealed.

The Uniform Traffic Code will be in effect in this governmental unit on January 1, 1979.

Adopted: September 18, 1978

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $265,892.10 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed. Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Timms that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council acknowledged receipt of the Planning Commission minutes dated August 28, 1978 and Sept. 11, 1978

Ordinance was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Muma, Porter and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None: Alderman Whitley.

Enter Alderman Whitley.

Moved by Alderman Porter and supported by Alderman Wood that the city accept the proposal presented by Boss Engineering Company, Inc. to provide the engineering and supervisory services necessary to complete the renovation of the Mt. McSauba Ski Hill facilities provided the proposal meets the criteria for competitive bidding. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen. Plumm, Wood, Muma, Porter, and Timms. Nays: Alderman Whitley. Absent: None.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Alderman Porter and supported by Alderman Plumm.

—RESOLUTION 78-9-2

RESOLVED, that it is hereby deemed advisable to enter into contract with Consumers Power Company, Michigan Consolidated Gas Company Michigan Bell Telephone Company, The Detroit Edison Company, and General Telephone Company, for relay of information regarding proposed excavation by persons, firms, corporations and other entities, in accordance with the terms of the contract heretofore submitted to and considered by this Council; and

RESOLVED, further, that the Mayor and City Clerk be and are authorized and directed to execute such contract on behalf of the City of Charlevoix.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter and Timms. Nay: None. Absent: None.

Davis named county youth coordinator

Mike Davis, who has been the Community Recreation Director for the Boyne City School System for the past three years, will become Youth Activity Coordinator for Charlevoix and Emmet Counties on Oct. 9.

In his new position, Davis will be responsible for implementing the development of recreation programs for children between the ages of 10 and 15 in Charlevoix and Emmet counties. The programs are administered jointly by the Charlevoix and Emmet Departments of Social Services and the Probate Court.

During the past three years, Davis has organized many recreation programs in Boyne City, including the first Michigan High School Athletic Association recongnized volleyball referee's clinic north of Saginaw; Northern Michigan's first soccer clinic for youths and adults; the Twin Valley Men's Independent Basketball League; the Twin Valley Co-ed Volleyball League; and the Northern Michigan Men's Soccer League. He also prepared successful grant applications with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Department of the Interior for the development of Rotary Park in Boyne City as a major recreation center.

"We are extremely pleased to have been able to hire someone of Mike's caliber," says Suzanne Wickert, special services coordinator with the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services.

Davis is 23 years old and lives in Boyne City with his wife, Cathie.

Area athletes continue to shine

Former Charlevoix High School golfers Pat Paul and Chuck Faust continue to play well for the Adrian Bulldog golf team.

In the recent Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association (MIAA) golf tournament at Albion, Paul shot an 80 and Faust an 81 as Adrian tied for fifth place.

Olivet's Randy Reese was the medalist as he shot a 72. Olivet won the tournament.

Meanwhile, John Cinnamon is starting at center for the third year at Kalamazoo College. Cinnamon, a Charlevoix High School graduate, is one of three vets anchoring the offensive line.

Cinnamon is one of 21 lettermen that returned this year.

Hoopsters win third straight

Coach Toni Felter's Rayder basketball team made it three straight Thursday night as the girls defeated Central Lake 44-35.

All three wins have been against non-conference foes. Charlevoix will try and extend its unbeaten string to four Tuesday night when the Rayders travel to Alanson to tangle with the Vikings. The Rayders have beaten Alanson once, 61-19.

Thursday night Charlevoix jumped out to a 10-8 first quarter lead, and then held on. The Rayders had a 19-14 halftime lead and a 29-21 bulge after three quarters.

Sherrie Selissen paced the Rayder attack with 15 points. Melinda Klooster added 11. For Central Lake, Mary Hopp scored 16 points before fouling out early in the fourth quarter.

In the junior varsity contest, Charlevoix downed Central Lake 34-18.

Foot rash is fungus

The term "athlete's foot" was coined by an advertising man in the early 1930s to promote a patent remedy for fungus infections of the foot.

The popular term is a misnomer, says the American Medical Association. You don't have to be an athlete to have a fungus infection of the foot. Anyone can have it.

Some people are more susceptible than others. A man may have the ailment for years and his wife will remain free of it. Doctors know that most of the efforts to prevent athlete's foot – cholorine footbaths at the swimming pool, disposable slippers, boiling of socks, and treatment of shoes – are not helpful. Athlete's foot is almost never "picked up."

The most common form of athlete's foot is that which causes redness, cracks in the skin, itching and burning of the feet, particularly between the toes. The same fungus can cause blister eruptions on the soles of the feet.

Prevention requires that the skin of the feet, especially between the toes, be kept cool and dry. When successfully done, this is more effective than the use of medicated powders, lotions, creams or ointments. Relief may be obtained by simple and bland substances, but a specific approach to treatment will often require the attention of a specialist with laboratory facilities for confirmation. Treatment should be aimed at the type of fungus causing the infection.

Warm, moist skin encourages the growth of all types of fungi. It is difficult to eliminate the fungi entirely, but their effects can be kept under control by keeping the feet cool and dry.

Gun safety tips given

Some millions of American males – along with more than a few females – are taking to the woods this fall, firearms in hand, in search of live targets.

These are the hunters among us.

The American Medical Association has a note of caution for those who are planning a fall safari into the fields and woods in search of birds, small animals, deer and other game.

Before you pull the trigger, know what you're firing at.

The hunter who blazes away at everything that moves is a highly dangerous animal. His quarry might well be another hunter.

Each year several hundred hunters return from fall outings via hearse. Thousands of others return with a load of bird shot or a rifle bullet to be dug out. Behind almost every hunting accident is one cause – carelessness.

Never cross over or through a fence or climb a tree with a loaded gun. It might fall and discharge. Unload first and reload after crossing. Don't shoot at a hard, flat surface. Glancing bullets can carry long distances.

Even a small bore rifle has considerable range. Know where your bullet will stop before pulling the trigger.

Keep guns away from children. Never leave a weapon unattended without unloading it. Store guns and ammunition beyond reach of youngsters, preferably under lock and key.

Always carry a gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle if you stumble. Be sure the barrel is clear of mud, snow or other obstructions. A clogged barrel may burst. Keep the safety catch on until ready to shoot.

Leave your liquor bottle at camp, and wait until you're through the day's hunting and the guns are unloaded to take that first drink.

ORDINANCE NO. 371

The City of Charlevoix ordains:

The Uniform Traffic Code for cities, townships and villages promulgated by the Commissioner of State Police on February 14, 1958 and published in Supplement No. 13, and as amended both on February 14, 1961 and published in Supplement No. 25, and on February 26, 1968 and published in Supplement No. 54, and on August 4, 1976 and published in Supplement No. 88, to the 1954 Michigan Administrative Code, in accordance with Public Act 62 of 1956, State of Michigan, is hereby adopted by reference as in this ordinance modified.

The City Clerk shall publish this ordinance in the manner required by law and shall at the same time publish a supplementary notice stating forth the purpose of the said Uniform Traffic Code and of the fact that complete copies of the Code are available at the office of the Clerk for inspection by and distribution to the Public at all times.

All other ordinances inconsistent with the provisions of the Uniform Traffic Code are, to the extent of such inconsistency, hereby repealed.

The Uniform Traffic Code will be in effect in this governmental unit on January 1, 1979.

Adopted: September 18, 1978

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to the provisions of Act 62 of the Public Acts of 1956, State of Michigan, the Uniform Traffic Code for cities, townships and villages was adopted by reference by the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix on the 18 day of September, 1978.

The purpose of such Code is to regulate the operation of vehicles, to provide for the regulation and use of streets, highways and alleys and other public and semi-public places within the City of Charlevoix and to provide penalties for the violation of said Code.

Complete copies of the Uniform Traffic Code are available at the office of the City Clerk for inspection by and distribution to the public at all times.

No further or additional publication of the Uniform Traffic Code is required or contemplated.

School plans open house

The Charlevoix Middle School "Walk Through" originally scheduled for Thursday night has been temporarily postponed. According to Principal Vince Chew, the "Walk Through" will be rescheduled for a later date.

The "Walk Through" for parents of high school and elementary students is still on, though.

The high school "Walk Through" is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 3 from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. Parents will meet in the cafeteria at 7 p.m. to receive instructions.

The elementary "Walk Through" is scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 5 from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m.

School officials urge that parents be prompt.

The open house is a means to introduce parents to new teachers and to give them an opportunity to become better acquainted with course content, grading systems and classroom requirements.

ARE YOUR CHILDREN TRULY READY FOR SCHOOL?

With summer vacation nearly over, you have undoubtedly been getting your children ready for the opening of the school year; and by now their clothes, etc., are probably all in order. However, how do they stand on manners, discipline, attentiveness and respect for authority such as the teacher, the bus driver, the crossing guard, etc? If you have trained them properly, they should rate at least a passing grade in all these things. The school should not have to do your job of imposing discipline to keep order in the classroom. The Sunday school at the Church of your choice can be of great help in teaching your children the good conduct they will need in the regular school or indeed, everywhere in life.

Golfers upend Petoskey

The Charlevoix Red Rayder golf team scored an impressive win over arch-rival Petoskey Monday afternoon.

The Rayders beat the Northmen 155-186.

Pacing the Rayder attack were Mike Custer and Bob Ranger. Custer and Ranger each shot a 36 to share medalist honors. Mark White had a 41 and Roxy VanLoo had a 42.

For Petoskey, who played without the services of Dave Poquette (illness), George Golan and Jim Wareck each shot a 45, Jim Peterson had a 47 and Dan Kolinski had a 49.

Charlevoix will be back in action Thursday traveling to Gaylord.

Meet Charlevoix

Corrine Russell

Corrine Russell is a radio communications officer for the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and wears the uniform of that department. This week she tells the Courier about her job and her other interests.

COURIER: How long have you been on this job, and what did you do before coming here?

RUSSELL: I've been here seven years. Before that I was a hall guard in the middle and elementary schools, and before that I did babysitting in my home. I had so many children I couldn't go out to work.

COURIER: How did you get this job?

RUSSELL: I heard there were federal funds available and they were hiring people for county work. While getting the application form, a woman standing next to me said, "Why don't you go to the sheriff's department. They're looking for a dispatcher." Joe Etienne, who was then a deputy sheriff, was my next door neighbor and I talked to him about it. He said, "Why don't you apply?" so then I talked to Sheriff Philo Sumner. He told me they needed a cook at that time because his wife was in the hospital, and although I was hired as a dispatcher, I started cooking right away and did both jobs for a couple of months.

COURIER: What are your duties now?

RUSSELL: The dispatcher makes radio communication with the cars and send them where they're needed. If a call indicates someone is hurt, we send an ambulance automatically. The sheriff's department also dispatches for East Jordan and the City of Charlevoix evenings and weekends.

I do all sorts of office work – keep records, do the billing and operate the computer. The computer connects with law enforcement agencies all over the United States. We can track down stolen articles – cars, guns, TV's, anything. We get the information on missing persons, wanted persons, and all kinds of state messages, including the weather.

I'm also the matron. I book and print the females who come in, attend to them while they're incarcerated, and escort them in and out of court. I accompany them when they're being moved from one institution to another and when officers talk to them, I sit in on the conversation and take notes.

It's an interesting job and I learn something new each day.

COURIER: Do you get many female prisoners?

RUSSELL: Not too many. A couple of weeks ago we had three at one time who were brought over from Emmet County because their jail was overcrowded. The women were charged with shoplifting.

COURIER: Do you have separate facilities for women?

RUSSELL: We have three cells in a row at one corner of the jail we use for women. We don't really reserve them for women, but if a man is occupying one of them and a woman is brought in, we move him.

COURIER: Do you work full time?

RUSSELL: Yes, Monday through Friday until four o' clock. Marcie Murdoch works from four to twelve and during the day on weekends. However, we're both subject to call at any time.

COURIER: What do you do when you go home at night?

RUSSELL: Prepare meals for my family. – my husband and two teenagers. Robert is 17 and Rene is 15.

COURIER: What about your other children?

RUSSELL: Jerry is 22 and works for the Charlevoix County State Bank, has since he left high school; Edward is 21 and is in his third year of accounting at Central Michigan; Theresa is 19 and is in her second year at Northwest Michigan College in Traverse City, studying to be a medical technician.

COURIER: What does your husband do?

RUSSELL: Robert works at Carson Lumber.

COURIER: Do you have any hobbies?

RUSSELL: I like to snowmobile and ride my bike. I also watch a lot of ball games because all my family plays.

COURIER: Do you belong to any organizations?

RUSSELL: The United Methodist Church – I'm chairman of the Suzanna Wesley Circle – and the Sports Boosters.

Petoskey will be headquarters for Michigan Consolidated Gas

Michigan Consolidated Gas Company today announced new reorganization plans which will consolidate its existing 13 area offices in northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula into seven service regions.

As a result, Petoskey will become the administrative headquarters for the company's newly created north region.

The north region will enable Michigan Consolidated to more effectively serve its 20,000 customers in Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Chippewa counties said Lewis N Case, general manager of the company's northern district. Effective in the fall of 1979, Otsego and Antrim counties will also become part of the north region.

Under the new organizational structure the company's Sault Ste. Marie area office will also report administratively to the regional headquarters in Petoskey.

John N. Heikkinen currently with the company's northern district office at Mt. Pleasant, will head the new regional office effective Dec. 1, Case said.

"These new changes will enable Michigan Consolidated to reduce operating costs, streamline some operations and improve its ability to efficiently serve customers in the entire northern portion of the state," Case said.

"This realignment of boundaries is part of an ongoing effort by Michigan Consolidated to control operating costs while maintaining and improving customer service."

Case said the other six newly designated service regions will be headquartered in Traverse City (northwest region), Alpena (northeast region), Ludington-Manistee (west region), West Branch (east region), Iron Mountain (upper peninsula region), and Mt. Pleasant (south region).

Case said that as part of the reorganization, the utility plans constructions of new, more centrally located administrative offices and service buildings in the Manistee-Ludington area and in West Branch.

The utility's 13 northern district service areas were organized as the company rapidly extended natural gas service into northern Michigan during the 1950's and 1960's. The reorganization announced today, Case said, involved looking at the needs of the entire northern Michigan service area and then restructuring Michigan Consolidated's administrative organization to most efficiently meet those needs.

The plans also anticipate phasing out facilities in Grayling and Tawas following completion of the West Branch service center. The West Branch Center will be designed to serve Iosco, Ogemaw, Roscomton, Crawford and parts of Gladwin counties. Case said no major layoffs of personnel are planned as a result of the reorganization.

Hospital passes campaign goal

Charlevoix Area Hospital's Fund Drive has reached and passed its minimum goal – $750,000 – and is moving rapidly toward $800,000, Board of Directors President Thomas Carey announced yesterday, in a press conference at the hospital.

A jubilant Carey, speaking for everyone who worked on the campaign and thanking them for their dedication, said, "It is very gratifying that we have done so well. This is more than three times the amount of money ever raised in a local fund drive. That is a significant vote of confidence for our hospital.

"It is important and a challenge, now, to continue to solicit funds for this project, because the more that is raised through donations, the less the hospital will have to borrow," Carey pointed out.

"It would be terrific if we could raise another $100,000. I know the potential is awaiting us in the community."

Explaining further why the fund raising efforts will continue, Carey said, "The less we have to borrow the lower our interest payments will be.

"Lower interest payments will help minimize the effect of this project on hospital costs."

Carey was joined by Hospital Administrator Richard Krueger in urging people to keep the momentum going in the fund drive, because "It will show that the people of this hospital's service area value this community hospital. And, of course, the more that is raised through donations the more control we will have on patient costs." will have on patient costs."

Fund raising organizers explained that the campaign reached the $750,000 mark despite the fact that only half the businesses and industries in the area have announced their donations, to date, and many individuals have yet to be solicited.

The campaign offices are being moved to the hospital office buildings, where a core of campaign volunteers have agreed to continue working.

Krueger and Carey explained that the time table for the Expansion and renovation project is aiming at a mid-June date for the start of construction.

Between now and next June the architects working plans will be completed and it is anticipated that bids for construction will be set in late Spring, 1979.

Meanwhile, the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors is also exploring the possibility of direct grants from foundations to help with financing the renovation project.

"Every effort is being made to reduce the total amount we will have to borrow," Krueger explained.

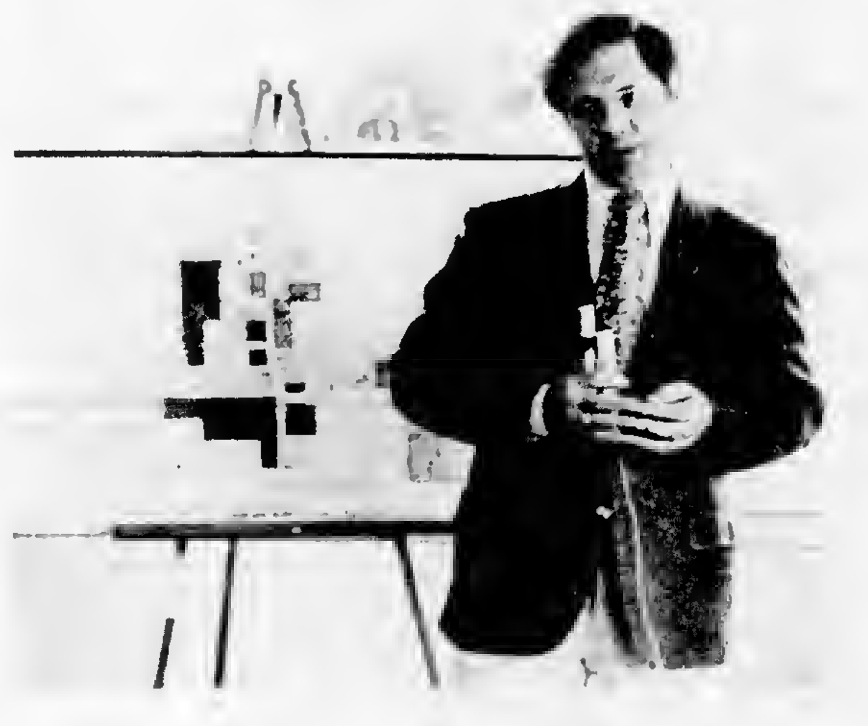
The project is estimated to cost $2.1 million.

Krueger explained that once construction begins the project will take a year and a half to complete. "We will do each section step by step, so that patients and hospital staff will experience minimal inconveniences."

Carey, speaking for the board of directors said, "We have reached the minimum goal and we wish to thank all the volunteers for their continued efforts to follow through to finalize solicitations.

"This has been an area effort and the hospital board wishes to thank all area residents who have thus far participated."

Richard Krueger, Dr. James Gels, Tom Carey and Glenn Kenney.



Richard Krueger

Board looks at budget

The Charlevoix Board of Education took its first long look at the 1978-79 budget that will be presented at a public hearing scheduled for Oct. 16; approved administrators' salaries; heard a progress report on the renovation at the middle school and took action on several other issues at Monday's meeting.

The board reviewed the proposed budget for the current year prior to presenting it at the annual budget hearing. The proposed budget of $2,801,895 represents an increase of 6.5 percent over the 1977-78 audited budget of $2,619,891.

A brief recap shows $1,739,449 earmarked for instruction; $1,012,057 for support and $50,389 for other expenses.

Of the total to support the budget, $2,571,217 will come from local sources, mainly taxes; $154,562, state sources; $71,779, federal sources and $4,337 incoming transfers.

It is expected the budget will be adopted following the formal hearing on Oct. 16

After meeting briefly in executive session Monday night to discuss personnel and administrators salaries, the board returned to the meeting to approve a 6.4 percent salary increase for administrators, i.e., superintendent and principals. Teachers received a seven percent increase in a contract approved last month.

Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren advised the board that the unit ventilators which have been holding up the completion of this year's work at the middle school should be here Wednesday and will be installed as soon as they arrive. The installation of this equipment will complete the work scheduled for 1978.

After hearing of conditions at the high school parking lot, Vincent Olach, business manager, was given the green light to do a limited amount of repair work on the lot. This will include the regrading of the lot and putting in a strip of black-top immediately behind the school.

The millage levy for the Charlevoix Public Library will be 4 mills, the same as that paid by taxpayers in the city of Charlevoix. A decision had been made to levy the entire 5 mill but because Charlevoix taxpayers, who paid 50 percent of their taxes earlier had paid the lesser amount, the proposed increase was dropped.

The request for an easement through property owned by the school district and requested by Michigan Bell was tabled for the time being after discussing the issue with a representative of the company.

Ralph Raymer, Elementary School principal, announced that Tuesday, Oct. 17, has been designated as Grandparents Day at the school. At that time, grandparents of children enrolled in the school are invited to walk through the school and join their grandchildren for lunch in the cafeteria.

A letter from Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Stebbins offering support to the proposed high school building program was read.

Students handbook for the high school and, for the first time, for the middle school, were approved.

Oct. 16 has been scheduled for the next meeting of the board as well as the annual budget hearing.

PUT TO SHAME

Last week's Courier editorial makes me indignant at the editor's remark on the "cautiousness" of our City Council and Charlevoix Housing Commission in considering plans for a senior citizen housing development here. In the same article he cites that they have been studying such a needed development here for five years! How many more years do they need? In the meantime, they have let outside funding and grants pass us by while our neighboring cities have taken advantage and built beautiful and comfortable complexes for their elderly. It would behoove our illustrious Commission members to visit other such developments and glean from their experience rather than spend so much money on developers. Such small cities as Grayling, Baldwin, Boyne City and East Jordan, who have provided beautiful developments, certainly put Charlevoix to shame in caring for their elderly.

Rezoning approved for senior citizen housing on May Street

A proposed 42 unit senior citizen apartment complex moved one step closer to reality Monday night when the Charlevoix Common Council – acting as the board of appeals – agreed to rezone a parcel of property on May Street from R-1 (single family) to R-4 (multiple family).

The property, presently owned by Florence Forbes, is the proposed development site for the apartment complex. The rezoning was asked for by the developers, the Henry J. Spieker Company of Toledo.

Council is giving the developers nine months to get the project underway. If construction does not start within that nine month period, the property will revert back to its former zoning unless the developers are granted an extension.

The developers must still secure financing for the project. Although they were not present last night, the developers have said at past meetings they are working through the Farmers Home Administration. A feasibility study showing housing needs in the city must be undertaken by the developers before financing can be arranged.

Under the proposed plan, the developers would still need a variance in the setback requirements and a variance of the required square footage per unit before proceeding.

When the plan was presented to the board of appeals two weeks ago there was objection to (1) its multi-story construction and (2) the laundry facilities being in a building separate from the living accommodations.

At that meeting two weeks ago, the board of appeals approved a multiple family zone on May Street for low income housing, not far from where the senior citizen project is proposed.

In other action last night:

–Approved a variance for Harold E. Black.

–Agreed to a request from police chief Jack Mol to relocate the police department to the lower level of the city building as long as the refurbishing cost does not exceed $3,500.

–Agreed to obtain building permit for remodeling police department and waive the building permit fee.

–Agreed to raise the equipment rental rate $5 on each item.

–Accepted resignation of George Baldwin from the planning commission.

–Appointed Hill, Woodcock & Distel as auditors.

Color tours Saturday, Sunday

About 200 people spent two hours Saturday afternoon aboard the motorship Beaver Islander enjoying the fall color along the shoreline of Lake Charlevoix.

That was the first of four color cruise tours sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. Two cruises are scheduled for this weekend and, according to Manager Jacquie Merta, tickets are going fast.

The color cruise tours leave from the Beaver Island boat dock at 1 p.m. on both Saturday and Sunday. Tickets are $6. Included in the ticket price are refreshments to be served on board. Tickets are sold in advance and reservations can be made at the chamber of commerce.

The boat has a protected cover and will sail rain or shine.

NOTE: Two weeks ago we showed a picture of the intersection of Bridge and Clinton Streets, taken some time before 1911. There was an overhanging light at the intersection and we inquired if it was only for illumination or a stop and go light. Long-time Charlevoix resident Bernice Waxstaff come up with the answer that it was for illumination. "There were only about six cars in town at that time," she said, "so there was no need for a stop and go light."

A garage can be a multi-purpose building. Not only does it provide protection for a car, it also provides storage space. It is especially convenient if you do a lot of work on your car yourself or if you do a lot of your own landscaping or gardening work. If you have a good size garage to store your tools, it can make things a lot easier. A garage also can be converted into a workshop, especially if you have a hobby that creates a lot of dirt or noise.

Carey named board president

William R. "Bill" Carey, associate broker and manager of the Charlevoix office of Colwell & Co., Realtors, has been named president of the Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors.

Carey's appointment by the directors for the balance of 1978 was prompted by the resignation of Robert F. Wachter, Ski & Shore Properties of Boyne City, who resigned due to reasons of health. Wachter and his wife, Lucy, have since moved to San Antonio, Texas.

Carey formerly served as vice president of the over 200 member board. Martin Bieganowski of Bieganowski & Associates of Boyne City has been appointed to the vice presidency. Other officers of the Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors include F.M. "Hoagy" Meeske of Hank Houd Realty of Bellaire, Treasurer and M. Ethel Wood, William Bradford Scheid Realtors of Charlevoix, secretary. Connie Dawson serves the organization as executive secretary.

School board sifts through resident input after special meeting

Two weeks after voters rejected two bond proposals for expansion and renovation of the high school, the Charlevoix Board of Education called a special meeting to once again discuss the overcrowded conditions at the high school.

The problem, board members say, is that there is not enough room at the high school to accommodate over 600 students. According to Principal Vane Smith, only the shop and home-economics rooms are not being used for general education classes.

About 100 people turned out for the meeting, held in the study hall. And when Max Novak, board president, adjourned the meeting after two and a half hours the board had this to consider:

Buying more portables. This was suggested by Dick Oostermeyer. Business Manager Vince Olach said it would cost about $30,000 to get a portable unit operable; $50,000 if it was to be used for science classes. Olach said a portable unit would last between 10-12 years if it were new. A used portable, he said, might last five-six years.

Board member Connie Pointer said purchasing portables would not solve two problems: 1) the lack of space in the library and 2) the lack of space in the cafeteria. According to school officials, the school needs to seat about 20 more students in the library or possibly lose accreditation and even with three lunch periods not everyone can be seated in the cafeteria.

Starting a sinking fund. This was suggested by Bob Clock. Clock said if the voters would approve one or two mills a year the money could put it into a sinking fund whereby it would collect interest. Therefore, when a building project came up, the district would have ready cash and would not have to borrow or borrow so much. He cited the $2.1 million in interest the district would have had to pay if voters had approved the two proposals last month (totaling $3.2 million).

Building a barebones addition. This was suggested by Robert Timms. Timms brought out the fact that the Littlefield Board of Education is moving forward on plans to add eight classrooms to their present facility at a cost under $1 million. Timms suggested a similar plan be considered, since, he was told, a large share of the cost would be in equipping the rooms. Timms said the funds for equipping the rooms could be sought later.

There were other suggestions, too, like moving the ninth grade to the middle school and the sixth grade to the elementary school or having split sessions at the high school whereby the juniors and seniors would attend classes in the morning and the freshmen and sophomores would attend classes in the afternoon.

The board took no action, but urged residents to keep attending the meetings.

"WE WILL appreciate all the help you can give us" Max Novak, board president

NMU band to perform here, Rayder band in concert

The 110-member Northern Michigan University Marching Band directed by Jerrold M. Michaelson will be in northern Michigan this weekend Gary L. Stutzman, director of bands at the Charlevoix High School has announced.

The Wildcat Marching Band will make its first appearance in the area in a post-game concert following the Charlevoix-Grayling Homecoming game to be played at 8 p.m. The visiting band will replace the Charlevoix Rayder Marching Band in the stands following the latter's halftime show and present a concert immediately following the football game.

Accompanying the band, in addition to Michaelson, will be Stephen Bush, assistant director of band, and Dana Skidmore, field commander of the Wildcat Marching band, the first woman to be accorded this honor at Northern Michigan University.

The Northern Michigan University Color Guard will accompany the band and join in the post-game show.

The second appearance of the Wildcat Band will be at the annual District III, MSBOA-sponsored Marching Band Festival to be held at the Ottawa Stadium at Harbor Springs on Saturday.

The Charlevoix Rayder band will be among 10 area marching bands appearing in the festival for adjudication by Michaelson and his staff.

Each band will be allowed 45 minutes for playing, marching and maneuvering. Michaelson will be head clinician with Chris Gareau working with the color guards and John Bush the marching and maneuvering division of the festival. A group of N.M.U. section leaders will assist.

The host team, Harbor Springs, will open the festival at 11 a.m. and will be followed by Mancelona at 11:45 a.m.; Rogers City at 12:30 p.m.; Boyne City, 1:15 p.m.; Elk Rapids, 2:00 p.m.; Forest Area, 2:45 p.m., Grayling, 3:30 p.m.; East Jordan, 4:15 p.m.; Petoskey, 5:00 p.m.; and Charlevoix, 5:45 p.m. The Northern Michigan University Band will play briefly 6:30 p.m. to acquaint the musicians with the field.

Beginning at 7:30 p.m. each band with its color guard will present a 15-minute segment of its halftime show in the same order in which the bands appeared during the afternoon.

The Northern Michigan University band complete with its color guard will conclude the show with a field performance.

On Friday night, NMU band members will spend the night in the homes of Charlevoix band members. The band will spend Saturday night in Boyne City where housing has been arranged for them as a group. The band will return to Marquette on Sunday.

"I hope everyone will stay for the post-game show Friday night" Gary Stutzman, Marching Band Festival chairman, said. "This will be an opportunity to see a university band in action. It should be a real treat" he added in urging everyone to make the band welcome.

The Charlevoix Rayder Marching band will be in Marquette for a similar post-game show Oct. 14.

Rayder band performs at halftime during Cheboygan-Charlevoix game.

Fall concert Oct. 7

The Saladin Shrine Band of Grand Rapids will present its annual fall concert at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 7, under the sponsorship of the Northwest Shrine Club.

The band will present a two hour concert of fine music including marches, classical and specialty numbers and will also feature several soloists. "This is a colorful band which boasts a wide choice of musical selections. It is certain to offer two hours of fine entertainment" Ray Wood who is assisting with local arrangements said of the concert.

Proceeds from the event will go to help support Shrine Hospitals for Burned and Crippled Children.

Shrine Hospitals across this country and overseas treat burned and crippled children irrespective of race or creed without cost to parents or guardians. The hospitals are staffed and equipped to care for children who have been burned, offering treatment for the burns and plastic surgery to remove the scars and others afflicted with deformitnries, disease or injuries involving the bones, joints and muscles. There are 22 hospitals all including 19 orthopedic and three burn institutes. Children up to 15 years of age can be treated.

Task force could help get public pulse

The Charlevoix Board of Education is currently trying to solve an overcrowding problem at the high school.

Presently there are over 600 students lodged in three portables plus a building designed for 472 students.

The board thought the best solution to the problem would be to add to the high school building. But voters rejected the $2.3 million proposal.

So the board went back to the drawing board. Tuesday, the board called a meeting – sending out letters to school district residents – to see what the community wants to do about the problem, since their answer wasn't acceptable.

The board got a lot of feedback, although not all of it was directly related to the overcrowding issue. Should the board buy more portables? Should the board ask for millage for a sinking fund for a future building project? These were just a couple of questions that were asked the board.

What happens next is anybody's guess.

We suggest the board appoint a 10 member task force to study the problem, find solutions and then select the best solution and recommend it to the board.

We feel a task force independent of the board may give us a true reflection of the community pulse. It is obvious the community doesn't want a $2.3 million building addition.

Task forces have been used effectively elsewhere. They act as an intermediary between the board and the community. The task force could be given a couple months to research the issue. By the first of the year a recommendation could be made to the board. It would then be up to the board if they wanted to accept that recommendation or not.

We think the creation of a task force is worth a try.

Several responsible for drive success

We would like at this time to tip our hat to those people who made the Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Drive a success.

Hospital officials announced Monday that the $750,000 goal has been surpassed.

As Thomas Carcy, president of the hospital's board of directors, said, this "is a significant vote of confidence for our hospital."

The money will go towards the expansion and renovation of the hospital's out-patient service departments. The entire project will cost about $2.1 million. The difference between the funds raised and the cost of the project will be borrowed through conventional financing institutions. In fact, the hospital officials are hoping they can exceed the goal of $750,000 by $100,000 which would lower interest payments.

Many people worked hard on this campaign. And many people contributed financially. It would be impossible to list everyone because of lack of space, but we do want you to know we acknowledge your willingness to help your local hospital.

You have shown your support. This will allow hospital personnel to continue to provide the best health care possible.

Register to vote before Oct. 10

Tuesday, Oct. 10 is the last day to register if you plan to vote in the Nov. 7 general election.

We urge all those persons who are eligible to vote but who are not registerd to do so immediately. You can register with the city, township or village clerk depending on where you live.

This promises to be an exciting election year. Not only are we electing a governor, a U.S. senator, a U.S congressman (11th district), a state senator and a state representative, but we will also be voting on several proposals, including the Tisch and Headlee tax amendments.

We ask you to take time and register to vote. And then don't forget to vote on Nov. 7.

Bob Clock

State needs 'truth in lending'

Attention State Sen. Robert Davis and Rep. Ralph Ostling:

Michigan is badly in need of a "truth in lending" law governing all government bonding proposals. I just don't believe the average voter realizes that when his school board asks him to approve, say, $3 million for schools, he is going to have to cough up another $2 million in interest – depending, of course, on how much the bonds sell for and over what period of time.

Charlevoix's last school election is a case in point. I wasn't certain whether the financing charges has been figured into the total of $3.2 million in bonding proposals which appeared on the ballot. It certainly seemed like a lot of money to cover construction costs only.

Furthermore, I was assured by the superintendent's office on the day of the election that the figure did indeed include interest.

The proposed bond issues, as you'll recall, were defeated at the polls. Then last week the school board called a public meeting to discuss school needs, and only then was it brought out that the defeated proposals totaling $3.2 million covered construction costs only. Financing would have added another $2.1 million over a 16-year period.

So actually, fellow voters, the figure on the ballot should have been something more like $5.3 million – not $3.2 million.

But until state law mandates that voters be told approximately what the total bond issue will cost – including principle and interest, computed on the basis of the best information available – we are going to have some very badly informed school district voters.

Needless to say, this is not the type of information your average school board member wants to shout from the rooftops – not if he's interested in pushing new school construction. But it is something the voters should know before committing themselves to an extensive school building program.

Is it possible to build schools without heaping both construction costs and interest rates on the backs of the long-suffering taxpayer? Of course it is. All the school board has to do is ask the public to establish a sinking fund of so many mills for so many years.

Then when the money has been collected and is in the bank drawing interest, the school district is in a position to pay cash for whatever it needs. A new library? Zap! You have it! A 100-seat TV classroom to cut instructional costs? Call the carpenters! penters!

School Board President Max Novak says Charlevoix School District voters have turned thumbs down on school sinking funds over the years and he's a little leery about giving them another try. But I don't think the public has ever been told by the board of education how much school construction money actually goes into financing. I think if the facts were laid on the table the voters wouldn't hesitate to approve a sinking fund.

Of course, sinking funds have their disadvantages. You don't establish a sinking fund this year and have a new schoolhouse completed next year. No sir. You have to look four or five years down the road before you have enough money to move. And the work might have to be done piecemeal – one job this year, another next.

But neither do you have to worry about financing charges which, in some cases, more than double construction costs – depending on the spread of the bonds.

Furthermore, Charlevoix could probably use a little time before embarking upon a big school building program. Enrollment figures today are confusing at best. The Elementary School certainly shows that something pretty dramatic is happening to the birthrate. But will the slack be taken up by new residents?

Of course, there's no really good answer to that question yet and we'd look pretty silly building classrooms for students who don't exist and never will exist. But it wouldn't hurt one bit to establish a sinking fund to accommodate those students who already are waiting in the wings.

No tennis this Thanksgiving

Thumbing through the mail the other day, I came across a flier from the Little Traverse Racquet Club. The flier, among other things, listed upcoming tennis tournaments.

As I read through the list of tournaments I had to stop and chuckle when I came to the Turkey Bird tournament, which, naturally, is played in late November.

I chuckled because last year I played in this tournament. I use the word "played" cautiously because that could be disputed.

It all happened like this:

Ken Winter needed a doubles partner for the tournament. He asked and I accepted. Ken assured me the competition would not be overwhelming. We had a chance, he said.

Well, soon after we arrived at the club to play, I scanned the board which listed the matchups. We were to open with Fred Renker and Martin Breighner. My jaw dropped.

Fred Renker is an accomplished tennis player. In his prime, Fred and Bobby Riggs were two of the better tennis players in the country. Fred was that good. And Judge Breighner was no slouch, either.

I told Ken of their capabitities. He immediately sought out the tournament director.

"I thought you said we had a chance," Ken said.

"Well, the first match, she said, was to separate the good from the bad.

"We're going to get slaughtered," Ken shot back.

She agreed. But after the first match, she added, we'll play teams more on our own level.

Needless to say, we got slaughtered, 8-0. Our opponents didn't even work a sweat. Ken and I felt relieved – the worst was over. At least we thought it was.

Our next opponents in this triple elimination tournament were Andy Kan and Dan Simmons. They were seated next to us in the lobby as we waited for a court to open; still breathing hard after losing a close match. The teams that had beaten us were playing on the first court. One of the players, whom Andy and Dan had played against, smashed an overhead shot down the line. Fred couldn't get it.

"I see his overhead is still working," Andy said.

"Where was he hitting them against you?" I asked.

Andy opened his mouth and pointed down his throat.

A court opened and we went out.

"You young guys take it easy on us older guys," Andy said as we reached the court.

Take it easy we did. When the match ended Andy and Dan had claimed an 8-0 victory.

"I thought they were supposed to be getting easier," I asked Ken.

Our third opponent were Russ Long and Ted Arbaugh. Our main objective in this match was to win at least one game. We didn't want to be embarrassed a third time. But we were. Russ and Ted wasted no time and before we knew it the score was 8-0. We were the first team eliminated.

After I reminisced I put the flier away. There would be no Turkey Bird tournament this year. Once was more than enough.

Why the mayor needs an expensive desk

In Lapper where I used to live, the mayor didn't have an office. When he needed a desk for the performance of his official duties, he had to borrow mine.

Now I live in big Detroit where the mayor's office may soon contain a $3500 desk with a $700 chair behind it.

I received a phone call from one of the Detroit taxpayers who will pay for the mayor's new desk and chair. He had just read about the $1 million remodeling and expanding of the offices of the mayor and the City Council, and he had some questions.

"What does the mayor need such an expensive desk for?" the taxpayer asked.

"He needs it for signing proclamations on," I explained. "Such things as Pickle Week must be proclaimed and, on the local level, only the mayor can do it, and you shouldn't expect him to do it without a desk."

I told the taxpayer about my experience in Lapeer where the mayor didn't have a desk. I was editor of the weekly newspaper and people were always asking me for publicity for their weeks.

Every group in town had 7 days a year set aside for officially kissing itself. They didn't want to do this kissing in private. They wanted the world to know they deserved to be kissed. The cooperation of the local newspaper was crucial.

I would usually write an editorial lauding the owner of that particular week and urging everyone to support it in an appropriate manner. During Cat Week, I told readers to drink out of saucers and during Nurse Week I told them to get sick. Clever stuff like that.

But that was never enough. The proud owners of weeks always wanted pictures in the paper. It's not easy to take a picture of a week. Besides, if people want to see weeks, they don't need newspapers. They can look at calendars.

My solution was to take a picture of the mayor signing the proclamation with the president and the vice-president of the sponsoring organization standing behind him. Underneath the picture I would write:

"Maurice Smith (left, rear) president of the local Rotary Club, and Norman Jones (right, rear), vice-president, watch while Mayor Connor (seated) signs a proclamation declaring this to be Rotary Week throughout the country. Every citizen is urged to spend the 7 days buying Rotary lawn mowers."

The problem was that the mayor, who worked in a hardware store across trhe street from the newspaper office, didn't have a desk. It wasn't practical to have the mayor sign the proclamation while using the back of the Rotary president for a desk. The mayor was too short. The result would have been a photograph of little class, if any.

So I invited the mayor to come across the street and use the editor's desk. This satisfied everyone except the newspaper photographer who accused me of trying to gyp him out of mileage money.

After I told my small town story to the Detroit taxpayer, he said he understood how important it was for mayors to proclaim weeks. And he conceded it would be embarrassing for the mayor of a city the size of Detroit to have to borrow a desk. But he still questioned why the desk has to cost $3500.

The mayor's executive assistant explained that. He said that in the long run it's most economical to buy the best quality.

I told the taxpayer, "You must remember that this desk is not just for the incumbent mayor, Coleman Young. It will be used by many administrations and it must wear well. Mayors will come and go but there'll always be a Pickle Week."

"Okay, I'll buy that, but I have another question," the taxpayer said. "The newspaper printed a drawing of the mayor's new office and behind his desk there's a large area marked 'credenza.' What's that?"

"I think that's office space for one of the mayor's aides. He stopped by one day to get an Italian Week proc-proclamations signed and the mayor hired him. His name is Tony Credenza."

Poetry of today is found in music

The poetry of today is to be found in its music. Sometimes it's just hiding behind the melodies we hum, that's the sad part. On the other hand, some poems only exist because they have made it as songs. It's the chicken or the egg all over again.

With the accelerated pace that is the life of today, people's attention span is short. So if you want to express your philosophy, you don't write a novel you write a song. The lyrics of popular songs are three minute dramas. Albums are then mini-novels, songs recorded around a theme.

Janis Ian and I feel the same way on this subject. It certainly is nice to be in good company. I like that whole idea. I can't visualize myself having the endurance to produce an "Exodus" or another "Gone With the Wind." Too many pages. Perhaps it was feeling akin to brevity as I do that compelled me to choose as an author to study in depth over three semesters, Dr. Seuss, while a fellow English major tackled Ayn Rand.

Well then, who are the poets; where are the poets? When you turn on your car radio, you find the top 10 riddled with disco. Okay. Music is going to be commercially popular for one of three reasons: the music has a danceable beat or it has catchy or memorable lyrics or both, if it has classic possibilities. So the modern songwriter aims to please in the second or third category.

It isn't easy to be commercial and also be a good poet. Ask me, I've tried. A lot of really fine lyrics are to be found buried in albums that never make Billboard Magazine. However L.A. boasts a very elite clique of those that have scored. Think of Paul Williams, Jimmy Webb, Paul Anka, Neil Sedaka, Dan Fogelberg, Paul Simon, Barry Manilow and Neil Diamond, to name a few of my favorites. And the balladeers – Harry Chapin and Gordon Lightfoot. Then there are my favorite writers-non-performers who have to be Alan and Marilyn Bergman: "The Way We Were;" "The Summer Knows."

I've studied a lot of popular music in the past couple of years and have never run across a better writer than Joni Mitchell. She is in a class all by herself and may go down in musical history as the finest poet of our generation. Remember "Chelsea Morning?"

More and more producers are including lyric sheets in their album jackets. People want to see and hear the words to the music they like. Have you ever tried to write down the lyrics to your favorite song by playing a 45 R.P.M. over and over, raising and lowering the needle?

I did that once to extract the words from "Send in the Clowns" by Judy Collins. It's not easy but it's better than singing along to the A.M. radio and having to resort to a lot of la's and hums in the second verse. To alleviate that problem, every now and again this column will provide you with the words to what you have been listening to in the morning over coffee. Here's the first one.

Three Times a Lady

Thanks for the times you've given me the memories are all in my mind and now that we've come to the end of our rainbow
there's something I must say out loud.
You're once, twice, three times a lady and I love you
yes you're once, twice, three times a lady and I love
you...I love you
You shared my dreams, my joys, my pains
you made my life worth living for and if I had to live my life over again
dear
I'd spend each and every moment with you.
When we are together the moments I cherish
with every beat of my heart to touch you, to hold you, to feel you, to need you
there's nothing to keep us apart.

The Commodores

This week, according to Billboard, does not offer a lot of heavy verse. The titles are self-revealing: "Kiss You All Over"; "Boogie Oogie Oogie."

There are three from "Grease."

Where are the poets? There's a very gentle number which has been right up there on the charts for a while. I like it. Remember "Easy Like Sunday Morning" by the Commodores? "Three Times A Lady," a new hit by that group, is danceable and if the lyrics aren't memorable they're certainly nostalgic and sentimental. The feeling conveyed, above all, is universal which is an essential ingredient for commercial success. Myself, I can picture Fred Astaire singing this to Helen Hayes somewhere in the midst of that tear-jerking special that was on television last season "A Family Upside Down."

I'd rather visualize a kindly old soul giving this song to his spouse on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary, than a guy telling his lover that although they can't continue, she's been terrific. There must be at least one other interpretation as most 45's are purchased by 9-12 year-olds, but it eludes me.

Now then, while you are frying your breakfast bacon and the Commodores are right there in your kitchen with you, you'll be able to sing along. Or ladies, you can just tuck a copy away for your 50th in case your husband should forget.

Erma Bombeck

Production of 'Domestic Jocks'

About 10 years ago, a couple of boys were looking for a "snap course." They infiltrated a home ec. class.

It became so popular throughout the country special classes were formed and named "Bachelor Survival." In the past three years, the male enrollment has not only doubled, but in some high schools the males outnumber the females at the stoves.

What impact has this new breed had on our life styles?

I'll tell you what impact it's had. This country is producing (at an astronomical rate) what women who live in the kitchen refer to as "Domestic Jocks."

They're the Super Stars of the souffles...the dazzlers of the micro waves...the weekend headliners at the outdoor grills.

But they're stars. They don't do pans, spots, stains or ovens. They don't touch charcoal, dripping beaters, dirty blenders or skillets that have to be soaked. When they cook, it's first class all the way – fresh garlic, fresh lemons, fresh parsley and fresh mushrooms.

My husband never cooks out that I don't feel like I am assisting a surgeon at a double valve by-pass.

"Tongs! Quick! The tongs!" he commands. (I slap them professionally in his hands.)

"Good Lord, woman. I'm not plucking a baby bottle out of the water. I need tongs for steaks."

Next, "The pepper mill. Wipe."

I press a dishtowel to his forehead.

"Not the perspiration, your turkey – the souce from my cute apron."

After hours of intense concentration, the Domestic Jock speaks. "Are the plates and forks for the salad chilled? Good. The potatoes done? The vegetables cooked just to the peak of flavor? Good. You sprayed for bugs? Fine. Because we are ready to eat....NOW!"

No warning. No time to socialize. No second drink.

Just like that. When he says the steaks are done, we are expected to have our forks poised for the first bite.

The other night he wandered into the kitchen, peeled off his asbestos mittens and threw them into the clothes hamper. "Well, I pulled another one through," he said. I looked at the kitchen sink, piled high with dirty pots, pans and dishes, the countertop with melted butter, dirty utensils, leftover rolls and wilted salad. The grill was corroded with barbecue sauce.

"Next weekend I think I'll do my kabob number on the grill."

I gave him a fetal ovation.

County starts winterizing

With the signing of contracts this week, the winterizing of Charlevoix County building is under way.

The project, which will cost $118,000, is being funded by the Economic Development Corporation in the amount of $94,000 and by Charlevoix County in the amount of $24,000.

Purpose of the project is to save energy. County Planner John Hess estimates that the county's $24,000 will be amortized within four years by savings in the use of gas and oil, and the entire cost of the project will be amortized within 10 years.

The project includes storm windows for the county building, the county building annex, the sheriff's department building, and the replacing of defective thermopane windows at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

The roofs of the county building, county building annex, and a portion of the roof of the sheriff's department building will be insulated.

The garage doors at the sheriff's department will be insulated and an enclosure at the entry way of the sheriff's department will be built.

Successful bidders for the work were the Ray Wood Construction Company, Hunt Roofing Company, and Jack Bohne Insulation.

String quartet to open series

The Cheboygan Community Arts Series, sponsored annually by the Cheboygan Area Arts Council, begins its seventh season Saturday, Oct. 7 with a performance by the highly touted New World String Quartet.

The performance heads off what promises to be one of the best Cheboygan Art Series to date. The New World String Quartet played to an enthusiastic Cheboygan audience two years ago when they were a part of the artists-in-residence program with the Grand Rapids Symphony Orchestra.

Following The New World String Quartet will be the famous Canadian Brass, a quintet, whose virtuosity and showmanship is widely known. The brass will perform on Feb. 12.

The third concert in the four-concert series will be given on April 8. The ARS Musica Baroque Orchestra will perform. ARS Musica is widely known and respected for its authoritative presentation of 17th and 18th century masterpieces.

The concluding concert in the Cheboygan Community Arts Series is a production of Verdi's La Traviata by the Michigan Opera Theatre on May 5.

Season tickets for the series are available at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. Price of season tickets is $15. Contact Jaqueline Merta, Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Milliken to visit here on Friday

Gov. William G. Milliken will be in Charlevoix Friday afternoon to attend a reception hosted by local supporters.

The reception will be held from 3:30 to 4:30 in the community room of the LaCroft Condominium. Shirley Roloff, chairman of the Milliken for Michigan campaign in Charlevoix County urges everyone who is interested in meeting the governor to attend.

Following his appearance in Charlevoix, Gov. Milliken will go to East Jordan, where at 5:45 he will dedicate the new East Jordan High School.

School Superintendent Melvin Bullman says the East Jordan School Board is particularly happy to have the governor as their dedication speaker because it was Milliken who signed the bill demerging the Twin Valley School District, thus making it possible for East Jordan to have its own schools.

Friday evening Gov. Milliken will attend the Past Presidents' banquet of the Historical Society of Michigan at the Bay View Country Club. The society is holding its 104th annual meeting in the Petoskey area this week.

The governor's trip north this week is being called his "M-66 Trip" since he will follow that state highway from just west of Lansing to Charlevoix. He will make brief stops along the line to greet his constituents.

Eleven proposals on state ballot

This week the Courier begins coverage of the general election to be held Nov. 7.

In addition to candidates for state, county, township, and city offices, the public will be voting on 11 different state proposals. These proposals are presented herewith in the form in which they will appear in precincts where paper ballots are used. In those precincts having voting machines, the proposals will appear on the machines.

The proposals which have received the most publicity during recent months are Proposal E, the "Headlee Amendment"; Proposal H, the so called "Voucher Amendment"; and proposal J, the "Tisch Amendment".

Osterbergs buy lumber site

The Charlevoix Common Council can stash away their plans to purchase the Charlevoix Lumber Company.

It has been announced that Mr. and Mrs. Paul Osterberg have purchased the land from E. James Hiller.

Osterberg said he planned to change the name of the business to Finn Lumber Company. He said he planned to stock quality lumber and building materials.

Council was hoping to secure a one year option on the 2.12 acre site, which would have given them time to try and secure funds to pay for it.

The city planning commission recommended the city buy the property and use it for parking, docking facilities and a park.

Ladies luncheon planned for Thursday

A ladies luncheon sponsored by the Youth for Christ Intercessors will be held Thursday, Oct. 12 from 12:30 p.m. until 2:30 p.m. at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church on M-66.

Captain Melody Richter of the Chicago Salvation Army will be the guest speaker. She spoke at the mini-session at the Win-Some Womens Retreat at Boyne Mountain recently. She was the former corp commander of the Petoskey Post.

Reservations for the luncheon and free babysitting service can be made by calling 347-6563 by Monday, Oct. 9. All area ladies are invited. The cost is $3.25 per person.

Bergmann honored

For the second year in a row, a former Charlevoix resident has been selected for inclusion in the 1978 edition of "Outstanding Young Women of America."

Sherrel Pearsall Bergmann, who now lives in Lake Bluff, Ill., is one of the young women being honored for distinguishing themselves "in their homes, in their professions and in their communities." They were nominated by many leading women's organizations, college alumni associates, and public officials.

Mrs. Bergmann, the former Sherrel Pearsall, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pearsall of Charlevoix. Her husband is Jack Bergmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bergmann, also of Charlevoix.

Mrs. Bergmann graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1964. She later attended North Central Michigan College in Petoskey and Central Michigan University, from which she graduated in 1968. At the present time the honoree is a dean at the National College of Education in Evanston, Ill., in charge of placing graduates. Before that she was chairman of the education department of Lake Forest College in Illinois.

In addition to having her biography included in the annual awards volume, Mrs. Bergmann is now being considered for one of the 51 state awards to be presented to those women who have made the most noteworthy contributions to their individual states. From these 51 state winners, the 10 Outstanding Young Women of America will be chosen. These winners will then be honored at the annual awards luncheon to be held this fall in Washington, O.C.

Complaints?

One little-known responsibility of the Department of Social Services is that of investigating all complaints of the abuse, neglect, and exploitation of adults who reside in adult foster care homes, homes for the aged, nursing homes, or other dependent living situations.

Vasco Zucchiatti, services supervisor for the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services, points this out in telling about receiving an anonymous complaint about a person being cared for outside his own home who was being mistreated.

"Apparently relatives lived too far away to visit the person and observe the treatment they were receiving. By the time the department was notified, the adult was in need of hospitalization, and the appropriate action was taken to place the adult in a hospital," Zucchiatti said.

"Complaints may range from relatively minor misunderstandings and adjustment problems to abuse or neglect of adults by persons responsible for their care," he added.

Three elected

Tom Sherman, Elbert Kaiser and Walter Hufford have been elected to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors.

Hufford replaces Glenn Kenney who was not a candidate for re-election. Sherman and Kaiser have been on the board.

The board was advised at a recent board meeting that the hospital ended the fiscal year with a balance of $127,844. The fisal year ended June 30.

Messana to hold photo workshop

Fall color is here and what better way to capture the beauty than on film.

Professional photographer Joseph Messana of Detroit will be conducting a workshop here Oct. 13-15. The purpose of the workshop is to photograph "lovely fall color, scenics, an old lighthouse and boats in harbor basin."

Messana will have three three hour sessions over the weekend. The sessions will take place at several points of interest in the Charlevoix, Petoskey and Harbor Springs area.

The workshop is open to any interested person who knows how to operate their equipment, Messana said. The workshop sessions will cost $75 per photographer. Persons interested should send payment in advance of Oct. 5 to Joseph Messana, Fall Color Trip, 5574 Lakewood Ave., Detroit, Mi 48213 or call (313) 821-6619.

Hospital auxiliaries merge

The auxiliaries of both Little Traverse and Lockwood-MacDonald divisions of Northern Michigan Hospitals recently voted to merge their memberships.

"We are really one auxiliary now," announced Marlys Kleppe, co-chairman of the merger steering committee.

The auxiliaries had remained separate after the two hospitals merged in June, 1977. The new group will be called Northern Michigan Hospitals Auxiliary.

For volunteers, the merger means they can work in the service of their choice at either division, explained Mary Putters, also co-chairman of the steering committee.

Now, if a former Little Traverse volunteer wishes to work in the Lockwood-MacDonald gift shop and a former Lockwood volunteer wishes to work in the Little Traverse surgical waiting room they may.

"We no longer have that idea of separateness," Mrs. Putters said.

Little Traverse Division auxiliary members voted Wednesday, Sept. 20, to merge, but their ballots were not counted until Thursday after Lockwood members had also voted.

"Little Traverse didn't want to influence the voting of Lockwood by announcing the decision beforehand," explained John Rasmussen, president of Northern Michigan Hospitals.

"We're very happy with this show of community support for the unity of the two hospital divisions," he said. "On behalf of the administration, I would like to thank the members of the steering committee for their their hard work."

Although the merger steering committee spent long hours developing the new auxiliary's by-laws, there are still many details to be worked out.

"Everything will just coast along during the transition period until January," said Lockwood-MacDonald Auxiliary President Mable Foley. "That's when we will install new officers."

Mrs. Foley and Linda Atchison, president of the Little Traverse Division auxiliary, will remain in their positions until January.

Hospitals salute nurses

As a salute to nurses around the state, Oct. 1-7 has been declared Michigan Nurses Week.

Locally, the 378 nursing staff members of Northern Michigan Hospitals will commemorate the event with pictures, posters and a Day with a Nurse program.

"We want to honor the profession," says Sheron Chisholm, co-chairman of the NMH nurses week committee, "and make the public more aware of our particular contribution to health care. Our theme will be, 'Your Health is Our Concern.'"

The highlight of the week will be a "Day with a Nurse" program, Ms. Chisholm says, during which prominent local citizens will be invited to observe hospital nurses and their activities. Judy Brink, staff development instructor and Carol Bennett, supervisor of the hemodialysis unit, will be the two nurses involved.

During the week, visitors to both NMH divisions may view displays of caps and pins representing nursing schools attended by hospital staff. At the Lockwood-MacDonald Division, the display will be in the lobby. At the Little Traverse Division, it will be in the cafeteria.

In addition, pictures of nursing staff members will be on display in the lobbies of both divisions.

Nurses week is important, says Ms. Chisholm, because of the increasing emphasis on professionalism in the field.

"Nursing has changed greatly over the past decade and is continuing to change," she says. "The idea of a nurturing nurse is an important one but that is only part of the professional role. Decision making, staff instruction and supervisory skills have also been parts of the nurses' role. But changes in the profession and the expanding role of the nurse demand that the nurse be more accountable for her nursing practice within the department."

'Locally, nurses week will also honor the large number of ancillary personnel. Nursing attendants, unit secretaries, ward clerks and supply technicians make it possible for nurses to spend more time at the bedside providing direct nursing care, Ms. Chisholm added.

"The entire nursing staff working together makes it possible for us to provide the quality care our patients receive," she says.

Michigan Nurses Week is sponsored by the Michigan Nurses Association, Michigan Licensed Practical Nurses Association, the Michigan Association of Occupational Health Nurses, the Emergency Department Nurses Association, Michigan Chapter, the Michigan Association of Nurse Anesthetists and the Association of Operating Room Nurses, Michigan Chapter.

"Nursing: Close Encounters of the Caring Kind," was selected by the NMH committee as the week's slogan, and will be emblasoned on buttons for all nursing personnel. The slogan is also the theme of the 1978 Michigan Nurses Association convention, scheduled for mid-October in Lansing.

Rev. Don Swinton

The Rev. Fr. G. Donald Swinton, 70, retired Episcopal priest, died Saturday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. He had been in ill health for several years.

A Eucharistic Mass was held at Christ Episcopal Church Tuesday morning. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Charlevoix Dec. 19, 1907, the Rev. Fr. Swinton was graduated from the Charlevoix High Schoo. His family was among the early ones in Charlevoix, his maternal grandfather was the first superintendent of Charlevoix schools and his paternal grandfather built and operated the Argo Milling Co., now the site of the Weathervane Inn. His father, the late Dr. A.A. Swinton, was a doctor in the community and at one time was president of the Charlevoix State Savings Bank now known as the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

He was a graduate of Eastern Michigan University with a major in Education and taught at Walloon Lake, Bay Shore and Ellsworth before returning to business at the bank of Michigan in Detroit. In the early 1930's he returned here to become associated with the Argo Milling Co. He later was employed by the City of Charlevoix and, when he left in 1951 to study for the priesthood, had been city comptroller for some time.

He studied under the Bishop while serving St. Francis Church at Orangeville and was ordained a deacon in the Episcopal Church in Grand Rapids in May 1953. On Nov. 30, 1953, he was ordained into the priesthood and returned as priest at St. Francis church. He organized a mission at Plainwell while there. In 1959 he was assigned to St. John the Evangelist Church at Fremont and, under him, the congregation built a new church. In 1961 he went to St. Mary's Church at Newaygo, then a mission, as its first full-time priest. Under him it became a parish which he served until he retired in 1975. He was an associate member of the Order of St. Benedict at Three Rivers.

On May 29, 1926, he married the former Lilliam E. Kay at Mt. Prospect, Ill.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Sally Nelson, and two grandchildren, Barbara, a student at Central Michigan University, and Geoffrey, all of Charlevoix and a sister, Mrs. Ralph (Margie) Cleman of Laguana Hills, Calif.

The Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of the arrangements. A viewing was also held at the McKinley Funeral Home in Newaygo Sunday.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor his memory contribute in the name of the Rev. Fr. Swinton to St. Mary's church, Newaygo; Christ Church, Charlevoix or St. Gregory's Abbey at Three Rivers.

Coryell Sevrey

Funeral services for Coryell Sevrey, 87, who died Thursday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital a short time after he was admitted, were held Monday at the Winchester Funeral Home. Clement Oluch, Chaplain of the Charlevoix Post No. 1153, Veterans of Foreign Wars, officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

Mr. Sevrey was born in Muskegon March 12, 1891, and came to Traverse City with his parents as a small child. Later the family moved to Bellaire. He was employed on the maintenance crew of the East Jordan & Southern Railroad and later by the Pere Marquette Railroad and the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad. He retired in 1960. He had moved to Charlevoix in 1933 and the following year, in December 1934, he was married to the former Eilene M. Newland. They always resided in Charlevoix. He was a charter member and a life member of the Charlevoix V.F.W. Post.

His only survivor is his wife.

Edward Green

Funeral services for Edward Green, 92, of St. James, Beaver Island, were held Sept. 27 at St. Mary's Church. The Rev. R. Dale Magoon officiated. Interment was in Holy Cross cemetery on Beaver Island. The Rosary was recited Tuesday night at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Mr. Green died Sept. 26 at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Born on Beaver Island Jan. 3, 1886, Mr. Green had operated a farm in Peaine township until he retired and moved to Charlevoix in 1961. He was a member of Holy Cross church on Beaver Island.

He is survived by five nieces, Mrs. Elizabeth Wilmott of Westminster, Calif., Mrs. Grace Behm of Augusta, Ga., Mrs. Margaret Smith of Boyne City, Mrs. Irene Melville and Mrs. Mary McDonald of Charlevoix and two nephews, Emerald Gallagher of Coco Beach, Fla., and John Gallagher of St. James.

Transportation package draws raves, criticism from officials

Last week the state Senate passed a $168 million comprehensive transportation package. The package includes a two cent a gallon hike in gas tax and a 30 percent hike in the cost of license plates.

Will the transportation package help northern Michigan? According to Gov. William Milliken it will. According to state Sen. Bob Davis it won't.

"Charlevoix County will receive more than $277,293 in additional funds each year for county roads, city and village streets," Milliken said.

"Road construction and maintenance costs are increasing about 10 percent a year while revenues from the fuel and weight taxes are declining. If Michigan is to maintain its major highways and farm to market roads, it is important that adequate funds for repair and rebuilding be made available now," Milliken added.

"This package has clear benefits for Charlevoix County. Its passage will assure continued economic growth throughout Michigan."

Milliken said that upon approval of the comprehensive transportation package, Charlevoix County would begin receiving an additional $222,413 a year for county roads. Boyne City would receive $20,700 additional, Charlevoix, $19,700 additional, and East Jordan $11,800 additional. All other municipalities will also receive additional road funds. The new state revenues would bring total revenues available to the county and its municipalities to $1,358,419 million annually.

Major state highway projects planned for the county during the next several years include reconstruction of 3.3 miles of US-131 from M-75 to the north county line, scheduled for mid-1983.

The county will participate in the urban bus program and will receive approximately $67,000 over the next three years in capital grants for equipment and operating assistance. The county will also receive approximately $317,700 for expansion and operation of its small vehicle (Dial-A-Ride) program.

Charlevoix County will participate in the $4.6 million program to demonstrate, over a two year period, the feasibility of expanded intercity bus services. Routes to be assisted include Sault Ste. Marie-Traverse City with $109,226 in state funds.

The Michigan Northern Railroad, which operates about 25 miles of track in the county, is eligible to share in the $48.4 million program to improve track and rolling stock. It is also eligible for some $1 million in state operating assistance to assure service over the next three years. The Chessie System, with a line running from Manistee to Mackinac City, is eligible for some $16 million in state and $6.6 million in federal operating assistance to continue service; however the railroad has petitioned for abandonment of that segment.

The Beaver Island Boat Company is also eligible for state capital grants and operating assistance to continue service between Beaver Island and Charlevoix.

The transportation package – which combined with existing revenues, will total some $786 million – will, over the next three years.

–Increase county, municipal and state highway funds by $111 million annually to a total of $664 million statewide, allowing for continued maintenance and improvement of Michigan's 116,000 miles of roads and streets;

–accelerate major highway construction projects, including bridge repairs on trunklines and local roads;

–reserve an additional $57 million yearly for general transportation, including rail preservation;

–assure the necessary state match to qualify for $614 million to improve public transportation in southeastern Michigan;

–make each county eligible for the expanded small bus program, providing up to five vehicles under a new operating assistance formula. The state would provide the equipment and 100 percent of operational costs for the first two years, 75 percent the third year and 50 percent thereafter;

–continue the state rail subsidy program;

–continue the state subsidy of waterborne transportation across Lake Michigan and the Straits of Mackinac and allow the possible introduction of passenger ferry service to Manitoulin Island, Ontario.

Davis, on the other hand, criticized the Legislature for being "extremely irresponsible" by passing the package. He voted "no" on the package.

"People want taxes lowered, not raised. This Legislature is apparently not getting the message," Davis told his colleagues during floor debate on the issue. "I hope each of you who votes 'yes' is prepared to go back to your people and tell them just what they'll get for their money. I can, in no way, go back and tell the people in my district that they got a good deal."

Davis said he was especially opposed to this tax increase because northern Michigan residents never got what they were promised the last time the gas tax was raised. In the 1972 transportation funding bill, specific language was written into the law stating that construction must be started on the widening of several highways in Northern and Upper Michigan, he said.

"Despite the fact that gurantee was written right into the law, not one foot of concrete has been poured," Davis said. "I have talked to officials of the highway department, and they will not even guarantee the work will be done now that they have all this additional money allocated.

"The roads in this state do need improving, but the people have been given nothing but broken promises. The state has not lived up to previous commitments. I am not about to commit the people of Northern Michigan to paying for more broken promises," Davis said in explaining his "no" vote.

Davis also pointed out that if Proposal M passes, up to 10 percent of the transportation money can be spent for urban mass transit programs. Currently, only four percent of this money is spent for transportation other than roads.

"I saw a full-page ad in a Detroit paper boasting about the city having just spent $20 million to buy 189 of the world's most modern buses. Up north, we use old schoolbuses, and yet Detroit wants more money? They don't need any more, especially when we taxpayers can barely afford essentials," Davis argued.

The gas and diesel fuel tax increases take effect Jan. 1, while the increased license plates will be charged upon purchase of 1979 license plates.

Charlevoix city officials favored passage of the transportation package.

"The only alternative many cities and villages have is to increase their own property tax rates in order to generate more revenues for their street programs," City Manager Norm Gaffney said in a letter to Davis earlier. "Unfortunately, however, Charlevoix is at its tax limit.

"There is no way the City of Charlevoix can maintain its road program and snow removal without your help."

Jail keys back home

The keys that were used in the cell block of the old Charlevoix County jail are back home.

County Commissioner Lee Moerland had them replated and framed in a shadow box to be hung in the commissioners room of the county building annex. He presented them to the commissioners last week.

The county building annex was the county jail from 1921 to 1971, when the present jail at Garfield and Grant Streets was built. The old jail was then remodeled and what was once quarters for prisoners became the commissioners room.

The shadow box will be affixed to a wall of the commissioners room in a space where the public can view this piece of Charlevoix County history.

August shipping up over year ago

Shipments of iron ore, coal and grain in Great Lakes commercial during August totaled 22,203,029 net tons, Lake Carriers' Association reported today. The volume was the highest in the past three years.

Iron ore shipments totaled 12,400,580 gross tons, with 9,338,140 gross tons loaded at Lake ports and 3,062,440 gross tons at lower St. Lawrence River ports. . . . Nancy Wood

Nancy Wood is coordinator and director of Big Brothers / Big Sisters of Charlevoix County. Here she tells the Courier about the organization and what it does for the community.

COURIER: How is Big Brothers / Big Sisters financed?

WOOD: We're funded through the United Way of Charlevoix, East Jordan, and Boyne City; by Juvenile Justice of the State of Michigan; by donations; and by fund raising projects such as Christmas tree sales and the walkathon.

COURIER: What do you do?

WOOD: We work with boys and girls aged seven to 17, on a one to one basis. Usually these children are from one parent families, but we do have others. For instance, we have three children from a family where the mother is a paraplegic and a child who is being raised by a grandmother because the mother is in a mental institution and the father is in jail. We try to help all children who are in need of companionship and assistance of any kind. However, we have found some children who need mental health care, not Big Brothers / Big Sisters.

COURIER: What ages are your Big Brothers / Big Sisters?

WOOD: Most of them are 18 years and older. We have one 62-year-old who is working well with a 13 year old boy.

COURIER: How do you match up Big Brothers and Big Sisters with the younger children?

WOOD: We get Big Brothers and Big Sisters by advertising and talking about the need. After they apply, we check their references and interview the applicants. Then they are screened by two members of the board of directors. If they are found satisfactory, we match them up with children who have similar interests, whether it be the outdoors, books, arts and crafts, or other things. It is seldom that a match doesn't work. If it doesn't, we make a change. We also have a number of native Americans in the project, both big and little.

COURIER: How do you get the children for the program?

WOOD: They're referred by the schools, churches, Department of Social Services, Friend of the Court, police departments, health department, similar groups.

COURIER: How many children do you have in the program?

WOOD: We service about 250 children a year and make 30 to 35 matches. A lot of the children are transients because they are of divorced parents and move around. On the average, our match-ups last two or three years but we have some that have lasted six and seven years.

COURIER: What activities do you have for the children?

WOOD: Of course, they all have separate activities with their Big Brother or Big Sister. They do things together that they like. We discourage Big Brothers and Big Sisters from spending money for these activities. It's just a matter of letting the children know that they're not alone with their problems. We have five group outings a year which are financed by the organization. We've been to Beaver Island and Mackinac Island, had a winter outing at Shanty Creek, gone swimming at the Holiday Inn, and gone hayriding and horseback riding. We also work closely with the Emmet County Big Brothers / Big Sisters and they invite us to their outings and we invite them to ours.

COURIER: Who else works with Big Brothers / Big Sisters in Charlevoix County?

WOOD: We have a board of directors who help with the main decisions and the working program. Jim McGarry is chairman, Janet Macinelli is executive director, Gayle Kluczynski is secretary-treasurer, and Diane Rosendahl is in charge of the scholarship fund. We give a scholarship to a graduating senior each year or to someone over 16 to study a vocation. Jim Withers is chairman of the walkathon and George Ebenhoeh is chairman of Christmas tree sales. Rex Davis and Bill Miller help with the walkathon and Christmas Tree sales, Joyce Hosmer is our "girl Friday", Jacquie Merta does publicity, and Allen Sandburg works on the winter outings. These are all Charlevoix people. We need new directors from Boyne City and East Jordan.

COURIER: Do you also need more Big Brothers and Big Sisters?

WOOD: Oh, yes. We have 53 children in the county on our waiting list. This is important when you consider that nationall police records show fewer than five percent of children in Big Brothers / Big Sisters get into trouble.

COURIER: What is your background?

WOOD: I grew up in Phoenix, Ariz. and graduated from Southern Methodist University. I met Ray in Phoenix during World War II when he was there giving primary flight training to Army personnel. When I was in college I worked with Apache and Navajo Indians as part of my social service work. After we came to Charlevoix 28 years ago from Detroit, I spent 12 years in girl scouting and two years in cub scouts, taught Sunday School at the Congregational Church for two years, and was juvenile agent and probation officer in Charlevoix County for three years. I also worked for the Northern Michigan Electrical Coop.

COURIER: What clubs do you belong to?

WOOD: The Garden Club, Women's Club, Hospital Guild, Eastern Star, American Legion Auxiliary. I'm associate matron of the Eastern star and girls state chairman for the Legion Auxillary. We send three girls to girls state each year.

COURIER: How many children do you have?

WOOD: We have five. Sharon Emmerson lives in Sterling Heights, Vance lives in Charlevoix and works at Will-Flo, Linda Kimble and her husband manage our trailer park at Nine Mile Point, Debbie LaCount lives in Durand, Ill., and Brad is at home but he's going to Arizona. We also have five grandchildren.

COURIER: What are your hobbies?

WOOD: Bowling, most outdoor sports, gardening. I used to ski but I've given that up

Whiting Park to get facelift

A RECREATIONAL BOND PROJECT
B-20-D. WHITING PARK
— BY CHARLEVOIX COUNTY PARKS
& RECREATION COMMISSION
IN COOPERATION WITH THE MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT of NATURAL RESOURCES
PROJECT COST $37,691.00
APPROPRIATED BY
THE PEOPLE of THE STATE of MICHIGAN $30,153.00
LOCAL FUND CHARLEVOIX COUNTY $7,538.00

Charlevoix County's Whiting Park will soon get a face lift.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week approved a plan which would provide for the professional cutting and management of approximately 150 acres of trees within the park.

Whiting Park was given to Charlevoix County by Perry Whiting in 1923, but it has not been managed as a woodlot since that time. Because of this non-management, the stand has become overaged.

"The indications of this overaging are slow growing young stock and large trees which are dead or about to fall down. The park also has hundreds of dead elm which must come out," the report states.

Forester Lee Ekstrom of the Department of Natural Resources prepared the plan of management of the park. In it he recommends certain stands for commercial harvest, certain areas for thinning, and the removal of all elm trees.

Ekstrom's survey indicates the park contains 115 acres of well stocked mature northern hardwoods, six acres of well stocked mature aspen with some hardwoods, three acres of well stocked poletimber tamarack, eight acres of medium stocked lowland hardwoods and hemlock, 16 acres of well stocked lowland hardwoods and poletimber cedar, and 15 acres of openland.

Ekstrom estimated that approximately 135,000 board feet of hardwoods and 30,000 board feet of mature aspen could be harvested.

County Planner John Hess has suggested that all monies received from the sale of timber be recycled back into the county park forest and the recreational portions of the park, i.e., buildings, maintenance, equipment, and land improvement. He has also suggested that the non-commercial elm be cut, split, and given to senior citizens as winter heating fuel.

In conclusion, Hess said, "If this action is taken, the beauty and health of the timber stand at the county park will be greatly enhanced, plus monies generated by the selling of the harvestable timber will go back into the park. I feel confident that Mr. Whiting, who was a lumberman, would feel proud we are improving the beauty of the park in such a way."

It is planned that the Whiting Park work will be a Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) project, with at least two well-trained men doing the work. However, at the present time there is a freeze on CETA project funds, so it is not known just when the project can be started.

Whiting Park is located on the south side of Lake Charlevoix between Ironton and Boyne City. It has 40 campsites, a large recreation hall, and a swimming beach among its facilities. Last year it logged 6,122 camping days for area, downstate, downstate, and out-of-state campers.

Perfect start for girls hoop team

Put yourself in Toni Felter's place.

Your the coach of the girls basketball team. After four games your record is perfect. Your team is averaging 56 points a game while your opponents are scoring 31 points a game. And, to add frosting to the cake, three of your top six players are sophomores.

All of this helps explain Mrs. Felter's optimism.

Already, the Rayders have equaled last year's win total. And although Mrs. Felter does not want to make any predictions, she admits her team will be "competitive" and will be a challenger for the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference title.

"The girls have really jelled as a team," she said. "They radiate self-confidence.

"They have good ball sense, good floor sense, and they haven't choked yet."

This type of character impresses her.

But wasn't she a little skeptical at the start of the season with three sophomores in the lineup?

"Not really," Mrs. Felter replied. "I moved all three up to the varsity for the tournaments last year.

"I felt if we could play together then we could become a good team. So far, the girls have played well."

The top Rayder scorer and rebounder happens to be a sophomore – Melinda Klooster. Melinda is scoring at a 19 point a game clip while snaring 14 rebounds a game. Melinda plays the low post on offense and consequently most of her points come from close in.

But the Rayders bread n' butter is the fast break. They'll run whenever the opportunity presents itself. Mrs. Felter emphasizes running in practice.

She also stresses teamwork. She considers "an assist just as important as a basket." This year the Rayders have two players who are quite adept at feeding their teammates for baskets – Chris Lehman and Melinda Kerridge. Chris averages five assists a game and Melinda four.

With playmakers like that it's no wonder the team has several players who can put the ball in the hoop. In Tuesday's win over Alanson, nine different players scored. The leading scorer with 19 points was – you guessed it – Melinda Klooster. Melinda Kerridge added 10 points as Charlevoix coasted to a 72-32 triumph.

Also getting lots of playing time are Sherrie Selissen, Teresa Noirot and Lisa Fowler. Mrs. Felter has cleared the bench in all but one game. Backing up the starters are Jackie Paul, Marie Buday, Kris Fiedler, Nancy Ciuk and Teresa Bearss.

The Rayders have one more non-conference game – Tuesday against Inland Lakes – before opening conference play against Grayling here on Thursday.

St. Ignace is the defending champ and is expected to be a top contender again this year. But don't discount Charlevoix's chances.

"A few years ago we won 30 games in a row," Mrs. Felter said. "We hope to start another string like that."

Twenty-six to go and counting!

Cheboygan trips Rayders, 20-7

Any hopes the Charlevoix Red Rayders entertained of winning their second straight Michigan-Huron Shores Conference football title were seriously dampened Friday.

On a drizzly cool night, the Rayders fell victim to Cheboygan 20-7.

The loss dropped Charlevoix to 2-2 on the season. In league play the Rayders are 0-2. Cheboygan moved to 4-0 and the Chiefs will tangle with Gaylord Friday night in a game that could decide this year's conference champ. Gaylord is also 4-0.

In the first half Friday, Charlevoix gave Cheboygan all it could handle. After the Chiefs grabbed a 6-0 lead on a 19 yard scoring pass from Gregg Elliott to Jim English, Charlevoix came storming back to go ahead. The Rayders used long gainers by quarterback Gil Noirot and running back Craig Boss to set-up a 17 yard touchdown pass from Noirot to Pat Schmidt, Noirot's favorite receiver. Scott Morgan converted and Charlevoix, playing inspired ball, had a 7-6 lead.

But the Chiefs showed in the second half why they're undefeated.

Pounding away at the left side of the Charlevoix defensive line, Cheboygan moved steadily downfield midway through the third period. Finally, on a sweep around the right side, halfback Carl VanFleet broke loose and scampered 49 yards for a score. VanFleet's run was similar to one of last week when Gaylord's Doug Mead went 44 yards around right end for a score. After VanFleet's tally, Elliott passed to Mike Grisdale for the two point conversion.

Early in the fourth quarter, Cheboygan put the game away. The clincher was a two yard run by Mark Churchill which made the score 20-7. The conversion failed.

Harriers win TC Invitational

How good is the Charlevoix High School cross country team?

Based on early season results, it appears the Rayder runners are quite good.

Saturday, Charlevoix took first place in the Traverse City Invitational. In the 12 team meet, Charlevoix finished with 49 points, Traverse City took second with 65 points and Midland came in third with 72 points. Locally, Petoskey was fifth with 111 points.

Petoskey did have the meet's fastest runner, Dan Pater. Pater covered the distance in 15:52. Finishing second, just five seconds behind Pater, was Charlevoix's Jeff Drenth. Also for the Rayders, Mark Russell finished fifth with a time of 16:25; Jay Swartwout, eighth, 16:38, Jeff Landon, 12th, 16:47; and Clay Patrie, 22nd, 17:18.

The first 25 runners to cross the finish line received medals.

Tuesday, the Rayders improved their record to 4-0 with wins over St. Ignace and Rogers City.

The Rayders beat St. Ignace 21-36 and Rogers City 24-30.

Once again Jeff Drenth took top honors. Drenth finished the course in 16 minutes. Teammate Mark Russell came in second with a time of 16:14.

Other Rayders who placed in the top 10 were: Jay Swartwout, fifth, 16:27; and Brian Thompson, 10th, 17:17.

In the junior varsity match, the Rayders fell to Rogers City 22-41 despite having Clay Patrie take first place honors with a time of 17:32.

JV's thumped, 39-6

The Charlevoix JV's would just as soon forget what happened on the football field Thursday.

The Rayders lost to Cheboygan 39-6.

Cheboygan jumped out to a quick 13-0 lead before Charlevoix could get on the board. Mark Beaudoin scored the lone Charlevoix touchdown when he plunged over from the two yard line to cap an 80 yard drive. But that was all Charlevoix could muster.

Cheboygan came right back and scored to make it 20-6 at halftime and the Chiefs were never threatened thereafter.

For Charlevoix, Mike Loper and Joel Schnackenberg played well on defense while Paul Hoffman did a good job at quarterback.

The Rayders, 1-3 on the year, play Grayling Thursday.

Frosh win, 16-14

Charlevoix's freshman football team picked up its first win of the season Wednesday by beating Cheboygan 16-14.

The win did not come easy, though.

The Rayders fell behind 14-0 in the first half as Cheboygan broke two long runs from scrimmage, one totaling 40 yards and the other 20 yards.

But the Rayders fought back.

In the fourth quarter, Jim Buchanan went 24 yards for six points and then followed by running in the conversion for another two points. Then, with just 1:18 remaining on the clock, Buchanan scored from the 12 yard line to tie the score. Not letting the heroics stop there, Buchanan punched into the end zone for a successful conversion and Charlevoix had a 16-14 victory.

For the Rayders, Buchanan had 152 yards in 25 carries. Also playing well were quarterback Scott Kelly and defensemen Jeff Morgridge and Gary Drury.

The Rayders will host Petoskey Wednesday.

Soccer season starts

The Northwest Michigan Youth Soccer League got underway last week with action in East Jordan and Charlevoix.

In the 7-8 year old division, East Jordan beat Charlevoix's Gaskin team 4-0. A strong match was played by Mark LaBlance and Derron Milligan in defeat.

In the 9-11 year old division, Leutheuser's beat Aartvark Studio 3-1. During first half action, Tim Solmonson broke away from a crowd of defenders to score an unassisted goal for Aartvark. Jason Brindel, playing right wing for Leutheuser's tied the score following a pass from center Jim Ciuk.

The second half featured intense action at both ends of the field. Excellent defensive play by both goalies kept the score knotted at 1-1 as the match neared the finish.

But Mike Thompson, left wing for Leutheuser's, quickley changed the score with back to back goals in the final minutes.

In the 12-16 year old division, East Jordan defeated Medusa of Charlevoix 4-1. It was an evenly fought match highlighted by intense offensive pressure from East Jordan and spirited defensive play by Medusa. But in the end East Jordan's size and excellent passing prevailed.

The schedule for this week finds Medusa playing North Central Christian Academy in Petoskey on Monday, East Jordan playing host to Aartvark Studio on Tuesday, Leutheuser's traveling to Boyne City on Thursday and Gaskin's playing Petoskey at the township field here on Thursday. All matches start at 6 p.m.

Alger stars, Ferris ties

Charlevoix's Bob Alger had another outstanding game recently for the Ferris State Bulldog football squad.

Alger was in on 10 tackles - a game high - to lead the Bulldog defense. Alger played safety. He also had three assists.

Ferris battled Saginaw Valley to a 18-17 tie.

His midfield tackle of Saginaw Valley's John Waters stopped a sure touchdown gallop in the fourth quarter.

In golf, former Charlevoix grads Pat Paul and Chuck Faust helped Adrian College to a third place finish in a recent MIAA golf tourney.

Paul shot a 79 and Faust shot a 84. Teammate Steve Vickery won medalist honors with a 72.

Exempt from PBB?

The PBB unit is currently sending letters to all Michigan dairy farmers informing them whether or not their farms will be exempt from further PBB testing on Oct. 1.

In order to be exempt, farms must meet criteria established by the legislature and by Michigan Department of Agriculture, as authorized by House Concurrent Resolution No. 790.

Thus far, approximately 4,000 farmers have met the criteria and will become exempt Oct. 1, the effective date of the resolution.

FAITH BIDS US OBEY THE LAWS OF THE LAND

The citizens of a free society know that the laws they must live by are the very guardians of their freedom and the safeguards of their lives and property. These laws are kept to the irreducible minimum required to protect us from each other and from the conceivable abuses of government, while at the same time allowing us the widest possible margin of personal liberty. God's laws were set forth throughout the Bible for these very reasons, along with many admonitions to obey the laws of the land as well. It will be to your advantage to learn all about this, by your regular attendance at the Church of your choice.

> "The law is good,
> if man use it > lawfully."
> —I Timothy 1:8

> Where laws end, tyranny begins
> —William Pitt, Earl of Chatham

LET'S TALK ABOUT SQUASH......
......OR CABBAGES AND KINGS.

Been shopping for a home in the county that grows the biggest and finest vegetables in the area? (including a 33 pound squash that won the blue ribbon at the Emmet County Fair.)

There must be magic in its soil. Vegetables just grow and keep growing. Even if your family is large enough to fill all four bedrooms and you have two big freezers you won't be able to eat them all.

And there's still room on this 65 acres to grow (or rent out to pay taxes) 30 acres of corn. Plenty of firewood to keep the three woodstoves burning for decades. Plus pasture for a few beef cattle or saddle horses. Excellent deer, rabbit and bird hunting. Super bass, panfish, pike and trout fishing just over the hill.

Sound rustic? Sort of. But completely modern.

And quiet! This place has it. You can walk, or ski, for miles without seeing or hearing another person. Yet it's on a paved road in the Charlevoix School District.

If this is your kind of lifestyle, at a reasonable price, call us today. It just might be the best thing you can do for your family. (Oh, and for your stomach and food budget too, the squash we saw there the other day weighed 52 pounds...and the gardening is organic.)

It's just a special place...for special people!

Rams, Chargers win 2nd

The flag football season is only two weeks old, but already the Rams and the Chargers are establishing themselves as contenders in the senior and junior leagues, respectively.

The Rams won their second game in a row in the senior league last week by downing the Cowboys 19-13. Craig Klooster got all the Ram points. Klooster scored on a one yard run, a 22 yard run and on 12 yard interception return. He also added an extra point. Meanwhile, Todd Daylong figured in both touchdowns for the Cowboys. Daylong passed to Tim LaBlance for a 22 yard score and then he scored on a two yard run. Dave Batdoff added an extra point.

In other senior league games, The Patroits shutout the Raiders 25-0. The Patriots scored on an eight yard run by Jeff Trimper, a 25 yard run by Mark Somalski, a 17 yard pass from Trimper to John Pearl and a 22 yard run by Bob Burke. Burke added an extra point.

The Vikings got their first win of the season by beating the Bucs 36-13. Steve Keller scored three touchdowns, had a safety and added two extra points for the winners. Keller scored on a 40 yard kickoff return, and runs of 15 and six yards. David Gardner scored twice on passes of 10 and 26 yards. Gary Engleman added two extra points to the cause. For the Bucs, their two touchdowns came in the fourth quarter on a one yard run by Brent Cole and 15 yard pass interception return by Keith Potter. Mike Fels added an extra point.

In the junior league, the Chargers moved to 2-0 on the season with a 33-12 win over the Lions. The Chargers got touchdowns from Jody Putman on a one yard plunge and a 30 yard kickoff return from Matt Lignell on a five yard run, and from Bobby Sharrow on a four yard run. Lignell, Brian Wilmont and Steve Gauthier added safeties for the winners and Larry Drost, Wilmont and James Spencley added extra points.

For the Lions, Gary Frye passed 25 yards to John Loder for a touchdown and Loder ran a kickoff back 30 yards for a score.

Laundromat has new owner

In early August, Skip and Rose Ann Heimbecker packed up their motorhome and headed north in search of a small business that could provide them a good livelihood.

After looking at various types of businesses "from Ludington to the Upper Peninsula," the former Troy residents decided to relocate in Charlevoix and purchase two laundromats and a car wash.

The laundromats are located on Bridge Street and in the Oleson's shopping plaza. The car wash - which has been inoperative as of late - is on Bridge and Hurlbut streets.

The laundromat in the plaza has 10 dryers and 28 washers while the Bridge Street laundromat has 18 dryers and 36 washers. And if there is any problems with the machines the Heimbeckers won't have to worry about a repairman. Heimbecker is well versed in mechanics and will do his own repairs.

The Heimbeckers plan to open the laundromats at 8 a.m. According to Rose Ann, there will be an attendant on duty at all times. Not only will this be a convenience to the customers, she said, but it will enable the Heimbeckers to keep on top of the building maintenance. The laundromats will close at 9 p.m.

Heimbecker hopes to open the car wash soon. He has ordered new equipment for the four stall business. In the past, the car wash has been plagued by vandalism. Heimbecker is hoping that if he can keep the business maintained and operable it will decrease vandalism. He said he would like to keep the car wash open 24 hours although that will depend on the vandalism problem, he said.

The Heimbeckers just recently purchased a home nn Richardson Road.

Heimbecker has a pilots license and he also enjoys sailing.

Artists get exposure at gallery

Capitol Art Gallery, a non-profit organization designed to promote work of artists, has opened a shop in Charlevoix.

Located in the Market Mall, Capitol Art Gallery has on display works of 15 artists or more – ranging from sculptures to weavings to photographs.

"This (Capitol Art Gallery) is primarily to give artists more exposure," said Sherri Baker, who manages the Charlevoix store.

To exhibit work in the shop an artist must belong to the organization. The membership fee is used to pay rent, utilities, mailings, etc. The artist receives a 100 percent return on any work of their's which is sold. Prices on art work varies considerably. At the Capitol Art Gallery the price range is roughly $35-$1,200.

Capitol Art Gallery originated in Lansing. It was founded by Richard Teachout, an instructor at Lansing Community College. Sherri was a student of Teachout's at the school before she moved to Central Lake.

After moving here, Sherri contacted Teachout, who decided to open a shop in Charlevoix.

Capitol Art Gallery is open two days a week – Tuesday's and Thursday's – from 10 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. There are plans on the backburner to expand hours, Sherri said.

She added the gallery is looking for more artists, preferably local artists. Before any work can be displayed it must be inspected by jurors, and there is also a need for more jurors, she said.

Besides managing the shop, Sherri teaches art through the Adult Education Program here. Her specialty is graphics.

Golfers now 6-0

The Charlevoix Rayder golf team has added three more wins to the victory column.

The Rayders beat Gaylord, 171-175; Elk Rapids, 166-182; and Cheboygan, 158-181. The Rayders are now 6-0.

Against Gaylord, Mike Custer took medalist honors with a 38. He was followed by Bob Ranger, 42; Ike Dyksterhouse, 45; and Roxy VanLoo, 46. Dean Branderberg shot a 39 to pace Gaylord.

Against Elk Rapids, Roxy VanLoo took medalist honors with a 38. Ranger and Mark White each shot a 42 and Dyksterhouse added a 44. Keith Woodward had a 39 for Elk Rapids.

In Monday's match with Cheboygan, Custer took medalist honors with a 36. Ranger and VanLoo each shot a 40 and Dyksterhouse had a 42.

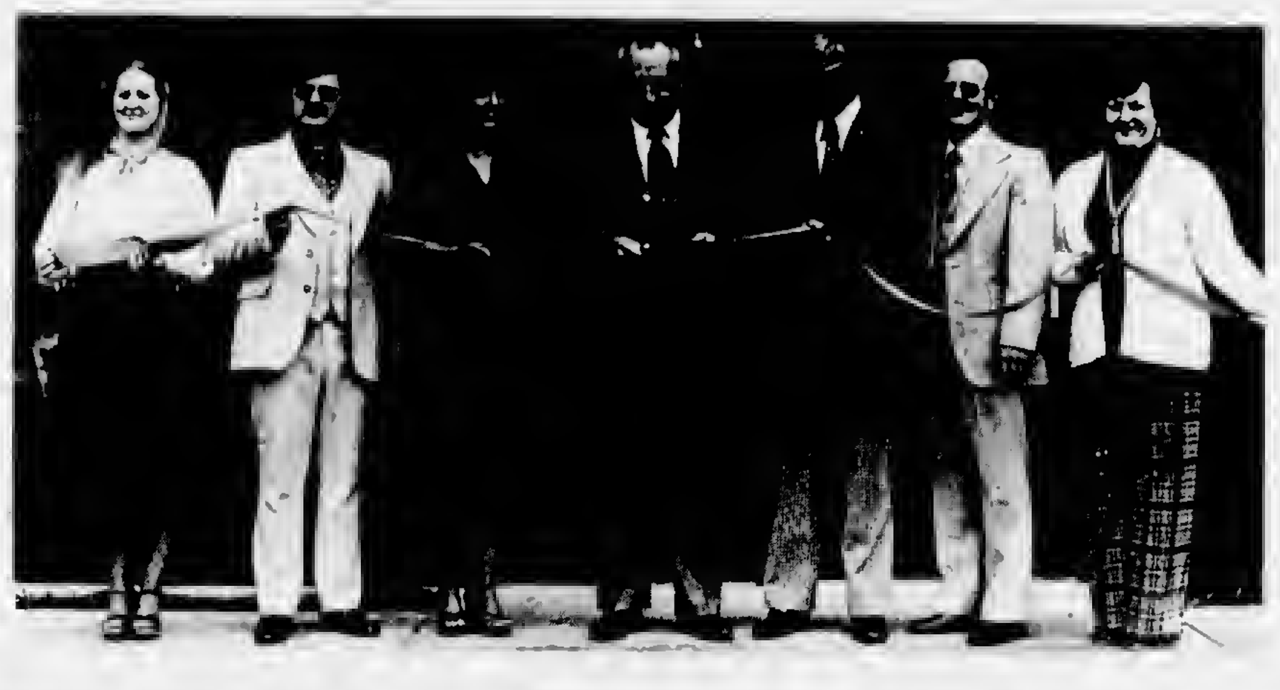
Family Federal Savings relocates



A ribbon cutting ceremony Friday inaugurated the new Family Federal Savings office in Charlevoix.

Fred G. Theuer, president of Family Federal Savings, was joined in cutting the traditional ribbon by Deanne Potter, office employee; Al Lord, office manager; Jacquie Merta, Chamber of Commerce president; Theuer; George Plum deputy mayor; Gene Sauer, regional vice-president; and Joyce Wells, office employees.

The new building is located at the intersection of U.S. 31 and M-66 at the Captain's Corner Shopping Center at the south city limits.

The new office is a contemporary brick structure featuring arctic white brick and a driftwood stone front. The office also has a tongue and groove ceiling with exposed wood beams and a knotty pine interior. The color coordinated interior features hues of green, orange and gold.

Family Federal Savings now has 21 offices state-wide. The association was established in 1888 and now has assets of over $330 million.

Albert Lord is the manager of the office and is assisted by Joyce Wells and Deanne Potter. The public is invited to visit the new facility during the month of October and "view the latest in full service savings and loan facilities in the state of Michigan."

Wedding

Lennox-Moyer

Janet Lennox of Northville and Patton Moyer of St. Clair Shores were married Friday in a backyard ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Willis, 306 Dixon Ave., Charlevoix.

The Willis' are grandparents of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lennox. The groom is the son of Mrs. Ralph Moyer of Olathe, Kansas.

Over 100 guests attended the double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Lloyd Brasure.

The bride wore a light cream colored princess line dress which had an insert of lace and seed pearls at the neck and cuffs. The dress was worn by Janet's sister, Mary, at her wedding. There was no veil. The bride carried white and copper colored flowers.

Mary Elert, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. Diann Ording and Jan Talmadge were bridesmaids.

Greg Reihman was best man and Michael Moyer, brother of the groom, and Greg Lennox, brother of the bride, were groomsmen.

Ronald Hertza and Richard Ording were ushers.

A reception was given by the bride's parents at Stafford's Bay View Inn in Petoskey. A rehearsal dinner was hosted by Mrs. Ralph Moyer at the Weathervane Inn.

The bride is a lighting designer and the groom is a financial anaylsist. After a honeymoon in the Virgin Islands, the couple plan to make their home in St. Clair Shores.

McKenzie-Gothro

Penny Ann McKenzie of Charlevoix and Charles Gothro of East Jordan were married in a private ceremony Friday, Sept. 22 in Charlevoix.

Penny is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete McKenzie of Charlevoix and Charles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Gothro of East Jordan.

Attendants were Ed Koeks of Albion and Mary Lou Murphy of East Jordan.

A reception was given at the home of the bride's parents Saturday evening.

Frost here, horticulturists offer gardening tips for October

EAST LANSING – It's frost on the pumpkin time in Michigan. Horticulturists at Michigan State University suggest the following fall gardening tasks are timely:

–Control insects that may have come indoors on houseplants that spent the summer outside.

–Fertilize actively growing houseplants and repot any that outgrew their containers over the summer.

–Plant or transplant peonies and other spring-flowering perennials.

–Clean up all dead iris foliage. Remove and destroy iris plants severely damaged by insects or disease.

–Dig dahlias, cannas, caladiums and tuberous begonias after frost has killed the foliage. Let the bulbs and tubers dry for several days. Then store them in dry sand or vermiculite at cool temperatures (45-50 degrees F).

–Plant tulips and other spring-flowering bulbs after cool weather has set in but before the ground freezes.

–Winterize roses after the first killing frost. Pile 8-10 inches of soil around the canes. Tie the canes so the wind can't whip them around and cover the mounded canes with straw or hay. To hold the mulch in place, cover it with additional soil, plastic rose cones or chicken wire.

–Clean dead or dying annuals and the dead tops of perennials from flower beds.

–Rake leaves and other debris off the lawn regularly to prevent their matting and injuring the turf.

–Keep mowing the lawn as long as it needs it.

–Plan a late fall nitrogen application to the lawn after the grass stops growing but before the first snow – usually early to mid-November in much of the state. Apply about 1-1½ pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet.

–Spray lawns with 2,4-D during the first two weeks of October to control dandelions and other broadleaved weeds. Seeds germinate in the fall and the young plants are easy to kill. Spot treat next spring to take care of any you miss now.

–Gather butternuts, walnuts and hickory nuts.

–Collect cones, meadow grasses, dried weed seed heads and milkweed pods for dried arrangements, wreaths and other craft projects.

–Rake and destroy the fallen leaves and fruits of apples and ornamental crabs to minimize the carryover of this year's disease and insect problems.

–Protect young fruit trees and ornamentals against winter rodent damage. A cylinder of hardware cloth placed around each trunk will keep rabbits and other rodents from gnawing off the tender bark. The cylinder must extend at least 1½ to 2 feet above the usual snow level to be effective.

–Mulch young trees and shrubs with well rotted manure, wood chips, leaves or peat moss.

–Cut back ground covers that have overgrown patios, driveway or sidewalks.

–Trim dead, broken or diseased branches from trees and shrubs. Avoid pruning spring-flowering shrubs now – you'd be trimming off next year's flower buds.

–Plant or transplant deciduous trees and shrubs after their leaves fall. Mulch and water new plants thoroughly and support large trees with stakes and guy wires.

Most Indian gill netters living up to verbal pact

By TOM DAMMANN

Most Indian gill netters have ceased fishing in virtually all of Lake Michigan waters as a result of verbal agreements worked out between Gov. William G. Milliken and leaders of the Bay Mills and Sault Ste. Marie Chippewa tribes in September.

According to Bay Mills Tribal Chairman Arthur Le Blanc and Sault Ste. Marie Tribal Chairman Joseph Lumsden, the Indians agreed not to gill net in Lake Michigan south of Good Hart which is only a few miles south of the Straits of Mackinac.

Thus the area between Petoskey and Charlevoix, where several confrontations between Indians and sports fishermen have occurred in the past two years, has been declared out of bounds for Indian gill netting.

Lakes Superior, on whose shores most of the Indian fishermen live, and Huron, are not covered in the agreement, nor are fishermen of the 7,000 member Northern Michigan Ottawa Association comprised largely of Lower Peninsula non-reservation Indians.

Ms. Waunetta Dominic, president of the Ottawa Association, said in answer to an inquiry, that nobody from Gov. Milliken's office had been in touch with her association and that commercial gill netters from her tribe would probably continue to fish in their native waters off the Petoskey-Charlevoix area, rather than go north.

Observers agree that at most there are less than an handful of Lower Peninsula Indian commercial fishermen.

One of these told a reporter on Oct. 3 that he had taken a bare 200 pounds of lake trout from Lake Michigan near Charlevoix that day, which he sold to a local wholesaler.

According to LeBlanc and spokesmen for the governor, no agreements had been signed by either side early in October.

"Of great concern to us is a signed agreement by the Governor that we will be protected by the state police from further harassment by sports fishermen," Le Blanc said in a telephone interview. "After all, we have done our part by already withdrawing our men from the area."

Louis Grey, acting chief of law enforcement of the Department of Natural Resources, confirmed this in a telephone interview, saying that, rumors to the contrary, a careful check showed that no Bay Mills or Sault Ste Marie Indians had been seen in the area since Sept. 25, the effective date of the agreement.

LeBlanc also said that it was his understanding that if the DNR caught any Upper Peninsula Indian fishermen in the area they would be handed over to the tribes for handling in their own courts.

The agreement would cover some 165 Indians with commercial licenses granted by the two tribes and honored by the state.

But, as LeBlanc pointed out, most of the licensed men rarely fish and at most only 12 small boats have been involved in fishing operations in the area involved.

Another meeting between leaders of the two Upper Peninsual tribes and the governor's representatives was scheduled for Oct. 12.

Sundew will return home on Tuesday

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Sundew, gone from its homeport since early August 1977, will be returning 'home' Tuesday, Oct. 17, according to the skipper, Lt. CMDR. Warren Miller.

In the interim from October 1977 and June 30, 1978, the USCGC Mesquite was stationed here. In June this ship was transferred to Duluth, Minn., to replace CGC Woodrush which was taken to the Coast Guard shipyards at Curtis Bay, Md., for overhaul and renovation.

The CGC Sundew has been in the shipyards since late August 1977 for its first major overhaul and renovation since it was built in Duluth in 1944. Lt.CMDR. James V. O'Neill headed the crew that took the Sundew east and returned with the Mesquite which he commanded until he was transferred to Baltimore in early June. Lt. CMDR. Miller who succeeded him took the Woodrush east and after undergoing refresher training at Little Creek, Va., from Sept. 18 until Sept. 29 with the CGC Sundew is now enroute home. Traveling via, Bermuda, Quebec City, with stops at Messina, N.Y., to pick up a deck cargo and a new boat at Buffalo, the ship will stop at Detroit to off-load deck cargo and then head for Charlevoix, arriving late in the day next Tuesday.

At the present time, plans are afoot to welcome home the ship whose homeport has been Charlevoix since June 1958.

School officials to watch election results closely

Charlevoix school officials will be paying close attention to the results of the Nov. 7 general election.

Of particular interest are three proposals on the ballot: Proposal E (Headlee Amendment), Proposal H (Voucher Plan) and Proposal J (Tisch Amendment). All three have a bearing on the financing of education.

Election

Charlevoix Superintendent Gordon VanWieren would like to see all three proposals defeated. But, knowing the mood many voters are in, he realizes this might not happen.

"If we had to live with any of them," he said recently, "it would have to be the Headlee Amendment.

"The Headlee Amendment would not affect us immediately."

It could in the long run, though, VanWieren added.

For instance, if the population in the school district increased (which is projected) and student enrollment also increased and it became necessary to hire more teachers, the school district would be limited by the amount of millage that could be levied. This, VanWieren said, would "affect the educational program in a negative manner."

If passed, the Headlee Amendment would limit the total revenues of the state government, excluding federal aid, to a percentage of the state personal income. And it would prohibit local government from adding taxes without voter approval.

One aspect of the proposal VanWieren likes is that it prohibits the state from adopting new or expanding present local programs without full state funding.

The proposal VanWieren fears the most, though, is the Tisch Amendment.

"This would cause chaos in education," he said. "It would be disasterous for our area."

The Tisch Amendment would cut property taxes in half and limit increases in property tax assessments to 2.5 percent a year. It would allow the state income tax to be raised from 4.6 percent to 5.6 percent, but that would be the maximum. It would also allow school districts to levy a one percent income tax if approved by voters in the district.

If passed, VanWieren said, school officials would have to lay-off about 60 percent of the staff - since the school relies so heavily on local property taxes.

The superintendent said this amendment may be favored here because of "absentee owners."

The Voucher Plan would prohibit the use of property taxes to operate schools and would require the state to give a voucher that could be applied toward each child's education at any private or public school chosen by the parent or guardian.

"I think this is a completely unworkable plan," VanWieren said.

He added this proposal could force the closing of some marginal schools, would cause problems with transportation, and would mean further loss of local control of schools.

To prove how important educators are taking this election, the Michigan Education Association has already spent $436,000 on advertising in an effort to sway voters from approving these three proposals. They plan to spend another $100,000 before Nov. 7

A spokesman for the MEA said this "is a critical campaign for the survival of education."

Said VanWieren, "It's important people research the issues and know what they're voting on."

WON'T CASH CHECK

Seven weeks ago a member of my family went to County Bank to cash a check, which was from Charlevoix Credit Union. It was refused to cash because they had no account with the County Bank. Two weeks later another member of my family got a check as a gift that was from Charlevoix Credit Union, by a Charlevoix businessman and it was refused to be cashed because he had no account with the County Bank. What is the matter with the County Bank. Don't they think the Charlevoix Credit Union checks are any good? Or are they afriad of the competition they are getting? Or is it that it is too much trouble to check with the Charlevoix Credit Union? Thank you very much. I appreciate this

Commission reviews plan for airport expansion

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission Thursday reviewed a master plan for the expansion of the Charlevoix Airport.

Designed by Alvin Ranger, the plan calls for a 1,000 foot addition to the existing 3,500 foot runway - plus installation of two additional runways - a 2,800 foot crosswinds runway to handle small utility-type aircraft and a 4,600 foot runway for executive-type aircraft. The 4,600 foot runway would be equipped with precision landing instruments.

Additional parking space, a larger hangar for commercial operations and a general aviation hanger are also proposed.

According to Ranger, this plan would bring the airport up to 1980 standards as recommended by the state. He said the airport would be able to handle air traffic for the next 20 years. Air traffic should double in that period, Ranger said.

To implement this plan, land would have to be acquired - most likely from the Medusa Cement Company. It is not known if land would be available.

Ranger said the plan could be implemented in stages. The first stage would be the addition to the present runway. The second stage would be the 2,800 foot runway. And the third stage would be the 4,600 foot runway.

The cost of the plan has not been determined.

The planning commission took no action on the plan. The commission will meet jointly with the city, township and county boards before making a decision on whether to pursue the plan or not.

There are three other airports in Charlevoix County; at Boyne City, East Jordan and Beaver Island. The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners appropriates funds equally to all four airports.

"There should be a lot of thought given to this before you can expect approval from any commission," said Oscar Ward, a commission member.

City officials briefly inspected the plan at its last council meeting.

The commission also discussed solid waste.

The commission approved a resolution designating the county as the governmental body for solid waste management planning. Presently, the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission says it will plan and the county will implement. But the commission would like to do the planning, too.

County planner John Hess said the last solid waste plan for the county was drawn up four years ago.

County commission members said they may possibly combine solid waste management efforts with another county, perhaps Emmet County.

Emmet County has been planning - and trying to implement a solid waste for over five years. County officials are now working on a transfer station concept where waste would be brought to a site, compacted and then trucked away.

Emmet County officials have been foiled on attempts to get a countywide landfill established. Thus, all waste compacted at a transfer station would be trucked out of the county. There has been talk the waste may be hauled to Charlevoix County and dumped near Ironton.

Deadline near for service applications

WASHINGTDN – The deadline for those Northern Michigan young people who are interested in submitting applications for nomination to U.S. Service Academies is Oct. 31, 1978 Congressman Philip E. Ruppe announced today.

In announcing the reminder, Ruppe said any youth between the ages of 17 and 21 is eligible for the class which will enter July, 1979, provided he or she is a legal, unmarried resident of the 11th District. Those interested in applying should write Congressman Ruppe at 203 Cannon House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

The candidates most qualified will be nominated to four of the service academies – Military (West Point), Naval, Air Force and Merchant Marine.

Appointment to the Coast Guard Academy is made solely on the basis of examination and prospective adapaibility to military life. There are no Congressional appointments or geographical quotas. Those who are interested in the Coast Guard Academy are encouraged to write directly to the Director of Admissions, United States Coast Guard Academy, New London, CT 06320.

Ruppe also said the Great Lakes Maritime Academy should be of special interest to young people in northern Michigan. The GLMA is a division of Northwestern Michigan College and offers a three-year program which prepares young men and women to serve as officers aboard Great Lakes vessels. Those interested should write the Dean of Admissions, Northwestern College, 1701 Front St., Traverse Cit, Michigan 49684.

Real Estate

by Jim Thomas

If you own a multi-family dwelling you are probably familiar with the problem of the wandering tenant. The way to get a multi-unit house to pay is to have all the apartments rented all the time. But, especially if there are a lot of apartments, this might mean constant interference and inconvenience in your life. Why not let a broker handle all the headaches? Let me have all my meals interrupted, waiting around on Sunday's for those phone calls from prospective renters? Wouldn't you rather go swimming, skiing, or play golf? Real estate, whether it be a single family, multifamily, or land can be a fruitful investment. Like any other financial investment, knowledge and understanding of important related details is necessary so let our staff at THOMAS REAL ESTATE, 100 Pine River Lane, 547-4494 assist you in this endeavor. Social Services gets grant

State Senator Bob Davis reported today that the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services will be receiving a $19,152 federal/state grant to fund the establishment of a Youth Diversionary Program within the department.

Davis explained that the grant will be used to counsel pre-delinquent youths referred to the agency by the police, courts, or schools. Individual or group counseling sessions will be scheduled and parents of the young people will be invited to participate, he added.

"Through the early detection of delinquent behavior patterns, many youngsters may be steered away from more serious criminal behavior, thereby reducing the arrest rate of youths and the referral of the youngsters to juvenile court," Davis noted.

The anti-crime grant has been authorized by the Michigan office of Criminal Justice Programs, and the state funds are being matched locally.

The total cost of the project is $20,160. Federal funds granted are $18,144; state funds, $1,008; and local funds, $1,008.

City seeks grant money for repairs

Charlevoix City Manager Norman H. Gaffney has looked around his city and decided that many things need to be done and they could be done if the city were given proper "consideration in the procurement of grant money."

On Sept. 12, he directed a letter to 14 elected and appointed officials in the state and federal governments pointing out the primary needs of the city.

He said the city's water supply is "very inadequate and the old reservoir needs replacement. The entire system needs beefing up."

According to Gaffney, "The city is in need of several thousands of dollars to refurbish, repair, replace and extend our dock and wharfage faciabities."

Streets and street drainage are very poor, and two-thirds of them are in need of resurfacing. "Charlevoix still has a number of unpaved streets and there is a real need for an improved storm sewer system", he continued.

Financial assistance is needed by the city "to acquire property for parking, additional municipal offices, and additional lake frontage property," Gaffney told the officials.

In summary, he said, "Although the city is old and is deteriorated, we feel grants and financial assistance is a must if we are to progress."

Gaffney received several replies to his letters.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin replied that he had referred the letter to the Departments of Interior and Commerce. A representative from the Department of the Interior suggested that Gaffney contact the Michigan administrator of the Land and Water Conservation Fund program which provides matching grants for the acquisition and development of public outdoor recreation areas and facilities.

Congressman Phdip E. Ruppe answered that it "appears doubtful that additional LPW (Local Public Works) funds will become available in the near future." He also recommended that Gaffney contact the Farmers Home Administration "to advise them of the city's need and to ask about possible assistance under their various loan and grant programs for rural development."

State Sen. Robert W. Davis replied that he had spoken with a representative of the Economic Development Corporation about the matter, and that the city would hear directly from him. He also suggested that the city "find every possible grant, get assistance in writing it and apply, apply, apply. County extension agents will be able to help you find grants through grant scans and the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission should be able to provide technical assistance."

Keith Wilson, Chief of the Waterways Division of the Department of Natural Resources, wrote that the only project with which his department might help was for "funds to repair your recreation-boating facilities." He added that he would be interested in "learning what your basic needs might be" and that he "could schedule a meeting...in the area to view the dock and discuss this matter further." Wilson also suggested that "you (Gaffney) indicate a desirable date in the latter part of October...which would make it possible for us to meet with all persons locally involved. We could then actually view the facilities and relate your needs to our programs so that everyone had a clear understanding of our joint capabilities and limitations."

Rabert C. Morris, executive director of the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission, explained that his commission's role in both "Round I" and Round II" of the LPW program was rather limited (because) "the formula was based primarily on unemployment rate and total numbers of unemployed. We could see from the offset that the program was heavily weighted in favor of the larger urban areas. In Round I, none of the ten counties in our Region received any grant money. The Congress did alter the distribution formula somewhat for Round II becuuse of heavy criticism it received from the rural areas of the county; however, only Grand Traverse and Manistee Counties and a number of local governmental units within those counties received LPW grant funds even during Round II. The Region received a total of $3.2 million in the two rounds."

Morris is not optimistic about a third round for LPW grants. "Based on our current knowledge, we would say the changes of a Round II of LPW are slim, although bear in mind that one never knows what the Congress will do in an election year," he told Gaffney.

Morris further suggested that "the City of Charlevoix pursue other sources of funding for the projects you listed in your letter, keeping alert to LPW but certainly not counting on it. Doug Puvogel of our staff, and perhaps others, will be happy to talk with you and, I hope, be of some assistance."

Morris also urged that the projects be included in the Charlevoix County Overall Economic Development Plan. "That's a basic criterion for EDA project funding assistance. John Hess, your county planner, can give you some help in that effort," he concluded.

One of Gaffney's letters went to Vilican Leman & Associates, Inc., community planners of Southfield. They replied that, "About the only types of programs we know of that might assist you would be through the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program at HUD....As you know, the HUD people require a strong emphasis on the housing element, but funds can be utilized for a number of other types of public improvements."

Vilican also offered to send a representative to meet with the city council and planning commission to discuss some possible grant assistance programs which the city may wish to pursue.

Dean R. Rhoads, district extension leader for Resource Development of the Cooperative Extension Service, told Gaffney that his department operated with and through the local county extension director, who, in Charlevoix County, is Ed Rebman. He said he had talked to Rebman about the matter and suggested that Rebman and Gaffney get together for further discussion.

As of last week, Gaffney was waiting to hear from the other seven officials to whom he had written.

Last color cruise soldout

If you plan on taking the Oct. 14 color cruise aboard the motorship Beaver Islander, plan again -- unless, of course, you already have a ticket.

According to Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Manager Jacquie Merta, Saturday's color cruise is a complete sellout. She added, however, there may be some cancellations, thus, a waiting list will be established. If you want to get on the waiting list stop at the chamber office.

Last week's color cruises were an astounding success. On Saturday, 235 people boarded the Beaver Islander for the two hour ride around Lake Charlevoix. On Sunday, there were 220 people on the Beaver Islander and another 70 or so on the South Shore.

Saturday's color cruise will start at 1 p.m. The boat has a protected cover and will sail rain or shine.

Milliken campaigns in area

Gov. William Milliken made a whirlwind campaign tour of northern Michigan Friday.

The governor appeared in Charlevoix late in the afternoon and met with the press and supporters at the community room of LaCroft Condominium.

Milliken answered questions on a variety of topics.

–He said he was not sure because of "conflicting reports" whether the Bay Mills and Sault Ste. Marie bands of Chippewa Indians were gill netting south of Good Hart.

About a month ago Indian fishermen from Bay Mills and Sault Ste. Marie reportedly told the governor they would not gill net south of Good Hart. Milliken said, however, nothing was signed.

–He said he assumed President Carter would "honor his commitment" not to put Project Seafarer (ELF) in the Upper Peninsula against the wishes of the people.

–He endorsed the Headlee Amendment, but said he was "surprised" to hear (Richard) Headlee endorse the Tisch Amendment as well.

–He said the Legislature "took the right course of action" when they passed the Comprehensive Transportation Package recently. Milliken said this is vital to Michigan and its economy.

–He called his opponent's campaign advertising concerning PBB "irresponsible."

William Fitzgerald's campaign committee has aired commercials suggesting PBB causes loss of hair, loss of memory, liver cancer, birth defects and genetic mutation. Milliken said the suggestions are "not factual" and are nothing more than a "scare tactic."

After leaving Charlevoix, Milliken went to East Jordan where he dedicated the new high school. It was Milliken who signed the bill demerging the Twin Valley School District, thus making it possible for East Jordan to have its own school.

Support United Way fund campaign

Charlevoix's United Way campaign will start the week of Oct. 22.

The board hopes to collect $18,000 and then disperse it to 12 local agencies. Agencies receiving funds will be:

Salvation Army	$1,600
Charlevoix Recreation Dept.	$ 500
Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood	$1,500
DAC Counseling Center	$1,000
American Red Cross	$1,450
Crooked Tree (Girl Scouts)	$2,000
Scenic Trails (Boy Scouts)	$1,700
Bergmann Center	$2,000
Camp Daggett	$1,000
Big Brothers of Charlevoix	$1,600
Area Mental Health Clinic	$1,000
United Way of Michigan	$2,500
(Campaign expenses)	$ 150

Most of these agencies depend a great deal on the funds they receive from United Way. Each has something to offer our community whether it be the Salvation Army – which provides lodging and meals to people in need – or Big Brothers and Big Sisters – which provides adult companionship to children without a parent on a one-to-one basis.

These agencies need our support. United Way is an investment in our community. Its success or failure depends on the generosity of each person.

Looking good at 60

When I was a kid, one of my favorite fictional characters was a teen-aged hood from Chicago by the name of Studs Lonigan. Studs' motto was: "Live fast, die young and have a good looking corpse."

Studs belonged to the old school which assumed that advanced age means wrinkles, bulges and other assorted signs of physical deterioration. The only way to avoid such a calamity was to die young.

But this is no longer the case. If Studs Lonigan were around today he could have lived fast, died at 90 and still have looked like Adonis in his winding sheet.

Reference, of course, is made to our former First Lady Betty Ford, who emerged from a chrysalis of bandages last week after a session with her cosmetic surgeon.

If you saw the before and after pictures in the metropolitan press over the weekend, you know that the old Betty Ford with chipmunk cheeks and dark lines under her eyes is gone. In her place is a stunning ingenue with a wrinkle-free alabaster complexion, who appears a good 40 years younger than the original Mrs. Ford.

"I am 60 years old and I want a nice new face to go with my beautiful new life," Mrs. Ford said Sept. 14 when she went into the hospital for surgery.

She displayed the results late last week at a testimonial dinner in Los Angeles for Fred Astaire, sweeping into the room on the arm of her son, Steve. And although the room was filled with such celebrities as Lucille Ball, Gregory Peck, Paul Newman and Mae West, the spotlight of the evening was on Mrs. Ford and her "new look."

Of course, I never minded the old Mrs. Ford. She was still an attractive woman, in a motherly sort of way. But if she is happier looking like a schoolgirl, more power to her. However I can't say I like the idea of our august former president Gerald Ford hopping into bed with a teenie bopper every night, but that's none of my business.

THE NEXT MONTH isn't going to be easy for Sen. Robert Griffin who has suddenly become an underdog for the first time in his life.

The Louis Harris poll shows Griffin running five percentage points behind challenger Carl M. Levin, former Detroit council president. Although the five-point spread is within the poll's margin of error, the figures indicate that Griffin has his work cut out for him in the weeks ahead.

Oddly enough, Griffin had turned out to be Griffin's own worst enemy. His opponents never tire of reiterating his own dismal assessment of his role in Congress, uttered last spring when he decided he wouldn't run again.

The switcheroo itself also hasn't sat well with many voters who expect a certain amount of steadfast tunnel vision on the part of their favorite politicians.

Not surprisingly, the candidates will take a seat to 11 ballot proposals in Michigan's general election in November.

The three proposals generating the most interest are the Headlee Amendment, which would limit state spending to a percentage of personal income; the Tisch Amendment which would roll back property taxes by 50 percent; and a voucher plan which would allow state residents to earmark their tax dollars for either public or private schools.

You'll be hearing a lot about these three proposals – both pro and con – in the weeks ahead. I hope you will weigh all of the arguments carefully, paying close attention to the source. And then vote your conscience on Nov. 7.

Get your camera ready

Potpourri:

Color – This should be an excellent weekend for camera buffs. Primarily for one reason: Fall color will be at its peak.

Sunday I drove to Petoskey to drop off film of the Charlevoix-Grayling football game (at the News-Review). The sun was out for the first time in days so I decided to buy a couple rolls of color film and spend the remainder of the day taking pictures.

I stopped at Mud Lake and snapped several pictures of the swans and then continued on towards Harbor Springs. To my surprise – as I traveled down M-131 – I found most of the trees still green.

I spent an hour or so in Harbor Springs looking for proper fall color pictures. After taking a handful of shots, I decided I was a week too early.

Now I hope it doesn't rain this weekend.

Homecoming – Despite the cold windy weather we had Friday, the rain held off until...well, until it came time to crown the queen at halftime.

Just as Queen Gayle Hansen and the court walked out onto the field the rain started falling. Nonetheless, the proceedings took place. About five minutes later the ceremonies ended and so, too, did the rain.

The seniors, incidentally, took first place in the float competition. The freshman class took second place. The floats were not allowed on the playing field at halftime because of the wet conditions.

The senior float showed Popeye hovering over Brutus - with foot on chest – and saying, "Rayders are stronger to the finish cuz they eats their spinach."

It was the third straight year the Class of '79 has won the float competition.

When I was in high school my class finished fourth (OK, last) all four years. In fact, we lost our homecoming game all four years. We weren't a football school.

Also, I can't recall it raining at one of our homecoming contests (1967-70). It snowed. Our homecoming was the last game of the year, which was the first week of November.

Football - Senior wide receiver Kevin Martin, formerly of Charlevoix High School, won the Outstanding Offensive Achievement Award recently at Michigan Tech. Martin caught one pass for 11 yards.

Registration - Tuesday was the last day to register to vote for the Nov. 7 election.

According to Secretary of State Richard Austin, approximately 5.2 million individuals in the state are registered to vote out of a potential of nearly 6.3 million. That figures out to 83 percent and it is why Michigan ranks first among large industrial states and third nationally in percentage of eligible voters registered.

World Series – New York vs. Los Angeles.

Not a bad showdown. But I can't forsee the Yanks failing now, especially after their miraculous turnabout.

Bob Lemon has made Yankee fans forget Billy Martin, and it would not be surprising to see Martin sign on as manager of the Chicago White Sox even though he reportedly can manage the Yanks again in 1980.

If I was a betting man, I would say the Yanks in seven games.

And would you believe Reggie Jackson will be the MVP for the second year in a row?

Lions are great team to read by

During the past few years, my interest in professional football has deteriorated to the point where, although I still tune on TV, I resent it when a team interferes with my reading. I hardly ever resent the Detroit Lions.

Lately there hasn't been anything good written about the Lions, which isn't fair. Certainly it should be acknowledged that again this year, for the umpteenth straight season, Bill Ford and his coaches have put together another great team to read by.

The TV is turned on much of the time in our home, and I enjoy many of the shows. But I never watch TV without a book or newspaper in my hand. I read when the TV action drags and during commercials. Sometimes I also listen to a baseball game on the radio, and all the time I am making notes. It's not easy being an informed citizen.

My wife says the most remarkable thing about my performance is that, no matter how many different things I do at the same time, I still manage to fall asleep while doing them. This is an unfair charge and I've been meaning to talk to her about it for several years now but there just hasn't been time.

Anyway, everyone knows it is intellectually chic to read instead of watch TV. So I'm grateful to the Lions who, combined with the instant replay, have done more than the public library to widen my reading horizons. On a recent Sunday I read all of "Trinity" while waiting for the Lions to convert a third down situation.

The value of the instant replay couldn't be exaggerated. If ever the Lions score on a long pass, or a long run, the TV film is replayed while an announcer expresses astonishment. The footage is then dispatched to the Smithsonian to be filed in its rare films vault.

So all I have to do, while reading, is keep an ear cocked for an amazed tone in the play-by-play announcer's voice. The amazement indicates the Lions have done something unusual, such as make a first down, and I look up from my book to see the replay. Nothing to it.

Incidentally, some people question why today it requires 2 announcers and sometimes three, to tell football viewers what they are seeing on TV. These doubters are usually old-timers who can remember when Bill Stern or Harry Wismer described games all by themselves, and that was when it was impossible to get a decent picture on the radio.

As in the case of promoting reading, the Lions also deserve much of the credit for increasing the number of TV football announcers. No team is better than the Lions at creating voids which must be filled by announcers.

TV is not like radio. When nothing was happening on the football field in 1939, Bill Stern could tell lies over the radio. He could holler with excitement while the players were barely keeping each other awake. Listeners never knew they were hearing a different game than the one being played.

This deception is impossible on TV. When a football game is ho-hum the yawns show on the TV screen. So the play-by-play announcer must keep the viewers' interest by talking about something else. It helps if he is funny. It helps even more if there is a second announcer to laugh at him, so viewers at home will realize how funny the first announcer is.

Announcer teams should be staffed with an eye toward comedy. The importance of this fact was demonstrated recently when the Lions were creating voids against Seattle. One of the TV announcers was an elderly ex-jock and the other was a younger man of undetermined background. Whenever the Lions were on offense, the young announcer kept the viewers' interested by kidding the elderly ex-jock about his age. It was even hinted that the ex-jock was so old he could remember the last time the Lions won a championship. It was a laugh-a-minute riot, I'll tell you.

It's important to me that the TV announcers do a good job because I never watch the Lions play in person. I used to go to all the games and enjoy myself. But I got mad and quit going in 1965 when some drunk spilled beer on my book.

'Coma' made heart skip a beat

Not long ago, the pastor of our church stopped over and found me engrossed in yet another book.

"When you're waked," quipped he, "we may as well skip the rosary and put a paperback novel in your hands."

It made me nervous making any reference to death. I had recently finished "Coma."

Hospitals are scary places. Even being a visitor has never appealed to me. The only time I came close to enjoying hospitalization was after the birth of our fourth child. It was so quiet in the maternity ward and so hectic at home. Then they spoiled it all and brought a D & C case into my semi-private room. Hospitals are never nice for very long. And if a normal situation is awesome to the layman, what about the hypothetical ones devised by Robin Cook?

I had to admire the main character, third year medical student Susan Wheeler. Not necessarily for her heroics as the mystery unfolded and intrigue thickened; for those she was downright crazy. I admired her stamina for those minor accomplishments like coping with the exclusively male staff even in the locker room, and for the seemingly elementary task of administering I.V.'s which would not be elementary to me. Admiration is not an adequate term to describe what I felt for her when she started pinching comatose patients to record their reflexes.

Susan Wheeler is an enigma. She is a character that might have been written by Alfred Hitchcock. Can she be frightened? Not Susan. At least not enough to cry "Uncle!"

I think my heart probably skipped more beats than hers as she squeaked through her succession of narrow escapes. I was just too scared. In comparison, all the others that contribute to the story are secondary until, needs be, the hero and the villain are exposed and the plot races to its cliff-hanging conclusion.

Susan Wheeler is a young female medical student at Boston Memorial Hospital. Quite by accident, but encouraged by greenhorn curiosity, she stumbles upon evidence of foul play in the alarming coincidence of comatose patients. The entire saga takes only three and a half days to unfold. The story is the solo investigation and discovery of an outrageous crime against the dignity of human life.

The author is exceedingly well versed in the technical lingo peculiar to his profession. By the time I was finished, I, too, felt a certain facility with I.V.'s O.R.'s and I.C.U.'s I still don't have the slightest desire to be part of any of these. His novel is a vehicle which somehow admonishes us all to become more aware of the laws governing technological advancement in the medical profession.

I just hope that I don't suffer appendicitis in the near future. Do they give locals for appendectomies?

Can't wait to see the movie. What do you suppose they did with the freezer scene.

Let's hear it for short people

At 5-4, Kylene Barker of Virginia has become the shortest Miss America since 1926.

I can't tell you the ramifications yet, but for someone who walks under coffee tables, this has to be the most exciting news since the secret sauce stains came out of my car upholstery.

Hopefully, it will mean the end of discrimination for women 5-5 or under. The long-legged beauties who can braid their legs and still have them touch the floor are out of style. We've lived in a tall world too long. Maybe some of it will change.

Are you listening, Ann Landers? There may be a day when we don't have to go on an elevator and be sick with worry about what we'll do if we have to push a button for the 14th floor.

Rejoice, Rona (Barrett)! This could mean a breakthrough in ready-made clothes where we don't have to chop 14 inches of material off every dress, skirt or coat we buy. (Which if sewn together would be enough to put a band-aid on the world.)

Think about it Bette Midler. We can get a drink of water without a reach 'n seat, and hold onto straps on the bus without looking like we're being strung up for horse stealing.

And you, Helen Hayes, who has long fought the war of short people. Imagine being able to climb into the driver's seat of a car and not have to dig your heels into the floor and scoot your way to the steering wheel.

Tracy Austin, can you appreciate what it will be not to have to jog alongside a companion who is "walking or skipping" in order to keep up?

Imagine, Bonnie Franklin, no more treading water in the wading pool, or dancing and getting your hair caught in a belt buckle.

Ah, Nancy Walker, can you imagine driving through a drive-in bank and not having to swing on the car door to the box with your deposit slip?

Think about it, Sally Struthers. Pay phones you can reach. Shoes that don't give you a nosebleed.

It's a new day, gang. Let's stand up and hear it out there for short. I said stand up. Oh, you are standing...

Next time vote 'Yes', Charlevoix student urges

A vote was held at the Charlevoix elementary school on Sept. 12 in the hope of receiving a bond issue for $3.2 million for an addition and renovation to the Charlevoix High School.

The money was to be paid over a 16 year period.

There were two propositions involved in this request.

Proposition I was to include new laboritories, additional classrooms, a larger library, elimination of portables, a larger cafeteria, and building repairs.

Proposition II was to provide an additional physical education room and locker rooms.

These additions would have provided major energy conservation by connecting the two buildings and eliminating all three portables so that the students would not have to travel outside.

Had these proposals been accepted the cost to the tax payer would have been about 54 cents a week the first year for a family of four making $10,000 a year and living in a $20,000 home.

After which the cost would have decreased as the State Equalized Valuation increased.

This is a considerably small amount when compared to a single pack of cigarettes, which cost over 60 cents.

Also, because of the circuit breaker, most senior citizens would pay nothing.

When asked their feelings on the refusal of both propositions some high school students had this to say;

Carolyn Loper – "Teed-off! With more students each year we need the extra space!"

Shari Barnes – "Unfair! People just don't understand the importance of the millage!"

Tammy Helms – "People should come up to date with the schools and stop looking in the past."

Carla Sizemore – "It's really rotten. A lot of people are really misinformed on the millage!"

Janeen Boal – "I'm disappointed that propostion A failed. We need the room because we have excessive students in our class rooms. Also, such classes as chemistry, physics, biology...can't function without the proper room and equipment!"

Wendi Wright – "Unfair! We're expected to have a good education when we don't even have the proper facilities!

These students see the problems of the high school everyday, but, unfortunately, most of them can do nothing about it.

Our present high school was built to accommodate 472 students. During 1977-78 we had a total of 640 students.

If something isn't done soon the high school may loose its accreditations for college. We have already received a warning on this, because of inadequate facilities and overcrowding, from the North Central Association.

So, please, the next time a vote comes up on similar propositions, think of the future generations and vote yes.

Like all growing tissue, growing teeth need adequate amounts of protein, minerals, fats, and other food elements. These are obtained through the blood which supplies the pulp area of the tooth. If there is a limited or poor supply of food, the blood will take the necessary elements from other body tissues. It is therefore imperative that a balanced diet be provided for the proper growth of teeth. This is especially true for children.

Four area youths receive $100 bonds

Four Charlevoix County youths were awarded $100 savings bonds Friday morning for heroic action during the past year.

The four youths - Michael Kent Seymour Jr. of Charlevoix, Ross Payton of Boyne Falls, Ronnie Willis of Boyne City and William Arthur Beid of East Jordan - were chosen from a list of 12 candidates - all recipients of citizen awards in the last 12 months. The savings bonds were presented by First State Bank, Charlevoix County State Bank, Northwestern State Bank and State Bank & Trust.

The four youths received the savings bonds because:

- Reid was driving on Rogers Road in South Arm Township last November when he came upon a serious personal injury accident. The driver of the vehicle, Robert Snyder of East Jordan, was pinned inside the car, which appeared ready to catch on fire. Reid broke the window and pried Snyder free.
- Seymour was fishing off a dock in eight feet of water near Ironton with his five-year-old brother, Kris. Kris fell off the dock into Lake Charlevoix. A non-swimmer, Kris was unable to keep afloat. He went under twice when Michael reached from the dock and managed to grab his arm and hold his head above water until their mother heard their cries and helped pull Kris to safety.
- Payton was snowmobiling with a schoolmate, Neil Waszlewski. Neil's scarf got caught in the drive belt and was slowly chocking him - as it pulled him near the drive shaft. Ross managed to turn the machine off before any serious injury occurred.

Payton was also cited for a similiar rescue when his father got his coat caught in a piece of farm machinery. His father was being pulled towards the jaws of the machine when Ross climbed on the tractor and turned the engine off.

- Willis was camping with his family and friends when his younger brother, Shawn, 2, fell face first into the campfire. Ronnie pulled him out quickly. Shawn suffered second degree burns.

Selecting the four recipients were: Mrs. Richard Massey of Boyne Falls, Mrs. John Pearl of Norwood, Mrs. Virginia Goike of Bay Shore, Mrs. Robert Dunnette of Boyne City, Mrs. Alfred Hass of Walloon Lake, Robert Strehl of East Jordan, Hap Cunningham of Charlevoix, Mrs. Dale Boss of Charlevoix, Mrs. Faye Crain of Boyne City, Mrs. Barbara Timms of Charlevoix, Mrs. E. Bacon of Ironton, Mrs. Ray Olson of East Jordan and Ms. Barbara Becker of Beaver Island.

According to Sheriff George Lasater, this will be an annual presentation by the banks of Charlevoix County. Radio station WVOY purchased the certificates for the award.

Davis aide at Boyne City

State Senator Bob Davis will be sending his administrative assistant, Bill Huber, to Charlevoix County on Thursday, Oct. 12.

Huber relays his findings directly to Davis.

Huber's schedule for Thursday is as follows: 10-11:30 a.m. Boyne City-City Hall, Council Chambers, Boyne City. 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. Senior Citizen Nutrition Program, American Legion Hall, Boyne City.

Briefly

Charlevoix cited

Charlevoix is mentioned as a Michigan fall travel attraction in the October Michigan Living / AAA Motor News magazine, Automobile Club of Michigan Traverse City Manager Fred Doelker reports.

World traveler George Pierrot, the publication's roving editor, tells Auto Club's 1.2 million reader members that Charlevoix is "tops among winter and summer playgrounds."

Items needed

The Grandvue Medical Care Facility located at East Jordan is in need of numerous items for use in its Diversional Therapy Department.

Patients at the facility are presently starting on Christmas projects which demand many items found in homes.

Among the items needed are nylon stockings and panty hose, remnants and pieces of double-knit fabrics, polyester cotton fabrics, sewing needles, pins, thread in all colors, spools of every description, pieces of wood in all sizes and nails.

Anyone having such items and wish to donate them to the Facility is asked to call 547-6719.

REACT drive

November is National REACT Month and the Northwest REACT team No. 3433 is observing the event with a special membership drive, according to Gregory Seese, president of the local team.

The membership drive is being held to expand the monitoring of the CB emergency channel, Seese said in announcing the membership campaign.

He went on to say "If you are a licensed CB operator, your volunteer effort can be a valuable public service in bringing assistance to motorists and providing communications in local emergencies."

Further information may be obtained by calling 547-9868.

For those unfimiliar with REACT, it is a non-profit, independent public service organization composed of CB (Citizen Bank) radio operators who offer emergency services such as monitoring the Emergency Channel 19; assisting stranded motorists by calling for help and aiding the police and other agencies in the event of emergencies.

Big Mac history

Pete Spieles will be the featured speaker in a community forum at East Jordan High School on Thursday, Oct. 12.

Spieles will be doing a slide presentation on the history of the Mackinac Bridge. He was one of the original builders of the bridge which is the longest suspension bridge in the world.

The forum is open to people of all ages, but children must be accompanied by an adult. The forum is free, but you are asked to register by calling the Community Education Office at 536-3241.

Metric lesson

Need to learn more about meters and liters? You'll have a chance in the Metrics class sponsored by East Jordan Community Education.

The class runs for 6 weeks from 7-9 p.m. beginning Thursday, Oct. 19. Cost of the class is $10.

For further information and to register call Jamie Baumann at the Community Education Office, 536-3241.

Mike Martin

SAN ANTONIO – Airman Michael G. Martin, son of retired Air Force Senior Master Sergeant and Mrs. Norbert Martin of 406 Antrim, Charlevoix, has been assigned to Sheppard AFB, Tex., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland AFB, Tex., the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations. Completion of this training earned the individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman Martin will now receive specialized training in the accounting and finance field.

The airman is a 1978 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Robert Golden

Navy Airman Recruit Robert J. Golden, son of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Golden of Box 370-A, Route 3, Charlevoix, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in his studies were seamanship, close-order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in Physical Education and Hygiene.

He joined the Navy in July 1978.

Pat Doan

GRAND FORKS, N.D. – Patrick H. Doan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Doan of 308 Meech St., Charlevoix has been specially identified for early promotion to senior airman in the U.S. Air Force.

Airman Doan was awarded the new rating by a "below-the-zone" promotion board which considered job performance, military knowledge, bearing and self improvement efforts.

Being selected "below-the-zone" means that the individual has been awarded the senior airman stripe up to six months in advance of normal promotion eligibility. Competition in this category is highly competitive and reserved for only those airmen who excel on the job and are recommended by their unit commanders.

The airman is a medical administrative specialist at Grand Forks AFB, N.D., and serves with a unit of the Strategic Air Command.

The airman, a 1973 graduate of Charlevoix High School, attended Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, and North Central Michigan College, Petoskey. His wife Sharon, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Monteith of 2850 Evergreen, Fargo, N.D.

Mary Murphy

OSCODA, MICH – Mary L. Murphy, daughter of Mrs. Betty L. Murphy of 310 Second St., East Jordan, has received her first promotion in the U.S. Air Force.

Murphy, promoted to airman, recently completed technical training at Keesler AFB, Miss., and is now assigned at Wurtsmith AFB, Mich. She serves as an administration specialist with a unit of the Strategic Air Command.

The airman is a 1977 graduate of East Jordan High School. Her father, Ervin J. Murphy also lives in East Jordan.

Marriage licenses

The following marriage licenses were recently issued by the Charlevoix County Clerk:

Terry L. Elzinga, 23, Boyne City, and Carol Ann Crittenden, 27, Boyne City.

William A. Detlaff, 19, Boyne City, and Tammy L. Laurie, 20, Boyne City.

William Joseph Johnson, 27, Boyne City, and Judith Lynn Pore, 35, Boyne City.

Adolphus F. Allard, 45, Charlevoix, and Sandra A. Hartnett, 37, Charlevoix.

Boy Scout Troop 11 camps at Niagara Falls

Last weekend was International Weekend for Charlevoix's Boy Scout Troop 11.

The troop members accompanied by Louis Edwards, their Scoutmaster and his assistant, John Houting, left Friday for Niagara Falls, Ont. and after spending the weekend there, returned on Monday.

On Friday and Saturday nights they camped and on Sunday spent the night with their Canadian hosts, the members of the 26th Niagara Falls Troop, Boy Scouts, Boy Scouts of Canada, and their Scoutmaster, Don Mullan.

The boys enjoyed a jam-packed weekend that included a tour of the tunnels under Niagara Falls, helicopter rides over the Falls, a hockey game, a visit to the Grape Festival in nearby St. Catherine's Ont., to the Skylon, a tower with an observation platform overlooking the city and the Falls and to the Houdini Museum.

Making the trip were Kevin Whitley, Tim Moy, Gerry Chase, Jeff Novotny, Matt Landon, Mike Paul, Patrick Avery, Gerald Zeitler, Dan Buday and Paul Stangis.

If there are boys in the community interested in joining the Boy Scouts, they are asked to contact Scoutmaster Edwards or Mr. Houting.

Knights of Columbus council organized

A Council of the Knights of Columbus has been organized at St. Mary's church here. The Council is composed of members of the former's men's club of the parish.

Twenty-two members received their first degree membership in ceremonies performed by the Gaylord Council Oct. 1.

"This is a new organization in Charlevoix and we are very pleased to have the fine response" a spokesman for the council said. Members of the Knights of Columbus who have moved into the area are urged to transfer their membership to the new council and to attend the meeting scheduled for Oct. 22.

A second First Degree Admission ceremony will be held at the St. Mary's Parish Hall at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 22, for those prospective Knights who could not attend the first meeting will be invested.

The Second and Third Degrees will be held at the Gaylord Council Nov. 5.

Auxiliary plans luncheon, mini-bazaar

The Auxiliary of Charlevoix Post. No. 1153, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will sponsor a salad and casserole luncheon and mini-bazaar at the V.F.W. Post Home on US 31 North on Wednesday, Oct. 18 Mrs. Leland Warner, general chairman of the event, has announced.

Serving will begin at 11 a.m. and continue until 2 p.m.

The luncheon will feature a wide choice of hot casseroles and salads, a roll and a choice of dessert and beverage.

Chairpersons in charge of the event will be Mrs. Kenneth Staley, kitchen; Mrs. William Farkas, dining room; Mrs. Louis McKenzie, coffee; Mrs. Frank Novotny, advertising and Mrs. Ted Browe, Sr., tickets.

Mrs. Albert Russell will be in charge of the mini-bazaar.

Proceeds of the event will underwrite the cost of the community service program as well as the building fund.

Luncheon tickets are priced at $2.50 each.

La Leche League to meet

The Charlevoix La Leche League will soon start its winter series of four regular meetings to acquaint interested women with the physical, practical, and psychological sides of breastfeeding.

The group will meet the third Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Kay Beatty, 1003 St. Johns Street, Hampton Village, in Charlevoix.

At the first meeting, October 17, the topic for discussion will be "The advantages of Breastfeeding to Mother and Baby".

Other monthly topics will be "The Art of Breastfeeding and Overcoming Difficulties", "Baby Arrives: The Family and the Breastfed Baby", and "Weaning and Nutrition."

The continuing series of informal meeting is open to all women interested in breastfeeding. They need not be pregnant or even have a family to attend. Babies are also always welcome.

According to Jenny Bellairs, local group leader, "La Leche League tells a simple story about a simple, natural function. Emphasizing the joys of breastfeeding, it is designed to encourage and inform, primarily through personal contact, mothers who desire to nurse their babies."

A mother may call a La Leche leader at any time, day or night, for breastfeeding information or encouragement, or to request a copy of "The Womanly Art of Breastfeeding". Loan copies are also available from the group's lending library.

Want to stop smoking?

A five day Stop Smoking Clinic sponsored by the Seventh-day Adventist Church will be held Oct. 16-20 at 7 p.m. at the Boyne City High School, Room 12 in connection with the Adult Education Program. It is free of charge.

BUDGET HEARING

The Board of Education of the Charlevoix Public Schools will hold its annual budget hearing on Monday, October 16, 1978, at 7:30 p.m. in the Charlevoix High School. Copies of the proposed budget are available at Board of Education offices, 208 Clinton Street.

Rayders upend Grayling

After losing two tough conference games to unbeaten Cheboygan and once beaten Gaylord, Charlevoix found the winning combination again Friday night.

And it couldn't have come at a better time – Homecoming night.

The Rayders took out their frustrations from the past two weeks on Grayling, 22-7.

Charlevoix is now 1-2 in league play and 3-2 overall.

The Rayders started the game as if they were going to take the Vikings by storm. The red and white blew down the field after receiving the opening kick-off. And minutes after the game started, Charlevoix had scored on an 11 yard pass from Gil Noirot to Pat Schmidt. Scott Morgan kicked the extra point.

The only problem, if you were a Charlevoix rooter, was that Grayling came right back. And the Vikings did it quickly on a 53 yard pass from Skip Olson to Bill Luckstead. Todd Dunckley converted and before most fans had a chance to settle in their seats it was 7-7.

Charlevoix got the first big break of the game when Grayling flubbed a center snap on fourth down deep in their own territory. The Rayders capitalized on the miscue as Noirot swept left end from two yards out. Morgan again converted to give Charlevoix a 14-7 advantage.

That's the way it stood until the fourth quarter when the Rayders got a big insurance touchdown on a two yard run by work-horse Bob Russell. This time the Rayders disdained an almost certain one point for a two point conversion, and it worked as Doug Buday took it in to give Charlevoix a 22-7 spread.

The Rayders had a couple other opportunities to increase the margin but fumbles stopped their drives.

Friday night the Rayders travel to Rogers City.

Girls rebound after suffering first loss

After a disappointing loss to Inland Lakes, Tuesday, Charlevoix's girls basketball team bounced back to rout league foe Grayling Thursday.

The Rayders had their record blemished at Inland Lakes. Going into the game 4-0, the Rayders found out what it's like to be on the losing end.

Inland Lakes jumped out to a 16-10 lead after the first quarter and expanded it to 36-24 at half. By the end of three quarters it was 52-38. Charlevoix turned the tables in the fourth quarter, but it was a case of too little too late. The final: Inland Lakes 64, Charlevoix 56.

Melinda Klooster tossed in 22 points to pace the Rayder attack. Sherri Selissen added 16. For Inland Lakes, Vickie Mayer, Karen Hall and Karen Tellman all had 14 points. Brenda Webb added 12.

Charlevoix got back on the winning track against Grayling by claiming a 81-50 verdict.

Klooster once again led the scoring parade with 31 points, seven points shy of the school record set by Cheryl Pence.

The Rayders grabbed a 16-12 lead after the first quarter and then increased it to 33-26 at half. Charlevoix blew the game open in the third quarter by outscoring the Vikings 22-10.

Besides Klooster's scoring outburst, the Rayders also received double figure scoring from Selissen and Mel Kerridge with 14 points and Teresa Noirot with 12.

Sherri Reed led Grayling with 21 points, Karen Hanson added 16 and Mary Beth Goode had 10.

The Rayders are now 5-1 on the season and 1-0 in league play.

In junior varsity competition, the Rayders beat Inland Lakes 48-22 and Grayling 43-24. The JV's are 5-1.

JV's lose...

Grayling's JV football squad scored a third quarter touchdown to break a tie and went on to defeat Charlevoix, 12-6, Thursday.

Grayling scored first on a one yard plunge in the first quarter, but the Rayders came back in the second quarter on a one yard run by Dennis Morgridge. The Vikings then tallied again in the third stanza – on a two yard run – to win the game.

For Charlevoix, 1-4, Morgridge rushed for 158 yards while Mike Loper played a tough defensive game.

...and so do frosh

If you like defensive football, then you would have enjoyed the battle between the freshman squads of Charlevoix and Petoskey Wednesday.

The Northmen edged Charlevoix, 6-0.

The only score in the game came with seven minutes remaining when Petoskey quarterback Al Southwood scampered 23 yards on an option. It was Petoskey's first win of the year.

Dave Buday and Gary Drury played good defensive games for Charlevoix.

Basketball, volleyball meet planned

An organizational meeting for independent basketball and volleyball leagues have been scheduled for Saturday at the Community Room of the Charlevoix City Hall Dwight Boss, Charlevoix recreation director, has announced.

The meeting for basketball coaches, managers and players has been called for 6 p.m. for both A and B leagues.

Volleyball managers and players are asked to assemble at 7:30 p.m. There will be three leagues, women's, men's and mixed volleyball leagues.

Boss warned that there would be o limited number of entries in all leagues and that all entries would be on a 'first come' basis.

"This is an important meeting. I hope everyone will send a team representative to sign up the team in preparation for the season which is less than a month away" Boss added.

Winter? Ski resorts get ready

A plan to limit the number of weekend skiers at one major Michigan lodge this winter is the first step toward controlling crowds at state ski areas, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"The last three seasons have brought unprecedented 15-20 percent yearly increases in weekend skiers at many Michigan resorts," stated Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager. "Predictions of another record year have forced West Michigan's Sugar Loaf to raise weekend lift fees $3 this season."

Saturday and Sunday lift passes at that lodge west of Traverse City have been increased to $15 daily in a move lodge operators hope will result in shorter lift lines and better quality skiing on less-crowded slopes.

To encourage weekday use, Sugar Loaf will keep lift fees at last year's $8 daily rate and offer special packages also available through other lodges which include free skiing and lodging for children.

Ratke noted that Sugar Loaf is following the lead of some popular eastern and western U.S. ski areas, which control weekend and holiday crowds with higher lift fees or limits on lift ticket sales.

No other state lodge contacted by Auto Club plans to limit weekend skiing this season.

Even though three of last season's ski areas are not opening this December and no new lodges have been built, this is the third straight winter 58 lodges are listed on Auto Club's ski guide.

Timberlee, near Traverse City, and Tyrolean Hills, near Gaylord, were not open last winter but plan to operate this season. Middleville Ski area, near Middleville, opened in mid-season last winter and will continue operation this season.

Adventure Mt., near Greenland, in the western Upper Peninsula, will not re-open this year. City-owned Mt. McSauba, near Charlevoix, is undergoing remodeling and could re-open sometime this season. Mt. Mancelona was closed last season, and its new owners could not be reached to determine when it will open this winter.

Skiers will pay an average $7.30 for daytime weekend lift fees this season.

Lowest fee in the state this year is $1 at Petoskey's city-run Winter Sports Park. The most expensive skiing available is at Sugar Loaf.

"Skiers will find lodges unique in each region of the state," Ratke pointed out.

With lift tickets ranging from $1 to $15 daily on weekends, West Michigan's 24 lodges offer the state's widest variety of prices and services. Southwest areas cater to day-users, while northern resorts have amenities such as heated swimming pools, deluxe at-slope condominiums plus lodge rooms and dining room overlooking the slopes.

The Upper Peninsula's 14 ski lodges are similar in variety to West Michigan's. Its areas run the gamut from local hills used by high schools and colleges to complete luxury resorts with the state's highest vertical drops. Lift tickets range from $2 to $12 on weekends.

East Michigan's slopes are ideal for individuals and families seeking skiing without the high-priced extras of luxury resorts. Two of the 12 areas feature group dormitories and a third has chalet and motel lodging, with lift tickets priced from $2.50 to $9.

Southeast Michigan's eight areas probably are the most heavily skied in the state. Each offers near-home fun no more than an hour by expressway from major population centers. They offer what's billed as the state's best snowmaking system, enabling the region to boast usually the state's earliest opening dates. For the last two seasons, Mt. Brighton's snowmaking capability enabled it to open the ski season in mid-November before northern Michigan resorts had snow.

It is estimated that nearly two million Michiganians took to the slopes last winter, generating more than $167 million in business, or four percent of Michigan's total tourist industry revenues.

Operators at more than half the state's ski areas have used their windfall profits to make significant improvements in the form of new lifts, runs and structures. Lodges with improvements, listed by region, are:

West Michigan – Nub's Nob, Harbor Springs, a new four-place chairlift and beginner and intermediate runs, a remodeled lodge with cafeteria space upped 50 percent and a "brown-bagger" area, parking and ski rental stocks doubled with snowmaking capacity tripled. Hilton Shanty Creek, Bellaire, night skiing on four runs, a new rental shop, beginner and intermediate runs, five miles of cross-country trails and 25 percent more snowmaking capacity. Sugar Loaf, Cedar, 16 condominiums, 500 sets of rental skis and $100,000 worth of grooming and snowmaking equipment. Royal Valley, Buchanan, cafeteria space upped 10 percent, a quick service food counter, renovated rental area and widened chairlift ramps.

Cannonsburg, removed three rope tows, added three runs, weekend lounge entertainment and half-price weekday skiing for persons over 65. Caberfae, Cadillac, increased night skiing to seven days, slope lighting upped 50 percent, cafeteria expanded 40 percent. Crystal Mountain, Thompsonville, re-contoured three runs, remodeled lodge and lifts open on weekends at 8 a.m. Winterskol, Lakeview, two miles of cross-country trails. Miassaukee Mt., Lake City, a 650-foot advanced run. Schuss Mt., Mancelona, an 80-bed group dorm plus 15 miles of cross-country trails. Boyne Mt., Boyne Falls, a 1,400-foot beginner slope and rope tow. Boyne Highlands, Harbor Springs, cafeteria seating upped 130 percent to 3,500. Traverse City Holiday, rope tows on two runs.

East Michigan – Michaywe, Gaylord, lowered lift fees 50 cents. Sylvan Knob, Gaylord, a double chairlift serving beginner and intermediate runs. Mt. Maria, Spruce, a 4,000-foot expert trail. Mio Mt., a new intermediate run and added cross-country rentals. Snowsnake, Harrison, expanded skiable terrain by 15 percent and its parking lot by 50 percent. Mott Mt., Farwell, a ski lodge seating 125 persons in its cafeteria and added downhill rental stock.

Southeast Michigan – Mt. Grampian, a year-around dining room and lounge, tripled lighting for night skiing, two 1,200-foot intermediate runs, rental stocks upped 25 percent. Mt. Brighton, a second triple chairlift, an enlarged ski shop and snowmaking capacity increased five times. Mt. Holly, a 1,500-foot intermediate run and four-place chairlift and rental building size doubled. Alpine Valley, Milford, two rope tows on beginner runs and a third to expert area, a 1,400-foot intermediate run and 33 percent more parking. Teeple Hill, Pontiac, a 650-foot intermediate-advanced run. Irish Hills, Onsted, added a T-bar and hopes to run its double chairlift for the first time in two years.

Upper Peninsula – Ski Brule, Iron River, added 10 new chalets, expanded its parking lot by one-third and widened three runs. Gladstone, a three-mile cross-country trail. Pine Mt., Iron Mountain, a 3,800-foot intermediate run. Big Powderhorn, Bessemer, a lodge with dining room and lounge, indoor pool, sauna and meeting rooms.

October Birthstone

Opal is the traditional stone for those born in October and was once referred to by the Romans (who revered it as a symbol of hope and purity) as the "Cupid Stone." In other phases of history this beautiful stone was cherished. Eastern peoples place the gem in a highly esteemed position regarding it as a sacred stone embodying the spirit of truth. The Arabs believed that Opals fell from Heaven in flashes of lightning and thus acquired their marvelous colors. In ancient Greece they were supposed to possess the power of giving foresight and the light of prophecy to their owners. The Empress Josephine owned an Opal that was called the burning of Troy because of its dazzling display of colors. In Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" the Opal is mentioned as the queen of gems. Queen Victoria gave each of her five daughters a magnificent Opal. Also the illustrious French Actress Sarah Bernhardt was fortunate to be born in October and she also never considered herself well dressed unless she wore Opal jewelry.

When nature had finished painting the flowers, coloring the rainbows and dying the plummage of the birds, she swept the colors from her pallet and molded them into Opals.

For your lovely piece of history see the large selection of Opal jewelry at your local Reusch Jewelry Store. Also watch for our special upcoming Opal promotion.

Teacher Feature

...Tori Alger

Tori Alger has been able to do what a lot of young people would like to do – she has found the job she wanted in her home town.

Miss Alger is the new 7th grade math teacher in the Charlevoix Middle School, the school in which she was a student not so many years ago.

"It's nice to be teaching at home," the young teacher said after relating some of the happy events of her life in Charlevoix.

"I was born in Charlevoix and graduated from high school in 1974. Then I went to Central and graduated in 1977 with a major in physical education. I did my practice teaching in Petoskey and substituted in Charlevoix last year. This is my first full-time teaching job.

Miss Alger was a busy high school student. She played basketball and volleyball, ran track, and was a cheerleader. In 1974 she was "Miss Charlevoix", and, more important, graduated as class valedictorian. Her athletic prowess is still visible since, in addition to teaching, Miss Alger coaches the 7th and 8th grade girls' basketball team.

Seventh grade math, Miss Alger explains, emphasizes fractions, but also covers decimals, whole number operations, some geometry, and measurements, including metric.

"We also touch on algebra because the students will have to be able to do algebra problems in two years. They have more algebra in 8th grade, too."

At this time of year, all math students at the Middle School are being tested to determine their strong and weak points so the teachers will know what areas to stress. Teaching aids include practice work sheets and math tools such as protractors.

"And we don't always work from the text," Miss Alger continues. "Sometimes we use such things as math puzzles."

Besides the obvious practical value of being able to handle math situations in life, what is the value of studying it?"

"Math is more structured than most subjects. By studying math and having homework that must be finished on time, students begin to learn to structure their lives.;'

Miss Alger admits that many parents cannot help their children with the actual math homework because it is taught differently from the way most parents learned.

"But parents can help by seeing that the children do the homework assignments, and they should be concerned about how they are doing," Miss Alger says.

"We try to contact parents of all children who are not doing well. Other parents often call just because they are interested. We are never too busy and parents shouldn't be afraid to call."

As to the "new math", which has intimidated parents for the last several years, Miss Alger explains simply that it is "More practical – directed to useful life skills."

With the advent of programs such as Headstart and TV shows such as "Sesame Street", children are learning the basics of math at an earlier age, which is a good thing in this fast moving world," Miss Alger observes.

What about memory work?

"It's not being stressed as much as it once was."

What about calculators?

"I make the children show each step in their homework so I can tell it wasn't done with a calculator. However, later in the year I will let those who want to do so bring a calculator to school to check their work," Miss Alger answers.

Seventh grade math is taught in 50-minute periods every day of the school week. Miss Alger has a total of 140 students in her six classes, which must mean a lot of papers to correct.

"Yes, it does," she says, "but I let the students do some of it. They exchange papers and are very honest in doing it."

As might be expected, when she is not in the classroom, Miss Alger can usually be found engaging in some athletic activity. During the school lunch hour she runs along the lakeshore to Medusa and back, then runs a shorter distance in the evening. "I run every day, about four or five miles, and I feel so much healthier," Miss Alger declares.

And she has run and won in competitive races, coming home in first place in the Charlevoix Venetian race and second in the Petoskey race.

There are other athletic interests in the teacher's life, too. "I like to ride my bicycle and cross-country ski. When I was teaching in Petoskey, I skied to school," she relates.

And, as if to apologize for not doing more, she adds, "But coaching basketball takes up a lot of my time."

Cooking vegetarian meals is a non-athletic hobby of Miss Alger. She explains that for meat substitutes she uses soy, nuts, cheese, fresh fruits and vegetables, and other foods high in protein.

"I eat a lot of brown rice, and use no white flour or sugar. Instead of regular salt, I use sea salt."

Miss Alger says her parents made up the name "Tori". Her brothers are Jim and Bob, both of whom play football at Ferris, and her sister Jodi is married to Gordon Block. Her parents are Faye (Meggison), Alger, a native of Charlevoix and Jim Alger.

RESOLUTION 78-10-1

WHEREAS, Consumers Power Company has been issued a license to construct the Midland Nuclear Power Station; and

WHEREAS, The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has determined that the license should be amended to include conditions to insure that Consumers Power Company's operation of the Midland facility will not create or maintain a situation inconsistent with antitrust laws; and

WHEREAS, These license conditions could affect the operation of municipally owned electric utilities and electric cooperatives located within Consumers Power Company's electric service area; and

WHEREAS, A negotiating committee consisting of six municipal electric systems and two electric cooperatives representing the interests of all municipally owned electric systems and electric cooperatives located within Consumers Power Company's service area have reached "agreement in principle" with Consumers Power Company on license conditions and related matters; and

WHEREAS, This tentative agreement offers options to the City of Charlevoix which may provide economic benefits to its electric customers if exercised;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, That the City of Charlevoix approve the "agreement in principle" as agreed to between the negotiating committee and Consumers Power Company.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the City Council of Charlevoix authorize the Mayor and City Clerk to execute necessary legal documents to implement the agreement reached in this matter, subject to approval of and recommendation of the City Attorney and Robert Japlon of Speigel & McDalrmid - Special Council.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That Consumers Power Company and legal counsel representing the five municipal electric systems and two electric cooperatives that have intervened in the licensing proceeding (NRC Docket Nos. 329A and 330A) be advised of the Board's action in this matter.

Sealed bids will be required of all purchases of over $3,000.00; excepting in cases where it is clearly to the City's advantage to waive this provision and is recommended by the City Manager. The City Manager may approve purchases without approval of the City Council not to exceed $1,500.00.

(a) Restrictions. A Public official or public employee, a member of that individual's immediate family, or business with which the individual is associated shall not enter into a contract valued at $1,500 or more with a governmental body unless the contract is awarded through an open and public process which includes prior public notice and subsequent availability for public inspection during regular office hours of the contracting governmental body of the proposals considered and the contract awarded. The prohibition does not apply to a contract when the public official or public employee does not solicit the contract, does not take part in the negotiations for or in the approval of the contract or an amendment thereto, and does not in any way represent either party in the transaction. This prohibition is aimed to prevent public officials from engaging in certain activities under circumstances creating a substantial conflict of interest and is not intended to penalize innocent persons. Therefore, a contract shall not be absolutely void by reason of this section or the constitutional provisions which implements.

Voidability of contract; actual knowledge; limitations of actions; decree provisions; settlement. A contract involving a prohibited conflict of interest under this section shall be voidable only by decree of a court of proper jurisdiction in as action by the state or a political subdivision which is a party thereto, as to any person that entered into the contract or took assignment thereof, with actual knowledge of the prohibited conflict. In the case of a person other than an individual, the actual knowledge must be that of an individual or the body finally approving the contract for the person. An action to void any contract shall be brought within 1 year after discovery of circumstances suggesting the existence of a violation of the constitutional provision as implemented by this section. To meet the ends of justice any such decree shall provide for the reimbursement of any person for the reasonable value of all moneys, goods, material, labor, or services furnished under the contract, to the extent that the state or political subdivision has benefited thereby. This provision shall not prohibit the parties from arriving at an amicable settlement.

Section 7.

Personnel. He she shall be the Personnel Director of the City, with power to hire and discharge employees of the City not subject to the Charter regulations. He she shall enforce all personnel regulations and may prepare personnel guidelines for all employees subject to approval of the Council. City Manager may delegate these responsibilities to a subordinate.

Section 8.

Payment of Moneys.. All moneys belonging to the City shall be paid out upon presentation of a valid voucher approved and signed by the Treasurer and Clerk issued in accordance with the Charter, all checks drawn by the Treasurer, or his deputy must be countersigned by the City Clerk or his deputy.

Section 9.

Approval of Legal Documents. The Mayor shall sign, the City Clerk shall attest to, the City Manager shall approve as to substance, and the City Attorney shall approve as to form, all contracts and agreements requiring the assent of the City, unless otherwise provided for by law, the Charter, ordinance or the provisions of the Code. Any contract or agreement by which the City incurs and financial obligation.

Section 10.

Bonds. Bonds shall be required in accordance with Article X of the Charter.

Ordinance was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Mumo, Porter, Timms, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council discussed a letter submitted by Warren Belding, Greenskeeper at the Municipal Golf Course, requesting an 8 h.p. air blower and a new pump and spray rig for the Golf Course. The letter also contained a request for an $800. per year raise. Mr. Belding was present and explained the benefits that would be received by purchasing the new equipment. Council agreed to have Mr. Belding secure a minimum of three price quotes on the air blower and to refer this information to the City Manager to expedite the matter. Council also agreed that the new pump and spray rig could be programed into next years budget; or, purchased this year provided there is an excess in the budget. Mr. Belding's request for a raise was found to be in line with the raise received by other City employees. Therefore, Council agreed that the raise to be granted.

Moved by Alderman Wood and supported by Alderman Timms that the contract for Warren Belding, Greenskeeper of the City Golf Course, be renewed for the period April 1, 1979 to October 31, 1979 at a salary of $11,800. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, Timms, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council discussed the renewal of the Airport Manager's contract and agreed to refer the matter to the Committee of the Whole meeting scheduled for October 9, 1978 for further study and evaluation.

Moved by Alderman Wood and supported by Alderman Muma that the City employ the firm of Hill, Woodcock, and Distel as auditors for the coming year, provided their proposed fee does not exceed the rate charged on their last bill submitted to the City. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, Timms, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $175,788.24 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed. Moved by Alderman Porter and supported by Alderman Timms that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, Timms and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjounced.

Judy D. Przybylski, City Clerk

A Public Hearing was held regarding the request presented by the Henry J. Spieker Company to re-zone the property on May Street presently owned by Florence Forbes from R-1 to R-4.

Moved by Alderman Timms and supported by Alderman Muma that the property on May Street presently owned by Florence Forbes be re-zoned form R-1 to R-4, as requested by the Henry J. Spieker Company, to allow construction of an elderly housing development, provided such construction commences within 9 months from this date or the property will revert to its original zone. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Whitley, Muma, Porter, Timms, and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The Board of Appeals referred the Spieker Company Site Plan back to the Planning Commission for further review.

The Board of Appeals adjourned.

Several businesses to extend hours

Several businesses in the Charlevoix area will now stay open until 9 p.m. on Friday.

At last week's meeting of the Retail Merchants Association the following businesses agreed to extend their Friday hours: Crown Drug Center, Barb's Hallmark Harbor, Patricia's on the Harbor, Lylewood, Golden Shoes, The Bullfrog Bazaar, Kit Carson Lumber, The House of Furniture, Silent Sports North, Kaden's Emporium, Hamilton's, Staley Hardware, The Clothing Company and the Appletree.

There will be other businesses open until 9 p.m. on Friday, say officials, but representatives from those stores were not in attendance at the last meeting.

Motorists to depend on snow tires, chains

A growing number of motorists who want to get a better grip on winter roads this season will be depending on snow tires and chains rather than studs, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

The only studded snow tires permitted on Michigan roads are radial-ply tires equipped with soft studs known commercially as Perma-T Grippers. Any other types of studded tires have been illegal in Michigan since 1975.

The firm that introduced Perma-T Grippers discontinued their manufacture in 1976 and says that they have not been manufactured since. Auto Club also was told by the only known Michigan distributors that supplies of the legal studs are sufficient to meet demand this year.

Approved studs may be used on Michigan roads north of a line from Mason to Arenac counties from Oct. 1 to May 1. Below that line, they are permitted from Nov. 15 to April 1.

Michigan motorists traveling state roads with illegal studs or with legal studs outside the set time periods are subject to a fine of up to $100 and/or a jail sentence of up to 90 days, Auto Club advises.

It is the practice of Michigan State Police to extend to out-of-state motorists traveling Michigan roads the same privileges for studded tires permitted in their home states, Triple-A points out.

Studs are illegal at any time in neighboring Wisconsin and Ontario. Ten other states in which studs are totally banned are: Florida, Hawaii, Illinois, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas and Utah. (Minnesota permits out-of-state motorists with studded tires to drive on its roads for 30 days.)

Auto Club notes that 27 states allow studs, with varying time restrictions. The District of Columbia permits studded tire use from Oct. 15 to April 15. New Mexico permits studded tires, with no specific time limit, but law states they are permitted "only when required for safety because of ... conditions causing a vehicle to skid," and the law is "subject to local interpretation."

Eleven states have no restrictions. They are: Alabama, Colorado, Georgia, Kentucky, New Hampshire, North Carolina, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont and Wyoming.

States in addition to Michigan allowing studs, with time restrictions are: Alaska, Sept. 15-May 1; Arizona, Oct. 1-May 1; Arkansas, Nov. 1-April 30; California, Oct. 1-May 1; Connecticut, Nov. 15-April 30; Delaware, Oct. 15-April 15; Idaho, Oct. 1-April 15; Indiana, Oct. 1-April 30; Iowa, Nov. 1-April 1; Kansas, Nov. 1-April 15; Maine, Oct. 2-April 30; Maryland, Oct. 15-April 15; Massachusetts, Nov. 2-April 30. Missouri, Nov. 1-March 31; Montana, Oct. 1-May 31; Nebraska, Oct. 1-April 15; Nevada, Sept. 1-April 30; New Jersey, Nov. 15-April 1; New York, Oct. 16-April 30; North Dakota, Oct. 15-April 15; Ohio, Nov. 1-April 15; Oklahoma, Nov. 1-April 1; Oregon, Nov. 1-April 30; Virginia, Oct. 15-April 15; Washington, Nov. 1-April 1, and West Virginia, Nov. 1-April 1.

The Canadian provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan, plus the Northwest and Yukon territories, have no studded tires restrictions. British Columbia and Manitoba allow studs from Oct. 1 to April 30; New Brunswick, Oct. 16-April 14; Nova Scotia, Oct. 15-April 15; Newfoundland, Nov. 1-April 30, and Prince Edward Island, Oct. 1-May 31.

The province of Quebec allows studded tires on vehicles weighing under 5,000 pounds from Oct. 15 to May 1. They are banned on vehicles weighing more than 5,000 pounds, including buses and trucks.

STATEMENT OF NONDISCRIMINATION
October 4, 1978

Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative, Inc., P.O. Box 138, Boyne City, Michigan, 49712, has filed with the Federal Government a Compliance Assurance in which it assures the Rural Electrification Administration that it will comply fully with all requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Rules, Regulations of the Department of Agriculture issued thereunder, to the end that no person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be otherwise subjected to discrimination in the conduct of its program and the operation of its facilities. Under this Assurance, this organization is committed not to discriminate against any person on the ground of race, color or national origin in its policies and practices relating to applications for service or any other policies and practices relating to treatment of beneficiaries and participants including rates, conditions and extension of service, use of any of its facilities, attendance at and participation in, any meetings of beneficiaries and participants or the exercise of any rights of such beneficiaries and participants in the conduct of the operations of this organization.

Any person who believes himself, or any specific class of individuals, to be subjected by this organization to discrimination prohibited by Title VI of the Act and the Rules and Regulations issued thereunder may, by himself or a representative, file with the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, or this organization, or all, a written complaint. Such complaint must be filed not later than 180 days after the alleged discrimination, or by such later date to which the Secretary of Agriculture or the Rural Electrification Administration extends the time for filing. Identity of complaintants will be kept confidential except to the extent necessary to carry out the purposes of the Rules and Regulations.

FAITH REVEALS THE GOOD THINGS ABOUT OUR YOUTH

Our most unfairly maligned age group is the one consisting of older children and teenagers. Because of the spectacular, headline-making antics of a very small minority, our young people are routinely suspected of everything from noise, insolent behavior and drug addiction to school vandalism and a willingness to knock an elderly woman to the ground for the few dollars in her handbag. In truth, the vast majority of our youth are friendly, respectful, enthusiastic, law-abiding, hardworking students; intent only on learning to make their way in the world and perhaps improving it in the process. If your training and influence have been reinforced by family attendance at the Church of your choice, then YOUR children undoubtedly belong to this praiseworthy majority.

Harriers keep winning

The Charlevoix cross country squad keeps rolling...er, running along. The Rayders won four more meets in the past week.

Last Tuesday, Charlevoix beat Grayling, 15-49, and Alanson, 18-40. In that meet, Mark Russell set a new course record with a time of 15:37. In fact, teammate Jeff Drenth, who took second with a time of 15:43, also broke the old record of 15:47.

Jay Swartout took fifth, 16:16; Jeff Landon, sixth, 16:27; Clay Patrie, seventh, 17:08; Brian Thompson, ninth, 17:16; and Jim Landon, 12th, 17:35.

In the junior varsity meet Charlevoix took the first seven places.

On Monday, the Rayders beat arch-rival Petoskey, 22-34, and Alpena, 15-43.

And in that meet Russell's week old record was broken by Petoskey's Dan Pater. Pater zipped over the course in 15:29. Russell wasn't far behind at 15:38. Drenth took third at 15:50.

Swartout finished fourth, 16:18; Jeff Landon, sixth, 18:29; Patrie, seventh, 18:40; Thompson, 14th, 17:16; and Jim Landon, 16th, 17:31.

In junior varsity competition, Charlevoix beat Alpena, 19-42, and Petoskey, 13-26.

John Fiedorek took first with a time of 17:13; Jim Duke, third, 17:28; John Brodley, fourth, 17:38; Bill Fels, eighth, 18:50; Todd Russell, ninth, 18:54; and Mark Patrie, 10th, 19:00.

Rams remain unbeaten

It appears the Rams, Cowboys and Patriots are going to battle to the wire for flag football supremacy in the senior league. All three teams posted wins last week.

The Rams remained undefeated (3-0) with a 10-7 win over the Vikings. The Rams scored on a 21 yard pass reception by Chuck Klooster and safeties by John Marsh and Thad Morgan. The Vikings only score came in the third quarter on a 21 yard pass from Gary Angerman to Chris Putman. Putman added the extra point.

Meanwhile, the Cowboys rolled over the Raiders, 48-6. Todd Daylong threw six touchdown passes – 10, 33 and 20 yards to Tim LeBlance; and 30, 22 and 8 yards to Jon Supernaw. The Cowboys also scored on an 18 yard pass interception by Dave Batdorff. Supernaw had three extra points, Batdorff two and Daylong one. For the Raiders, their lone score came on a one yard run by Mike Bart.

The Patriots beat the Bucs 25-12 as Bob Burke scored three times – on runs of four and five yards and on a 33 yard pass from Jeff Trimper. Trimper scored on a 32 yard pass interception. Mark Smolinski scored an extra point. For the Bucs, Bob Wise scored twice both on 38 yard kick-off returns.

Golfers defend title

The Charlevoix Rayder golf team defended its Michigan-Huron Shores Conference title Monday.

And the Rayders did it in convincing style, too, finishing 11 strokes ahead of runner-up Petoskey.

Charlevoix had a score of 345. Petoskey finished with 356. Gaylord took third; St. Ignace, fourth; Cheboygan, fifth; and Boyne City, sixth.

The Rayders Mike Custer was medalist with a 79. Bob Ranger had a 85, Roxy VanLoo had a 89 and Mark White had a 92.

Charlevoix will host Harbor Springs Thursday and then compete in the regionals Saturday at Houghton Lake.

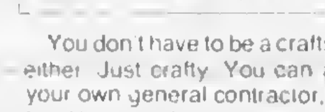
Are you cut out to finish a Capp Home yourself?
Come to our Open House and find out.



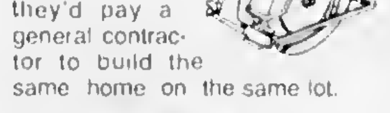
In 32 years, Capp has made quality custom-built housing affordable for over 50,000 families.

We don't build pre-fab or modular houses. We erect the home of your choice stick by stick, on your lot and the foundation you provide, using only top-quality materials.

By the time our carpenters leave, your house is fully enclosed and ready for you to finish.

We provide all the necessary materials you need to finish it yourself. Following our concise, step-by step instructions you can complete your dream home at an undreamed of price.

By finishing it themselves, many Capp customers save thousands of dollars compared to what they'd pay a general contractor to build the same home on the same lot.



You don't have to be a craftsman, either. Just crafty. You can act as your own general contractor, hiring local help, and still come out money ahead.

Either way, you'll get a home that's uniquely yours. A custom-built home, designed to your personal specifications.

One that will be worth far more than you paid for it the day you move in.

Capp Homes are such a good value they qualify for FHA, VA, Farm Home and conventional mortgages. If you can't get financing from another lender, Capp has millions in mortgage money available at conventional terms to "qualified buyers."

You may even be able to use the equity built up in your present home or building site to get started on a new Capp Home.

Come see for yourself at a Capp Open House. You'll have a chance to inspect a Capp Home that's partially completed, and decide whether you're cut out to finish a Capp Home.

Wedding

McPhillips-King

Nancy A. McPhillips of Charlevoix and Gary King of Traverse City were married Saturday afternoon at St. Mary's Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McPhillips while the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. King of Milford.

About 100 guest attended the double ring ceremony officiated by Fr. Dale Magoon.

Serving as maid of honor was Deane Knapp. Bridesmaids were Margaret Warner, Kim King and Deane Morris.

David Wilk was best man. Groomsmen were Bruce McPhillips, John Schwinn and Jim King.

The parents of the bride held a reception after the wedding ceremony at the Yacht Club. They were assisted by Vera Baker, who also make the bride's dress. The parents of the groom hosted the rehearsal dinner Friday at the Grey Gables.

The bride is a graduate of Charlevoix High School. She attended Northwest Michigan College in Traverse City and is now employed in the Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney's office. The groom is an electrician for Breegin Electric in Traverse City. He is a graduate of Farmington High School and was stationed in Boston afterwards with the U.S. Navy.

Cary-Bearss

Teresa Jane Cary became the bride of Robert H. Bearss recently at the Midland Missionary Church. The Rev. Willard Gilruy of Battle Creek officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Coleman of Sears.

Rev. & Mrs. Glenn Bearss, brother and sister-in-law of the groom, served as best man and maid of honor respectively.

The flower girl was Danielle Cary and the ring bearer was Luke Cary, both children of the bride and the late Daniel Cary.

Bearss is the son of Mrs. Roberta Bearss and the late Howard Bearss of Charlevoix.

Local artists in conference

Artists and craftsmen will highlight a day-long conference on the arts Thursday, Oct. 12 sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council at Stafford's Bay View Inn.

Five local artists - including Charlevoix's printmaker and potter Sue Bolt - will be displaying and selling their art work during the day. Other artists who will be present include ceramicist Audrey Shapiro from Bellaire, painter Stewart Ashley from Bellaire, lacemaker Dorthen Pieniazek from Petoskey, and jeweler Linda Aydintt from East Jordan.

Special guest speakers for the day will be Linda Anne Downs, a curator from the Detroit Institute of Arts, and June Cary, a painter from Niles.

The conference is open to the public. Registration will begin at 9 a.m. Ms. Downs will lecture at 10 a.m. and Ms. Cary at 1 p.m. Sandwiched in-between the lectures will be a luncheon, which will start at 11:45 a.m. The lectures and luncheon will cost $6.50 for members of the Crooked Tree Arts Council and $8.50 for non-members. To make reservations to attend call the Crooked Tree Arts Council office in Petoskey at 347-3973, ext. 371.

Vern LaFreniere

ST. JAMES, Beaver Island – Vernon H. LaFreniere, 64, prominent retired businessman, died Oct. 4 at his home here following a long illness.

Funeral services were held Friday at Holy Cross Church with Msgr. Victor Gallagher of St. Paul's church, Onaway, and the Rev. Fr. Alvin Yard officiating. Interment was in Holy Cross cemetery.

Born at St. James Aug. 14, 1914, Mr. LaFreniere was graduated from the Beaver Island High School in 1933. He and his brother, Archie, owned and operated the Shamrock Bar as partners until 1941 when he purchased the McCann general store opposite the ferry dock on the harbor at St. James. He operated the general store whose motto was "If we don't have it, you don't need it" until he sold it in November 1977 because of ill health. He had sold his interet in the Shamrock Bar to his brother in 1946. On March 2, 1968, he was married to the former C. Jean (Zeitler) Gallagher at Traverse City. They always made their home here.

He was a member of Holy Cross Church and had been a member of the Parish Council until 1969. He was instrumental in obtaining the Beaver Island Airport and was its first manager, working without compensation for many years. He was a member of the original Top O' Michigan REA board of directors; the school board and past president of the Beaver Island Game Club.

Surviving are his wife, Jean; three sons, Gerald N. of St. James, Leon of Ludington and Paul H. of Charlevoix; a step-son, Michael J. Gallagher of Highland; three grandchildren, Michelle, Gerald and Debby of St. James; one step-grandchild, Michael Joseph Gallagher of Highland; his stepmother, Mrs. Irene Melville of Charlevoix; two brothers, D. Archie of St. James and Joseph of Chicago and St. James and three sisters, Mrs. Lawrence (Winifred) McDonough of Charlevoix, Mrs. David (Helen) Pike of Montague and Mrs. James (Rita) Elms of Ludington.

The Rosary was recited at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix Wednesday evening and at the family home here Thursday evening.

The family suggests contributions to Holy Cross Church or the Beaver Island Medical Center for anyone wishing to honor his memory.

Births

Recent births at the Charlevoix Area Hospital were:

A daughter, Katie, born to Thomas and Cheryl Chartier.

A daughter, Jennifer Ann, born to James and Marta Lee of Charlevoix.

A daughter, Jessica Anne, born to Robert and Jody Bryan of Boyne City.

A son, Luke Matthew, born to Patrick and Cheryl McLaren of Bellaire.

A son, Boss Lawrence, born to Robert and Barbara Omland of East Jordan.

A daughter, Amy Ann, born to Kim and Cynthia Eaton of Petoskey.

Engaged

Works-McDonough

ST. JAMES – It has been announced that Margaret A. Works and Joseph H. McDonough will be married Dec. 29 at the Holy Cross Church on Beaver Island. Both are residents of the island.

The bride elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John WO. Works of Pittsburgh, Pa. Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McDonough of 207 Burns St., Charlevoix.

Miss Works, a receptionist and secretary at the Beaver Island Medical Center, attended University School in Pennsylvania and Ohio Wesleyan while McDonough attended Ferris State.

Ashley says

Grassroot decisions important

Are the really big decisions about worldwide concerns always made "somewhere else"? Are people at the grassroots level truly powerless to influence those decisions?

According to East Jordan's William Ashley, the answer to those two questions is a resounding "No!"

Ashley, who has just returned from a three-day seminar on world development at the United Nations building in New York, is a supervisor at the East Jordan Iron Works and a lay member of Evangelical Lutheran Church of East Jordan. He is also president of the Northland Conference of the Michigan District, a subdivision of the American Lutheran Church which covers the northern third of Michigan.

"One of the things which impressed me at this seminar," said Ashley, "is the fact that the people who make the decisions which affect the world are eager for input from the grassroots level. The only limit to our power to influence those decisions is our lack of understanding of what is happening and can happen, and our willingness to act."

More than 600 persons from around the world attended the New York seminar, sponsored by the YMCA and Non-Governmental Organizations to disperse information on concerns relating to world development, and to encourage creation of communication action structures to deal with those concerns.

Ashley was chosen by the ALC's Michigan District to be part of the 18-member Michigan Delegation sent to the event by the Michigan Interfaith Hunger / Action Coalition.

"My main concern was with the human factors in development and with human rights," said Ashley.

"For example, the new international economic order which is emerging in the world involves such things as trade and commodities," he continued. "But it also involves people with their needs and hopes, and this seminar concentrated on this aspect of world development."

Ashley also stated that numerous human rights covenants are currently before the United Nations General Assembly for consideration and action. The seminar also dealt with these.

"The Honorable Kenneth K.S. Dadzie of Ghana, director-general of the UN, in the keynote address of the opening session, told us that there is a need for people at the grassroots level to understand their potential for participating in developing policy on local, national and international levels," Ashley reported.

"This was confirmed," he added, "by the fact that among those participating in the seminar, listening to the discussions and taking notes on the comments were Robert W. Bechtel, president of Dun and Bradstreet International; Ltd., and representatives of such multinational corporations such as 3M. They repeatedly stressed the desire of their firms to know how people at a grassroots level feel about global issues."

Ashley stated that he intends to follow up his participation in the seminar on three levels. First, he plans to work for action through the structures of the ALC's Michigan District Northland Conference.

"We already have social concerns committees in our churches," he said. "All that they need is the resource information which I can provide."

Second, he plans to coordinate local activities with the Michigan and National Interfaith Hunger / Action Coalitions at their national meeting in Ann Arbor in February of next year.

The third step, Ashley said, will be to seek out others who share concerns for these issues in an attempt to pool resources and form further coalitions for action.

Ashley described his response to the seminar as "feelings of hope tempered by reality". He said that he sees hope for improvement because of the sheer power of the political pressure which the grassroots can bring to bear, the responsiveness of the decision-making bodies and the mass of non-governmental organizations (such as Amnesty International) already working on these issues.

Balanced against this hope is the lack of information reaching people at the grassroots level combined with the inertia which leads people to miss their opportunities to influence major decisions.

"It may be a long, hard job," Ashley commented, "but from a local level we plan to influence profoundly the living conditions of people around the world."

Who else? Belvedere Club gets Michigan Amateur

The Michigan Amateur will be played at the Belvedere Golf Club for at least three more years, the executive committee of the Golf Association of Michigan has announced.

The announcement comes as no surprise since Belvedere has hosted the Michigan Amateur for several years.

Jim Standish of the Golf Association of Michigan said the Belvedere course is a natural for the state's top amateur golf tournament.

"We think it's a super place to play and it's in a nice area," Standish said. "The players really like it.

"It's truly a championship golf course."

Last year the qualifying rounds were played at both Belvedere and Harbor Point. But in 1979 Antrim Dells will replace Harbor Point. This, too, was approved by the executive committee.

The proximity of Antrim Dells to Charlevoix had a lot to do with the switching of sites. Antrim Dells is about 13 miles south of Charlevoix. Harbor Point, meanwhile, is about 40 miles north and when a playoff is necessary – as most often is the case – players have a hectic and long drive back to Charlevoix along US-31.

"Our co-chairman, Wally Wheeler, commented favorably (at the executive committee meeting) on Antrim Dells," Standish said. "There were no objections and it was unanimous that we switch the site."

Standish said members of the committee inspected the course three times this summer – since it was in the wind that Antrim Dells was receptive to the idea of hosting a qualifying round of the Michigan Amateur.

"It will be a tremendous test for the golfers," Standish said. "We think it's a fine selection."

Lloyd Kirby, one of four owners of Antrim Dells, was pleased with the committee's decision.

"We had a strong desire for this," he said. "Obviously, we're quite happy."

Kirby said course improvements are planned before next year's tournament, which will be held from June 19-23. The improvements include one new tee, remodeling of two other tees and the addition of three fairway traps. The improvements will begin this fall, Kirby said.

"We think it will toughen up the golf course," he said.

Kirby added that members of the committee will most likely mark the course for tournament play in April.

Besides Kirby, a Charlevoix native who now summers here, other owners include Leonard LeFevre, John Helveston, and the Norbert Smith estate.

According to Standish, a maximum 370 golfers can compete in the Michigan Amateur. Last year 369 competed.

Welcome home, Sundew

Wednesday has been proclaimed Sundew Day in Charlevoix as the community awaits the return of the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Sundew to its homeport.

And well it should be for the ship is scheduled to arrive in Charlevoix at 3 p.m.

On Monday the ship passed through the eight locks of the Welland Canal between Lake Ontario and Lake Erie as it made its way through the St. Lawrence Seaway toward Lake Michigan and Charlevoix.

At the present time, plans call for a welcome home from city fathers who proclaimed Wednesday "Sundew Day" at the regular meeting of the city council Monday night.

The Charlevoix High School Marching Band, under the direction of Gary L. Stutzman, will be on hand when the ship enters the harbor.

Among those present, of course, will be the wives, children and girl friends of the ship's crew of approximately 45 headed by Lt. CMDR. Warren Miller along with friends of the crew. They are expected to be joined by local residents.

That famous of all sailors, Popeye, is also expected to be on hand to take the lines of the Sundew which has been gone from its homeport for the past 14 and a half months.

The ship has been in the Coast Guard shipyards at Curtis Bay, Md., undergoing a major renovation, the first since it was commissioned at Duluth in 1944.

The ship was taken through the St. Lawrence Seaway in August 1977 enroute to Curtis Bay under Lt. CMDR. James V. O'Neill. While the Sundew was in the yards, the Cutter Mesquite was stationed here until June when it was transferred to Duluth, Minn., and the Woodrush, out of Duluth, was brought to Charlevoix for transfer to Curtis Bay by a crew now headed by Lt. CMDR. Warren Miller who had relieved Lt. CMDR. O'Neill on June 9.

The Sundew will arrive here only a couple weeks before it is scheduled to begin its annual fall aids-to-navigation work.

The Coast Guard Wives Club, in anticipation of the arrival of the ship, have planned yellow ribbons, not on the old oak tree, as in the song, but on the lighthouses that mark the entrance to the harbor and large sign inscribed "Welcome Home, Sundew", all to convey their sentiments to the returning crewmen.

They have also spearheaded the other arrangements for the ship's return.

WHY WASTE ENERGY

First it's walkathon, then bike-a-thon and now jog-a-thon. What a waste of good youthful energy.

I am asked to donate any amount per lap jogged all for a worthy cause. Any kid that jogs for money is doing nothing useful for this worthy cause.

I could really use help to mow the lawn, rake the leaves, wash the windows etc. and willing to pay.

WHY MILLAGE FAILED

To the Students of the Senior High School:

We noted by the Courier of Oct. 11 that a few of you were concerned that the school millage failed to pass. There is a reason and the reason is not entirely an economic one although that does play a part. Basically the reason is the vandalism and total disregard for school (Tax-payer's) property. Those of us who have witnessed the debris in the school cafeteria after the school lunch period know first hand that many students have reverted to cave-man behavior. There are literally more than a half dozen king-size garbage bags filled with cartons and food thrown on the chairs and floor that must be removed before the senior citizens can be served. There are open garbage cans available for service but apparently the kids do not use them. The senior citizens do and there are no mountains of ugly and revolting food mess to be disposed of with shovel and floor brush after the Senior Citizen lunch period. There is no excuse for teen-age behavior as we witness in the school cafeteria after the student's "mess".

We suggest that the "good" behavior students police the "bad" behavior students and report the perpetrators of vandalism if they expect tax-payers to sacrifice for the education of the youths of school age.

REFUSE TO CASH OWN CHECKS

I am wondering if the person who couldn't get a Credit Union check cashed at the County Bank has ever tried to get a Credit Union check cashed at the Credit Union! They have refused to cash their own checks without a hassle and we do have an account there. How about that?

School board adopts budget

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday night, approved a budget of $2,801,895 for the 1978-79 school year which represents a 6.5 percent increase over the 1977-78 audited budget of $2,611,942.

In reviewing the budget, Vincent Olach, business manager, called attention to the increase, stating that the board had attempted to hold the line by keeping the anticipated budget one percent under the 7.5 percent cost of living increase.

Though the budget hearing had been publicized and the people who attended a public meeting less than a month ago were invited to attend the hearing, only four members of the faculty and two representatives of the news media attended the hearing.

The budget was broken into three categories: instruction, support and other which included insurance and interest and Indian education.

The areas that showed the greatest increases were the middle school where the renovation program is underway and where improvements are for the benefit of the students so are listed under instruction. This figure was $590,306 or an increase from $537,312. The second area in the front category was employer benefits due mainly as the result of the increase in health insurance premiums and in retirement payments as the result of salary increases. The latter figure is $144,282 or an increase of $9,917.

In the support category, plant operation and maintenance decreased from $364,124 to $341,393. It was explained that furniture and equipment purchased last year for use at the middle school is not included in the budget for the coming year. Transportation was another item that took a big jump, going up $38,927. This figure included the price of two new buses which will be delivered shortly in the amount of approximately $36,000. The other reflected the increase in other costs such as gasoline and other supplies. Employee benefits showed a marked increase under the support category. This resulted from increased health benefits to non-certified personnel which was increased because it was entering its second year and because dental benefits were added as part of the contract.

Insurance and interest also showed an increase because of more monies borrowed and because funds were borrowed against anticipated taxes to finance the middle school project.

Before the budget, as presented, was adopted, an adjustment regarding administrators salaries made possible because the salaries, which were approved after the budget was drawn up, were less than had been allowed for the increase. These funds will now be transferred to another fund to finance for the repair of the parking lot.

Revenue to support the budget will come from local, state and federal sources and will be an estimated $2,801,895 or $182,004 over that received during 1977-78. The budget is $189,953 over the 1977-78 audited expenditure.

The budget for the Charlevoix Public Library which is operated by the school district and for Title 1 were also approved. The former was for $51,181 and will be financed by the half mill levied annually for this purpose. The latter is underwritten by federal monies. The budget is for $59,831.

In other action at the meeting which followed the budget hearing, Roy Fortin, assistant principal who is in charge of Adult Education program, reported that a total of 32 classes with an enrollment of 375 students were now in session. Only one, accounting, has high school completion students enrolled. The others are enrichment programs which means fees are paid and the classes are financed by this revenue. Largest single subject is gymnastics with 15 classes involving 180 students, 150 of whom are youngsters.

Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren said that unit ventilators had been installed at the middle school and that the work would be completed by Nov. 1. Vincent Chew, middle school principal, however, advised that not all the school had heat. He was assured that this phase of the project would be concluded shortly and the building would have heat. This part of the project was held up when suppliers failed to deliver the necessary units and the contractor was forced to go to another supplier.

The Michigan Association of School Boards will meet in Grand Rapids Oct. 25-27. Max Novak, president of the board, and Mrs. Ardeth Wieland advised that they planned to attend the meeting.

VanWieren said that goals, as presented by board members, had been listed and that the board could name priorities at a later meeting.

An announcement regarding Parent-Teacher Conferences (found elsewhere in this issue) was made. Parents who are unable to attend the conferences scheduled for Oct. 25 and 26 are urged to confer with teachers whenever they can.

The Elzinga Insurance Agency was awarded the contract for the fleet insurance. Olach said five agencies had been invited to bid but that only one had responded. The company's bid was in the amount of $4,905.

VanWieren was designated to represent the school district in applying for impact funds (for students of military personnel stationed here) under P.L. 874.

No action was taken on the Michigan Bell request for an easement over school district property.

The possibility of naming a task force in the school district to study the district's building needs was discussed and VanWieren was asked to begin work on assembling candidates for the committee.

The board commended the Charlevoix High School Marching Band and its director, Gary Stutzman, for their fine performance at Northern Michigan University last weekend and during the recent marching band festival and to the school athletic teams and their respective coaches for their outstanding performances in their various fields.

The board distributed a letter stating their positions on Proposals H, J and E. The proposals regard financing of education.

Nov. 6 was set as the date for the next meeting.

Council favors Proposal M

The Charlevoix Common Council went on record Monday night as supporting Proposal M in the general election Nov. 7.

Proposal M guarantees that at least 90 percent of all fuel and license tax revenues be used exclusively for general road purposes. The remainder of the revenues – up to 10 percent – and up to 25 percent of the sales tax on automobiles and parts could be used exclusively for other transportation purposes.

According to City Manager Norm Gaffney, if Proposal M passes it will mean about an extra $20,000 in funds for Charlevoix. Gaffney said Charlevoix presently receives about $80,000 a year. With legislation like Proposal M, he said, the city would receive about $100,000 yearly.

"It will guarantee a fair allocation of road user taxes to help meet road, street and bridge needs," Mayor Sam Supernaw said.

"It will also provide a sound basis for financing other forms of comprehensive transportation in all areas of the state," he added.

Comprehensive transportation services include the state's railroad network, municipal bus systems and public transportation such as dial-a-ride services for senior citizens and handicapped persons, airports, waterports and ferries.

"It will not change the allocation of the school aid and local government shares of the sales tax, however," Supernaw said. "The city will continue to get our share of the sales tax through state revenue sharing. Proposal M only affects the present state share of the sales tax.

"If Proposal M is not approved by the voters on Nov. 7, the Legislature could divert all of the highway user tax revenue away from meeting road and street aids. If that were to happen, our streets would be in even worse shape. Our only alternative would be to increase local property taxes to help meet our street maintenance needs," he said.

In other action, council:

- Renewed insurance with the Charlevoix Agency.
- Appointed Dr. Harry R. Custer as city physician.
- Passed a resolution whereby each household in the city will be charged a minimum rate for water and sewer. Presently, for example, there are some condominiums which have just one water meter for the entire building.
- Discussed the airport manager's contract. Council agreed that it wanted manager Joe McPhillips to file monthly reports with the city regarding number of tie-downs, arrivals, departures, amount of gas sold, etc. Although, city officials say, the present contract calls for McPhillips to make the reports, McPhillips apparently is not doing so.

"We haven't received the cooperation we would like," Gaffney said.

Council did receive a resume from John Gamble of Traverse City who would like the manager's position. Gamble is an aircraft mechanic and inspector and he teaches a pilots class at Northwestern Michigan College. Council said it would review Gamble's resume at next week's work session.

- Approved the groundskeeper contract ($11,800).
- Approved payment to Alvin Ranger for master plan of airport.
- Appointed Joe Morris to the city planning commission.
- Agreed to participate in the Michigan Public Power Authority.

Commissioners get report on Grandvue Care Facility

An overall view of Grandvue Medical Care Facility was presented to the County Board of Commissioners last week by Richard H. Tillen, director of the Department of Social Services.

Tillen's report covered the period of January 1 to Sept. 30 of this year. During that period, Grandvue:

–Admitted 18 people from the waiting list, five male and 13 female. There are still 32 people on the waiting list, 19 male and 13 female. Their average age is 80.3 years (78.7 male and 82.8 female).

–Provided 6.01 hours of care to each patient each day during the period. Of this care, 3.78 hours was direct nursing service, physical therapy, and activities. Indirect care (dietary, housekeeping, maintenance, and administrative) amounted to 2.23 hours per day.

–Served the patients 59,324 meals; served the staff 14,755 meals; and served guests 754 meals, for a total of 74,833 meals. Total cost per meal was $1.18.

Grandvue presently has 73 beds that have been occupied 99.5 percent of the time, or for 19,821 patient days during the period.

The average age of patients is 82.0 years, 78.4 male and 83.0 female. There are five people under 65 in the facility, nine between 66 and 75, 26 between 76 and 85, 31 between 86 and 95, and two over 95.

Grandvue received $698,277.22 during the period. Of this, Medicare provided $11,367.32; Medicaid provided $428,505.44; private sources provided $188,968.10; and $15,574.96 came from other sources. In addition, it used $41,702.46 of county funds and $12,158.83 of capital improvement funds.

Disbursements included $527,572.88 for payroll, $30,787.24 for food, $26,179.08 for utilities, $101,579.19 for other operational expenses (supplies, laundry, fringe benefits, everything not specifically mentioned elsewhere), and $12,158.83 for capital improvements.

Let's Talk Real Estate

by Jim Thomas

Two contracts are involved in real estate activities. The first is the contract of employment between a real estate broker and the owner of property. The second is the contract of sale between the owner and the buyer, which the real estate broker negotiates as agent for the owner. The contract between the owner and the real estate broker is known as the listing contract. It spells out upon what terms a sale, or lease, are to be negotiated by the broker, the duration of the contract, and the compensation to be paid by the owner to his real estate broker for his or her services.

Real estate contracts will be no problem for you when you buy or sell your property through THOMAS REAL ESTATE, 100 Pine River Lane, 547-4494. CHIP starts third year of counseling

"Lonely" and "scared" are the words Terry Smith, counselor, chose to describe the predicament of the people who come to Charlevoix's Chip Counseling Center, for help.

Smith and Chip Center Director Oren Schroeder were looking back at the center's first two years, while planning for its third. The discussions took place at the Chip Center offices in the medical building next to Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Both counselors were quick to emphasize the double role the Chip Center plays in Charlevoix.

"Yes. We are here to respond when someone says, 'I can't stand it anymore, I need help.'

"And, we want to emphasize, 'Preventative Mental Health' – working with people on concerns that we all share," Schroeder said. "We all share a growing concern about the quality of our lives, its meaning, its purpose. That is one of the major points of our workshops," the counselor continued.

Whether helping one person with a seemingly insurmountable problem or directing workshops for everyone in the community, Schroeder and Smith are concerned with teaching "skills" to their clients.

Smith quipped, "You could compare our work with driver's education. You can learn driving skills which make you a safer driver."

The skills clients of the Chip Center learn are to help them better solve problems of living, Smith said, making the comparison.

Schroeder elaborated:

"In our work with people who want direct help, we are not solving problems for them, we are helping them learn and sharpen their own skills to better manage their lives, to more effectively solve their problems.

"In our community workshops, such as the one for couples, or the one on parenting, we are teaching communication skills – particularly listening skills," Schroeder said with quiet emphasis.

The two counselors, more properly psycho-therapists, were sitting in a comfortable living room in the Chip Center. Couches and easy chairs were arranged by tables in a home-like atmosphere. Doors opened into more private offices.

In a fourth room, the only furnishings were plump over-stuffed pillows, covering the floor.

Schroeder told a visitor, "We hold group sessions in here. The informal atmosphere helps relax people."

Since the founding of the Chip Center in October, 1976, some 229 area persons have come to talk with its staff.

Schroeder, a trained psychotherapist, with 20 years experience in psychology, counseling and community mental health, holds a M.S. degree from Southern Illinois University.

Schroeder became the director of the Chip Center when it opened in 1976.

Six months ago, Terry Smith joined the staff, as a psycho-therapist, coming from the University of Western Ontario, where he had been a counseling psychologist. He has worked as a counselor, teacher, and psychologist, since receiving his MA degree from Central Michigan University.

Both men see individual clients who come to the center, with problems, as well as conducting group workshops.

"At first our clients came by referral from doctors, lawyers or other professionals," Schroeder recalled.

"Now people are coming in on their own or at the recommendation of a friend, who has had experience with our program. And we continue to get referrals."

According to Schroeder and Smith, a majority of their clients come for help with family problems.

"Self-esteem, phobias, drinking problems are frequent symptoms of trouble in a marriage," Smith observed.

The two counselors, gentle and quiet spoken, talk with concern and sympathy.

They said that along with marriage counseling they see clients who have problems with depression, problems with drinking, children with problems in school, adolescents with their special problems, virtually any person seeking help.

The first visit with a counselor is a time for mutual assessment, the two therapists explained – to explore the best approach for client and counselor.

No fee is charged for the initial consultation. Fees for subsequent consultations are based on a sliding scale.

"We negotiate our fees with each client," Smith explained. "We charge according to ability to pay and we work that out with each person.

"We want a person to value our counseling enough to budget and pay for it, but we never will deny help because of finances," Smith carefully explained.

The flexible fee schedule, indeed the existence of the Chip Center, is possible because of an endowment from the Woodbury Ransom family.

When the Ransom's son, Chip, died in a boating accident in 1976, his parents sought a way of bringing some good to the community out of their personal tragedy.

After study, the need for a counseling center was agreed upon and Chip Ransom's estate endowed the center.

The Chip Center's activities are overseen by a Board of Directors which meets monthly.

On the third anniversary of the founding of the center, October 4, Ronald Moore, current chairman of the board, was reappointed to the board. Jean Giffin and Fran Hooper were also reappointed. Tom Bickersteth, Gordon VanWieran and Jim McKinney were appointed as new members of the board. Other members of the 9-person board are Pat Hawley, Marian Kolm and Tom Pointner.

The Chip Center Corporation, which held its annual meeting on the anniversary date, is the governing body of the center. This 27-member Corporation was joined by five new members: Louis Hollow, Austion Regier, Jim McKinney, Joe Hayes and Jim Plarkner.

As the third year begins, the Chip Center staff's main hope is that people in the Charlevoix area will turn to it when looking for that special friend with whom to share a problem, receive honest reactions and help in solving problems.

Workshops planned at CHIP center

Charlevoix's Chip Counseling Center has announced a series of workshops, open to all persons in the area.

"These workshops are part of what we call 'Preventative Mental Health'," Chip Center Director Oren Schroeder said.

"They are for people who want to improve their own ability to handle problems, which we all face, as individuals, spouses, parents and so on.

"When we conceived the idea of workshops we were thinking of how to contribute toward the quality of life in our community. We want to help add meaning, a zest for life, if you will.

"We have chosen topics which we feel reflect the interests and needs of the community," Schroeder concluded.

The first workshop – couples communication workshop – will begin Oct. 25, at 7:30 p.m. Registration and details on location may be obtained by calling the Chip Center at 547-6551.

Limited to seven couples, the workshop is "designed to help couples learn: specific communication skills, more about themselves as individuals and as a couple, and to resolve conflicts more effectively," Schroeder said.

The couples communication workshop will meet Oct. 25, Nov. 1, 8 and 15th. Schroeder will conduct the workshop, for which a $55 fee per couple will be charged to cover costs and materials. This workshop will be repeated in March.

On Nov. 4th, a one-day financial planning workshop will be conducted by Chip Center Board of Directors member Tom Bickersteth, who is a professional financial planner. It will begin at 9 a.m. and run until 4 p.m.

The financial planning workshop "is designed to provide individuals with new ways of dealing with various financial situations, including: money management, budgeting, savings and investments," Bickersteth explained.

This workshop is limited to 30 individuals. The fee is $15 per person. It will be repeated in January, in two evening sessions.

On Nov. 29, a two-session workshop on parenting will begin. Limited to 20 persons, meeting Nov. 29 and Dec. 6, the parenting workshop is "for parents of children of any age and intended to acquaint them with the principles of effective parenting."

Led by staff counselor Terry Smith, parent of two adolescents himself, the parenting workshop "is meant to help parents know what to do and how to be more effective, even when they don't feel like it at a given time," Smith explained.

The fees for the parenting workshop are $15 per person. The two sessions will run from 7 to 10 p.m. A second pair of parenting workshops will be conducted in March.

On Dec. 5, the Chip Center staff will conduct an all-day workshop entitled "Dealing with the Stresses in Life."

"Because we all experience stress and tension at times, this workshop is intended to help you identify your sources of stress, to predict future areas of stress, and to develop methods of handling stress effectively," Schroeder explained.

The stress workshop will begin Dec. 5, at 9:30 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m. It is limited to 30 individuals, but, it, too, will be repeated on May 5th.

In May, the Chip Center will conduct three workshops entitled "Planning Your Own Lifestyle." The three sessions are planned for May 10, 17, and 24, beginning at 7 p.m. Limited to 30 individuals, this workshop's fee is $25 per person.

"The aim of this workshop is to help you cope with the changes in your life by: improving your skills in goal setting; clarifying your own personal values; and improving your own ability to determine your own lifestyle, both personally and vocationally," Schroeder explained.

Reservations should be made for workshops as soon as possible. Locations of each workshop, as well as other details may be obtained by calling the Chip Center at 547-6551.

Therapist Terry Smith said he feels that the workshops are an important part of the Chip Center philosophy, which is "to improve the quality of community life by providing experiences in workshops that are not of a direct therapeutic nature."

In other words, Smith said, "These are open to anyone who wants to sharpen his skills for living."

Schroeder explained further saying, "In these workshops we are not dealing with highly personal problems, we are not exposing ourselves as we would in psychotherapeutic session."

"Preventative mental health is really an important part of what Chip is trying to be in Charlevoix," Smith observed.

STATE SENATE

	ROD BROWN REPUBLICAN	MITCH IRWIN DEMOCRAT
	An administrative assistant to Sen. Robert Davis since 1970. He was promoted to executive assistant and Republican staff director in 1975. A resident of Gaylord. Married and has seven children. 	An administrator with the Economic Development Corporation of Chippewa County. A past teacher, coach, counselor and planner. A resident of Sault Ste. Marie. Married and has one child.
On the November ballot is a proposal to raise the drinking age to 21. What is your position on this proposal?	While I worked as Sen. Davis' assistant, I had the opportunity to be closely involved in the negotiations which led to the Legislature's passage of bills raising the legal drinking age in our state to 19, effective Dec. 3rd. Testimony received from school administrators clearly demonstrated that the 18-year-old drinking age limit had created serious problems among high school students. Young people were coming to school after having consumed too much liquor and were buying and giving it to their young friends. The main reason why the Legislature voted to increase the drinking age to 19, therefore, was to eliminate the drinking problem in high schools. I have not yet been convinced by any other information, a great deal of which is conflicting and confusing, that the drinking age needs to be raised any higher. I think we should see how well the 19-year-old limit works in terms of solving the school drinking problem, and then act to raise it higher if the problem persists. The voters of our state will have the ultimate say on this issue, however, when they cast their votes on Proposal D this November.	I am opposed to raising the drinking age to 21. We could raise the legal drinking age to 31, 41, or older, and we'd still face alcohol abuse. My primary opposition stems from the legal inconsistencies the passage of this proposal would cause. In 1972, we changed the age of majority to 18. This means that an individual who is 18 years of age has all the rights and responsibilities of adulthood, including signing contracts, serving on juries, voting, etc., and using alcoholic beverages. We need to make our laws consistent. Changing one aspect of the age of majority will only cause confusion and conflict. If the proposal was rewritten to change all of these rights and responsibilities to 21, I would then reconsider my position. Rather, I favor increased education at the high school level and increased alcoholism prevention programs. Further, I think the best solution to the drinking problem is to strengthem our family units, toughen up our discipline in our schools and on our highways. We should insure swift, fair and just punishment for those abusing alcohol.
The Michigan legislature recently approved increasing the gas tax by two cents a gallon and motor vehicle license plate fees by approximately 30 percent. Reportedly, part of the new revenue will be used to subsidize public transportation in southern Michigan. Will this legislation help northern Michigan? (State your position on this legislation)	I strongly opposed raising the state's gasoline tax and license plate fees. Unfortunately, however, I did not have a chance to vote on these measures. I think the gas tax increase will be bad for Northern Michigan because I believe it will discourage tourism, our area's largest industry. I also think the gas tax and license plate fee increases will place an unfair burden on our area's residents. We already pay much higher prices for gas here in Northern Michigan and we have to drive longer distances to get to work and elsewhere. Few people can afford the extra they will now be forced to pay for both gas and license plates. In my opinion, the Legislature totally ignored the wishes of a majority of Michigan citizens when they passed these increases. Whether any of the money generated from these tax increases will benefit Northern Michigan remains to be seen. When the last gas tax increase was approved, we were promised major improvements on our roads – and we are still waiting for many of those improvements to be accomplished. It will be important, therefore, that Northern Michigan has a strong voice in the Legislature when the decisions about allocating these funds are being made. I will speak up loud and clear to assure that Northern Michigan gets back its fair share and will not allow the downstate-dominated Legislature to ignore our transportation needs.	While I support the goals of the package to improve highways and transportation especially for local road commissions and senior citizens, I am disappointed with the passage of this tax hike plan. First, I'm not convinced that northern Michigan will get its fair share, especially when the promises of necessary improvements to U.S. 2, U.S. 31 and M-32 from the last gas hike have failed to materialize. And secondly, it is irresponsible for government to turn a deaf ear on our cries for tax relief. This tax hike is regressive, and I'm afraid it will only aggravate inflation. I remain opposed to this tax hike. Rather, the state should tighten its belt, eliminate wasteful spending, and squeeze the dollars necessary for the priority transportation improvements from existing tax revenues. In light of its passage, however; I will insist that the Department and Transportation establish specific timeframes for the scheduled completion of necessary project work here in northern Michigan.
There will be three tax questions on the ballot – The Headlee Amendment, the Tisch Amendment and the Voucher Amendment. Explain your position on each of the proposals.	I believe the Headlee Tax Limitation Amendment will go a long way toward halting the "big government - excessive spending" trend which now characterizes our State Legislature. I think taxes and spending have gotten out of hand in the past decade. Government now takes an average of 40 percent of our incomes. That's entirely too much, in my opinion. It's time that the state, just like every household, cut back on spending and live within its means. The Legislature is controlled by free-spending lawmakers who can't say 'no' to increased demands for programs. I hope the people will force them to say 'no' by passing the Headlee Amendment. And, I will not hesitate, as a member of the Senate, to say 'no' to increased demands for spending on needless programs. The Tisch Proposal will cut property taxes. It must be remembered, however, that property taxes are our local governments' major source of revenue. Without the revenues generated from property taxes, local governments will not have the ability alone to provide adequate services, such as support for our schools. They will be forced to turn to the state, therefore, to get the funding they need. Passage of this proposal would hamper local governments' efforts to provide services and increase local governments' reliance the state. The serious consequence of this turnabout, in my opinion, would be a loss of local control. Local governments are the most efficient governments, they are the closest to the people, and they know firsthand what the people want and need. If they lose the means to raise revenue, they will lose the right to say where their revenues should be allocated. When state funding comes, state control will surely follow. I am opposed to further interference by the state or federal government in our local operations. In regard to the Voucher Amendment, I am a strong supporter of both public and parochial schools. I have had children in both of these school systems and recognize the unique contribution each makes to our state's educational system. I believe we should do all we can to strengthen both public and non-public schools even further. If the Voucher Plan can be shown to help to do this, it has merit.	Yesterday, they said, 'nothing is sure but death and taxes.' Today, I say, 'nothing's for sure but being taxed to death.' I support the Headlee amendment to limit and control state spending. This proposal is a step in the right direction because it will put a halt to rising taxes and wasteful spending by requiring government to get specific and set cost effective priorities. I also feel we can cut property taxes. However, I don't feel the Tisch amendment is the proper method to achieve a balanced reduction of property taxes. It is a radical approach which would weaken local government and control, and would only shift taxes without insurng that other taxes could not be raised. I am also opposed to the Voucher proposal for two main reasons. First, as written, I believe it is unconstitutional in attempting to change two separate elements of our constitution. Secondly, it's lack of specificity leaves me with far too many unanswered questions. I believe its passage would open the door for substantial abuse and excessive costs of such a system. Finally, passage of the voucher amendment will raise the state's educational costs by at least $234 million dollars without specifying where the additional funding is to be raised. This proposal will undoubtedly render a hardship to public education. In addition, I will propose and push for strict cost-effective management policies to cut wasteful spending and make government more efficent. Everywhere we turn, we see money wasted by state government. I intend to start cutting government waste right where it begins. The first place to start cutting is with the money politicians spend on themselves. The legislature must set the example for the state agencies and departments. The State Senate has failed to do so. Duplication, ineffective programs, unnecessary paperwork, legislative mailings and junkets...the list goes on and on. We can change that. We can begin by electing someone who is not a part of this mess, but someone who will push and vote to reform this wasteful body. I will introduce and vote for legislation to curb legislative abuse in mailing, travel and extravagant office decorations. I will introduce and vote to enact a 'sunset' law to require that all programs or projects be reviewed before they are renewed. These are examples of the kind of cost savings measures that I will fight for.
The Senate has been discussing the issue of whether voluntary quitters should be allowed to collect unemployment compensation benefits. What is your position on this issue?	I firmly believe that action needs to be taken to eliminate voluntary quitters from our state's unemployment compensation rolls. This is an abuse of a which was originally created to provide temporary assistance for those who are out of work involuntarily, not those who simply don't want to work. The fact that the cost of unemployment compensation in Michigan ranks the second highest in the nation is due largely to allowing voluntary quitters to collect jobless pay. I believe this policy is unfair to our employers who must bear the entire cost of funding unemployment compensation, and to the many unemployed who want to work, but can't find jobs, because businesses are justifiably reluctant to locate or expand in our state. I support legislation which would prohibit those who voluntarily quit their jobs from collecting unemployment compensation. By eliminating unemployment compensation eligibility for these employees who voluntarily quit their jobs, we would be making more jobs available to deserving individuals who are now unemployed, and also, providing evidence to the employers of our state that Michigan encourages private enterprise.	I am opposed to providing unemployment compensation benefits to 'voluntary quitters' except in the most extenuating cases under the most stringent guidelines.

Facing a bedsheet ballot

When Michiganders go to the polls Nov. 7, they will be asked not only to decide on candidates for various offices but also will be faced with a so-called "bedsheet" ballot containing no less than 11 propositions all dealing with vital areas of state government.

Most of the propositions reached the ballot by the petition route, which is well and good. Thanks to petitions, the American people over the years have been able to keep their elected representatives on the straight and narrow whenever they appeared derelict in their duty.

It would be uncomfortable to live under any government which did not allow its citizens to petition the legislature for relief from all kinds of evils and inequities.

But a representative form of government implies that the people will not be asked to make so many of the major decisions affecting the state. In recent years, however, it seems that an unusual number of governmental changes have had to be decided by the electorate.

Among recent examples are the repeal of sales taxes on food and drugs and the banning of disposable bottles – two actions which could have been taken just as easily by the legislature.

Next month, Michiganders will be asked to put on their thinking caps again and come up with intelligent votes on three major propositions in the field of taxation – any one of which constitutes a major departure from the way we normally finance government services.

We study the proposals, we listen to the pro's and con's, we try to decide whose ax will get gored and whose will go Scot free and then we try to reach intelligent conclusions. Sometimes we luck out; sometimes we don't.

What bothers me at this point is why the legislature failed to realize years ago that something would have to be done to curb government spending and alleviate ungodly tax rates and then have taken steps to correct the situation.

Certainly any solution to the tax problem worked out in the state capitol by knowledgeable tax attorneys would make more sense than, say, a tax proposal drawn up by a downstate drain commissioner.

If our state legislators had been on the job, there wouldn't be three tax proposals on the November ballot.

At this point no one seems to know exactly what will happen if all three tax plans pass. One opinion holds that the workable parts of each proposal would be incorporated into a single amendment to the state constitution.

Probably the most damaging of the three is the Voucher Proposal which would, in effect, transfer funding of schools from local school districts to the state. This idea might not be all bad, if the proposal did not also imply that local control of schools goes where the money is.

The Voucher Plan has been hailed by some as a boon to private and parochial schools. But at the same time it could wreak havoc among public schools.

The whole proposal is so poorly thought-out that it doesn't deserve a spot on the ballot and it wouldn't have received one if the legislature had been more responsive to the mood back home.

The same goes for Tisch and Headlee. Although I agree with their general objectives, I do not think they have been drawn up with sufficient attention to their myriad implications.

But it's too late now. The ballots are printed and the legislators are back home drumming up support for their individual re-election campaigns.

When it comes right down to it, Michigan doesn't need Tisch, Headlee or the Voucher Plan. But we do need new blood in Lansing. Badly.

Hollywood Nights
Bob Seger
(c) 1978 Gear Publishing Co.
Hollywood Nights
She stood there bright as the sun
On that California coast
He was a Midwestern boy on his own
She looked at him with those soft eyes
So innocent and blue
He knew right then he was too far from home
He was too far from home
She took his hand and she led him along that golden beach
They watched the waves tumble over the sand
They drove for miles and miles
Up those twisting turning roads
Higher and higher and higher they climbed

And those Hollywood nights
In those Hollywood hills
She was looking so right
in her diamonds and frills
Oh those big city nights
In those high rolling hills
Above all the lights
She had all of her skills.

He's headed west cause he felt that a change
Would do him good
See some old friends
Good for the soul
She had been born with a face
That would let her get her way
He saw that face and he lost all control
He had lost all control
Night after night
Day after day
It went on and on
Then came that morning he woke up alone
He spent all night staring down at the lights on LA
Wondering if he could ever go home

And those Hollywood nights
In those Hollywood hills
It was looking so right
It was giving him chills
In those big city nights
In those high rolling hills
Above all the lights
With a passion that kills
In those Hollywood nights
In those Hollywood hills
She was looking so right
In her diamonds and frills
On those big city nights
In those high rolling hills
Above all the lights
She had all of her skills.

One afternoon not long ago, a midwestern girl minus diamonds and frills received a long distance phone call from L.A.

"Hello, Annie," said the voice just as if it hadn't been thirteen years since we last saw one another. "I thought I'd tell you that there is going to be a songwriting seminar at a local college on Saturday morning starting at 9 a.m. Why don't you come on out?"

"Margaret Ellen," Annie shrieked into the receiver. "It sounds great except that I have to do my grocery shopping at Oleson's on Saturday morning."

After that the conversation largely disintegrated. Margaret Ellen has always symbolized the liberated woman to me. When it was not nearly so in vogue, she became one of the few females to enter and endure the obstacles of her gender through medical school at Ohio State.

It was Margaret Ellen who helped me write my first resumes for a meaningful position past the sanctuary of college.

"Blow you own horn a little bit," she would admonish through sips of tea. "If you don't, who in the world will?"

I didn't quite grasp the full significance of supportive therapy at the time, but the ego-building sessions spent with Margaret Ellen my senior year were just that. So I tooted my horn just slightly on a teaching application and landed my first job. Shortly afterwards I landed my husband or vice-versa, I forget which. And as Margaret Ellen became more and more liberated, I became a teacher, a wife, a mother of four and never did get to backpack through Europe with a hippie.

Well, eventually, Marguret Ellen, too, became a wife and a mother with some variations on the same theme. "Seriously, Annie, you've got to come out for a visit even if it's just to see our house. It comes equipped with a swimming pool and push-button controlled dome. We have a live-in babysitter who only speaks Spanish. That's a hard adjustment for a French minor."

I minored in French, too. Thanks heavens the girl down the street speaks English.

Margaret Ellen, to continue, is now a dermatologist. She intimated the names of a few movie starts that are her clients which I will not reveal for fear that one of them might pick up a copy of the Courier and sue me. The town of Charlevoic doesn't really care who is getting their moles removed in L.A. anyway.

And so it went. I had been waiting for the garbage truck to come and pick up our week's debris that the raccoons had been enjoying of late and was staring into an ungainly pile of unironed shirts even as we talked. I love Margaret Ellen even if she doesn't contend with garbage and ironing. She still has pzazzz. I could hear it crackling all the way from California. And I don't think she's lost touch.

"At least your children will know what the real world is like," she admitted. "L.A. is a plastic existence where if you don't wear Gucci shoes with matching handbag, you aren't."

Yes, Margaret Ellen, I think this is the real world. We don't always lock our doors. We can go Halloweening with our kids. We can walk down our streets without fear of being raped or mugged. And we can wear jeans downtown without anyone looking at us like slobs. Even the name is nice.

"Charlevoix," commented Jackson Browne at his concert here last season, "I like the sound of that name. Maybe I'll write a song about Charlevoix someday." Our world is real and it's nice.

But then, there's L.A. I'm not immune to glittering lights and the glamorous life. Being impressionable, I might conceiveably lose all control. So Margaret Ellen, do me a favor. When I come to visit, play me this Bob Seger song will you? I think a lot of people fall in love with Hollywood nights only to wake up alone the next morning wondering if they can ever go home. I don't think I want to be one of them.

School conferences planned

Next Wednesday and Thursday evenings, Oct. 25 and 26, have been designated "Walkthrough and Conference Evenings" for parents of students at the Charlevoix High School.

Wednesday evening will be devoted to walkthroughs from 6:30 to 8:00, followed by conferences from 8:05 to 9:30. Thursday evening has been set aside for conferences from 6:30 to 9:30.

The Walkthrough has been set up so that parents may follow their students' schedules, starting with the first period and continuing through the day. Ten minutes have been alloted to each class on the Walkthrough. During this time, teachers will explain the materials they are using in class, how they grade, homework that is expected, and attendance requirements.

Walkthrough times are as follows:

Class Period	Time
1	6:30 – 6:45
2	6:50 – 7:00
3	7:05 – 7:15
4	7:20 – 7:30
5	7:35 – 7:45
6	7:50 – 8:00

There will be no opportunity during the Walkthrough for the parents to discuss their children individually with the teachers. That will be done during the conference periods, for which an appointment must be made by phoning 547-6491.

Empty nest syndrome

All the child psychology books I've ever read take you down the yellow brick road past puberty, serious petting, into mature relationships and leave you.

But parenting isn't like that. There are 30 million parents out there with kids between the ages of 18-55 who drift in and out of their lives like a revolving door.

The empty nest syndrome is overrated. I have heard of some parents who moved during the night to another city (and left no forwarding address). Others have installed pay showers. Still another parent I know waited until her son got up one night to use the bathroom, then painted his room pink and rented it to a pocket computer salesman.

No parent likes to change locks, but the situation is definitely getting out of hand. Children simply aren't leaving the home after school anymore as they did in the '60s. When they do, they multiply and come back tenfold.

So how do you displace an aging teenager? It isn't easy. When our son's bedroom began to take on the appeal of a roadside zoo (complete with sawdust on the floor), we took action.

First, we set the table for two. This made him aware that he was not expected for dinner.

Second, we intercepted his mail, wrote "No such person at this address" and had it returned to the post office for forwarding.

We posted signs in the hallway reading, "OCCUPANCY BY MORE THAN TWO IN THIS HOUSE IS A FIRE HAZARD."

We were considering telling him he would have to share his room with the family pet (and buying a wolf) when we came up with a daring but cruel idea. We stopped stocking the refrigerator.

I'll never forget the look of fear in the child's eyes standing in front of the refrigerator door (the hairs in his nose becoming frosted) saying, "Is that all there is?" if I live to be a hundred.

We never saw him again.

You hear a lot of dialogue on the death of the American family. Families aren't dying. They're merging into big conglomerates. Daughters and sons who are roommates (legal and lethal) drift in and approach the desk like they're in a hotel asking, "Is my old room still available?" Cribs and strollers appear with babies. Cars and special menus are requested.

I rechecked my child psychology book the other day for the answer and wondered, "Is there life after the index?"

Wanted: One thief

The thief who crept into the office of the Charlevoix County Treasurer on Sept. 17 and stole $1,014 is still at large.

Although several county employees saw the culprit, they have been able to describe him only as having "long dark hair and a beard" and wearing "denim".

The theft occurred during the noon hour when the main room of the treasurer's office was unattended for a minute or two while two employees were in adjoining rooms. The squeaking of the cash drawer being opened alerted the employees, who chased the thief down the hall and out the building. He ran to his automobile, parked on Antrim Street, and drove away before anyone could catch him or get the license number.

The thief apparently had no fear of law enforcement officials since the treasurer's office is immediately across the hall from the office of the circuit judge and only a few feet away from that of the county prosecutor.

Women's Club to have fashion show, dinner

The Charlevoix Women's Club annual fashion show and dinner meeting will be held Tuesday evening, Oct. 24, at the Weathervane Inn. Cocktails will be served at 5:30, dinner at 6:30, and the fashion show will start at 7:30.

Tickets for the occasion are $7.25 each and may be purchased by calling or writing Mrs. Arthur R. Reibel, Box 142, Charlevoix, phone 547-4937. There will be no reserved tables and dinner reservations must be in no later than Oct. 20.

Hostesses for the evening are Mrs. Ray Woud and Mrs. George Duke, Jr. The fashion show will be commentated by Bill Vogel of Radio Studio WVOY, with organ music furnished by Mrs. Grace Werner.

Shops participating in the fashion show this year are Alice Jane Dows, Inc., The Cottage, Gacha's Casuals, Harold Grant, Inc., Shop of the Gulls, The Clothing Company, Mettler's by the Bay, Nawrot Pendleton, The Bevy, Patricia's on the Harbor, Bartlings, Gattles, and the Bahnhof Ski Shop.

Many local merchants have donated door prizes, including Ben Franklin, Crown Drugs, Barb's Hallmark Cards, Oleson's Market, Leisure Time, Capelli Salon, Staley's Hardware, Dale's Photo Shop, Cinema III, The Apple Tree, Kentucky Friend Chicken, Harbor Hardware, Petoskey Floral, Leutheuser's Restaurant, and Central Rexall Drugs.

Profits from this Women's Club event go toward financing community projects sponsored by the club.

Post 1152 strives for 100 percent membership

The Charlevoix Post No. 1152 Veterans of Foreign Wars, and its Auxiliary are striving for 100 percent membership drive by Nov. 1. Members of the two organizations are asked to send their dues to Clarence Rabach of the V.F.W. and Mrs. Betty Jackson of the Auxiliary so this goal can be reached. Anyone with questions may address them to these people.

This announcement was made at the recent meeting of the Auxiliary held at the post home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Elliot, District 13 president, attended the meeting and spoke to the 21 members present regarding the V.F.W and its Auxiliary as service groups. She urged that members emphasize the fact that both are dedicated to community service as well as to veterans; that they work on cancer project, sewing projects for VA hospitals, rehabilitation and other veteran and community project. She also urged members to attend the District 13 meeting to be held at Traverse City Nov. 4 and 5 with a noon dinner on Nov. 5. Those planning to attend are advised to notify the president, Mrs. Leland Warner, so reservations may be made.

It was also announced that the V.F.W. and Auxiliary will sponsor their annual Voice of Democracy program. This features an essay contest open to students in the top three grades, 10, 11, and 12. The theme this year will be "Why I love America." Anyone wishing additional information may call Mrs. Warner. The contest is held to promote patriotism and loyalty among today's youth.

There will also be a poster contest with a patriotic theme for elementary students. More information regarding this will be announced later.

Members were advised that reservations are now being accepted for the Auxiliary's mid-winter meeting to be held in Hawaii March 20 through 27. Mrs. Barbara Bishop of Michigan will be a candidate for the guard position in the National Auxiliary. She will present her campaign promotional pitch at the national meeting.

The group voted to contribute $30 to the Special Olympics program.

Plans for the annual fall casserole salad luncheon to be held at post home from 11 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 18, were completed.

Mrs. Clement Olach and Mrs. Bert Hazel hosted the recent meeting at the post home. Refreshments were served at a table decorated in an autumn motif. The next meeting is scheduled for Nov. 2.

Carnival Oct. 21

The neighborhood carnival to benefit victims of muscular dystrophy on Oct. 21 will be held at 800 State St.

The carnival will start at 11 a.m. and will feature games for children of all ages. Mary Lenhart will serve as ringmaster, assisted by Lisa Mosher Pam Drury.

Many local businesses have donated prizes and money for the affair. In addition to those mentioned last week, they are Barb's Hallmark Harbor, Ben Franklin Store, the Radio Shack, Captain's Kids, Oscar's Pizza, Muma's Service Stations and Cinema III. The Thomas Realty Company is obtaining and paying for a popcorn machine for the carnival.

Consumers has third party notification program

Editor:

Senior citizens and their relatives and friends may not be aware that Consumers Power Company conducts a "third party notification" program aimed at preventing discontinuation of utility service to senior citizens. With the approach of the winter heating season and the higher energy usages that will result, we would like to remind everyone of this service.

Under the program, in a household where either the husband or wife is 65 or over, the customer may designate a third party to be notified by Consumers Power if a final notice is sent to the customer warning of the discontinuance of service if the past-due bill remains unpaid. The third party may be a relative, friend, clergyman, social agency, or other responsible party selected by the customer. The third party, who is under no obligation to pay the bill, will receive a duplicate copy of any shut-off notice. We assume that the third party will attempt to arrange the payment of the bill so that termination of service will be avoided.

The purpose of the notification program is to see that someone other than the Company and the customer is aware that a bill has not been paid despite all our best efforts. This notification service is especially important for those customers who may have a language barrier, or who are absent from home for considerable periods, or who are in failing helath.

Customers and their relatives and friends who are interested can obtain a brochure explaining the program, an application form, and a self-addressed envelope from their nearest Consumers Power office. To take part in the program, the eligible customer must sign the form and return it to the Company.

Sincerely,

R. G. Dahlquist
Area Manager

Woman claims Consumers is misleading people

Editor:

Incredibly, Consumers Power Company continues to mislead people on the health hazards of nuclear power – and in serious ways.

Recently, Walter Strodl, health physicist for Consumers Power, wrote a long treatise which supposedly was his response to the concerns citizens have expressed on this issue. While there were numerous errors in Strodl's reply, one is so glaringly false that it must be dealt with – and that is his claim that there is no evidence of genetic damage from radiation among human beings. This is grossly misleading. Genetic damage from low level radiation is actually a major concern in the medical profession.

The text book, "Principles of Internal Medicine", by Harrison, et al, standard edition, page 1446, states:

"Radiation can produce mutations of genes, the information and transmission centers for heredity. Of this there is no doubt. Not all mutations are harmful, but the chances are overwhelming that a change will be detrimental to the species. Not all mutations produce visible, immediately detectible effects. The cmfcukn not only for an increase in the number of obvious freaks or cripples but with changes that would lead to such undesirable characteristics as lowered life expectancy, decreased fertility, a general increase in physical and mental disease, and an increase in fetal or neonatal death rates. It is the less obvious changes that are of the greatest importance."

Dr. Helen Caldicott, pediatrician at Children's Hospital at Harvard Medical School, who is an ardent opponent of nuclear power, has pointed out that health physicists are just that – physicists. They know nothing about medicine. She points out that people are more sensitive to radiation than any animal on earth.

In my view, the fact that the government and the nuclear industry have spent billions of dollars worldwide in a propaganda campaign to conceal these facts about low level radiation from the public, is criminal.

It is not yet too late to save the human gene pool, but the deceptions on this serious issue have to be stopped.

In one out of every eighty-five or ninety human pregnancies, more than one baby develops within the uterus. It has been calculated that twins occur about once in every 88 pregnancies, triplets about once in 8,000 and quadruplets about once every 500,000. Prior to 1940 there were approximately 45 seemingly authentic reports of quintuplet births, the Dionnes being the most famous. No well substantiated case of septuplets has ever been recorded.

Family medication records, patient medication consultation, convalescent supplies and prompt, courteous service are available from the pharmacists at CROWN DRUG CENTER, Captain's Corner Shopping Center, 547-4001. It's going to be a ___ winter

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

Winter:

"It's going to be mild."

"It's going to be a heller."

"It's going to happen in any case."

The above, covering all bases, are prognostications from Charlevoix sages.

Interviewed for their reputations or interest in winter, the following people prove once again that in Charlevoix there is a diversity of opinion.

Elmer Reed who predicts "A heller" qualified his prediction with, "They're all bad. Well, they do run in cycles. Usually get three bad ones then three a little milder."

Reed's basis for his prediction – "The fruit is earlier this year."

But in direct contradiction Pearl Rowe, whose husband John brags, "She is never wrong. Never been in our 20 years of marriage," predicts a very mild winter."

Why?

"Well, we have no fruit whatsoever," The Rowes operate their famous organic garden near the hospital. Most of Mrs. Rowe's predictions are based on natural observations.

"The squirrels aren't packing it in, this year," she said. There are no walnuts either."

And, Mrs. Rowe concludes, "If we don't have frost around the Jewish holidays, just past, then we have a nice fall. We haven't had a real frost here in town yet."

Aubrey Block agrees with Mrs. Rowe's observations on frost, but being a firm believer in the Farmer's Almanac said, "It looks like it's going to be a worse winter than last."

Mrs. James Novotny agrees with Block, "Based on rumors I'd say it is not going to be as bad as last."

Her husband interrupted, "Predictions are sort of artificial. But, I say, we should have a mild winter."

Reluctance to predict typifies most interviewees.

"Winters are unpredictable," Jimmy Bellinger stated flatly, with a wry smile. "I don't see any pattern. People are always looking for an Indian summer. As far as boaters go, some are getting their boats out, others are leaving them in, for salmon fishing."

Jim Miller claimed he consulted an outja board," My ouiji board says it will be hard with lots of snow, lots of wind, and long. But that's based on my own personal feelings.

Miller and a customer in his store agreed, "The Mountain ash are heavy with fruit, which means a hard winter.

"And my customers are buying a lot of snowshoes and winter boots early. Also fishing is early this year," Miller continued, warming to his predictions.

Fish biologist Ron Rybicki, however, said the fish are running on schedule, only the fishermen were early. "The steelhead and chinook are on schedule. The lake trout are due in about the 14th. I guess you're looking for how thick the hides are on muskrats. Fish don't grow thick hides."

But corn can give an indication, according to George Cook. "According to an old saying, when the husk on the corn is thick, it means a harsh cold winter. The husks been terrible thick this year," Cook reported.

"We used to go by caterpillars, you know," he continued. "But I haven't seen any this year. And, as for geese, haven't seen them yet either, although someone said they saw some in September, which is awfully early."

Roger Peacock, at Frank's Flowers said he did see geese in September, "But we are waiting and watching for them closer to Hallowe'en."

The only clue the flowers at the greenhouse have given is by blooming early – the petunias, especially – because of the colder fall, which they like.

Sandy Smith at the Head Shop was asked if she saw any clues in the thickness of customers' hair. She said she saw no patterns.

"But, it's going to be an early winter," she predicted. "There have been two skunks under my front porch already. Also, there is going to be tons of snow. That's based on wishful thinking," she added.

Jerry Haggerty, egg farmer on the Boyne City Road and his neighbor Walter Harvey, a Hayes Township gardener, mused about their predictions.

Haggerty said, "It will be about average."

Asked why he said, "Well, it's about time we had a decent winter." After thinking a moment or two, puffing on a cigar he added, "Anyway, you don't want to make it any worse than its going to be."

Harvey observed, "The chipmunks ain't went to bed yet.

"But, you know, I just take winter like an annual. Like it comes.

Finally Harvey added, "If its bad they'll just say those guys didn't know what they was talking about, anyway."

The two friends returned to discussing their wood chopping plans.

The band plays on

It's Saturday afternoon. And it's halftime of the Northern Michigan-Wisconsin Whitewater football game in Marquette. Marching out onto the field to provide musical entertainment is none other than the – Charlevoix High School Marching Band.

That's right!

The Rayder band Saturday traveled acrossed the Straits of Mackinac to perform before 6,000 football fanatics in the Upper Peninsula. And they enjoyed every minute of it.

"We had a super time," Director Gary Stutzman said. "The kids worked hard and their performance was near perfect."

The Rayder band – 106 strong – left for chilly Marquette Friday morning. They spent the afternoon rehearsing and attending clinics. They were also introduced to members of the Marquette High School Marching Band – with whom they spent the night.

On Saturday, the Rayders split the halftime show with Northern Michigan's band, each having eight minutes.

How, you say, did the Rayder band end up in Marquette?

Well, Stutzman just happens to be a Northern Michigan grad and "has connections."

Two weeks ago, Northern's band helped Charlevoix celebrate homecoming. And, according to Stutzman, the university's wind ensemble will be coming here in the winter.

"There are good feelings between the two schools," Stutzman said. "They're trying to build their program. I know they're after a couple of my kids."

To say Stutzman is happy with the band's performance this year would be an understatement. He is ecstatic.

"A lot of college bands couldn't touch them," he said matter-of-factly.

"The kids have worked hard. They deserve recognition."

Stutzman said the band works together and has good student leadership. He specifically mentions Steve Landon, Shari Mol and Penny Kane for leadership qualities.

Bandsmen help Stutzman design the performances. They pool their resources. For the band's final show of the year – against Petoskey – Stutzman is letting the band design its own program. He has that much confidence in them.

Stutzman filmed the band's trip to Marquette and he plans on presenting it to the Charlevoix Board of Education.

State has 165 marked snowmobile trails

Funding for Michigan's snowmobile trail system maintained by the State Department of Natural Resources may be doubled if a bill now being considered by the state Legislature becomes law, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"The DNR now receives approximately $1 million annually from snowmobile registrations and nothing from taxes paid on gasoline to run machines," stated Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager.

Senate Bill 185 now before the State House of Representatives mandates that three-tenths of one percent of all state gasoline taxes be used for the trail program. A DNR official said the bill has a good chance for passage.

"DNR officials say that the trail program could receive $1.2 million in the first full year if the two-cent-per gallon state gasoline tax hike takes effect as scheduled Jan. 1 and at least $1 million without the tax increase," Ratke said.

Although snowmobilers can travel anywhere in the more than 3.7 million acres of state-managed forests, there are some 2,300 miles of marked trails in state forests – nearly 100 miles more than last year. In addition, there are 105,000 acres of state park and recreation area lands open to snowmobiling – 1,300 more acres than last season.

In addition to state improvements, new routes through the Lower Peninsula, Huron and Manistee National forests have added more than 100 miles to last season's 1,061-mile network.

The 165 trails listed on Auto Club's 1978-79 guide are a marked contrast to the 44 marked routes scattered throughout the state a decade ago. Then, the longest trail measured 31 miles.

It now is possible to travel 300 miles across the Upper Peninsula from Sault Ste. Marie into Wisconsin or 230 miles across Lower Michigan from Tawas City to Traverse City via groomed trails. Shorter routes from one to 81 miles long also are available.

Auto Club states that there are restrictions governing snowmobiling on federal and state lands.

Snowmobilers in the Huron and Manistee National forests can travel only on designated routes or unplowed roads not posted as closed.

Until March 1, machines can travel anywhere in the western UP's Ottawa National Forest. After that, all travel on federal land south of M-28, except in the extreme western UP, will be restricted to trails or unplowed roads. In the UP's Hiawatha National Forest, machines are limited to trails or unplowed but groomed forest roads.

All state land is closed to snowmobiling when snow depth is under four inches. Those southern state game areas open to snowmobilers can be used Jan. 1 through March 31, 1979. Snowmobilers also can travel the rights-of-way along thousands of road miles in 37 counties.

Auto Club reminds operators that machines must be registered to run anywhere but on private land. Children under 12 must be supervised by an adult to travel public lands. Youngsters aged 12 to 15 must pass an eight-hour, state-approved snowmobile safety course to drive without supervision on public property.

Auto Club urges snowmobilers to follow these safety rules to enjoy a trouble-free season:

+Dress properly. Long scarves may look fine but easily could tangle in machinery.

+Carry tools, spare parts and extra fuel.

+Have a survival-first aid kit on board, containing at least a compass, maps, waterproof matches, food and extra clothing.

+Never travel alone.

+Stay on marked trails. Watch for low-hanging fences and guy wires and never litter.

+Make sure ice is at least six inches thick before attempting to cross lakes or rivers. Avoid ice at river mouths and over fishing holes. Stay alert for snow mounds which might hide pilings or stumps.

Board and commission vacancies filled

Appointments to fill vacancies on several county boards and commissions were made last week by County Board Chairman Clyde Cunningham. They were:

Eileen Rouse of Boyne City, re-appointed for a three-year term on the Social Services Board.

Ann Thurston of Boyne City, re-appointed for a five-year term on the County Library Board.

Martin Paul of Boyne City, re-appointed for a five-year term on the Commission on Aging.

Herbert Griffin and Wayne Saunders, both of East Jordan, re-appointed for three-year terms on the Parks and Recreation Commission.

Larry Levengood of Charlevoix, appointed to fill the unexpired term of Donald Berlage and another three-year term on the County Planning Commission. Berlage has resigned his post.

Ray Towne of Boyne City, appointed for a three-year term on the County Planning Commission. He takes the place of Arthur Steinbrecher, who was not a candidate for re-appointment.

Thora Kotowich of East Jordan, re-appointed to a three-year term on the Act 258 (Mental Health) Board. Oscar Ward of Charlevoix, re-appointed as an alternate on the Board.

Cass Russell of Charlevoix, re-appointed for a three-year term on the County Office of Veterans' Affairs.

Rayders come back beat Rogers City, 34-26

Having a 16 game winning streak snapped earlier in the season, the Charlevoix Red Rayders have started on another.

Friday night the Rayders won their second straight contest, 34-26, over Rogers City. Charlevoix is now 4-2 on the season and 2-2 in Michigan-Huron Shores competition.

Charlevoix got on the scoreboard early – as they did last week – on a 10 yard run by Doug Buday. On the ensueing kick-off Rogers City fumbled and Charlevoix was back in business. And the Rayders took advantage of the turnover when Kevin Kratt scored from two yards out. Scott Morgan converted after both scores and it appeared Charlevoix was going to make the game a route and send the Hurons to their fifth loss in sixth decisions.

But Rogers City refused to play dead. The Hurons ripped off three consecutive touchdowns on the Rayders to go ahead 18-14. The Hurons scored on runs of four, five and four by Mark Brege.

Shaken, the Rayders bounced back and moved ahead when Mike Keller went in from four yards out. Morgan's conversion made it 21-18.

The seasaw game continued, however, as Rogers City took the ball down the field and scored on a 46 yard jaunt by Jerry Buczkowski. A two point run by Brege made it 26-21 at halftime.

The second half was much quieter, although Charlevoix did manage to put two scores on the board and claim the win.

Keller got his second touchdown of the game on a 10 yard scamper with 5:16 remaining in the third quarter and then moments later Buday got his second score on a 28 yard pass interception. Morgan connected after one of the two touchdowns.

The Rayders suffered a key loss in the game when Bob Russell, the hard running junior, suffered a knee injury. He'll be out for the season, according to reports.

Charlevoix is now tied with Boyne City for fourth place in the league. The Rayders will try for third win in a row Friday when St. Ignace comes to town.

Golfers place third qualify for state finals

After completing a perfect 13-0 regular season, Charlevoix's golf team qualified for the state Class C finals at Lowell Saturday by placing third in regional competition at Houghton Lake.

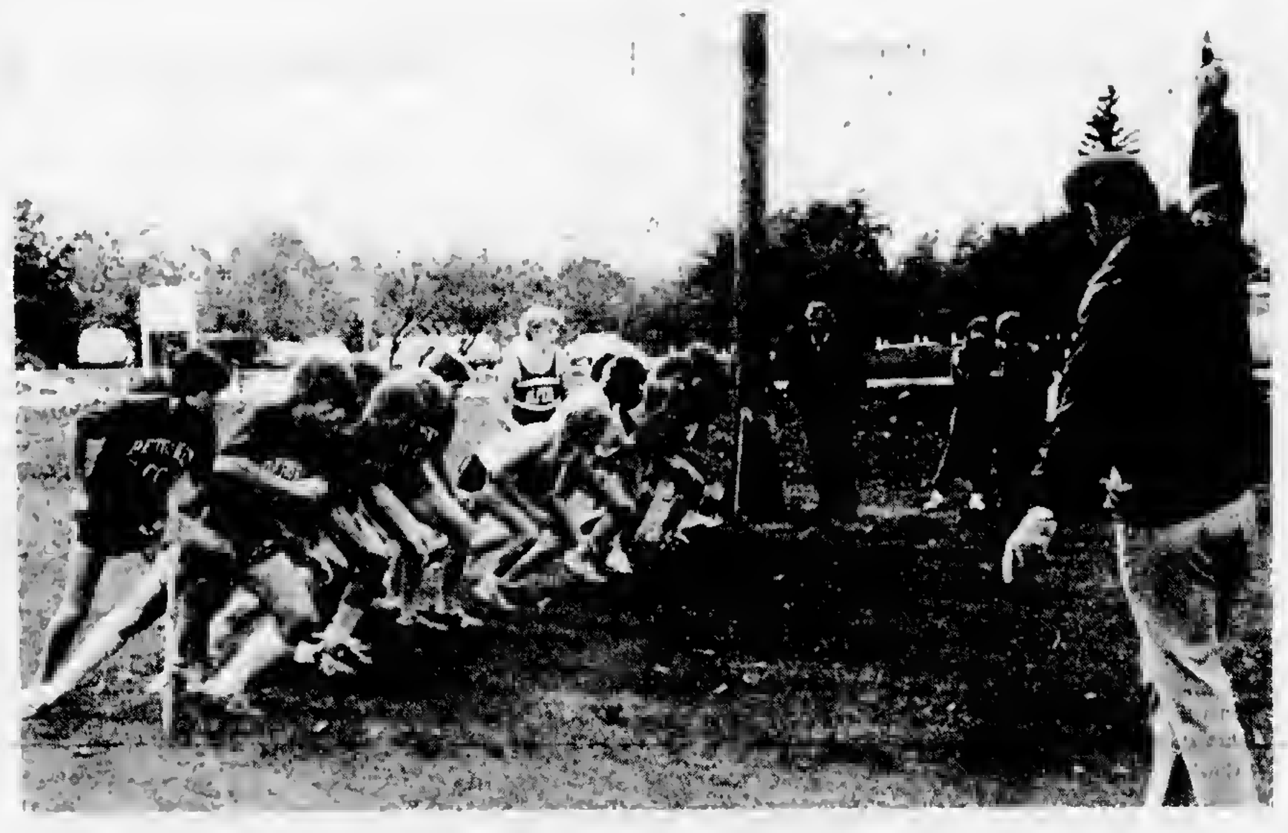
The Rayders finished with a 340 team score, which was nine strokes behind Traverse City St. Francis and one stroke behind runner-up Roscommon.

Charlevoix's Mike Custer paced the Rayders with a 79, Bob Ranger had a 83, Roxy VanLoo had a 87 and Mark White had a 91.

Twelve teams competed in the regional Saturday. Earlier in the week, the Rayders made Harbor Springs their 13th victim 159-166.

Custer once again led the way with a score of 37, Ranger had a 38, Ike Dysterhouse, White and VanLoo shot 42, respectively.

In the JV match, Charlevoix lost 186-200. For Charlevoix, Dave Olach shot a 48, Tim Shupert had a 49, Dave Milligan had a 50 and Mike Umlor had a 53.



And they're off

A 'Bob of all trades'

BIG RAPIDS – Ferris State College football enthusiasts are saying that it's so nice to have a "Bob" around the house. You see, the Bulldogs have a guy who can do it all...a regular "Jack of all trades," named Bob. So, Ferris football fanciers extoll the virtues of their "Bob of all trades."

Confused? Let us explain.

In the fall of 1976, a freshman from the beautiful lakeside West Michigan community of Charlevoix walked on the Ferris State College campus to tryout for football. But, he had his position in mind. He wanted to be quarterback.

After starring in high school at that position, quarterback just had to be his niche in Bulldog football. It hasn't worked out that way for Robert William...Bob...Alger, but he, like his coaches, couldn't be happier.

You see, Bob Alger had also made a name for himself playing other positions than quarterback at Charlevoix High. He also was a linebacker, a punter, kicker and he returned punts and kicks not to mention being an all-conference basketball and track star. A regular "Bob of all trades."

Enter Ferris defensive coordinator Jack Hinkle just prior to the 1976 season.

"When we first saw Bob, we thought he was a heck of an athlete," said Hinkle. "But, he was only running fourth or fifth string quarterback at the time and we needed help on defense. So we asked if he'd be interested in making a change."

"Coach Hinkle asked me if I had my heart set on quarterback," recalled Alger. "I said all I wanted to do was play; so before the first game of the season I was moved to defense.

Bulldog head coach Nick Coso adds more to the story.

"We always want to put our 22 best players on the field and Bob showed us he was one of them. When he was willing to shift to defense it was a big plus for us."

It would be a nice little story if it ended there since Alger has been one of Ferris' top defensive players practically since the change was initiated. But, the "Bob of all trades" story has just begun.

Alger began as a roverback on defense, but in the third game of the season he was switched to cornerback to get his first college start against powerful Wayne State. Two pass interceptions were to follow in a big Ferris upset victory and Bob Alger has been starting...somewhere...ever since. But, Alger had another role to fill as a freshman, too.

"One of our coaches asked if anybody had ever snapped from center on punts and kicks before," said the 6-0, 190 pound blond-haired junior. "I had done it as a freshman in high school; so I volunteered. A center's nothing more than an upside down quarterback I figured."

It all caused some confusion in the stands though. Bob had five different jersey numbers in his first five games because of the varied positions he was playing. Alger ended his freshman season as a rover, cornerback and as a center. A regular "Bob of all trades."

But, hold on, there's more. Being an "upside down" quarterback was not all that much fun.

"I was getting tired of the bumps on the head; so I worked hard to improve my punting during the off-season."

And so Bob Alger, as a sophomore, became a punter. His 13 punts for a 28.0 average in 1977 didn't set the world afire, but, again, when there was a Bulldog need no matter the position, Bob was ready.

Ferris came into the 1978 season with freshman recruit Bill Kayanek to punt and Greg Rambo was coming on as one of the best centers in the league. It looked like the Ferris kicking game was going to exclude Bob Alger for his junior season. No way! Alger just added another notch on his football repertoire.

Bob now holds for extra point kicks and field goals for his Bulldog teammate and off-campus apartment roommate Dan Delamarter. Bob must do alright. Delamarter's recent 52-yard field goal tied a Wayne State Stadium record. And, by the way, cornerback and rover Bob Alger was switched to safety this season, his third defensive position at Ferris.

"It looks like now I'm being switched back to rover," said Alger prior to the Grand Valley game. "I like that position best since it's most like linebacker where I played in Charlevoix."

He's doing a good job for Ferris no matter where the "Bob of all trades" is platooned as a starter. His 32 tackles in four games ranks as a team high.

You figure after having played rover, cornerback, safety, quarterback, center, punter, and holder for kicks not to mention playing on practically all of Ferris' specialty teams, that Bob Alger couldn't do anything more for Bulldog football. Surely you know better than that by now.

"When an injury sidelined senior Greg Jurgonski last year we had to find us a new defensive co-captain," said Nick Coso. "Bob has those leadership qualities that you can't ignore. As just a sophomore last year and again this season, he's one of our co-captains."

There you have Ferris State College's "Bob of all trades," Bob Alger. End of the story? Not quite.

"I'm going to tryout for the track team this winter as a hurdler," thinks Bob. "It should be interesting."

For Ferris State College's "Bob of all trades"...Interesting is probably just the beginning.

JV's snap losing streak

The Charlevoix Rayder JV football squad broke a four game losing streak here Thursday night with a 27-0 whitewash of Rogers City.

The Rayders got on the scoreboard in a hurry when Jeff Drury and Mike Zednicek collaborated on a 83 yard touchdown pass. Moments later the two again teamed up this time on a 29 yard pass. After conversions by Joe Sladek, Charlevoix had a 14-0 lead.

In the second quarter Drury scored on a one yard run and Sladek converted to give the Rayders a 21-0 halftime bulge.

There was no scoring in the third quarter but Charlevoix tallied again in the fourth quarter on a three yard run by Dennis Morgridge. The kick failed.

Morgridge finished with 100 yards in 16 carries while the passing combination of Drury to Zednicek clicked for 180 yards. Scott Golovich had 18 tackles to pace the defense while Mike Loper and Dave Krueger also played strong games.

The Rayders, 2-4, play St. Ignace Thursday.

Five teams win in flag football

The Vikings, Rams and Cowboys claimed wins in the Senior League while the Dolphins and Chargers posted wins in the Junior League in flag football action last week.

The Vikings beat the Patriots, 8-7. The Vikings scored on a safety by Shannon Reynolds and a two yard pass from Chris Putman to Gery Engleman. The Patriots lone score came on a five yard run by Jeff Trimper. Bob Burke added the extra point.

The Rams beat the Raiders, 29-12. The Rams scored on a safety by Morgan, a 43 yard kick-off return by Criag Klooster, a two yard run by Gary Carson, a one yard run by Carson and a six yard run by Shannon Spencer. Klooster scored one extra point and passed to Kerridge and John Marsh for two others. For the Raiders, Matt Peterson scored on a 12 yard run and he passed 30 yards to Doug Frye.

The Cowboys stopped the Bucs, 21-13. The Cowboys scored on a safety by Jon Supernaw, a six yard run by Dave Batdorff, a one yard pass from Batdorff to Tim LaBlance and a 14 yard pass from Supernaw to LaBlance. Batdorff added an extra point. For the Bucs, Allen Bergman scored on a3 yard pass interception and Bob Wise had a 43 yard kick-off return. Keith Potter added an extra point.

The Dolphins beat the Lions, 18-8. The Dolphons tallied on a three yard run by Kevin Pearsall and one and 30 yard runs by Ned Britton. The Lions scored on a safety by Gary Frye and a three yord run by Scott Mitcheltree.

The Chargers beat the Steelers, 28-13. The Chargers scored on a safety by Matt Lingell, 14 and 10 yard passes from Jody Putman to Brian Wilmont and runs of two and 20 by Darren Batdorff. Jim Spencely added a point after. For the Steelers, Jim Kenney scored on a 20 yard run and Ken Carson had a 30 yard kick-off return. Dave McKenzie added a point after.

Cagers win two on road, improve record to 7-1

Coach Tom Felter took her girls basketball team on the road to Gaylord and Rogers City last week and returned both times with victories.

The girl's 7-1, had a scare in Gaylord, though.

After leading 12-4 in the first quarter and 29-21 at half, the Rayders found themselves tied 37-37 going into the final quarter. But Charlevoix held on and went on to bury the Blue Devils 57-44.

Sherrie Selissen had 19 points and Melinda Klooster 18 to lead the Rayders.

In Rogers City, Charlevoix had it a little easier, winning 62-38.

The Rayders jumped out to a 15-6 first quarter lead and maintained the nine point bulge at halftime, 27-18. In the third quarter Charlevoix broke the game open by outscoring the Hurons 16-4.

Klooster had 28 points while Selissen and Mel Kerridge chipped in with 10 apiece.

The JV squad lost both road encounters, succumbing to Gaylord, 60-36, and Rogers City, 39-33.

Harriers win Soo Invitational, take second in Petoskey

Jeff Drenth took second place and Mark Russell third Saturday in a cross country invitational at Petoskey.

Drenth finished with a time of 15:54, which was 15 seconds behind leader Robert Love of Rogers City in Class C-D competition among junior and senior runners. Russell finished with a time of 16:01.

Clay Patrie took 18th with a time of 17:15 and Brian Thompson finished 19th at 17:17. The first 20 runners won medals.

Charlevoix was second in the invitational to Rogers City.

In the freshman and sophemore competition, the Rayders took first place thanks to the fine running of Jay Swartwout, Jeff Landon, Tom Landon and Jim Duke. Swartwout won the race with a time of 16:23. Jeff Landon was second at 16:34, Tim Landon was 14th at 17:16 and Duke was 17th at 17:32.

The Rayders won the Soo Invitational Wednesday as Drenth took a first place in the Class C-D competition. Drenth had a time of 16:29 followed by teammate Mark Russell. Swartwout finished 10th, Jeff Landon came in 17th, Patrie was 18th, Brian Thompson was 21st and Jim Landon was 22nd.

PUBLIC NOTICE
Michigan Water Resources Commission
Stevens T. Mason Building
Lansing, Michigan 48909
517-373-8088
Date: October 13, 1978
Permit Number: MI0001431

NOTICE: Consumers Power Company, Big Rock Plant presently has a valid National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (Public Law 92-500) Permit, issued September 12, 1975, to discharge cooling waters, process wastewater and treated sanitary sewer from its facility located at Charlevoix, Michigan.

The applicant is engaged in the manufacture of electric power. The company discharges its effluent to Lake Michigan and the groundwaters.

It is hereby noticed that the following modifications or provisions of said permit are proposed: The permittee has demonstrated to the Michigan Water Resources Commission that higher concentrations of chlorine are acceptable. Accordingly, the total residual chlorine limitations have been revised to 0.2 mg/l average and 0.3 mg/l maximum. The limitations and monitoring conditions are being modified to be consistent with the discharges resulting from the construction of treatment facilities necessary to meet the final limitations of the permit.

On the basis of preliminary staff review and application of applicable standards and regulations, the Michigan Water Resources Commission proposes to issue a revised permit for the discharge subject to certain effluent limitations and special conditions. The permit expiration date is August 21, 1980.

The proposed determination to revise an NPDES Permit is tentative. Persons wishing to comment upon, or object to, the proposed permit modifications are invited to submit the same in writing to:

Engineering & Technical Services Section
Water Quality Division
Dept. of Natural Resources
Box 30028
Lansing, Michigan 48909

The name of the permittee and permit number should appear next to the above address on the envelope and the first page of any submitted comments. All comments received within thirty (30) days of the date of issuance of this public notice will be considered in the formulation of the final determinations. If no written objections are received, the Michigan Water Resources Commission will issue its final determinations no later than sixty (60) days following the date of this notice.

The application, issued permit and proposed revisions, and other information, are on file and may be inspected at the Water Quality Division offices, 8th Floor, Stevens T. Mason Building, Lansing, Michigan and at the District Office located at P.O. Box 128, 8717 N. Roscommon Road, Roscommon, Michigan (616 275-5151) at any time between 9:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Copies of the Public Notice and corresponding Fact Sheet summarizing application information and proposed permit conditions are available at no charge. Copies of all other information are available at a cost of $.20 per page.

Please bring the foregoing to the attention of persons whom you know would be interested in this matter.

CATHY LIOTTA, secretary of Welcome Wagon, presents a check for $846 to Judy LaFave, chairwoman for the local Cystic Fibrosis drive. Welcome wagon sponsored the drive. The two women thanked everyone who contributed.

IN soccer action this week, Leutheuser's beat Boyne City 4-0 as Jim Ciuk scored three goals and Jason Brindel one, but then lost to Petoskey 4-3. Ciuk had two goals and Brindel one in that game. Meanwhile, Artvark Studio beat Gaskin's 4-1. Mike Steele, Linda Ciuk, Matt Dixon and Tim Solmonson scored for Artvark while Charlie Steele tallied for Gaskin's.

County board appointment illegal

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week appointed one of its members, John Kujowski of Boyne City to the Charlevoix County Road Commission.

Now it has been determined that the appointment was illegal and Kujawski will not be eligible for appointment unless he first resigns from the board of commissioners. State law prohibits a person from serving on both commissions at the same time.

Kujawski told the Courier this week that he intends to resign from the board of commissioners and will again seek the appointment to the road commission.

Clyde Cunningham, chairman of the county board of commissioners explained that the board would have to rescind the motion of appointment and have another run-off election for the appointment.

Candidates nominated for the road commission job, besides Kujawski, were William Sparks, Sr. of Boyne Falls and William Korthase, Jr., of Boyne City, whose six-year term on the road commission expires Dec. 31.

The appointment was made after a secret ballot gave Kujawski 10 votes, Sparks five votes, and Korthase no votes.

Ballenger to be guest

Shirley Roloff, Charlevoix County chairperson for Milliken for Michigan, has announced a dutch treat breakfast in the Charlevoixan Room of Leutheuser's restaurant Thursday morning, Oct. 19 at 9 o'clock.

Guest speaker will be William S. Ballenger, director of the Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulation.

Ballenger was a Michigan State Representative from 1969 to 1970, when he was elected to the State Senate, where he served until 1974. He is now traveling throughout Michigan in behalf of Milliken's campaign.

Everyone in the area is invited to attend the meeting.

Frosh shoutout

Wanted: Points

Contact: Charlevoix freshman football coach Hal Evans.

For the second straight week, the Charlevoix freshman football squad was blanked. This time Gaylord turned the trick, 14-0.

Gaylord scored a safety in the first quarter, and then had a touchdown pass for four yards in the second quarter and a four yard run in the fourth quarter.

Jim Buchanan was Charlevoix's top offensive player while Dave Buday, Jim Crinnion and Lee Sanford played well on defense.

Obits

Anne Harsha

Funeral services for Miss Anne M. Harsha, 65, of Birmingham and Charlevoix, were held at the Winchester Funeral Home Monday, Oct. 16. The Rev. Raymond Griffin of the First Congregational Church officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

Miss Harsha died Thursday at Little Traverse Hospital where she had been a patient for 10 days. She had been hospitalized most of the time since coming to Charlevoix from Birmingham in June.

Miss Harsha was born in Detroit Feb. 19, 1913, and had always resided in the Detroit area, spending her summers at Boulder Park where the family owned a cottage. She was a graduate of the University of Michigan. In recent years she had lived in Birmingham.

She has no immediate survivors.

FAITH REVEALS THE GOOD THINGS ABOUT OUR YOUTH

Our most unfairly maligned age group is the one consisting of older children and teenagers. Because of the spectacular, headline-making antics of a very small minority, our young people are routinely suspected of everything from noise, insolent behavior and drug addiction to school vandalism and a willingness to knock an elderly woman to the ground for the few dollars in her handbag. In truth, the vast majority of our youth are friendly, respectful, enthusiastic, law-abiding, hardworking students; intent only on learning to make their way in the world and perhaps improving it in the process. If your training and influence have been reinforced by family attendance at the Church of your choice, then YOUR children undoubtedly belong to this praiseworthy majority.

...Sam Straw

By PEG OHLE

Most older people remember fondly some incident in their early lives that they like to recall to their families and friends.

Sam Straw tells about an accomplishment that brought great satisfaction to himself and changed the lives of his neighbors.

Sam is an old-time Marion Township resident who now makes his home at Grandvue Medical Care Facility. He beams when he tells the story:

"I'm the last man living who brought the telephone to Marion Township," he begins.

"I practically crawled on my hands and knees all over the township soliciting customers for the telephone company. I worked four different half days and got almost everyone in the township to sign up."

Continuing proudly, he recalls:

"Then I took the list to A.J. Bolhuis, who was township supervisor. He was so tickled that he sent me back to get $5 from everyone who signed up, or what they could afford to pay. Of course, some couldn't pay anything.

"One neighbor of mine didn't believe in telephones. He told me, 'No g– d— woman of mine is going to be standing at the telephone all day when she should be working.'

"But he used my telephone all the time."

When the day came to turn the dirt for the first telephone pole in Marion Township, who wielded the shovel? Sam Straw, of course.

"And the poles went all the way down the Marion Center Road," he adds.

For those of us who take modern conveniences such as the telephone for granted, it is sometimes good to listen to people like Sam Straw and to try to visualize what life was like in the early days of our north country.

Sam was born 91 years ago in what he calls "Section 3 of Marion Township, on the border of Norwood Township".

"I drove an army musket into the ground to mark the dividing line," he told us, perhaps trying to elicit a look of disbelief.

Sam's proudest possession is a picture of the old homestead which hungs in his room. It shows Sam sitting in a high chair in front of the house surrounded by his parents and older brothers and sisters, a horse, and "a yellow canary in a cage in the window".

"My mother loved that canary," he recalls wistfully.

The elder Straws came to the area from England, father William from Lincoln, and mother Rosena (Kirk) from Chesterfield.

Later in life Sam moved a little farther east in Marion Township to the Lake 26 area, where he could see "five lakes and none of them connecting." He spent most of his life farming, but in 1906 and 1907 he also worked at the sugar beet factory in Charlevoix.

"I grew beets at the same time, too," Sam remembers, "and they were all planted by hand."

About that time, Sam joined the Modern Woodmen of America, an organization of which he is proud to have been an early member.

When World War I started, Sam was the fifth young man in Marion Township to be called into service, but the government decided he could serve best by staying at home and raising crops to help feed the country.

"And I was glad to do it. I stayed with it," he proudly says about this time in his life.

In 1924, Sam married Marie Williams, who died several years ago. They had three children: Bob, who was killed in a snowmobile accident in 1971; Dick, who now lives in Sparks, Nev., and Bessie Van Dorn, who lives in Boyne City. Bob's widow, Betty, lives in Hayes Township.

Besides this generation, Sam has several grandchildren and great grandchildren to think about. He has been at Grandvue about 14 months now and thoroughly enjoys his visitors. Those who don't believe a 91-year-old can remember things are surprised to hear him recite and sing a ditty he learned at his mother's knee many, many years ago. And he knows his social security number, too.

There wasn't a single Grandvue employee around when Sam volunteered, "Grandvue is a wonderful place. It's so darned clean you could eat off the floor. It's almost painful."

Briefly

Ex-editor makes news

Former Charlevoix Courier editor Paula Holmes not only writes news – as Gov. William Milliken's press secretary – she also makes news.

According to the Grand Rapids Press, the governor and members of his staff were en route to a dinner speech in Holland last week when they noticed a car on the shoulder of the road that had flipped on its side.

The governor's entourage stopped to help.

Although dazed and bruised, Cynthia VanAllsburg, a 27-year-old teacher, was in otherwise good condition after rolling her car over, apparently trying to avoid an animal that had darted in front of her car.

Two state police troopers who were accompanying the governor checked Ms. VanAllsburg for injuries and radioed for local authorities while Paula and the governor scurried about collecting the teacher's papers that had gotten loose.

Afterwards, Ms. VanAllsburg said despite the good samaritan act she had intended to vote for Milliken anyway.

Bus funds to end

Funding for the two buses now being operated by the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging will come to an end next year.

The buses, used for transporting senior citizens and handicapped people throughout the area, were acquired and operated through funds provided under the Older Americans Act. Funding for one bus will expire May 31, 1979, and for the other one on Sept. 30, 1979.

County Commissioner Martin Paul, who represents the county governing body on the Commission on Aging, presented a resolution to them last week requesting that they immediately seek funds for a public transportation system under the newly-passed state transportation reform bill.

The resolution further requests that once the system is in operation, "every effort be made to create a Tri-County Transportation Authority with the Emmet County and Antrim County systems."

Joy honored

Dr. Dennis M. Joy of Charlevoix has been named a Fellow of the American Academy of Family Physicians.

The degree of Fellowship may be attained in either of two ways: successful completion of 600 or more hours of accredited continuing medical study, or achievement of diplomate status in the specialty of family practice as a result of passing a certifying examination administered by the American Board of Family Practice.

Fellowship entitles the conferee to use the title "Fellow of the American Academy of Family Physicians," or "FAAFP." The degree was conferred Sept. 26 upon more than 800 members of the academy in conjunction with the AAFP's annual convention and scientific assembly in San Francisco, Cal. Ceremonies were held in Masonic Auditorium Convention Center before some 2,500 persons. Fellowship candidates wore academic robes and mortarboard caps. They were recognized according to state chapter groups and the oath of fellowship was recited en masse.

The academy, comprising more than 42,000 members, pioneered among national medical groups in requiring members to take continuing study, a minimum of 150 accredited hours every three years. The AAFP, headquartered in Kansas City, is the largest of medicine's specialty groups.

Party, bake sale

The Grandvue Medical Care Facility Auxiliary will host its annual fall games party and bake sale at the facility from 1 until 4 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 26 according to Mrs. Joanna Gunn, president of the auxiliary.

Members are asked to bring items for door prizes, goodies for the bake sale and cookies for refreshments in addition to friends to participate in the games party.

Proceeds will be used to underwrite the cost of equipment and other needs for the patients at the facility.

Tickets are priced at $1.00 each.

Road ceremony

The Greater Kalkaska Area Chamber of Commerce says on Friday, Oct. 20, at 11 a.m. a ribbon cutting ceremony to open the road that runs through the center of Kalkaska will be held.

Rep. Relph Ostling, John Woodford and Carl Seufert of the State Highway Dept. will be there to officiate the festivities. There will be free Cokes for everyone.

Rabies shots

Local dog owners will have a chance to have their animals inoculated for rabies at clinics to be held during early December.

Under the supervision of the Cooperative Extension Service, shots will be given on Saturday, Dec. 2, at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department garage from 2 until 4 p.m., and at the East Jordan city garage from 10 a.m. until noon the same day. Shots will also be available at the Charlevoix County Road Commission garage in Boyne City on Saturday, Dec. 9, from 10 a.m. until noon.

A nominal fee is charged for the shots.

Office closed

The office of the Veteran's Counselor located in the Charlevoix County Building will be closed Tuesday and Thursday, Oct. 17 and 19, while the counselor, Ronald G. Gerr is on vacation.

The office will re-open at the usual hours the following week.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters have horseback outing

The Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Charlevoix, Inc. enjoyed an outing with their little brothers and sisters at a hot dog roast and horseback riding outing at Harbor Springs recently.

The affair was hosted by June and John Mittler of the Sogonosh Stables. They donated horses, guides, and provided a campfire for all to enjoy.

The wooded trails and colorful view was enjoyed by all, officials said. After the ride marshmallows and hotdogs were roasted over a roaring fire. Sandwiches donated by the Northwest Shrine Club were also provided to the hungry group.

All Big Brothers/Big Sisters, little brothers and sisters matched or on the waiting list, board members, and prospective Big Brothers and Sisters were invited. There were 9 adults and 24 children in attendance.

There is still a dire need for Big Brothers and Big Sisters for nearly 50 little children on tho waiting list. If you are interested, please call or contact Mrs. Nancy Wood, 547-6314.

Win-Some Retreat Nov. 3-4

Final plans are now being made for the seventh annual womens retreat at Boyne Mountain Lodge on Nov. 3-4.

Joyce Landorf of Hacienda Heights, Ca. who is a highly successful author with 12 books to her credit; a gifted singer whose recording of "It's Great to Be Alive" won a special merit award from Billboard magazine; wife and mother who had her own radio show for seven years, and a popular public speaker will be the featured speaker at the seventh Annual Win-Some Women's Retreat.

Joyce is a favorite speaker at women's retreats across the country since she possesses a unique sense of humor and a dynamic ability to zero in on fresh spiritual truths. She also trained at the prestigious Pasadena Playhouse, graduating first in her class; took voice lessons from Lilian Rosedale Goodman, Frank Sinatra's vocal coach, and for seven years she had her own radio show, "Here's Joyce," talking to women about the problems that loom so large in a woman's life.

As well as speaking to people, Joyce also began to write for them. Her first book, "Let's Have a Banquet", was a practical, informative guide to arranging church functions, booking speakers, catering, etc. Perhaps her best-loved book to date is "The Richest Lady In Town". Some of her other books are "To Lib or Not to Lib"...the questions facing today's Christian women. "Tough and Tender"...men's problems with their image and their nature, and what women really need from them, and many more, including the moving and inspiring "Morning Song," one of the most widely quoted books on death, dying and the acceptance of grief, drawn from Joyce's own experiences during the loss of her deeply-loved mother, and her latest, a biblical novel of the life of Martha, "I Came to Love You Late."

Six seminar sessions are being offered to meet the needs of Christian growth, with the opportunity to attend 4 of one's own choice. Frank and Rachael Fromme, from Frankenmuth will be sharing on "God's Answer to Family Living". Marge Flora, from Bloomfield Hills and also Winning Women will be speaking on "Free to Be - Just Me". Rev. Jack and Colette Paget, of Petoskey, will be sharing from their own personal experiences a seminar on "God's Answer to Death and Dying". Father Eugene Strain, of Rochester, will be giving some ideas about developing a closer relationship to God with his seminar on "Drawing Closer to God - Meditation Based on the Gospels". Sherill Buitendorp, of Petoskey, will be dealing with the timely topic of "God's Answer to Depression". An area of motherly concern will be presented by Elise Arndt, of Troy, "Creative Devotions for Mothers and Children."

Registration will begin Friday morning at 11 a.m. in the lobby of the convention center. Room reservations must be in on or before Oct. 24, to Win-Some Women, Box 503, Petoskey, Michigan 49770. More information and registration forms may be obtained by contacting your local area coordinator Dorothy Custer or they may be picked up at Oleson's in Charlevoix. Those who are planning to attend should make your reservations immediately. Due to increased number of retreat participants, telephone reservations cannot be accepted.

Budget over $2 million

By PEG OHLE

The 1979 proposed budget for Charlevoix County amounts to $2,168,725, the first time the county budget has topped the $2 million figure.

A public hearing on the budget is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 25, at 1:30 p.m. in the Commissioner's Room of the County Building Annex.

The total budget is up $327,302, or 17.7 percent, over last year. However, because Public Program (CETA) funds have increased $129,615, expenditures from the General Fund will increase only 11.9 percent.

The department figures listed below are gross total figures, which means they include monies to be spent from the General Fund as well as any Public Program monies allocated to the department.

United Way campaign on

This week campaign workers for United Way of Charlevoix will embark on the 1978 fall campaign.

Letters and pledge cards have been mailed to several businesses, industries and professional institutions in the city and outlying area. Workers will begin to pick up pledge cards this week.

Afterwards, a door-to-door canvas is planned in an effort to reach people who have not been contacted by a United Way representative.

This year's goal for United Way of Charlevoix is $18,000. According to Jack Grubaugh, of the local United Way chapter, over $2,000 has already been received from summer residents.

Money collected during the United Way drive will be dispersed to 12 local agencies: Salvation Army, Charlevoix Recreation Department, Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood, DAC Counseling Center, American Red Cross, Crooked Tree (Girl Scouts), Scenic Trails (Boy Scouts), Bergmann Center, Camp Daggett, Big Brothers Big Sisters, Area Mental Health Clinic and the United Way of Michigan.

The agencies appeared before the United Way Board of Directors earlier this year and presented budget requests. The board then established the goal and announced the following appropriations based on reaching that goal:

Charlevoix Recreation Department	$ 500
Bergmann Center	$2,000
Crooked Tree	$2,000
DAC Counseling Center	$1,000
Scenic Trails	$1,700
Salvation Army	$1,600
American Red Cross	$1,450
Camp Daggett	$1,000
Big Brothers Big Sisters	$1,600
United Way of Michigan	$2,500
Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood	$1,500
Area Mental Health Clinic	$1,000

In addition, $150 has been put aside for campaign expenses.

Bob White

Bob White to leave WVOY radio

When Bob White concludes his broadcast of the Charlevoix Rayder-Petoskey Northmen football contest on Nov. 3, he will also be concluding his four year career at radio station WVOY.

White is purchasing a 25 percent share of radio station WIUC in Winchester, Ind. Winchester is 15 miles east of Muncie, which is the home of Ball State University.

White will be one of four owners of the radio station. The FCC (Federal Communications Commission) is in the process of examining the change in ownership and White expects FCC approval by early 1979. White will be working with a former WVOY cohort in Winchester, John Carlisle. Carlisle, too, is purchasing part of the station.

In fact, it was Carlisle who asked White if he would be interested in purchasing part of WIUC.

"John called me on a Friday and asked if I would be interested," White said. "He told me to think about it over the weekend and to give him an answer on Monday.

"This whole thing came out of the cold blue."

White's answer was "Yes."

"It was a tough decision in the sense that I would have to leave the area and that I would have to leave something I helped build (WVOY)," White explained. "But, by the same token, it was an easy decision because I had the opportunity to purchase part of the station and be responsible for putting it together."

Prior to taking over WIUC, White will study the market area and work on a format to be implemented after the FCC approves the change in ownership.

WIUC reaches nearly 300,000 people in Indiana and Ohio.

White will assume the duties of station manager, and although most of his work will be in administration, he will do some on-the-air broadcasting his first year.

At WVOY, White was news director and he was also involved in sales. Along with Terry Edger and Tim Moore, White helped put WVOY together in 1974. Edger and Moore are no longer with the station.

White was graduated from Central Michigan University where he majored in journalism and speech. He has worked at radio stations in Louisville, Ken., Nashville, Tenn., and in Midland. He also was with the American Forces Television Network in Korea.

Forensic team in regionals

The Charlevoix High School One-Act (play) team, coached by Connie Ford, qualified for regional competition at Saginaw Valley Community College Saturday after placing second in district competition last weekend.

Sterling-Standish placed first with 274 points in competition held Saturday at Mid-Michigan Community College at Harrison with Charlevoix as the host team. Charlevoix and Mt. Pleasant then tied for second place with 256 points. Pinconning and Gaylord also competed.

Mrs. Ford said a tie is almost unheard of in forensic circles. The tie continued after efforts were made to break it with each receiving 109 points in ranking. As a result, all three teams will advance to regional competition.

Charlevoix has chosen as its presentation an act from Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew", a period play complete with costumes, music and scenery of the era.

Receiving Excellence Awards for acting were Geoff Nelson for his portrayal of Petruchio; Pam Sutherland as Katharina; Chris Henkel as Baptista the father, and Shari Jones as Bianca, Katharina's sister.

John Grooters, as Lucentio, received a Superior Award for acting as did the cast and crew for their efforts in period costume design.

Others filling cast positions were Dori Olach, Richard Hodgson, Sue Miller and Carla Sizemore.

Members of the crew who also doubled as servants and peasants in the crowd scenes were Beth Ford, Martha Staley, Sheri Cook, Maria Martin, Mary Egler, Ron Archey, Dave Watson, Chris Peterson and Tami Noirot.

Stage crew manager who doubled in the role of a peasant was Jack Carlson; lights, Dave Morgridge; make-up, Karen Britton, Hope Malpeli and Paula Moats and musicians, Janeen Boal, Carolyn Loper and Wendi Wright.

Kristy Mathews was assistant tournament manager. Geoff Nelsan composed and arranged the period background music for the production.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by Jack & Leah Urben, Reg. Pharmacists

Poliomyelitis affects people of all ages, but children from one to sixteen are more likely to develop it than adults. Unfortunately, older children and young adults appear to become infected more frequently now than formerly. It appears that about half the cases cause paralysis. Historically, polio is most prevalent during the summer months. Even though it is now fall, parents should consult their physicians and get his advice as to exactly when their children should be immunized against this disease, it may cause lesions in the nervous system, and bulbar poliomyelitis attacks the brain itself.

We can handle prescriptions for people of all ages because of our complete stock of drugs. The next time your doctor gives you one bring it to us at CROWN DRUG CENTER Captain's Corner Shopping Center, 547-4001. 24 hour emergency phone 547-4908. We also handle a large selection of cosmetics including Revlon, Azzira, Nina Ricci, Cover Girl and Bonnie Bell. Hours: 9 a.m. - 9 p.m. Mon. thru Sat., 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Sun.

ASK OUR PHARMACISTS HOW GENERIC DRUGS CAN SAVE YOU MONEY ON YOUR PRESCRIPTIONS. IF YOU'RE HAVING A PARTY OR JUST A GET TOGETHER, THINK OF CROWN DRUG FOR YOUR COLD BEER AND POP.

Tips on making Halloween costumes

By MARLENE CASZATT
EXTENSION HOME ECONOMIST
ANTRIM CHARLEVOIX
KALKASKA

My children have reminded me it is time for Ghosts, Goblins, and the Great Pumpkin again. In my family it also means "mommie can you make me a costume for Halloween?" This may mean burning the midnight oil a couple nights but when I see their faces and the fun they have it is worth it. Besides, I think few of us can deny that joining in the Halloween fun doesn't take us back to the fun we had with the Ghosts and Goblins of our own childhood.

We have to be careful that this Halloween fun doesn't turn into disaster. The combination of flimsy costumes, open roasting fires, and jack-o-lantern candles can mean trouble with smoke and flames. What can we do to safeguard our children?

If you buy costumes for your children be sure to check the label to see if the costumes are flame retardant. If they are not you can make a flame retardant solution yourself.

If the costume you buy doesn't have a label which indicates it has been treated, or if you are making the costume, be sure to choose cotton or rayon fabrics. Synthetic fabrics such as nylon, acrylics, acetate, and polyester can't be treated.

The chemicals for flame-retardant solutions are available in most drug stores and supermarkets. For inexpensive cotton fabrics make the following solution: dissolve three ounces of boric acid in a small amount of hot water making a paste-like mixture; add this mixture to two quarts hot water mixed with seven ounces of borax; stir until the solution is clear; if the solution jells or clouds, just warm it up.

For rayon or more expensive, easycare cottons, use a solution of 12 ounces of diammonium phosphate and 2 quarts of water. Mix the chemical with the water until the solution is clear.

Solutions can be applied by dipping, spraying, or sprinkling the costume. The fabric must be thoroughly dampened with the solution for it to be effective. When the costume is almost dry, iron it with a moderately hot iron. The flame-retardant solution should be applied again if the costume is washed or exposed to rain.

It is important to keep in mind that a flame-retardant treatment does not make a costume fireproof. It retards the flames and prevents the garment from bursting into flames. The fabric will still char and glow. Only fabrics made of asbestos or glass are fireproof.

A few precautions such as flame-retardant costumes will help assure our children of fond memories when they are planning for the characters of Halloween with their children.

Parents: Be alerted to dangers of trick-or-treating

With Halloween fast approaching, the Munson Medical Center Poison Information Service is alerting parents to the dangers of trick-or-treating.

They warn that sharp objects such as razor blades, pins and needles imbedded in apples, candy laced with drugs, poisons that appear sugar-coated, and other deadly treats, could be handed out by mentally unbalanced people who want to make Halloween more than just a fun event.

Here are their suggestions for making Halloween fun and safe.

1. Safe goodies for trick-or-treaters are pre-wrapped candy, sugarless gum, pennies and or small toys with no detachable parts or sharp edges.

2. Feed the children before they set out in order to discourage nibbling the goodies along the way. Insist they bring them home to show you first. All candy not in the original wrapper should be thrown out. Examine all food carefully to make sure there are no holes or that it has not been rewrapped because this may indicate that it has been poisoned. All fruit, from friends or not, should be cut in half to check for foreign objects. No homemade foods should be eaten unless it is from good friends.

3. An adult or teenager should accompany the children as they go door to door trick-or-treating.

4. Stay in your own neighborhood.

5. Dress the children in brightly colored costumes and dress them warmly since the evenings will be cooling off sooner. Have them go in daylight hours or carry a flashlight.

As always, staff will be on duty at the Munson Medical Center emergency poison center to give advice in the event of a suspected poisoning.

Masks can be a hazard, optometrist warns

Halloween masks can be a hazard, warns the Michigan Optometric Association.

According to Dr. James M. Flynn, president of the organization, masks can slip out of place or have such small eye holes that they block a child's view of approaching cars, objects on the ground, steps, curbs and holes in lawns or streets.

"A safe alternative to masks is to use non-allergic makeup to disguise your child for Halloween fun," Dr. Flynn said. He added that the makeup should be applied by an adult to avoid accidents with makeup applicators.

The Westland optometrist also pointed out that some simple costume decorating tricks can help protect children from accidential injury by making them safely visible to drivers.

"Adding retro-reflective material to a costume is the easiest and best way to increase its visibility to safe levels," Dr. Flynn said. According to optometric studies, the material makes pedestrians safely visible to drivers traveling even at the excessive speeds of 70 and 80 m.p.h.

The retro-reflective material can be purchased in iron-on, sew-on and stick-on varieties in most hardware and department stores. It should be applied to the front, sides and back of the costume, Dr. Flynn said.

The optometrist also reminded parents to have their child's eyes examined regularly. "Poor vision can be a handicap, not only at Halloween but throughout the year," Dr. Flynn said.

County Commission

	OSCAR WARD DEMOCRAT A member of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners for four years. Second ward resident. Lives on W. Lincoln. 	MARIANNE THOMURE REPUBLICAN Lost to Ward by just a handful of votes in last election. Second Ward resident who lives on Norwood Road.
Why are you seeking a position on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners?	I am currently a member of the board and have been a member for nearly four years. I feel experienced now somewhat and with the experience gained from further service would hope to attain full seasoned status. Seriously, I have attempted to make a contribution in protecting the public interest and would welcome a bit more help.	I am running for the office of county commissioner because I am concerned with the lack of communication currently existing in Charlevoix's second precinct.
What would you hope to accomplish (goals) as a commissioner?	I hope to maintain a strong position in trying to retain a healthy balance in our community of diversified interests. We have a fairly well balanced economy in our small community which we can maintain by cooperation in the field of environmental concerns, of course, this demands alert attentiveness by our people, but we can be a bit choosy in the type of industry that will fit into the area.	My main goal is to COMMUNICATE with the people I represent. Ask their opinions on any of the many issues facing us today. I plan to reach these goals by being always willing to listen and carefully consider all points of view available to me. I feel there is not enough accountability by the people in public office. It is time that the people have some one to answer to. I know I will have plenty of time to spend with any of my constituants. I feel that I am more qualified for the position than my opponent because I am willing to do so. Today we are faced with too many important decisions to make, not to communicate, and communicate well to the people.
A master plan for the Charlevoix Airport has been presented to the Charlevoix County Planning Commission. What are your thoughts on the airport? Should the Charlevoix Airport become a countywide airport?	Well, considering several factors, really about all we need is an extension on our present surfaced runway to 5,000 feet and perhaps an instrument approach system possibly in the future, but this latter item would require further input from the flying fraternity. The commercial airports at Pellston and Traverse City were designed to serve a vast region. They have accomplished their goal and will continue to serve our area in my estimation. We presently have at least six airports - both public and private - within the county that serve their communities - so I really see no need for a county airport. With some minor improvements our local airport could become one of the better facilities in the midwest in its size range. It does serve the county seat area of our county but considering its location within the city and the extreme western edge of the county it will most likely remain a local airport.	Too many tax dollars will be needed, at a time when the taxpayers are asking for a halt in government spending. The terminal appears adequate to me and I would rather see the existing runways improved at this time if required. There really is not much room for expansion at the airport in its present location, and I am not sure that Charlevoix County will benefit economically with an expanded airport, such as the one proposed. Traverse City or Pellston can both be reached in a relatively short time, for airplanes requiring more elaborate runways.
What are your thoughts on the Headlee Amendment and the Tisch Amendment? How do you think they would affect Charlevoix County?	County revenues for the next year should be adequate regardless if both amendments should win approval. The Headlee Amendment would put a ceiling on expenditures which are already too high but wouldn't actually change local government much from the present status of things. The Tisch Amendment would definitely cause some adjustments after one year. Take notice there is no limit in either proposal on federal aid. The present federal policies of funding local government with money which is printed anew to meet current, contingencies is causing our present inflation so these proposals could fuel the fires of inflation if the federal government attempta to fill the gaps caused by referendum cutbacks. The three prime proposals on government financing currently on the ballot should cause more concern than our own personal pocketbalks will be affected. There has to be desperation in the air when our citizens take law making into their own hands through the referendum process. This tragic state of affairs should remind one that more than a few elected legislators have been bought by the politically active, sophisticated, indoctrinated, taught everything except the belief in the dignity of human toil.	I feel taxes are not going to be lowered, but simply shifted. The local units of governments will be the losers, not Lansing or Washington. If more funding has to come from the states, it will bring with it, more state control over our lives.
The budget for Charlevoix County is near $2 million. Do you think the county is big enough to warrant a manager comptroller?	Hardly. One of the commissioners has been trying to run the county for 10 years. He told me some time ago that there was just too many things about the county for one man to keep account of. I believed him the. I still do on this one observation.	Many counties are now going to this system because county commissioners do not have time needed to run a business as large as Charlevoix County. I do not feel that I am qualified to say if Charlevoix County should go in this direction until I get a chance to see how the board functions.

Bob Clock

Home of the free?

I have a borrel of sympathy for David Osterberg of Mount Vernon, Iowa, who has found himself a victim of the growing cancer of regulation and control that is sweeping America.

United Press International detailed David's problem in a picture story which it distributed to the nation's newspapers last week. It seems that David has chosen to live in a nine by twelve foot shack which formerly served as a chicken coop.

Like most chicken coops, David's digs do not have hot and cold running water. Furthermore the tiny building does not have a toilet and the Linn County Board of Health is up in arms over the two infractions of its health code.

Either David brings his chicken coop up to code, or he moves out. There's no two ways about it.

The photo dispatched by UPI shows David seated on a what appears to be a counter top inside his little house, which looks exactly like a hen house with its plain board walls. However this building obviously has a human tenant. A wood stove stands beside a makeshift, skirted was stand and the walls are festooned with pots and pans and a crosscut saw. A number of shelves are neatly lined with bottles and jars.

There is also a mirror above the wash stand where David probably shaves in the morning. Not a bad looking place really, if you don't mind roughing it. And David looks like a happy-go-lucky guy who probably enjoys the simple life, sort of a modern-day Henry David Thoreau.

But David has to install water lines and a sewage system or the Linn County Board of Health will kick him out.

All of which makes me utterly weary. I was brought up in that dear, dead bygone era when it was the birthright of every American to do as he damn well pleased. We used to talk about how lucky we were to have been born in the land of the free and the home of the brave where you didn't have to knuckle under to the czar of this or the commisar of that.

When it came to housing, you lived in what you could afford. Such creature comforts as hot and cold running water, indoor plumbing and even electricity were as uncommon then as they are common today.

But I can assure you that the good life – the really good life – has nothing to do with water pipes or whether you keep your fanny warm while answering a call of nature.

UPI didn't say where David gets his water He might have a pump in the yard or he could pick it up in plastic jugs from a nearby gas station. It really doesn't matter because I am sure he has solved that problem to his own satisfaction.

UPI was equally quiet as to David's sanitary facilities, but chances are pretty good he has an outdoor john somewhere on the premises, preferably with a moon on the door. Although such establishments sometimes rub the olfactory nerves the wrong way, there is no reason they should if a pail of wood ashes is kept on hand for daily application.

A local health officer once told me that a simple box toilet is one of the most effective and sanitary means of waste disposal ever invented by man, far superior to septic systems which introduce vast quantities of raw sewage into ground water through their drain fields.

The only drawbacks to box toilets is that they don't cost enough to construct and maintain, so they have gone the way of the pitcher pump in the backyard.

I don't know what the future holds for David Osterberg. Maybe somewhere in these vast United States he can find a scrap of land where a fellow can hole up in a chicken coop without being badgered by bureaucrats.

But I rather doubt it.

Tax limitation proposal on ballot

Charlevoix County residents will have a county proposal to vote on when they go to the polls Nov. 7.

It is the "Separote Tax Limitation" proposal, which asks, "Shall separote tax limitations be established for a period of four years (1979, 1980, 1981, 1982) or until altered by the voters of the County for the County of Charlevoix and the Townships and Schools Districts within the County, the aggregate of which shall not exceed 15.0 mills as follows:

"County of Charlevoix, 4.70 mills; School Districts (a School District located entirely within a City or charter Township shall receive in addition millage equal to the Townships), 9.10 mills; Intermediate School District, 0.20 mills; Townships, 1.00 mills; Total, 15.00 mills."

These are the same millage rates that were approved by county voters two years ago. They were recommended by the Charlevoix County Tax Limitation Committee earlier in the year. Members of that Committee are Anah Potter, County Treasurer; I. Lee Moerland, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the County Board of Commissioners; James Shepard, Superintendent of the Intermediate School District; Ardeth Wieland, school board representative of a 12-grade school system; Catherine Jessup, representing a municipality; William Ohle, representing citizens of the county; Robert Potter, representing the townships; and Jack Zoulek, representing the smallest K-12 school district.

Jim Fitzgerald

Blunting an attack

In a friendly saloon, I was introduced to a woman who became confused, and not so friendly.

"Are you the Fitzgerald running against Gov Milliken? You're a bad boy," she said. "You missed over 2,500 roll-call votes. I heard it on the radio."

I quickly denied being the candidate. "You have me mixed up with Bill Fitzgerald," I explained. "He doesn't have time to hang around saloons. He's busy campaigning. He has to find some guy with his brain growing outside his head, preferably in Gov Milliken's backyard."

"That's a gruesome thing to say and it's not funny," said my wife, who has a sensitive stomach and often borrows my TV throw-up pot when listening to political advertising.

"I'm sorry," I said, "but campaigning often becomes a gruesome business. When a candidate attacks his opponent, the opponent must blunt that attack. Sometimes, to be blunt about a blunt, it's necessary to be ghastly."

To make my point, I cited the issue brought up by the confused woman - roll call votes. It's true that Bill Fitzgerald compiled a lousy attendance record as a Democratic state senator, but Milliken hasn't jabbed him much about it lately.

That's because Fitz has an effective answer to his criticism. He tells Milliken to ask his fellow Republican and good buddy, Robert Griffin, about being absent at vote time. That's a neat blunt; not messy at all.

For a year, Griffin kept saying he wouldn't run for re-election as a U.S. senator. He said he felt tired and ineffective. During that lame-duck period, Griffin missed a mess of votes in the Senate.

It wasn't Geritol that changed Griffin's mind about running. It was Milliken. So it's not surprising that Milliken doesn't spend much time attacking Bill Fitzgerald's attendance record.

But Sen. Griffin still must blunt the attack being made on his attendance record by his opponent, Carl Levin. Early in the campaign, Levin's advertising said Griffin had "the worst attendance record in 1977 of any senator who didn't die in office."

This wasn't an easy attack to blunt. The plain implication was that there's no excuse for a U.S. senator to miss so many votes unless he is dying, as was the case with Sens. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and Lee Metcalf of Montana.

At first, it appeared the only way Griffin could effectively blunt this attack would be to die. Suicide can probably be termed the most gruesome blunt.

But, before it was too late, it was discovered that Levin was mistaken. There was 1 live senator who had a worse attendance record than Grifin in 1977. He is James Abourezk, a South Dakota Democrat. He missed 228 roll call votes, 12 more than Griffin.

So now, to blunt Levin's attack on his attendance record, all Griffin has to do is make sure Abourezk doesn't die in office, or at least not before the election.

Which is admittedly a rather macabre blunt, but not so gruesome as the blunt currently needed by Bill Firzgerald.

Fitz's campaign advertising has plainly implied that Milliken allowed Michigan citizens to eat poisoned food thus causing "birth defects...the brain developing on the outside of the head."

Milliken retorted that there is no proof of Fitz's "reckless" charges, and most scientists and editorials agree with him. Fitz's poison charges appear blunted.

Unless he can re-blunt by quickly producing someone with an outside brain and trace the cause to Milliken. This won't be easy.

After many years of exposure to campaign advertising, I'm about convinced that people with brains outside are nearly as rare as candidates with brains inside.

Anne Kelly

The liberated woman

Women's liberation is one thing I feel strongly about within reason and especially when threatened. When a friend implies that it is nice for me to be holding down a part time job because it's "good to get out of the house for a few hours," I have to laugh. There are lakes and woods and boots made for walking, and more often than not, that stimulation is worth more than $2.65 an hour. And I refuse to enjoy the coupon-clipping game which some PERSON has obviously contrived to keep housewives' hands busy. There are just so may little surface innuendoes lurking behind those roles a woman finds herself bound to, from marching for dimes to putting up with too-easily-run nylons. I have to admit that when a man takes me lightly with little thought as to my intellectual capabilities, the sisterhood within me rises up to become annoyed. After all, this mind is an important appendage which has been nurtured and developed for a good many years pre and post dusting and diapering.

On the other hand, I like men. There are many I feel comfortable with and these are all generally interesting, sensitive, non-gossipy, protective & blessed with a sense of humor. Some are even good looking and/or have good minds. The ultra-ultra women's libber strikes me as being bitter to the detrement of her aims. I have decided that while I am liberated intellectually and creatively, emotionally I am as submissive as the Total Woman. I need men, there's no doubt about it. But the need is for men who respect me. My husband will be very happy that I included this paragraph.

The theme song of the women of "The Women's Room" is played in strains of their problemistic search for identity. I want to get a handle on Marilyn French's logic. What were the premises? Where were conclusions drawn? I don't know. My mother still tells me I don't have the sense to wear boots out when it's raining, so who am I to say? But could it be she said this?

The liberated woman is free
A married woman is not really free
A married woman cannot be liberated.

Now I'm worried. All her characters are immersed in marital havoc during some point of their renewal which in this case is Harvard graduate school ten years ago. If it is true that a woman must unshackle herself from her vows in order to survive, then what am I doing here surviving? Cinderella may have died, but has teamwork and some semblance of lasting love really gone out of vogue?

Think about this one:

The liberated woman rises above the depression of aloneness
No character in this book rises above the depression of aloneness
No character in this book is liberated

I think that this is a novel which attempts to promote the concept of self through the back door of self-deception. Handling the reality of aloneness is a matter of survival; it is feeling good enough about ones self so as to know what is needed to stay afloat through life with some semblance of sanity and happiness.

The cast of characters of "the group" are an intense, if motley cross section of Cambridge university graduate life from 1968. In this sub-culture are to be found ex-suicidals, suburbanites, spouses, radicals, lesbians, intellectuals, artists and a few crazies. But the core personalities are Mira and Val around whom the others rotate in an orbit of purpose or confusion depending on the variables of the moment. While Mira is the thread by which the story of self is sewn, it is Val who is the needle, the philosopher. Val's entire life is spent in attempting to live by the creed she has carefully formulated. And while Mira is only a participant, I suppose she provides a maudlin audience for the script. I will always remember Mira, sipping brandy in an easy chair of a darkened front room, gazing out at the moon through the trees, reflecting, always reflecting.

Although private interpretation is always dangerous (as Biblical scholars discovered centuries ago) here is one by a women who has just wrenched her way through "The Women's Room." The liberated woman should not be so much an image, as the shedding of images, stereotypes and preconceived notions which both men and women have harbored about the female species for generations. I would like to think that Marilyn French would have her be, not the woman who dresses herself in cellophane for her husband's pleasure, but one who dresses herself in her own beautiful individuality while doing those things which by her very nature are fulfilling. Sillogistically speaking:

The liberated woman is free insofar as she feels good about herself.
I feel good about myself most of the time
I am a liberated woman most of the time.

Thanks, Marilyn. I needed that.

Longevity is rewarded

People applaud the weirdest things.

On talk shows, for example, any mention of any state will get a round of applause from people who have not necessarily lived there, but who have just heard of it.

Strict morality will bring people to their feet like a starlet who proclaims, "I refuse to appear nude in a movie," or "I'd like to see peace throughout the world."

But the thing that really brings down the house is the age of an old person. Longevity does not go unrewarded. A few weeks ago on the Phil Donahue Show I admitted to writing five books, giving birth to three children, being married 29 years, and being extremely kind to my mother. None of these amazing feats moved the audience.

However, when a young man in the back row stood up and asked, "How old are you?" and I responded, "I'm 51," I nearly got a standing ovation. Do you know what it feels like to see people on their feet, with tears of admiration in their eyes paying homage to a vintage year?

I always thought that was the kind of recognition reserved for a man who was a water boy in the Civil War and remembers passing a cup to Robert E. Lee.

Since when did 51 become a vintage year, for crying out loud? Where were they when I reached 40 and needed them? The year my eyes couldn't read a menu until it dropped on the floor. All the fillings dropped out of my teeth and had to be replaced. My kids began to spell in front of me. My body stopped manufacturing iron.

Ever since that appearance, I've been trying to figure it out. Were they applauding because (a) they thought I was older and were relieved to hear I had a few good years left; (b) they thought I was going down the other side of the mountain and looked pretty good for my declining years; (c) they conceded I was rather lucid and could still cross my legs at the ankle without help?

For all you people who clapped (and you all know who you are), let me set the record straight.

I was not in the lobby buying popcorn when Lincoln was shot.

I do not know the verse to the Beer Barrel Polka.

I do not remember Mark Twain when he had black hair.

I thought Boot Hill was a Cancellation Shoe Store.

Phil said they probably clapped because I was so honest and had no sensitivity about my age.

I thought he knew me better than that.

County Bank explains policy

Editor:

This letter is in response to the article appearing in Hotline two weeks ago wherein an unknown writer was complaining because a family member, who had no account relationship with this bank, was unable to cash a Credit Union Draft.

If the writer of that article would have checked, he or she would have found that even the Credit Union on whom the draft was drawn would not cash it unless they had an account relationship with the payee.

Contrary to the belief of some people, Credit Union Drafts are not certified funds and are often returned for non sufficient funds, account closed, payment stopped, and other reasons just as a personal bank check can be returned. These instruments are not considered "good funds" until they are actually paid by the bank they are drawn on.

The Credit Union Drafts are payable through the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York and it takes 14 days for the drafts to be returned. 14 days before we know if the draft is good or not. Even if we checked and are told the draft is good on the day it is presented to us, there is no guarantee that it will be good a week or two later when it reaches the paying bank. In that length of time the person who cashed the Draft could be far away and difficult to contact to retrieve our money.

We treat these drafts no differently than we treat a bank check that is drawn on an out of town bank. To cash these instruments promiscuously, as suggested by the writer to Hotline could result in substantial losses for the bank and would constitute a betrayal of the public trust which is placed upon us for the protection of our depositors' money and our shareholders' investment.

Group disagrees with Hotline caller

Editor:

We, the undersigned, are not in complete agreement with the anonymous information in the Courier Hotline of Oct. 17. We don't know how that one person could possibly know how we, each one, voted on the millage! No one was in the booth with us.

If the description of the school cafeteria is what that person saw, we wonder what day that was. True, there are king sized garbage bags full of milk cartons, paper and food scraps (in those open top garbage cans). Most the kids use them.

And we thank and appreciate the quick clean up Mike does for us. He is the grandson of one of our group, getting no extra pay or extra time to do it. It helps keep the floor clean longer, as we do not step on dropped food then. All in all the clean up wouldn't even half fill a garbage bag by itself.

We are thankful for the privilege of eating and meeting in so large, light and airy a room. For the privilege of the use of the piano for our music recreation, for the privilege of a place to put our storage unit, and other nice favors the school has done for us. Also for the cordiality of the cooks and students at the doors etc...

We are proud of our school and love the kids, and want to help them if we can. We, of course, like neatness but we remember we were kids too!

One in six work for government

Editor:

Attached is an article taken from "Electric Light & Power" (Sept. 1978). Please print.

"If anyone really needs convincing that government tax and spending restraints are long overdue, they might consider the comments of Congressman Guy Vander Jagt (R. Mi) at the recent 1978 Engineers Public Affairs Forum in Washington, D.C. Vander Jagt reported that one in every six Americans now works directly for some form of government, and that one in three is dependent on government – directly or indirectly – for survival. Moreover, he said, every penny spent by Americans for federal taxes this year alone will do nothing but pay the interest on the National Debt. In fact, he pointed out, if it weren't for the federal debt, two-thirds of American taxpayers would not have had to pay any taxes at all to the federal government in 1977. And finally, Vander Jagt declared that even if there are no new federal programs in the interim, and unless there are significant cutbacks in federal spending, the federal government will need one-half of the total Gross National Product for survival by 1985.

"And that is more than slightly terrifying!"

Bergmann Center goals outlined at meeting

Gary Miller from Bergmann Center in Charlevoix was the guest speaker at the recent meeting of the Auxitiary of the Grandvue Medical Care facility.

He explained the goals of the center, to teach the mentally and physically handicapped to become independent, to cope with everyday problems that the average person takes for granted and to be able to live outside the family home.

Sub-contracts from area industries together with tax dollars support Bergmann Center which presently has 23 clients from three northern Michigan counties.

Plans were completed for the games party and bake sale to be held at the facility Thursday under the sponsorship of the Auxiliary. Mrs. Violet Manglos of Boyne City is in charge of publicity; Mrs. Ide St. Lawrence, the games party, and Mrs. Phyllis Malpass and her committee, the bake sale.

Mrs. Shirley Schumacher reported on the recent M.A.H.A.A meeting held at Cadillac. The meeting included a tour of Mercy Hospital, one of five in the country built on the Priesen concept.

Mrs. Malpass presented a financial report which revealed, among other accounts, that the Dr. John Savory Memorial Scholarship Fund who offers scholarships to students going into a health-related field now had $529.50 in the account.

Mrs. C.D. Geiken of Charlevoix will present a film strip at the Nov. 9 meeting.

Mrs. Harriet Geary and Mrs. Lola Steinbrecher served refreshments at the recent meeting.

4-H club to meet

Charlevoix County 4-H members will be honored by friends, parents, and leaders at the annual 4-H Awards Banquet. The event will take place at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 28, at Whiting Park.

The evening will begin with a pot-luck dinner. Following dinner, county award pins will be presented to 4-H members who finished on top in their particular project areas. Several special awards will be presented to the 4-H members.

The banquet will also honor adult 4-H leaders who have completed 5, 10 or 15 years of leadership, and several "Friend of 4-H" certificates will be presented to area businesses who have supported 4-H the past year.

Door prizes, skits, and other entertainment will also be included in the program. This banquet is open to all 4-H leaders, members, and the members families.

A $325 skateboard?

By SARA GAY DAMMAN

"I always like to be first," Paul Osterberg said when asked why he spent $325 on a motorized skateboard.

"No one else in their right mind would spend that kind of money on a skateboard," Osterberg laughed.

"No one else in the area has one. It's a good publicity stunt," Osterberg admitted.

Osterberg unabashedly confessed that he was carrying one "demo" model to get people into his shop – Finn Sports.

Would he ride it. "Heck, no."

So, John Osterberg, his son and employee had to leave work once more to demonstrate motorized skateboarding in the downtown parking lot. It was a duty John did not seem to mind.

With a 1½ horsepower motor little effort is required to purr around flat areas and even up hills. Reputedly the skateboard machine can obtain 25 mph on the flat.

School opposes three tax proposals

By SARA GAY DAMMAN

Charlevoix Elementary School Parent Advisory Council heard the school's Business Manager Vincent Olach discuss the three tax cut proposals which will be on the November ballot, at their meeting Thursday night.

Olach was the guest speaker at the meeting during which members of PAC and Ralph Raymer, elementary school principal, discussed the ways in which the PAC could take a more active role in their children's education.

Before Olach spoke on the tax issues, PAC President Marilyn Friedly and the group discussed the role of "room mothers" – teachers helpers – in the elementary school.

Mrs. Friedly explained to the Courier, later, that the PAC, a small group at present, is meant to be an organization for "concerned parents who want to be involved in their children's education.

"We are not a social organization," she emphasized.

"We hope to serve as a communication link between the schools and parents," Mrs. Friedly continued.

"Room mothers" are a concept that is just being initiated in the elementary grades, the PAC president explained. The volunteers will try to help teachers with non-teaching, bothersome, duties, such as collecting money for projects, helping with projects, decorating for programs and so on.

A special room has been set aside at the school in which the room mothers may work on projects teachers request, without interrupting or distracting from regular classroom activities.

Mrs. Friedly said that since the program is just beginning it will be important for the mothers to work flexibly with the teachers, to develop the best method of using "room mothers."

The PAC agreed to hold their next meeting on Thursday Nov. 16 at 1 p.m., at the elementary school at which time Raymer will discuss the ungraded marking system, presently used by the school. He will also solicit suggestions from parents, seeking their opinions on what system of grading is the most helpful.

Olach then presented the three tax cut proposals – H, J and E, or popularly called "The Voucher System", the Tisch Amendment, and the Headlee Amendment.

Olach, speaking for the school and the board of education said he would try to explain each proposal as objectively as possible, although it was clear that the school board is not in favor of any of the proposals.

Olach said the Voucher System 'substitutes "vouchers" for property tax revenues for schools. Each school child would be issued a voucher which he would present to the school of his choice, private or public. Because property taxes could not be used to finance education, Olach said, new taxes would have to be raised.

Under Proposal H, schools would receive funds based on the number of vouchers – students – collected.

Olach said the school board was urging citizens to vote No on proposal H, because of the chaos that would be created by students going to whatever school they pleased; because taxes in other areas would have to be raised; because local control of the schools would be removed; and because a new bureaucracy in Lansing would have to be created to run the system.

Speaking on the Tisch Amendment, which would reduce property tax assessment from 50 percent of the state equalized value to 25 percent, cutting school budgets in half, Olach also urged a "No" vote in November.

Olach said that because the Tisch Amendment puts a ceiling on income taxes, those revenues could not make up the school's loss. He also pointed out that non-resident land holders, who make up a great deal of Charlevoix's property taxes – private individuals and corporations such as Medusa – would have their property taxes lowered and not have their income taxes raised to make up the difference.

Olach also said the Tisch Amendment's provisions would erode local control of the schools and seriously jeapordize the school's ability to fund itself.

The business manager said the school board feels Proposition E or the Headlee Amendment "is the least bad of the bad lot," but the board still urges a No vote in November.

He characterized the Headlee Amendment as causing about a 10 percent loss in revenues the first year, "which we could live with," he said. But he continued, the school board's major objection would be that programs in the school would always be in danger of being cut in order to meet newly mandated state programs, because of the limitations on funding.

"Basically none of these help our schools," Olach said, "The Tisch is regressive," he stated. The Headlee, because of limitations on funds and taxes could mean that new programs required by the state each year would force the dropping of important programs from the year before.

Raymer said he hoped people would consider that aspect of the economic picture before voting on the amendments which might cause many layoffs from the schools, and thus effect the local economy.

Gridders win third straight, tackle Boyne City Friday

The Charlevoix Rayders used a tough and relentless defense Friday as a springboard to a 14-0 Michigan-Huron Shores football victory over St. Ignace.

It was the second shutout of the year for the Rayders who had earlier turned the trick on Benzie Central, 34-0.

Charlevoix's win combined with Petoskey's loss to Gaylord leaves the Rayders and Northmen tied for third place in the conference with 3-2 records. Overall, the Rayders are 5-2.

St. Ignace, suffering through a dismal campaign, is still winless in conference play. The Saints are 0-5.

But handing the Saints their fifth conference loss was not that easy for the Rayders. The St. Ignace defense was almost as stingy as the Rayders as they gave ground grudgingly.

The Rayders did manage to light up the scoreboard twice. In the second quarter Mike Keller, filling in for the injured Bob Russell, slammed in from one yard out and then in the fourth quarter, with the game still in doubt – Keller scored again this time from the two yard line. After the touchdowns, Scott Morgan kicked the extra points.

St. Ignace had a chance to get back in the ballgame. The Saints drove deep into Rayder territory in the third quarter and had a first down and goal inside the Charlevoix 10 yard line. But four running plays failed and the ball was turned over to Charlevoix at the one yard line.

Turnovers stopped other St. Ignace drives as the Rayder defense was johnny-on-the-spot. The Charlevoix secondary intercepted three Saint passes – two by Todd Williams. Williams also recovered a fumble.

Friday night the Rayders travel to Boyne City for a Charlevoix County showdown. The Ramblers are 2-3 in conference play, but two of the losses have come in overtime to Gaylord and Petoskey.

Custer takes third

Mike Custer established himself as one of the top high school golfers in the state Saturday.

Custer, a Charlevoix High School senior, placed third in the Class C state finals at Lowell. Custer shot a 74 which was only three strokes behind the medalist. His performance helped Charlevoix claim 13th place in the state for Class C.

Other Rayder golfers competing Saturday were: Bob Ranger, 85; Roxy VanLoo, 92; and Mark White, 96.

Charlevoix went undefeated in 13 regular season matches – to easily repeat as champion of the Michigan-Huron Shores. In regional play two weeks ago, the Rayders finished third. The golfers were coached by Barry Anderson.

There are openings in all three divisions of the Volleyball program and in the B League Independent basketball program offered by the Charlevoix Recreation Department Dwight Boss, city recreation director, has announced.

Anyone wishing to enter a team in the men's, women's or mixed leagues in volleyball or in the Class B basketball league may obtain entry forms at the city treasurer's office in the city hall.

The entry forms must be returned by Friday, Oct. 1, so schedules can be set up for the opening of the season scheduled to begin Nov. 6.

There is an opening for one more Class A league basketball team.

Ski swap scheduled

The third annual Ski Swap, sponsored by the high school ski team, will be held Sunday, Nov. 5, from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

Adult's and children's downhill and cross country equipment, skates, and ski clothing are needed for the sale. It may be taken to the cafeteria Saturday, Nov. 4 from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., and on the day of the sale from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

A registration charge of 50 cents per article is charged. The owner sets the price of the merchandise, with the ski team keeping 20 percent of the selling price.

Coach Mike Bonnello says profits from the sale enable the ski team to pay for skiing tickets for training at area resorts.

Cagers lose to St. Ignace

It was just not to be Friday night for the Charlevoix girls basketball squad.

The Rayders were beaten, 54-46, by St. Ignace in a battle for first place in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference. Both teams had entered the game without a blemish on their conference records.

The game was nip and tuck throughout. St. Ignace led 15-13 after the first quarter, 28-24 at halftime and 40-36 after three quarters. It was not until the closing seconds that St. Ignace wrapped up the game.

The Rayders, ployng a hustbng braud of ball, gave last year's conference champs all they could handle. Melinda Klooster, scoring from inside, and Chris Lehman, scoring from outside, each popped in 16 points to lead the Rayder attack.

Glendu Peinble had 18 points for St. Ignace and Sandy Halberg had 15.

Earlier in the week, the Rayders, now 8-2 overall, beat Cheboygan 57-42.

Klooster, the league's top scorer with a 22.2 average, once again led the way with 18 points while teammates Sherrie Sellssin and Mel Kerridge had 10 and Lehman had 11.

For Cheboygan, Liz Driscoll had 18.

The Rayders jumped out to a 17-6 first quarter lead. It was 29-19 at half and 40-31 after three quarters.

In junior varsity action, the Rayders lost to Cheboygan, 50-32, and to St. Ignace, 52-40.

The Rayders play at Grayling Tuesday night. Thursday, the Rayders travel to Boyne City.

The honors keep coming for the Charlevoix cross country squad.

Last week the Rayders won the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference, the Elk Rapids Invitational and the Traverse City Invitational.

In both invitational races, Jeff Drenth finished first. Drenth's time at Traverse City was 18:20 while at Elk Rapids it was 15:01 (three mile course). In the conference meet, Drenth took third with a time of 16:19. Charlevoix's other outstanding long distance runner, Mark Russell, finished third at Traverse City, second at Elk Rapids and fifth in the conference meet.

Jay Swartwout came in ninth in the conference meet and won all-conference recognition as did Drenth and Russell. Each received a medal. Swartwout was 12th at Traverse City and seventh at Elk Rapids.

CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

OCTOBER 16, 1978
7:30 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Supernaw presiding. Aldermen present: Whitley, Muma, Porter, Timms, Plumm, and Wood. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the October 2, 1978 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Council discussed a letter directed to the City Manager from James Ance, City Dockmaster, re-applying for the Dockmaster's position for the 1979 season and requesting an increase in salary. The matter was referred to the Committee of the Whole meeting scheduled for October 23, 1978 for further study and evaluation.

Moved by Alderman Timms and supported by Alderman Plumm that the City renew the professional liability policies with Charlevoix Agency, Inc. with the same liability limits as were established on the 1977-78 policies. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Whitley, Muma, Porter, Timms, Plumm, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Porter

RESOLUTION 78-10-4

BE IT RESOLVED, as the City Council believes it is in the best interest of the City to name a City Physician,

WHEREAS, it is desirable to have medical services, and examinations performed by a local physician,

WHEREAS, the general welfare, and health of the City employees is of utmost concern,

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, Harry R. Custer, M.D., is hereby officially named City Physician for the City of Charlevoix.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Whitley, Muma, Porter, Timms, Plumm, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Alderman Porter and supported by Alderman Whitley.

RESOLUTION 78-10-5

WHEREAS, the State of Michigan, Department of Public Health, has indicated their interest in the establishment of a Employee Counseling Program for the City of Charlevoix,

WHEREAS, the City of Charlevoix recognizes that particular behavioral medical problems are complex, but can be dealt with successfully,

WHEREAS, the employees or their families, who feel such a need, are encouraged to seek help, and counseling from this Agency,

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, the City of Charlevoix does hereby accept the offer of the State of Michigan Employee Counseling Program, and does recommend that interested employees become aware of this voluntary program.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Whitley, Muma, Porter, Timms, Plumm, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Porter and seconded by Alderman Plumm that the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix hereby authorizes $75.23 of Anti-recession interest earned be applied to the Police Department payroll in the General Fund for the month of October as was the principal amount of $4,725.00. Motion was passed by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Whitley, Muma, Porter, Timms, Plumm, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Mr. Daniel M. Boone appeared before Council to request that Council clarify their position regarding the construction of docks in Round Lake. He stated that it was his belief that, at his previous appearance before Council, they had agreed that the length of new dockage could not extend beyond the docks of adjoining property owners. He cited the fact that no objections had been raised regarding the 32' dock proposed by Tom Duke. Council assured Mr. Boone that, while no specific criteria has been established regarding dock construction, Mr. Duke's dock does not extend beyond those of adjoinging property owners. Council agreed that each proposed construction project is studied individually and that they would consider any proposal submitted by Mr. Boone.

Council agreed to renew the Airport Manager's contract provided he submit any reports and information as may be requested by the City Manager.

John Gamble, a member of the General Public present, stated that he wished to apply for the position of Independent Manager at the Airport. He submitted his resume to Council which they agreed to review at the Committee of the Whole meeting scheduled for October 23, 1978.

Moved by Alderman Wood and supported by Alderman Timms to renew the contract of Warren Belding, Golf Course Greenskeeper, for the 1979 season at a salary of $11,800.00, and, to authorize the Mayor and the City Clerk to sign said contract. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Whitley, Muma, Porter, Timms, Plumm, and Wood. Nays: None. Abstaining: Alderman Whitley. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Timms and supported by Alderman Wood to accept the quote submitted by Hess Furniture for carpeting at the City Golf Course at a cost of $2,434.00. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Muma, Porter, Timms, Plumm, and Wood. Nays: None. Abstaining: Alderman Whitley. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Wood and supported by Alderman Plumm that the bill submitted by Alvin Ranger in the amount of $5,134.00 for his work on the Charlevoix Municipal Airport Master Plan Study be forwarded to the Michigan Aeronautics Commission for payment. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Muma, Porter, Timms, Plumm, and Wood. Nays: Alderman Whitley. Absent: None.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Alderman Wood and supported by Alderman Timms.

RESOLUTION 78-10-6

IN AS MUCH as the City of Charlevoix has previously established a minimum monthly water and sewer rate chargable on an individual basis,

NOW THEREFORE, in order to insure a uniform application of such rate,

BE IT RESOLVED that, as of this date, a minimum of the prevailing basic rate for water and sewer shall be applied and charged on the basis of the number of single family dwelling units to which such water and sewer service is extended.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay votes. Yeas: Aldermen Whitley, Muma, Porter, Timms, Plumm, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for adoption by Alderman Porter and supported by Alderman Plumm.

RESOLUTION 78-10-7

WHEREAS, the Municipality has, together with other municipalities operating municipal electric utility systems, studied the feasibility of forming a Joint Agency pursuant to Act 448, Public Acts of Michigan of 1976 ("act 448"); and

WHEREAS, the City Council, after study of the feasibility of establishing a Joint Agency has reached the conclusion that such an agency will be of benefit to the City of Charlevoix.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that:

1. The City Council approves the establishment of the Michigan Public Power Agency, the proposed Articles of Incorporation therefore and the membership of the City of Charlevoix in the Michigan Public Power Agency.

2. The Mayor and City Clerk as hereby authorized and directed to execute said Articles of Incorporation for and on behalf of the Municipality.

3. The Clerk shall take such steps as are necessary under the provisions of State law to perfect the incorporation of the Authority.

4. The payment of membership fee to Michigan Public Power Agency in the sum of $1,000.00 (One Thousand Dollars) is hereby approved.

5. The execution of these Articles of Incorporation is authorized for the formation of the entity Michigan Public Power Agency however the City of Charlevoix does not hereby empower said entity to enter into power agreement, offer or issue any bonds or make financial commitment binding upon the City of Charlevoix, without express authority of this municipality.

6. That Norman M. Gaffney is hereby appointed commissioner as representative of this City in membership in said Joint Power Agency, Michigan Public Power Agency.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Whitley, Muma, Porter, Timms, Plumm, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council unanimously agreed to accept Mayor Supernaw's appointment of Joseph G. Morris, Jr. to fill the vacancy of the Charlevoix Planning Commission created by the resignation of George Baldwin for the remainder of Mr. Baldwin's term.

Mayor Supernaw issued a Proclamation designating October 18, 1978 as Sundew Day in the City of Charlevoix.

Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Timms to authorize the City Manager to release to the press a special information bulletin prepared by the Michigan Municipal League regarding the 1978 ballot proposals M and R. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Whitley, Muma, Timms, Plumm, and Porter Nays: Alderman Porter. Absent: None.

Mayor Supernaw issued a Proclamation designating the evening of October 32, 1978 as official Halloween trick-or-treat night in the City of Charlevoix.

The Finance Committee having examined bills and payroll totaling $212,023.28 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed. Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Timms that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Whitley, Muma, Porter, Timms, Plumm, and Wood. Nays: None: Absent: None.

Council adjourned.

PROPOSED ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION OF MICHIGAN PUBLIC POWER AGENCY

These Articles of Incorporation of the Michigan Public Power Agency are adopted by the incorporating municipalities for the purpose of creating a joint power agency under the provisions of Act 448 of the Public Acts of Michigan of 1976 ("Act 448").

ARTICLE I

The name of this corporation is Michigan Public Power Agency.

ARTICLE II

The incorporating municipalities creating this Agency are the Cities of Bay City, Charlevoix, Croswell, Grand Haven, Harbor Springs, Hart, Holland, Lowell, Petoskey, Portland, St Louis, South Haven, Traverse City, and Zeeland, and the Villages of Chelsea, Paw Paw and Sebewaing, all municipal corporations of the State of Michigan operating municipal electric utility systems as of the effective date of Act 448 or such of the foregoing as have adopted these articles by October 15, 1978.

ARTICLE III

This Agency is incorporated for the purpose of undertaking the planning, financing, development, acquisition, construction, reconstruction, improvement, enlargement, betterment, operation, or maintenance of a project or projects to supply electric power and energy for the present or future needs of the incorporating municipalities or supplemental method of obtaining the benefits and assuming the responsibilities of ownership in a project and to do all other acts and things and enjoy all further powers and purposes provided by Act 448.

ARTICLE IV
POWERS AND DUTIES

Section 1. The Agency shall be a public body politic and corporate with power to sue and be sued in any court of the State of Michigan

Section 2. The Agency shall have the powers and duties enumerated in Act 448 of the Public Acts of Michigan of 1976, as the same may be amended from time to time, together with all such other powers not inconsistent therewith as may be necessary for and convenient and incident to the carrying out of the purposes of the Agency either alone or in conjunction with other corporations, firms or individuals, whether situated within or without the State of Michigan to the extent permitted by said Act 448.

Section 3. For the purpose of accomplishing the objects of its incorporation, the Agency may acquire property by purchase, construction, lease, gift, devise or condemnation, and for the purpose of condemnation it may proceed under the provisions of Act No. 149 of the Public Acts of 1911 of Michigan, as now or hereafter amended, or any other appropriate statute.

Section 4. As a condition of membership in the Michigan Public Power Agency each municipality shall pay membership fee of One Thousand Dollars, ($1,000), which shall not be refundable.

Section 5. For the purpose of defraying the project costs of a project as defined in Act 448, the Agency may issue revenue bonds in accordance with and subject to the provisions of Act No. 448 of the Public Acts of 1976, as now existing or hereafter amended.

Section 6. All property owned by the Agency shall be exempt from taxation by the State or any taxing unit therein.

Section 7. The term of this corporation and Agency shall be perpetual, or until terminated in accordance with law and these articles.

ARTICLE V
GOVERNING BODY, OFFICERS:

Section 1. The Agency shall be governed by a board of commissioners appointed by the respective governing bodies of the municipalities which are members of the Agency. The governing body of each member municipality shall, by resolution, appoint one (1) commissioner who, at the discretion of the governing body, may be an officer or an employee of the municipality. Each commissioner shall serve at the pleasure of the governing body by which he was appointed.

Section 2. The board of commissioners of the Agency shall annually elect one (1) of the commissioners as chairperson, another as vice-chairperson, and another person or persons, who may or may not be a commissioner, as treasurer, secretary, and if desired, assistant secretary The office of treasurer may be held by the secretary or assistant secretary. The board of commissioners may appoint additional officers as it deems necessary. The secretary or assistant secretary of the Agency shall keep a record of the proceedings of the Agency, and the secretary shall be the custodian of all records, books, documents, and papers filed with the Agency, and the secretary shall be the custodian of all records, books, documents, and papers filed with the Agency, the minutes or journal of the Agency, and its official seal.

Section 3. The board of commissioners shall adopt and may amend by-laws and rules of procedure providing regular meetings of the board of commissioners, duties of the officers and method of voting on various matters.

Adoption and amendment of by-laws shall require a two-thirds majority vote of the members of the board of commissioners. A final vote shall not be taken on proposed by-laws or amendments until they have been referred to the governing bodies of the member municipalities for one month.

Section 4. The commissioners shall adopt a corporate seal and employ a general manager, full time or part time, as required by Act 448.

Section 5. The books and records of the Agency and board of commissioners, officers, and agents thereof, shall be open to inspection and audit by the incorporating municipalities at all reasonable times. The Agency shall submit an annual report to the incorporating members.

ARTICLE VI

Obits

Albert VanDamme

Funeral services for a former summer resident, Albert J. VanDamme, 73, of St. Clair Shores, who died unexpectedly Wednesday at Bon Secours Hospital in Grosse Pointe shortly after being admitted, were held Saturday at the Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods. Interment was in Mount Olivet cemetery.

Mr. VanDamme was a retired residential contractor and builder and had been a summer resident at Ironton for 13 years until recently.

He is survived by his wife, Rosemary; one daughter, Mrs. Claire C. (Mary) Martin of Charlevoix; four grandchildren, Roy, Kathleen, Dennis and James, of Charlevoix and three sisters.

Nonie Gallagher

ST. JAMES Beaver Island – Funeral services for the island's oldest resident, Mrs. Annora (Nonie) Gallagher, were held Monday at Holy Cross Church. The Rev. Alvin Yard officiated. Interment was in Holy Cross cemetery. She died Friday at the Grandvue Medical Care Facility where she had been a patient for the past year.

The Rosary was recited at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix Saturday and at Holy Cross Church Sunday evening.

Born on Beaver Island Sept. 1, 1880, the former Annora Slocum had also lived in Charlevoix where she was in charge of the dining room of the old Belvedere Hotel and in Chicago where she had been employed. She returned to Beaver Island and was married to Patrick E. Gallagher in 1932. He died in 1943. She continued to live here, going to Charlevoix during the winter months. She had lived in Charlevoix with Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Hooper for a time before becoming a patient at Grandvue Medical Care Facility last year.

She was a member of Holy Cross church here and St. Mary's church in Charlevoix.

She is survived by nieces and nephews.

Lawrence Swanson

Funeral services for Lawrence O. "Stub" Swanson, 68, local contractor and former city councilman who died Sunday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital, will be held at the Winchester Funeral Home at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. Walter Hastings of the Community Church of God will officiate. Interment will be in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Swanson was born in Charlevoix Feb. 15, 1910, and was graduated from the Charlevoix High School. In 1934 he was married to the former Alma M. Hartwell of Charlevoix. They have always resided here. He was employed by Hodgkiss & Douma Co. in Petoskey and later was self-employed as owner-operator of the Swanson Gravel Co. He had been elected as second ward councilman earlier this year and later resigned the post because of ill health. He was a member of Round Lake Lodge No. 293, I.O.O.F.

Besides his wife, he is survived by four sons, Thomas of Alpena and Larry, Kevin and David of Charlevoix; one daughter, Mrs. Nancy Burdick of Charlevoix; 10 grandchildren; three brothers, Edward, Ronald and John, all of Charlevoix and three sisters, Mrs. George (Thelma) Booth of Mio, Mrs. Ralph (Rosemary) Boutwell of Kasota, Minn. and Mrs. Robert (Arloa) Ferguson of Charlevoix.

Friends may meet the family at the Winchester Funeral Home from 2 until 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Margaret Manning

Funeral services for Mrs. L. Perry (Margaret B.) Manning, 66, who died Friday at Little Traverse Hospital, were held Tuesday at St. Mary's church. The Rev. R. Dale Mageon officiated. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The Rosary was recited at the Winchester Funeral Home Monday evening.

The former Margaret Besner was born in Seattle, Wash., Feb. 13, 1912, and moved to Sault Ste. Marie with her parents at the age of nine years and in 1920 to Detroit. She was married to Mr. Manning at Detroit in 1936. They resided there until 1972 when they moved to Charlevoix to make their home. She was a member of St. Mary's church, the Charlevoix Garden Club and the Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Besides her husband, she is survived by one son, Lawrence P. Manning, Jr., of Ogden Dunes, Ind., and three grandsons including John and Christopher Cinnamon.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix Area Hospital in her name.

Kate Bronkema

ELLSWORTH – Funeral services for Miss Kate Bronkema, 79, who died Oct. 16 at Meadowbrook Medical Care Facility at Bellaire where she had been a patient for 10 days, were held Oct. 19 at the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church. Interment was in the Ellsworth cemetery.

Miss Bronkema was born in Chicago May 23, 1899, and came to Banks township with her parents in 1902. She moved into the village of Ellsworth several years ago. She was a member of the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Chruch.

She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Henry (Cora) Dice and Mrs. Grace Kalkhofen of Grand Rapids and Mrs. Solomon (Jennie) Goeman of Ellsworth.

The Hastings Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Homeowners: Make sure furnace is working efficiently and safely

Colder autumn weather means residential furnaces will be operating again after long summer layoff and Michigan Consolidated Gas Company today reminded homeowners there are several steps they can take themselves to make sure the furnace is working efficiently and safely.

"A gas forced-air furnace is a highly dependable piece of equipment," said Richard A Seguin, manager for the utility's Petoskey area office. "But like any other piece of machinery, it requires regular maintenance. And a properly operation furnace means a more efficiently operating furnace."

He said the wisest step a homeowner can take is to call a licensed heating contractor for a pre-winter furnace check-up. Seguin added, however, that there are simple checks gas customers can perform to insure smooth furnace operation. These include inspecting the filter, blower, blower motor, and burner area.

Before beginning, he urged homeowners to check the furnace flue pipe. The flue piep connects the furnace to the home's chimney and carries products of combustion outside the house. Check to see that the pipe is firmly attached to the furnace and the chimney and that the pipe has no rust holes. After assuring the flue pipe is in sound condition, the consumer can proceed.

First, turn the furnace off. To make sure it's off, turn up the thermostat to start the burner and blower. Then turn off the blower switch – which often looks like an ordinary light switch, and is generally located to one side of the furnace. The customer will know the furnace is off when the blower stops running. Reset the thermostat to its lowest setting.

Then begin the check:

AIR FILTER: The air filter is located in the cold air return system. Filters are made of fiberglass and can be easily cleaned with the bruch attachment of a vacuum cleaner. If the filter doesn't come clean, it should be replaced with a new one, which can be purchased at hardware departments of most large stores. Some furnaces have permanent filters, which can be washed in warm water and detergent, rinsed, drained dry and replaced in the furnace. A clean filter will mean the warm air circulating through the house will be cleaner and will circulate more easily.

BLOWER: The blower motor is located in the rear of the furnace. Examine the motor's belt throughly. If it's cracked or worn to the point the inside cords are showing, replace it. The belt should be replaced every 3-5 years as part of preventive maintenance (or keep a spare on hand for use in an emergency.)

CHECK BLOWER MOTOR: Place a few drops of electric motor oil in the oil cups located near the ends of the motor shaft. Some motors are permanently lubricated and do not require periodic oiling. Be sure to use only electric motor oil, which can be purchased at a hardware store, since any other type of oil may ruin the blower motor.

Finally, check the burner

AIR INLET GRILLWORK to make sure it's clean and unobstructed. Check the area around your furnace to make sure it's free of dust, dirt, cans, wood, paper and other flammable materials.

If the furnace won't start, Seguin said, don't forget to check the furnace fuse or circuit breaker. If it still won't start, call your heating contractor or Michigan Consolidated.

Seguin said the company provides emergency service for furnace break downs, suspected gas leaks, furnace overheating, or furnaces that won't start or turn off. But the company does not provide maintenance service to insure continuous and efficient furnace operation. If a customer needs extensive service to repair the furnace, Michigan Consolidated service personnel will advise the customer to contact a licensed heating contractor.

"We're continuing to advise our customers to conserve gas," Seguin said. "Performing a simple furnace check is an inexpensive way of insuring efficient furnace operation. And it could help avoid the inconvenience of a furnace that won't work in the middle of a cold night."

Briefly

It's test time

All eighth grade students at the Charlevoix Middle School will receive the Differential Aptitude Test along with the Career Planning Questionnaire this week Condit Drury, middle school counselor, has announced.

The Differential Aptitude test covers eight different areas, verbal reasoning, numerical ability, abstract reasoning, spelling, language usage, space relations, clerical speed and accuracy and mechanical reasoning Drury explained.

He went on to say that the Career Planning Questionnaire permits students to express their educational and vocational plans as well as other preferences.

The results of the Differential Aptitude Test and the student's expressed interests from the Career Planning Questionnaire will than be analyzed through the use of a special computer. The report will either confirm the appropriateness of the students's occupational choice in the light of his or her abilities and interests or suggest alternative occupational areas to explore if the choices are inappropriate.

Drury said the results should be available by late November. At that time, the counselor will interpret the profile print-out to the students and ask each to take his or her copy home and share it with the parents.

Parents desiring more information may call Drury at 547-4407.

Fall concert Sunday

The Vocal Music Department of the Charlevoix Public Schools will present a concert at the new Assembly of God Church on M-66 at 4 p.m. Sunday according to their director, Steven Stargardt.

Participating in the annual fall concert will be the high school and middle school choruses.

The high school chorus will sing among other selections the popular "Happy Together" and the spiritual "Ride the Chariot" while the middle school chorus will present a program of light popular numbers including "Happiness is..."

The concert is being given without charge for the entertainment of residents of the Charlevoix School District. The Public is invited to attend.

X-Mas seal campaign

The Michigan Lung Association announced its need for $880,000 statewide as it kicked off its Christmas Seal campaign this week. Seals are in the mail to past contributors. The need in Charlevoix County has been set at $4,440 which Brick Lancaster, president of MLA's Northwest Regional Council, hopes will be raised through Christmas Seal contributions and other fund raising efforts being organized by MLA volunteers in the county.

"One of the unique strengths of this organization is that 90 cents of every dollar contributed in Michigan stays in Michigan to help our own citizens," said Lancaster.

Christmas Seal contributions here support health-improving programs such as: a kindergarten through third grade curriculum to teach youngsters about smoking and its effects on the body, breathing clubs, self-care classes, smoking cessation groups, non-smokers' rights programs, scientific seminars and workshops for professionals, air conservation programs and educational fellowships, which are awarded to promising young physicians who seek further training in lung disease in Michigan teaching hospitals.

Stapf in band

Cynthia Stapf is playing trumpet with the Trinity Bible Institute Crusader Band of Ellendale, North Dakota. Cynthia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. McIntire, from Charlevoix, Michigan.

The Crusader Band ministry consists of concerts glorifying God, participation in chapel services, playing at basketball games, adding school spirit, and traveling and sharing testimonies about Jesus Christ.

Trinity Bible Institute is a Bible College dedictated and committed to saturate students with a knowledge of God's truth in an atmosphere of practical Christian living. Bible and Theology continue to be the only major offered at TBI.

Luncheon planned

The United Methodist Women will present their annual casserole, and salad luncheon, bake sale and bazaar at the church dining room located at 106 State St. on Thursday, Oct. 26.

Serving will begin at 11 a.m. and continue until 1:30 p.m. The luncheon will feature a choice of hot casserole dishes and salads, rolls, dessert and a choice of beverage.

The bake sale and bazaar to be held during the same hours will feature home-baked items and hand-made items suitable for Christmas giving. Tickets: adult, $2.50; Senior Citizens: $2.00.

STATE OF THE SCHOOLS REPORT

As expected, our enrollment has declined once again this year. Unfortunately, this drop in enrollment has not and, according to projections, will not affect our high school enrollment where we have a shortage of space. Although the board of education made an attempt to alleviate this problem by putting a bond proposal to the public, it was not passed.

During the past school year, one mill was made available by voter approval for maintenance, implementing a reading program at the middle school, and purchasing playground equipment at the elementary building. The funds were expended only in the areas which were designated prior to the election. The voters were asked to extend this one mill for the purpose of repairing roofs and to correct other maintenance problems, but this proposal also was defeated.

The operating millage was renewed, and because of an increase in the state equalized valuation, our educational program will remain essentially the same.

The middle school renovation program continued again this past summer and included improving the plumbing and heating situation, bricking in the gym windows, placing new doors where needed, etc.

A three year contract was negotiated with the teachers association.

Two grants were secured for the environmental education project at the lighthouse on Beaver Island. One grant was from the DNR for the amount of $30,000 while the other was through the CETA program for $65,000. In 1975 when the board of education took ownership of the lighthouse, it was understood that the extent of general fund monies to be expended on the project would be no greater than the amount the property appreciated each year.

We were saddened by the death of Claire Martin in March. Claire was a dedicated board member and a good friend.

Overall, our students continue to score at a high level compared with students in other schools, and our extra-curricular offerings enable many students to develop their talents and skills.

Our cost for educating each pupil is far below the state average, and our millage rate is considerably below the schools both in this area and in the State of Michigan.

The board of education continually sets new goals for the district and public input is welcomed.

We are proud of our students' accomplishments and, hopefully, with your support will be able to continue to be a quality, positive force in our community.

STATE OF MICHIGAN
CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX
ORDER TO ANSWER
File No. 78-07906-DM

GEORGE FRANCIS TOTH, Jr., Plaintiff, vs.
ALICE AGNES TOTH,
Defendant.

On the 28th day of September, 1978, an action was filed by GEORGE FRANCIS TOTH, Jr., Plaintiff, against ALICE AGNES TOTH, Defendant, in this court for a divorce.

It is hereby ordered that the Defendant, ALICE AGNES TOTH, 237-A Boyne City Road, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, shall answer or take such other action as may be permitted by law on or before the 8th day of December 1978. Failure to comply with this order will result in a judgement by default against said Defendant for the relief demanded by the complainant filed in this court.

Center gets tracking system

The East Jordan Family Health Center has begun a tracking system to encourage a high rate of immunization among it's patients.

A special file is opened on patients 17 or under when they go to the center for any reason. The file system then tracks them, and they are notified when they are due for their next immunization.

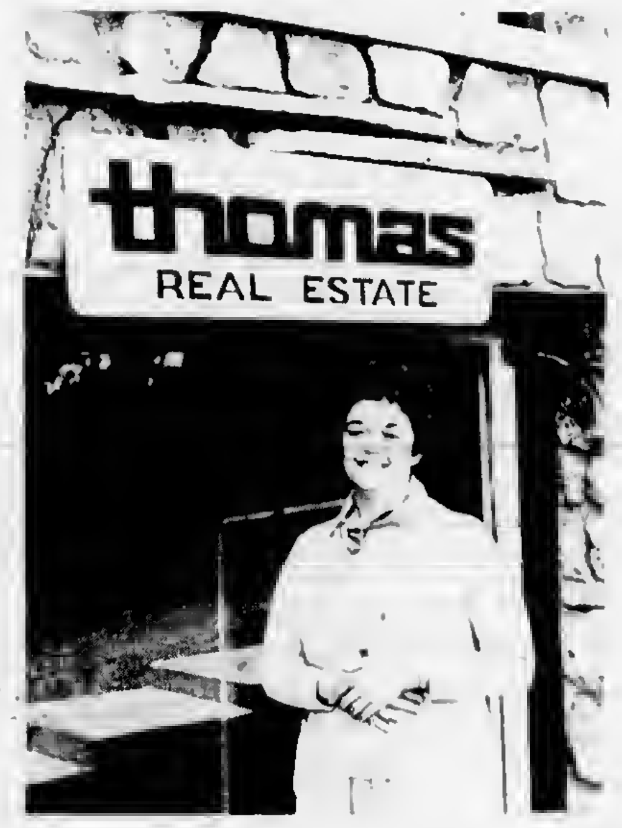
Patients may obtain the immunization anywhere they wish. In any case, the center's tracking will continue for future due dates.

In order to bring the files up-to-date for those most affected by the immunization program, an audit of all present medical files has begun, which will identify and enter into the tracking system any child 6 or under who has been to the center since it has opened.

If a parent has brought a child to the center in the past, a member of the center staff may be contacting them for present immunization histories if they have not been previously requested.

Center Administrator, Neal Colburn, notes that parents have been 'very cooperative' in providing information so that the center may assist them in keeping their children's immunization current.

The center is cooperating with the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education, and Welfare, and the Public Health Service in the plan to improve national immunization levels.



Babs Johansen joins Thomas

Jim Thomas of Thomas Real Estate is proud to announce the association of "Babs" Johansen with the firm.

Babs recently moved to Charlevoix from Fenton, where she was in Real Estate with Century 21.

Thomas said he feels that "Babs brings with her the experience and professionalism that has made the fine reputation the firm has today."

Building booms in September

With the issuance of 87 permits, the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection had another big month in September. Only August, when 91 permits were issued, was busier.

Total construction costs represented by the permits was $1,101,580. Of this amount, $802,899 was for new houses; $85,053 was for residential additions; $25,488 was for residential remodeling; and $67,086 was for decks and porches.

Commercial building additions and remodeling permits came to $86,850 worth of work, and mobile homes and mobile home additions account for the remainder of the permits.

The largest number of permits, 10, was issued in South Arm Township, followed by the City of Charlevoix, nine; Boyne City, eight; East Jordan, eight; Hayes Township, seven; Hudson Township, six; Melrose Township, six; Norwood Township, six; Evangeline Township, five; Marion Township, four; Boyne Valley Township, two; Charlevoix Township, two; and Bay Township, one.

Legion Auxiliary to send gifts

The American Legion Auxiliary will send 24 gift items to the V.A. Hospital at Battle Creek where they will be placed in the hospital's gift shop for the Christmas shopping convenience of patients, Mrs. Josephine Bindi and Mrs. Lester Smith of the Veterans Affairs and Rehabilitation committee advised Auxiliary members at a recent meeting.

The gift items complete with wrappings will be mailed to the hospital in the near future. Funds raised through the annual Poppy sales finance the purchase of the gifts.

The group approved the payment of the first part of its pledge to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Expansion and Renovation campaign.

Plans were also made for a potluck supper at the post home at 6:30 p.m. Nov. 9 prior to the regular meeting. Members are asked to bring their own table service, a dish to pass, a friend and their dues for 1979. The dues are $5.00 for the year.

FAITH REVEALS THE GOOD THINGS ABOUT OUR YOUTH

Our most unfairly maligned age group is the one consisting of older children and teenagers. Because of the spectacular, headline-making antics of a very small minority, our young people are routinely suspected of everything from noise, insolent behavior and drug addiction to school vandalism and a willingness to knock an elderly woman to the ground for the few dollars in her handbag. In truth, the vast majority of our youth are friendly, respectful, enthusiastic, law-abiding, hardworking students; intent only on learning to make their way in the world and perhaps improving it in the process. If your training and influence have been reinforced by family attendance at the Church of your choice, then YOUR children undoubtedly belong to this praiseworthy majority.

The greatest reverence is due the young.

JV's lose to St. Ignace

The St. Ignace Saints varsity football team is having a bad year with a 1-6 record. But next year might be different.

The Saints JV team blitzed Charlevoix's JV squad, 38-8, Thursday.

St. Ignace tallied four times in the first half - three on long distance runs of 23, 30 and 45 yards. By halftime it was 32-0.

Charlevoix scored in the fourth quarter on a three yard run by Mark Beaudoin, who also added the conversion.

St. Ignace scored—again shortly afterwards.

The Rayders host Boyne City Thursday.

Frosh bow to Grayling

After being shutout two weeks in a row, the Charlevoix freshman football team scored a touchdown Wednesday, but it was not nearly enough as unbeaten Grayling claimed a 26-8 win.

Grayling jumped out to a quick lead by scoring twice in the first quarter. Both scores came on runs - one of 10 yards and the other 15 yards. The Vikings added a third score in the second quarter on a three yard run. Grayling's final tally came in the fourth quarter on a 20 yard pass play.

Charlevoix put eight points on the board with five minutes remaining when Jim Buchanan went 45 yards for a score and then he added the conversion.

Buchanan finished with 185 yards in 23 carries. Dave Buday and Kurt Puffpoff starred on defense for Charlevoix.

Luncheon, bazaar Nov. 2

The Women of the Church of God will present their annual fall casserole-salad luncheon and Christmas bazaar at Fellowship hall of the church at 202 W. Hurlbut Ave. Thursday, Nov. 2.

Serving of the luncheon will begin at 11 a.m. and continue until 1:30 p.m.

The luncheon will feature a wide variety of hot casserole dishes, and salads, rolls, dessert and a choice of beverage.

The bazaar will feature many items suitable for Christmas giving such as hand-knit mittens, place mats, stuffed toys, dish carriers and many other clever gift ideas.

Mrs. Howard Campbell is general chairman of the event.

She will be assisted by Mrs. David Juilleret who will be in charge of the kitchen; Mrs. Cass Russell, the dining room; Mrs. Clarence King, dishes; Mrs. Charles Britton, advertising; Mrs. Percy Durance, tickets, and Mrs. Peter Jouce and Mrs. Clarence Murray, bazaar.

Want to join Girl Scouts?

Girls in the first through the sixth grade who are interested in joining the Girl Scouts are asked to sign up at the United Methodist Church between 7 and 8 p.m. Thursday. Jill Washburn, chairman of the service team, has announced.

Girls in this age group will be signing up for Brownies through the Junior ranks. Girls must be accompanied by a parent.

Ms. Washburn said that leaders were also needed for the program. "Without leaders, we can't have the program so it is important that prospective leaders come forth at this time so we can organize and get the troops going" she added.

GI News

Theresa Hamlin

GAYLORD, – Theresa M. Hamlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hamlin, Route 3, Box 316, Charlevoix, has entered the United States Air Force's Delayed Enlistment Program (DEP).

According to Staff Sergeant Ryan K. Renz, the Air Force recruiter here, Ms. Hamlin's entry into the DEP serves two purposes. First, it allows the Air Force to schedule an opening for her to attend basic training and be assigned to a job or skill area. Second, the DEP enables Ms. Hamlin, a 1978 graduate of Charlevoix High School, to wrap up her personal affairs before leaving home.

Ms. Hamlin will enter the Regular Air Force on Jan. 24th. Following graduation from the six-week basic training course at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, she will receive technical training as an administrative specialist and be assigned to an Air Force duty station.

Larry Rodebaugh

GAYLORD – Larry R. Rodebaugh, 17, of Rural Route 1, Box 156, Richerdson Road, has entered the United States Air Force's Delayed Enlistment Program (DEP).

According to Staff Sergeant Ryan K. Renz, the Air Force recruiter here, Rodebaugh's entry into the DEP serves two purposes. First, it allows the Air Force to schedule an opening for him to attend basic training and be assigned to a job or skill area. Second, the DEP enables Rodebaugh, a 1979 graduate of Charlevoix High School, to wrap up his personal affairs before leaving home.

Rodebaugh will enter the Regular Air Force on June 6th. Following graduotion from the six-week basic training course at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, he will receive technical training in the mechanical area ond be assigned to an Air Force duty station.

MIKE GAUTHIER, Tim Salmonson and Steve Gauthier received God & Family Awards for participating in several special service projects. The projects were coordinated by their parents and by their minister, Austin Regier. The boys are members of Cub Scout Pac 11

Welcome Wagon to meet

The Charlevoix Welcome Wagon will host a coffee this Thursday morning, Oct. 26, from 10 to 12 at the home of Lorraine Eldredge on Meanderline Road.

All newcomers to the area are cordially invited to attend. Baby-sitting service will be available.

Further information may be obtained by calling Phyllis Hess, 547-4245.

Soccer results

In soccer last week, Petoskey beat Gaskin's 4-2. Gaskin's goals were scored by Mark LaBlance and Charlie Steele.

Leutheuser's beat Boyne City 4-1. Jim Cluk and Jerry Clark each had two goals for Leutheuser's.

Aartvark beat Petoskey 4-3. Linda Cluk had two goals and Mike Steele and Ty Wagner one each for Aartvark.

Gaskin's and Boyne City tied at 1-1. Charlie Steele and Mark LaBlance knocked the ball in together for Gaskin's.

Teacher feature

...Hal Evans

By PEG OHLE

Hal Evans, who teaches 6th grade reading at the Charlevoix Middle School, is happy with his classes this year.

"The classes are above average in reading ability," he says.

"Out of 100 students, the lowest I have in reading ability is 4th grade, 5th month.

"The average changes from year to year. Last year, it was a bit lower, but there are always five or six exceptional readers, five or six who need extra help, and the remainder in between."

The reading level of boys in this age group is usually a bit lower than that of girls, but by 8th grade they seem to level off, Evans notes.

Using an individualized program for each student, Evans works with them at their own levels, be it in phonics or reading standard literature.

"Some of them test to 9th grade, 9th month in reading ability, and for the first time, this year we are developing a program for these top kids," he explains.

"We have formed what we call the 'Library Board' for them. They will read and review books under the guidance of our librarian, Mrs. Martin, to broaden their reading experience."

Throughout the classes, some students may be reading phonic stories, learning about compound words, prefixes, suffixes, and similar word-makers, while others may be reading stories looking for inferences, characterizations, and themes.

All students are required to read and review 16 books during the school year. The books are chosen together by Evans and the student to ensure that the student is reading at his top level. If the book selected by the student does not meet with Evans' approval, then another one is chosen.

As might be expected, monster stories, adventures, and mysteries are "big" with 6th grade students.

"They are in the 'Hardy Boys' and 'Nancy Drew' stage," Evans says, "But they also like 'Tom Sawyer', 'Heidi', even 'Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm'. And some of the older ones like science fiction."

In reviewing the book, the student must give the title and author, list the main characters, explain the line of the story, and describe the setting and plot. He must also write down any words he ran ocross in the book which he does not understand.

"By end end of the year, we will be asking the students to critique the book – its purpose, how the characters are developed, why it wos written," Evans adds.

The students are now reading and reporting on biographies.

Evans also has a section in 7th and 8th grade remedial reading. Explaining why some children have difficulty in learning to read, he noted that one of his students had speech difficulties and some of the others had moved around a lot and were subjected to different reading programs so they were behind.

"And, of course, there are always a very few who will never learn to read," Evans continues. "Sometimes they can get the sense of a page by just looking at it, and most of them have well developed other skills, heoring for instance."

In addition to his teaching duties, Evans is an assistant football coach, working with the Junior Varsity. "I enjoy it," he says, "It's hectic but fun." The team stands at two and four.

He is also the high school track coach and is looking forward to a good season, although with the initiation of baseball as a team sport, some of the track men have changed sports.

"We're now re-adjusting to see who is interested in track," Evans says hopefully. "Last year we came in 2nd at the Petoskey Relays and 3rd in the League. We have a lot of good distance men."

This is Evans' 6th year of teaching at the Charlevoix Middle School. He came here from Kapac, where he had taught two yeors, and before that he spent two years teaching in Pontiac. Last June 24 he married the farmer Mary Ann McGinn.

Evans was born in Washington, D.C. and raised in Alexandria, Va. He started high school in Alexandria but finished in Pittsford, near Hillsdale.

Task force sought

A Task Force which will be delegated the job of carrying out objectives relating to the problems of over-crowding at the Charlevoix High School is being sought by the Charlevoix Board of Education.

The Building & Site Committee of the board, as directed by the board at a recent meeting, has established objectives to be assigned to the Task Force which is to be composed of people representing all strata of the school district.

The Task Force will be asked to determine the kind of program the community will support to improve the high school and the conditions that exist; what is needed to improve the high school and if there is a need for improvement and, lastly, to recommend what means the board of education should use to bridge the gap between the two.

In establishing the format for the 15-member Task Force, the committee has emphasized the need to include people who are representative of the entire school district. Thus, four will come from each of the four townships in the school district; one from the city; one parent from each of the three schools and the remaining members from the community as at-large members.

Township boards, the city commission, the Parent-Teacher Organization (P.T.O) of the elementary school and the principals of the middle and high schools are being asked to recommend persons to represent their respective groups. The remaining members will be named at-large from the entire population of the school district.

Qualifications as set down by the Building & Site committee are that the person be 18 years of age and a resident of the Charlevoix School District.

Any interested persons who meet these qualifications should submit their names immediately to the Superintendent of Schools at the business office on Clinton St. At-large members will then be selected from among the candidates by having their names drawn from a hat during a regular meeting of the board of education.

In announcing plans for the formation of the Task Force, the committee emphasized the importance of the Task Force and urged sincere citizens of the school district who qualify to submit their names for membership.

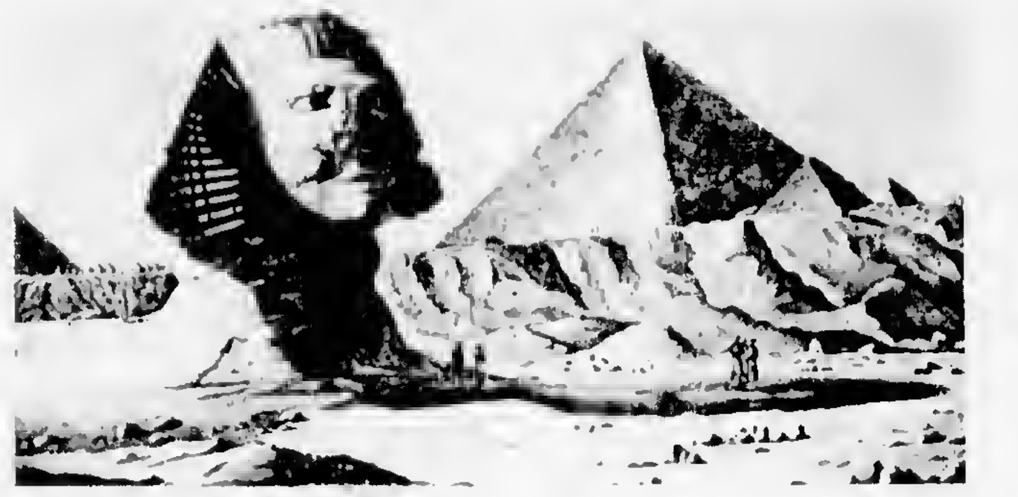

Exhibit at East Jordan

For 4500 years, the Great Sphinx at Giza has loomed as one of the most fascinating and mysterious images of Egypt. Archaeologists, engineers, writers, artists, scholars and tourists have stared, studied, excavated, restored and speculated about its origin and meaning.

In "The Changing Face of the Sphinx", a show on the road exhibition from the Detroit Institute of Arts, visitors and students will see the Sphinx documented in photographs of illustrations for books as early as 1579, drawings, paintings, and cartoons, as well as newspaper and magazine coverage of the excavations of the last 200 years.

The exhibition will be on view at the East Jordan Middle School beginning Monday, Oct. 16, through Friday, Oct. 27 during school hours. Robert D. Shields, principal, is coordinating the show.

The show was organized by William H. Peck, curator of Ancient Art at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Wedding

Wuerth-Peterson

Wendora L. Wuerth and David D. Peterson were married Saturday afternoon, Oct. 21, at St. Matthews Catholic Church of Boyne City.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wuerth of Boyne City, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Peterson of Charlevoix.

The church was decorated with gladioli and chrysanthemums for the double-ring ceremony performed by Father Dennis Stilwell.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of organza and imported Chantilly lace. It featured a Queen Anne collar trimmed with lace. Lace also adorned the bodice. The Bishop sleeves were of lace and organza, and the Empire waist topped a bouffant skirt featuring a panel of lace above an organza flounce extending into the attached chapel train. The elbow-length illusion veil was trimmed with lace to match that of the gown.

The bride's bouquet was made up of assorted shades of chrysanthemums, carnations, white roses, and baby's breath.

Karin Fitzpatrick served as maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Lynn DiMartino, Sue Peterson, sister of the bridegroom, and Chonnie Holzchu. They wore identical gowns of apricot dacron polyester print over apricot taffeta in halter style with detachable capes. They carried bouquets of white and rust-tinted carnations and baby's breath.

Lisa Toplinski, wearing a gown matching that of the other attendants, served as flower girl. Patrick Topolinski was ring-bearer.

Mark Wuerth, brother of the bride, served as best man, and groomsmen were Jon Peterson and Eric Peterson, brothers of the bridegroom, and Dale Holzchu. Mark Peterson and Eric Peterson, also brothers of the bridegroom, seated the guests.

Traditional organ music for the cermony was furnished by Mrs. Bernice Klump. Soloists were Mrs. Diane Hausler and Martha Kowalske.

The bride's parents hosted a reception at Corwith Township Hall in Vanderbilt following the wedding. The rehearsal dinner was served on the eve of the wedding at the Dilworth Hotel in Boyne City, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Following a wedding trip to the southern part of the country, the newlyweds will be at home in Traverse City

Duke-Driggs

Miss Nancy Duke of Farmington Hills became the bride of Timothy Driggs of Wixom Saturday evening, October 21, at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The single-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Raymund Giffin. Organ music was provided by Mrs. Marilyn Lehman and vocal music by Vincent Chew.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Duke of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D.W. Driggs of New Port Richey, Florida.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown fashioned with an Alencon lace top, empire waist, chiffon A-line skirt, and bishop sleeves. Alencon lace trimmed the cuffs and scalloped hemline.

Mrs. John Wicker served the bride as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Richard Quist, Mrs. Dennis Gramer, Miss Lorie Bonia, and Miss Susan Duke, the junior bridesmaid

John Wicker acted as best man, with Thomas Duke, Jr., Richard Quist, Scott Blue and Scott Williams serving as groomsmen.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Duke hosted a reception at Stafford's Bay View Inn. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at the Weathervane Inn.

The bride is a graduate of Michigan State University, and her husband is a graduate of Albion College. They are now on a wedding trip to the Bahamas and upon their return will make their home in Farmington.

Several candidates, issues on ballot

If voters are confused now about what's on the ballot...wait until they get into the voting booth Tuesday. They may be overwhelmed.

Not only will voters be electing government officials in cities, townships, counties plus at the state and federal level, but they will also be voting on 11 state proposals – many of which are controversial in nature. And for those voters in Charlevoix County there will be a county tax limitation proposal, too.

It's no wonder – because of the long ballot – officials are urging voters to make their decisions before they get in the voting booth. Voters who would like to see a copy of what will appear on the ballot may do so at City Hall.

On the local level, for the most part, voters will have it easy. Contested races are few and far between.

In Charlevoix, for example, Mayor Sam Supernaw is unopposed. So is Ray Wood in the 1st Ward, Ivan Whitley in the 2nd Ward and Shirley Roloff in the 3rd Ward. All are incumbents with the exception of Mrs. Roloff. George Plumm, the present 3rd Ward councilman, is not seeking re-election.

In East Jordan, it appeared there would be a race in the 2nd Ward – between Robert Romback and Lorraine Gagnon But it has been learned that Romback will be moving out of East Jordan in the spring and now he is no longer actively seeking the council seat although his name will still be on the ballot. Jim Meredith is unopposed as mayor and so is Harry Watson in the 3rd Ward. No one filed in the 1st Ward.

Only two races are brewing for positions on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners. In District 10, incumbent Martin Paul, a Democrat, faces Casimir Toton. District 10 includes the 1st Ward in Boyne City. In District 14, Democratic incumbent Oscar Ward is challenged by Marianne Thomure. District 14 includes the 2nd Ward in Charlevoix. One incumbent, Republican Ralph Richardson, was beaten in the primary by Chad McDonald. McDonald is unopposed in District 5, which is Eveline and Wilson townships. Also, John Kujawski's name will appear on the ballot as the lone candidate for the county board from District 12, which is the 2nd Ward in Boyne City. Kujawaski just recently resigned his position on the board of commissioners so he could accept an appointment to the Charlevoix County Road Commission.

Only three townships will have contested races Tuesday. In Hudson Township, Bonnie Sparks and Celia Sevenski are vying for clerk. In Norwood Township, Nancy Ritsema and Delmore Swartout are competing for clerk. And in Wilson Township, it will be Raymond Guzniczak versus Harvey Crozier for supervisor and Karen Guzniczak versus Jo Ann Baker for treasurer

The county tax limitation proposal asks, "Shall separate tax limitations be established for a period of four years (1979-82) or until altered by the voters of the County for the County of Charlevoix and the Townships and School Districts within the County, the aggregate of which shall not exceed 15 mills as follows:

"County of Charlevoix, 4.70 mills; School Districts, 9.10; Intermediate School District, 0.20 mills, Townships, 1 mill."

There are several interesting state proposals on the ballot. Sen. Bob Davis has provided a synopsis on four key proposals.

Proposal D – Should the legal drinking age be raised from 18 to 21?

This would amend the state constitution to prohibit anyone below the age of 21 from purchasing, possessing or consuming alcoholic beverages. It would further make it illegal for anyone to sell or give alcoholic beverages to any person who has yet turned 21.

Michigan's legal drinking age is now scheduled to go up to 19 effective Dec. 3.

Proposal H – Should public education funds go directly to parents for the purpose of enrolling their children in the public, private or parochial school of their choice?

Known as the Voucher Plan, this would dramatically change the present system of funding education in Michigan via an amendment to the state constitution. This plan would give parents a voucher which could be used to pay for their children's enrollment at either a public, private or parochial school anywhere in the state. Property taxes as a means of financing schools would be eliminated. It is not specified in the proposal exactly how this lost revenue would be replaced, but it is likely that the Legislature would act to raise the state personal income tax, perhaps by about 2.5 percent, and increase the Single Business Tax as well

Proposal E – Should state revenues and expenditures be limited?

Known as the Headlee Proposal, this would limit state taxes (and thus, spending), excluding federal aid, to the current ratio of total state personal income (approximately 9.4 percent). It would further limit the taxing powers of local units of government by requiring that all new requests for taxes be submitted to the voters for approval. In addition, it would require the state to back up with financial support any state mandated programs.

Proposal J – Should the ceiling on the state equalized value of property, which is the base of the property tax, be reduced from 50 to 25 percent?

Known as the Tisch Proposal, this would amend the state constitution by reducing the present constitutional ceiling on property tax assessments from 50 percent to 25 percent of true cash value. It would further limit annual property tax increases to 2.5 percent, impose a 5.6 percent ceiling on the state income tax rate and permit the Legislature to authorize school districts to impose up to a one percent income tax with approval of the voters. It would also require the State to back up with financial support all state mandated new or expanded activities or expenditures.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m.

Courier will be late

Because of Tuesday's election the Courier will be one day late next week. Instead of the Courier being printed on Tuesday morning it will be printed on Wednesday morning so readers will have the elections results.

Wilson says state will help city get $

Keith Wilson, chief of the Waterways Division in the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, was in Charlevoix last week and he vowed to help city officials obtain grant money to upgrade the city's boating facilities, City Manager Norman Gaffney said.

Wilson was in town at the request of Gaffney, who had sent Wilson a letter earlier in the fall detailing the city's need for several thousands of dollars to refurbish, repair, replace and extend the dock and wharfage facilities. Wilson responded and the meeting was set-up for Thursday.

"I think we accomplished a lot," Gaffney said of the meeting. "He (Wilson) said the State would help us get grant money because they consider Charlevoix an excellent port."

Gaffney told Wilson in his letter he thought Charlevoix "has been overlooked and given no consideration in the procurement of grant money."

Gaffney said the letter and the meeting has helped Charlevoix "get its foot in the door" for obtaining grant money in the future. Gaffney said most of the grants that are available are 50 percent matching grants. He said Wilson said grant money for the coming year has already been allocated.

Gaffney and other city officials examined the boating facilities with Wilson during the day.

Fishing pact allegedly broken

A verbal agreement between Indian fishermen from the Bay Mills Reservation and the Sault Ste. Marie Tribe of Chippewas with the governor's office prohibiting the use of gill nets in Lake Michigan waters south of Good Hart has allegedly been broken.

Last week it was reported that officers from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources had lifted nearly 1,400 feet of nets off the Penn-Dixie shoreline. Reportedly, 1,260 pounds of fish were released. The nets and 250 pounds of dead fish - mostly lake trout - were claimed by Alec Easton and Maurice LeBlanc of Bay Mills after the pair paid $48 fines each in Petoskey District Court for setting improperly marked nets (no buoys)

It has also been reported that other gill net groups have been observed working the lake from Petoskey to Torch Lake.

According to a story by Tom Dammann in the Grand Rapids Press, a tribal conservation committee will investigate Easton's and LaBlanc's alleged violation of the agreement in the next week or so.

"We cannot condone this violation," Bay Mills Tribal Chairman Arthur LaBlanc was quoted as saying. "If the DNR will send us affidavits and the officers to testify before our conservation committee, we will probably revoke these mens' licenses."

Grayling	0	Petoskey	42

Ok, football fans, get ready. One of the top gridiron rivalries in northern Michigan will be renewed Friday night when the Charlevoix Rayders host the Petoskey Northmen.

Game time is 8 p.m. at Kipke Field.

Petoskey comes into the game with a 5-3 record. Petoskey has a 4-2 record in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference, which is identical to Charlevoix's. Both teams have beaten St. Ignace, Boyne City, Rogers City, and Grayling while losing to Gaylord and Cheboygan.

Although a conference title is not at stake – like it was last year – the game, nonetheless, will be important in the standings. The winner is guaranteed of third place and could conceivably tie for second if St. Ignace can upset Gaylord. Also, to the victor comes bragging rights for another year.

Charlevoix has had those bragging rights for the past two years. Last year the Rayders overcame a 19-0 deficit in the third quarter to win 20-19. That victory capped a 9-0 season. In 1976, the Rayders won 28-15.

Thanks to a 42 point outburst in its last outing, Petoskey will come into Friday night's encounter averaging 17 points per game. The Northmen – with three shutouts to their credit – are yielding seven points per game. Petoskey's defense opened conference play this fall by holding three teams scoreless for over 11 quarters of action. Rogers City finally broke the string by scoring in the fourth quarter during its 19-6 loss to the Northmen.

Up until last weekend, Petoskey had been struggling on offense. But quarterback Clark Hewitt – who has taken over the reigns from Jim Cosens – has got the Northmen moving. Primarily run oriented, Petoskey will put the ball in the air, if need be. Hewitt threw for three touchdowns against Grayling.

Petoskey's big offensive threat, though, is senior running back Eric Swenor. Swenor can score from anywhere on the field. Besides carrying the football into the end zone on runs and pass receptions, Swenor has also returned a punt, a kickoff and a fumble (from defensive tackle position) for scores. He is second in the conference to Gaylord's Doug Mead in scoring.

Charlevoix, sporting a modest four game winning streak, is coming off consecutive 14-0 wins over St. Ignace and Boyne City. The Rayders are averaging 19 points per game on offense while surrendering nine points per game on defense.

Charlevoix, 6-2 overall, also has three shutouts on the season. So, Friday's match-up could be a defensive battle.

On offense, the Rayders rely on the running of Mike Keller and Craig Boss and the passing of Gil Noirot. Keller, third in the league in scoring, has taken over the bulwark of the running duties since Bob Russell was sidelined against Rogers City with a knee injury. Noirot has had a fine year throwing the ball. His two favorite targets are Pat Schmidt and Doug Buday. Each caught a touchdown pass last week against Boyne City.

If Charlevoix's offense should sputter, the Rayders can turn to placekicker Scott Morgan who has been deadly on extra point conversions. Morgan also does the punting.

Let's Talk
Real Estate

by Jim Thomas

Part of the process of buying a house is obtaining proper insurance coverage, as most banks require protection for their security. Often, the bank granting the mortgage has its own insurance requirements. Still, it is an area in which you have a great deal of leeway. There is no doubt that insurance is necessary to assist in protecting your investment. Not only the house itself, but its contents should be adequately covered. Generally, a properly written, all inclusive homeowner's policy will suffice.

Professional real estate brokers from the office of THOMAS REAL ESTATE, 100 Pine River Lane, 547-4494 can help you with all the details involved in buying a home or other property. We are known for personalized and dependable service in all phases of real estate. Stop in and check our selected listings of choice properties in all price ranges. U. S. CONGRESS

	BOB DAVIS REPUBLICAN	KEITH MC LEOD DEMOCRAT
	Forty-six year-old veteran politician. Served in the state Senate and was the minority leader. 	Thirty-eight year-old banker. Newcomer in politics. Defeated six candidates in the primary to get the party's nomination.
Why are you a candidate for the U.S House of Representatives?	Because I really think the problems that we have in this state and in this part of the country stem from the federal Congress. Inflation and these kind of problems must be resolved at the federal level and that's where I want to get involved in the process.	Well, neither candidate has Congressional experience. But I discovered government is not a professional elitest group. It's designed for people. That's what has made our country great. Our founding fathers were businessmen, bankers, farmers and revolutionaries. I say let's remove the glamour and be frank about Congress - it deals with dollar matters and I have spent a lifetime successfully managing dollars. I have a solid record in business. And as a Democratic congressman, I'll have access to the Oval House. I've already met with President Carter, Vice President Mondale and Senator Kennedy and have sensitized them to the needs and the opportunities that exist here. As a Democratic congressman I'll have greater access to the decision making process.
What programs do you think are needed at the federal level to aid this area?	We need a bill passed in Congress – I think Phil Ruppe introduced it and I will re-introduce it – that will give tax incentives to businesses and industries that want to locate in areas of high unemployment. Unemployment is twice as high in the 11th Congressional District as it is in the rest of the country. We've got to give business and industry an incentive to come up here. We've got to be able to say, "If you come up into Northern Michigan or the Upper Peninsula you will receive tax breaks for certain periods of time and this is what it will be." I think that will help encourage them to come up here. Also, we've got to get the government off the backs of business and industry. That has been one of our big problems. Rules, regulations and laws are making it extremely difficult to operate and be able to make a profit. The reason it's important for business and industry to make a profit is simple – if they can't there's not going to be any jobs. One specific area I'm concerned about that affects Northern Michigan is the forest products industry. We really haven't addressed ourselves to it. I think there's a real future for forest products industries. One of the problems we have, though, is getting government out of land use on the state and national level so that companies – producers of pulp and wood products of all kinds – have the availability of product. I have always said that conservation is not the non-use of your national resources but the wise use.	We have to cut inflation, provide jobs and cut taxes. What we have to do (concerning jobs) is to tax target by socio-demographic sectors (such as youth, elderly, ethnic groups) where high unemployment exists and also do selective targeting by geography. We should give businesses tax incentives, tax credits, loans, loans guarantees and market guarantees. We should encourage private industry first and consider the federal government as a last resort. What you would do with the federal government would be public works projects like bridges, roads, railroad beds.
What are your thoughts on Project Seafarer? (ELF)?	We have the shades of 1976 when President Carter campaigned in Michigan and he told the people, "If you don't want Seafarer you don't have to have it." What did he do? He changed the name from Seafarer to ELF. I expect he'll change it again. We have the same thing happening in 1978. Vice President Mondale says "We haven't made any decisions yet. We're trying to scale it down so it will be acceptable." It's the same thing. They can't make a decision now but right after the election WHAM they're going to try and put it in. This is a sham on the public.	I advocate a strong national defense, but I'm opposed to Project Seafarer or ELF because a case really hasn't been made for it. The Armed Services Commission, for example, has not endorsed the project, but merely provided funding for research into it and has not one penny for construction. What I advocate is advance technology - a neutron laser beam that can be focused right through the earth and that can translate at a high frequency to moving subs and that can also transmit pictures. There are some structural defects with ELF. It's a myth that (ELF) provides safe defense protection. It doesn't offer the best protection and security for our men in service. When I met with President Carter and Vice President Mondale in Washington I emphasized my concern about that and I expressed the concern of the people in the Upper Peninsula. I told them we do not want it and I urged that it not be constructed here.
Davis: Taxes are a major issue in this campaign. What is your position on the Kemp-Roth Proposal? McLeod: Your opponent has said he opposes the use of gill nets by anyone. What are your thoughts on the Indian fishing controversy?	The bill Congress passed really doesn't do the job at all – when you look at what people are going to receive in tax cuts on their federal income tax and balance that off with what they are going to pay in additional social security taxes. The average family in this country will receive a $177 cut in taxes, but will end up paying over $300 more in social security. There's no savings. The social security increase more than wipes that cut out. What we need to do is pass the Kemp-Roth Proposal which I favor. This would give substantial tax relief. For example, a family of four would get a 39 percent cut in their federal income tax. That's the kind of proposal we need. I think we're going to see it by next year. Congress is going to find that people are unhappy. Everybody is going to look at their paychecks after that tax cut goes into effect and it's going to be less than a washout. It's going to be negative because of social security.	I am a hunter and a fisherman and I am a supporter of the sports fishermen, however, I do not wish to suggest any plans or programs now because I want to see what happens in court. Look at Phil Ruppe. He has been trying to provide outlines and drafts and has met with hostility from both sides. So, he simply backed off. Therefore, I will wait for the court decision and if I think steps are necessary then for some equality I say follow it up with a summit conference to try and reach some general agreement with the parties.

Carter scheme is weak

President Carter was very smart by admitting right off the bat that his scheme to curb inflation with voluntary wage and price limits probably won't work. He took the wind out of his critics' sails and nipped hundreds of damning editorials in the bud.

Of course, Carter has every right to be pessimistic. The monster of inflation has grown to such a formidable size that we're not going to whip it with a platoon of Boy Scouts armed with good intentions.

But Carter also knows that America is waiting out there for him to do something – anything – to destroy that great, faceless enemy that devours huge hunks of our paychecks before they are cashed and makes a mockery of all of the thrifty provisions we have tried to make for rainy days.

As bad as Carter's scheme is, it does have a few good points. He pledged to trim federal spending, cut federal hiring and eliminate "needless" regulations. But these are things he should be doing regardless of inflation.

The pivotal point of the scheme – a request that workers voluntarily limit wage requests to seven percent – is weak because, in and of itself, it is very, very inflationary. It is possible that Carter doesn't realize that most Americans have never had a wage increase as large as seven percent in their lives?

Oh, sure, you may hear of auto workers, school teachers, government employees and skilled tradesmen strong-arming seven percent wage increases out of their employers, thanks to the muscle of big labor unions. But I can assure you in back-water America, among the ranks of America's un-unionized workers, pay increases of seven percent are virtually unheard of.

Why, if every worker in America demanded a wage increase of seven percent next year, half the employers in the country would go out of business and the other half would start looking at vacant land overseas.

I am wondering how many of America's down-trodden wage earners are going to look at that seven percent as something to shoot for? If they do, we're in real trouble.

I am also bothered by the "Big Brotherism" built into Carter's anti-inflation plan. The President said the federal government will withhold $80 billion annually in purchases from firms that don't comply with the voluntary standards. He also said balky firms could lose their "economic privileges," such as special franchises, protected wages and prices, subsidies and protection from foreign competition.

In other words, Carter intends to land with both feet on companies that refuse to play ball. The whole idea makes me a little sick.

Carter asked businessmen to voluntarily hold price increases to 0.5 percent below their 1976-'77 increases. This part of the scheme might work, but no one will ever know if it does because the increases would not apply to each product but to a firm's average price for all of its products.

There is no way in the world the average man will know whether he is being gouged in the price department.

I for one am sorry that Carter didn't take a tougher stance on inflation, including rigid price and wage controls. Americans have never been able to demonstrate economic restraint voluntarily, and there is little evidence that they are ready to start today.

By choosing the route he did last week, Carter not only forfeited the 1980 election but also greased the skids into an economic holocaust.

No. 1 problem: Raising parents

The students at St. Edward High School in Lakewood, Ohio, wrote me recently and wanted to know what I feel is the greatest challenge facing young people today.

That's easy. The No. 1 challenge facing today's youth is rasing parents.

In a world where Moms and Dads are influenced by television, liberation, exchange of sex roles, and permissiveness, young people are going to have to make parent-raising their No. 1 priority or the American family will fall apart.

I overheard two teenagers talking just the other day about their respective parents.

"Can you believe, I haven't eaten a meal with Mom and Dad for a week? Every night they make some excuse to go somewhere."

"I know what you mean," said his friend. "I saw my mother the other night whipping off and I said to her, "Where do you think you're going in that outfit?' I swear she looked like Annie Hall on a bad day. She said, 'I'm going to a meeting. Everyone else's mother is allowed to go.' I get so sick of hearing that. Do you know I can't go to sleep until I hear her car in the driveway?"

"My Dad is worse. He lives in that car. Out in the morning, home late at night. Then he sits in front of that stupid TV set watching sports all the time. I asked him one night, 'Don't you have any work to bring home from the office?' He said he didn't but I know better."

"Have your parents talked about getting their own apartment?"

"That's all they talk about. If Mom had to do her own dishes every night and Dad had to take out the garbage, they'd be home in two days."

"I don't know...mine never seem to want to go anywhere with us anymore."

"Maybe we nagged 'em too much. Or maybe we listened too little."

There was silence, then one boy added, "Where did we fail?"

"I don't know. I got pretty wrapped up in sports one year and it took a lot of time. Maybe we left 'em alone too much?"

"That's no excuse for their making a life of their own."

"Tell me, if you had it to do all over again, would you have parents?"

"Maybe just one – after all, they do look adorable on a Christmas card."

Electric cooperative seeks rate increase

Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative, Inc., of Boyne City has applied to the Public Service Commission/Department of Commerce for authority to raise its wholesale rates for electric power by approximately $594,000.

A public hearing on the application will begin at 1:30 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 9, in the offices of the Commission, 6545 Mercantile Way, Lansing.

Northern Michigan sells wholesale power to three member cooperatives, which serve an estimated 63,000 retail customers in northern Lower Michigan.

Charges to the member cooperatives would increase over a year's time as follows, according to the application: Cherryland Rural Electric Cooperative of Grawn, 3.71 percent; Presque Isle Electric Cooperative of Onaway, 3.76 percent, and Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Cooperative of Boyne City, 3.96 percent.

Northern's last rate increase went into effect in March 1978.

As of the Fiscal year ended March 22, 1978 Charlevoix Township received $8109 in Anti-Recession Fiscal Assistance Funds which was expended on salaries. ALSO: Charlevoix Township 1978 Survey of Local Government Finances and its supporting documentation may be examined at the home of the Clerk, Nov. 6, 1978 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

School board urges "No" vote on three tax proposals

Editor:

To the Citizens of the Charlevoix School District:

As your Board of Education it is our responsibility to discuss the effects that the proposals on the November ballot will have on our school district.

Proposal H, the Parochiald-Voucher proposal, would prohibit the use of property taxes for any local school operation. The legislature would then be required to replace the property taxes with statewide taxes. Only the state income tax and the single business tax could generate sufficient revenues, and there most certainly would be a significant increase in both.

The proposal does not call for a reduction in the 15 mill nonvoted property tax levy. Thus, the 6 to 9 mills of these nonvoted property taxes which previously have gone to the schools would now be available to counties and townships. Our school would lose 9 mills but taxpayers will still be paying 15 mills.

Local voters will no longer have any control of their schools. The legislature will decide how much money will be spent and how it can be spent.

Non-public schools will be able to charge tuition and other monies to operate. Public schools will only receive money from the voucher.

Non-public schools will also lose their autonomy and independence. If they receive the same public funding, they will be required to subscribe to the same government controls.

The method of implementing the proposal is completely unknown and so is the value of the voucher. Voters are being asked to opprove an unknown school funding plan and to trust the legislature to provide another bureaucracy for its implementation.

As your school board we urge you to vote No on Proposal H.

Proposal J, the Tisch Proposal, would cut all property tax in half, limit the state income tax to a 1 percent increase and allow K-12 districts to impose up to 1 percent income tax locally if approved by the voters.

This proposal seriously jeopardizes the ability of schools to fund current education programs and threatens local control. Increased dependency upon the state to support public education would result in a shift of power and control from local boards of education and citizens to the state bureaucracy.

Business and nonresident property owners will be given a 50 percent tax break. Michigan citizens will be forced to assume the burden of replacing these lost tax dollars.

We urge you to vote No on Proposal J.

Proposal E, the Headlee Proposal, provides for tax limitation. It does not provide tax reduction. It would hold the state to the present level of spending and increases in future state spending would be limited to proportionate increases in personal income.

There are several problems for education with Proposal E.

It does not guarantee that state funding for education will remain at present levels. Units of government will be taken as a group and cities, townships, schools, etc. will be competing against each other for limited funds.

There will be no tax incentives for business without a vote of the electorate. Michigan is already losing many businesses and jobs because of high business taxes.

State mandates are not guaranteed funding. The money could come out of general state aid while other basic programs lacked funding.

We cannot prevent the courts and federal government from mandating programs which we will have to fund.

It does not reduce property taxes or give any property tax relief.

As your board of education we are very aware of the need for tax relief and limitation. However, none of these proposals solve the problems of financing our schools more equitably or giving real tax relief to those who need it. We believe that the legislature should heed the call for tax reform and pass a warkable and equitable tax reform program which will meet the needs of all citizens in Michigan.

Sincerely,
The Charlevoix Board of Education

Proposal H would provide support for private schools

Editor:

Michigan voters need to recognize before it is too late that Proposal H is a serious threat to our basic liberties and free institutions.

Proposal H's real purpose is to force all Michigan taxpayers to provide full support for parochial and private schools. Proposal H would violate our right not to be taxed to support religious instititions.

Proposal H is not tax reform. It would lower our property taxes but sharply raise our state taxes. We would all pay more taxes in the long run, not just to keep our public schools open but also to pay for parochial and private schools and to make up for the property taxes no longer paid by property owners who live out of state.

Make no mistake. Regardless of what its proponents say, Proposal H is nothing but a scheme to folst "parochiaid," tax support for parochial schools, on us even though we voted to outlaw it in 1970. "Tax reform" and "freedom of choice" are but propaganda slogans to disguise a tax increase to pay for parochial schools.

Praposal H would wreck our public schools by paying parents to send their children to nonpublic schools which generally select and divide children by religion and in other ways. It would make educational planning chaotic, destroy economies of scale in education, and reduce local control over educational spending.

Proposal H would undermine our constitutional principle of separation of church and state by making the state a fundruising arm of those churches which operate parochial schools.

Proposal H would make our children guinea pigs in an experiment so radical it has been rejected by every school board in the country which was offered federal money to try it.

If we value religious freedom and our public schools, and want to keep our taxes down, we must defeat Proposal H on Nov. 7.

Questionnaires go out with checks

Veterans and widows of veterans over the age of 72 years who are receiving pension benefits will be receiving annual income questionaires with their Nov. 1 checks Ronald G. Geer, Veterans Counselor for Charlevoix County, has announced.

Geer advised that this was nothing to be alarmed about. "It is merely a change in policy" Geer said. However, he did emphasize that it is imperative that the questionaires are returned to the address given by Jan. 1, 1979.

The questionaires will also be sent to current law "children only" where there is no surviving spouse.

The only triennial income questionaire to be released will be the Veteran's Dependency Questionaire (VA Form 21-4151). The other Triennial questionaire (VA Form 21-4139), Parents Dependency Questionaire, will not be released this year.

Veterans Dependency Questionaires and questionaires for parents receiving D.I.C. will be released by the treasury department on or about Nov. 1.

With two exceptions, questionaires will be prepared with the preprinted return address of the Philadelphia Special Processing Unit. Veterans Dependency Questionaires and Children's Pension Questionaires will show the return addresss of the Regional Office of jurisdiction.

A note of thanks

Editor:

I want to extend a personal thank-you from myself and every crewmember of the USCGC SUNDEW to each and every citizen of Charlevoix for the warm and wonderful welcome extended ta us upon aur return on Wednesday the 18th of October. To those with family in Charlevoix it was the icing on the cake ta a wonderful reunion after a hard working trip and a long separation. To those with friends in Charlevoix it was a warm welcome for friendships about to be renewed. To those new crewmembers who reported aboard after SUNDEW departed Charlevoix on 05 July 1978, it was hello, welcome, and a sense of belonging to the community they had heard so much about but never saw.

After I reported aboard the SUNDEW in June, more than one of the citizenry remarked to me "The Commanding Officer keeps getting younger on there". Alas, we are all of the same age group and "you know who" is getting older. The reason I mention that event, is that it points out how you the citizens of Charlevoix, remain while we on the SUNDEW come and go. It would be easy for you to look upon us as transients, but you haven't. You have made us feel like full partners in the community.

To Mr. Stutzman and his band, the color guard, the skipper of the RESOLUTE, the Mayor, Fran Martin, the horn tooters, those wild and crazy sign wavers, and all the citizens of Charlevoix, Thank-You, it's great to be back!

Vote "Yes"

The Charlevoix School Board advise, no on proposals H, E and J are somewhat based on opinion and no facts. These tax proposals may not be the best solution but they are a step and a shift that may force a reform of the whole tax structure to a graduated income tax system that will put the refunding of public work needs where it should be. The claim that all of these proposals by such funding would give the state government more power to control the schools, this would be a power by money attitude. Perhaps by local funding the local board has the right to formulate all the rules of education. But there are some state and federal rules on all public works and education is a federal law. The idea that business would leave the state because of adverse tax conditions is just another capitalistic runaround and would have to be controlled on a Federal level to equalize taxation. There is no such animal as a localized economy and by title of ownership may vary but business and speculative opportunities are not limited by locations. The tax equalization values should be shared on a state and Federal level through a graduated tax on excessive incomes and not a business or property tax that is passed on down to the consumer. The big squawk about Federal spending and government subsidized employment, which is said to be inflationary, however, the free for all profit system doesn't reject the extra profit. I haven't seen any high income people hand it back for the good of the country, most of them buy land and speculate and work hard to find tax loopholes to get extra security by accumulating more money and that is inflation.

Vote Yes on the tax proposals.

Vote Yes on new state constitution.

Love can be masochisic game

She's Always A Woman
Billy Joel
Joelsongs: 1977 (BMI)
She can kill with a smile
She can wound with her eyes
She can ruin your faith with her casual lies
And she only reveals what she wants you to see
She hides like a child
But she's always a woman to me
She can lead you to live
She can take you or leave you
She can ask for truth
But she'll never believe you
And she'll take what you give her as long as it's free
She steals like a thief
But she's always a woman to me
Oh– she takes care of herself
she can wait if she wants
She's ahead of her time
Oh– and she never gives out
And she never gives in
She just changes her mind
She will promise you more than the Garden of Eden
Then she'll carelessly cut you
And laugh while you're bleedin'
But she'll bring out the best
And the worst you can be
Blame it all on yourself
Cause she's always a woman to me
Oh– she takes care of herself
she can wait if she wants
She's ahead of her time
Oh–and she never gives out
And she never gives in
She just changes her mind
She is frequently kind
And she's suddenly cruel
She can do as she pleases
She's nobody's fool
But she can't be convicted
She's earned her degree
And the most she will do
Is throw shadows at you
But she's always a woman to me.

I was never afforded the luxury of being considered a "femme fatale." By the time I had developed attitudes to warrant more than "tall and skinny," I had already become comfortable with the virtue of humility. The devastation of rejection has diminished my ego at least as many times as I have been the cause of the same. Who can honestly say which is worse, being the hunter or the huntee? Both take their toll on the heart if you really have one.

Billy Joel's woman is definitely a hurter. I remember one like her in the seventh grade; Beverly D. Beverly never suffered from puberty that I can recallect. No pimples, nothing. To the best of my knowledge, Beverly's figure never went through that "awkward stage." Worse still, she was always loving and leaving the boys to the rest of us. While Beverly was playing "Spin the Bottle," I was still jumping rope and picking up the pieces of her ex-boy friends. Maybe she's short and dumpy today and wears curlers to the grocery store. Maybe she married a jumprope salesman who insists that his wife demonstrate his products. Serves you right, Bev.

In all fairness, however, male or female, perhaps we have all been the insensitive lover in this song. Love can be a very masochisic game.

Perhaps everyone has taken a turn at appearing to be the "bad guy" when in truth we just didn't feel reciprocal at the time. Remember Harry, I would have to say this is true. Harry brought me tuberous begonias to plant in the spring and planted kisses as if he expected some future harvest. Harry was heavy into agriculture. It was not that I was unkind to Harry. It's just that he made me nervous, prematurely winding angora around his high school ring. So when I took leave of the situation by choosing one of the 50 ways at my disposal, Harry reciprocated with a scorching letter indicating that I had carelessly cut him and laughed while he was bleeding, that I had never given in, that although I was frequently kind, that I had been equally cruel. Honestly, I'm not that kind of person, Harry.

Meanwhile, at approximately the same time in my life, I was packing an extra brown bag lunch each day for Johnny. To this day I can hardly say his name without getting a nervous rash. We worked together in an unemployment office that summer and it was there, among the file cabinets, that I fell desperately in love with a southern drawl attached to an appropriately attractive physique. The young man with the drawl who winked at me suggestively over carry-out coffee was older, worldly, and terribly handsome. He was also a professional athlete.

After our first date, I ran right out to buy a sophisticated blackdress to wear out of our second. The heck with wrap-around skirts and peter pan collars. On a recent trip home to Cleveland, my mother asked me gently as she could if she might finally donate the black dress to the Salvation Army. It was 17 years later. To make a long story short, Johnny "killed me with his smile, wounded me with his eyes, and ruined my faith with his casual lies."

Maybe you can tell me. Why do we always fall in love with someone who doesn't appreciate our devotion? Cruel, cruel love that leaves the Harry's of the world wondering, "why not?" and the Billy Joel's loving the heartbreaker despite it all.

Cub Scouts attend fall camporee

Over 250 cub scouts, boy scouts and their leaders recently attended the annual fall camporee, this year held at Whiting Park in Boyne City.

The theme for the weekend was "Run and Fun". Highlights included a Friday evening magic show featuring Kristy Johnson from Boyne City, a full day of competitive events on Saturday, and a showing of the Edgar Allen Poe film "Tales of Terror" Saturday night. Other events included a scavenger hunt, a giant soup pot with each boy adding one can of soup to the stock, and a mile run for different groups of boys. All scouts participated in the run and group winners were Jeff Milner, Richard Budek and Mike Juday, all of Petoskey.

Area units participating included Webelos dens from Pack 49 Boyne City, and Pack 11 Charlevoix, and Scout Troops 43 (Charlevoix) 49 and 149 (Boyne City) and 59 (Walloon Lake).

The camporee was planned and hosted by Fred Moore and Jerry Hardy of Boyne City as well as the scouts and troop committee from Troop 49 of Boyne City.

NOVEMBER 7 RE-ELECT
RALPH OSTLING
STATE REPRESENTATIVE 103rd DISTRICT
Paid for by Committee to Elect Ralph Ostling

"Are we in for a long, hard winter? Almanac thinks so

If the Farmer's Almanac, wooly bear caterpillars and thick-furred kitty cats are correct in their predictions, Michigan is in for a long, frigid winter.

The recent, cool temperatures seem to indicate there may be some truth to the forecast made by the Farmers' Almanac, which predicts much more cold and snow than normal this winter. Many folks think the Almanac is a lot more reliable, overall, than the daily predictions on the local radio or television station.

Meanwhile, the kitty cats, dogs and farm animals are putting on their winter coats somewhat thicker and earlier than usual, seeming to announce their agreement with the Almanac and the wooly bear caterpillar.

When those caterpillars are black as ink, as they are this year, oldtimers say a frigid, white winter is ahead. "It's going to be cold, slippery and sloppy," said 83-year-old Herbert Krone, who for 60 years has fashioned weather forecasts from wooly bear caterpillar fur found in Pennsylvania.

Wooly bear caterpillars, which are about an inch long, range over much of North America. Forecasting winter weather from the color of their skin–which can be as light as blond mink or as dark as a deep sable–is a practice introduced by the Pennsylvania Dutch. The darker the insect, according to legend, the more severe the winter ahead.

Krone predicts, "The cold weather and snow will come in waves, one right after the other, with thaws and slush in between."

He holds out very little hope for an early spring. "Many times, we will go to bed, convinced that the season has definitely arrived, only to get up the next morning and have winter swat us in the face," Krone said.

Whether these predictions hold true remain to be seen, but the recent cold nights surely indicate that, at any rate, it's time to cut firewood for the winter and be ready!

ELBERT KAISER, Medusa's Charlevoix plant manager; Richard Krueger, Charlevoix Area Hospital administrator, looks on while W. G. Irmscher, Medusa Corporation president, presents a $25,000 check to Glenn Kenney, Hospital Fund Drive Chairman.

Hospital receives first pledge payment - $25,000 from Medusa

When Charlevoix Area Hospital received a check for $25,000 recently, from Medusa Cement Corporation president W.G. Irmscher, it marked the beginning of the payments on pledges made by area residents and businesses to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Raising Campaign.

During this summer's campaign, many individuals and businesses pledged to donate to the hospital over a period of time – three to five years. Those who made pledges to be paid over three or five years indicated on their pledge cards how often they wished to be reminded of their pledge, according to Charlevoix Area Hospital controller David Thurston.

"Some people asked to be reminded of their pledges monthly, others asked for quarterly, semi-annual or annual reminders," Thurston, who has taken over the accounting end of the campaign explained.

This month area residents and seasonal visitors will be receiving their first reminders.

Much of the money received will be put to immediate use in the Charlevoix Area Hospital $2.1 million Expansion and Renovation Project, Hospital Administrator Richard Krueger explained.

"We have many initial costs involved with this building project, such as architects' fees, so the funds coming in now are an important part of the total project."

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Raising Campaign is continuing locally, according to Glenn Kenney, the general chairman of the campaign.

"While our major push was during the summer, we have several businesses and individuals in our service area who have yet to make their pledge to this important project.

"Volunteers from the summer's campaign are continuing to solicit those few businesses and individuals," Kenney continued.

"It is important to raise as much locally as we can, because the more we raise for this project the less we will have to borrow later," Kenney explained.

"We were gratified that we made our initial goal of $750,000 and we owe thanks to everyone in the area who made that possible."

In accepting Medusa Cement Companies' check for $25,000 which will be followed by checks for the same amount for the next two years, Kenney said:

"The response of Medusa Cement Company to our Expansion and Renovation Project is an example of how business in our community can contribute to the betterment of the community as a whole.

"We are very grateful for this kind of support," Kenney concluded.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Fund Raising Campaign now stands at $785,000. Fund raising leaders and hospital officials expect that the total will reach $800,000 before constuction begins.

The Expansion and Renovation Project at Charlevoix Area Hospital involves the modernization of overcrowded out-patient departments such as X-ray, laboratory, respiratory and physical therapy, and the emergency room. A new wing will be construded, running east-west facing Lake Michigan, to house patient rooms, moved to accommodate the expansion of the out-patient departments within the existing building. No new patient beds will be added.

Construction is slated to begin in spring of 1979 to be completed by December 1980.

CHIP Center to conduct workshop

Tom Bickersteth

The mysteries of "Financial Planning", an activity thought of as only for the rich, will be exposed during a one-day workshop sponsored by the CHIP Counseling Center in Charlevoix.

On Nov. 4, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., the CHIP Center is holding a Financial Planning Workshop under the direction of Director-Counselor Oren Schroeder and professional financial planner Tom Bickersteth, a the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

"Our goal," Schroeder said, "is to provide people with a different kind of perspective with which to view their finances."

"Finances too often control the person rather than the person controlling the finances," he observed.

Bickersteth added, "Financial planning has been something available to the very wealthy, because they can hire an array of advisors – attorneys, accountants, trust officers, stock brokers, realtors.

"This workshop will make available that sort of professional planning to people of modest finances," Bickersteth continued.

The financial planner compared himself to a medical doctor in family practice, who takes care of the needs of the whole family, calling in specialists if necessary.

"Our goal is to make enough tools available so individuals can sit down and understand what they really want, understand the effects of inflation, and put in basic, dollars and cents, terms what it is going to take to achieve their life goals," Bickersteth continued explaining.

"We will go over an approach through which each family can crystallize in economic terms their objectives, such as education, retirement, acquiring a home, whatever.

"Then we will discuss methods and ways of achieving those goals," Bickersteth said.

Elaborating, he said, "We will create a financial road map – where I am going financially and how to get there.

"We will discuss choices and alternatives."

The Financial Planning Workshop will include an untangling of life insurance vocabulary.

During the workshop, participants will be shown such tools as savings, investments, insurances, and other ways to protect and implement their plans.

Along with life insurance, health insurance, disability, wills, credit cards, budgeting and debt will be discussed.

"It is important to know how much debt is too much," Bickersteth stated.

"How many families make an annual balance sheet?" Bickersteth asked. "Large corporations do it, why shouldn't a small family?"

Schroeder said that one of the reasons the CHIP Center is sponsoring the Financial Planning Workshop is the center's concern for "Preventative Mental Health."

"We'd like to prevent crises and problems, help people solve problems before they become out of hand," Schroeder said.

"Finances are often a tremendous stress in a marriage, so this workshop is important," Schroeder explained.

So that couples will participate the workshop fee is $25 per couple or $15 per individual.

"It is advantageous for a couple to come together," Schroeder observed, "if they want to discuss goal setting. Their being together will maximize the benefit to the family."

The all-day workshop will be held in the First State Bank of Charlevoix, in the community room.

To register call the CHIP Center at 547-6551.

Historical Society to meet Nov. 7

The Charlevoix Historical Society will hold its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 7 at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

An informal program will recall events in Charlevoix and elsewhere during the World War I and leading to the Armistice on Nov. 14, 1918. This war marked a turning point in U.S. history. Henceforth, the country could no longer isolate itself from world affairs.

Several World War I veterans will present reminiscences. In addition to those who left for military service, many Charlevoixans migrated to the Detroit and Chicago areas to work in defense industries. Young men who were essential to farm production were generally deferred from military service since shipment of American food was vital to the support of our European allies.

Members of the historical society and friends who have pictures, newspapers, letters or other memorabilia relating to the World War I period are invited to bring them and contribute to the program. A special invitation to attend this meeting is extended to history students in the Charlevoix schools

Harvest dinner Friday

A harvest dinner featuring spaghetti, garlic bread, dessert and a choice of beverage will be held at the high school cafeteria Friday evening prior to the Charlevoix-Petoskey football game.

The event is being sponsored by the Little League Association with the proceeds going toward the improvement of the Little League fields, according to Mrs. Condit Drury, president of the Little League Auxiliary.

Little League mothers and friends of the team are making the spaghetti sauce, the Sports Boosters are providing the desserts and Olsen Foods is providing the garlic bread.

An invitation has been issued to the public including visitors from Petoskey to attend the "all you can eat" event and help the Little League.

Little League fathers and interested adults have been working on the fields since the season closed in an effort to improve them and eliminate some of the hazards prior to the opening of the 1979 season next May.

Tickets are $2.00 for adults; $1.25 for children under 12 years and pre-schoolers are free.

Gridders beat Boyne, 14-0

The Charlevoix Red Rayders readied themselves for this weekend's showdown with Petoskey by blanking Charlevoix County rival, Boyne City, Friday night, 14-0.

The Rayders improved their record to 6-2 overall and 4-2 in the Michigan Huron-Shores Conference. Boyne City fell to 2-6 on the season and 2-4 in conference play.

It was the passing of quarterback Gil Noirot which provided the spark in Friday's win. Noirot threw for two touchdowns. In the first period with just 50 seconds remaining, Noirot found Pat Schmidt along the right sidelines. Schmidt gathered the pass in at the five yard line and scampered into the end zone untouched. The play covered 15 yards.

Then, in the second quarter, Noirot hit Doug Buday, who got behind the Boyne defenders. Buday made a nice over the shoulder grab and went in for another six points. Scott Morgan converted after both scores.

Charlevoix's defense kept Boyne City contained throughout the game - except for a 50 yard gallop by Bill Hoaglund. But the Ramblers were guilty of illegal procedure and the play and score was nullified.

In fact, that play sort of typlified the type of game both teams played. Charlevoix was whistled down for 12 penalties for 130 yards. Boyne City had six penalties for 50 yards.

Charlevoix did threaten in the second half as the Rayders moved inside the Rambler five yard line. But Boyne City held.

JV's tie Boyne

The JV teams of Charlevoix and Boyne City fought to a 20-20 standoff Thursday.

Boyne grabbed a quick 14-0 lead on touchdown runs of 25 yards by Mark Pruetz and 30 yards by Todd Newville. Charlevoix fought back as Dennis Morgridge went three yards to make it 14-6. Boyne retaliated when Bob Christe scored on a 12 yard run.

But Paul Hoffman got the Rayders moving. He passed to Mike Zedniock for 15 yards and a score then he passed to Ben Shores for the two point conversion. Finally, with just minutes to go, he took the ball into the end zone himself on a one yard plunge.

Hoffman completed four passes for over 100 yards in the game. Jim Knight, Greg Swanson and Joe Schnackenberg were cited for work on the defensive line.

The Rayders are now 2-4-1 and close out the season Thursday at Petoskey.

Harriers win regional, state meet on Saturday

Charlevoix's cross country team took first place in the Class C regionals at Clare over the weekend.

The Rayders edged the host team, Clare, 63-64.

Once again, it was the duo of Jeff Drenth and Mark Russell who paced the Rayder victory. Drenth took first place with a time of 15:18. Russell was second at 15:33. Also finishing in the top 15 were Jay Swartwout, who placed 11th with a time of 15:59 and Jeff Landon, who was 14th with a time of 16:07. The top 15 finishers received medals.

Rogers City came in a distant third with 134 points as the regional became a two team race between Charlevoix and Clare. Clare had three runners in the top 15.

Charlevoix will now participate in the state finals Saturday at Haslett.

Also last week, the Rayders won the Gaylord Invitational for Class C-D teams. The Rayders finished with 29 points to easily outdistance runnerup Rogers City.

Drenth and Russell ran 1-2 again. Drenth had a time of 16:13 and Russell 16:33. Swartout was sixth with a time of 17:10, Landon was ninth at 17:22, Clay Patrie was 12th at 17:32, Jim Landon was 21st at 18:03 and Jim Duke was 22nd at 18:03.3.

Frosh bow

Cheboygan's freshman football team scored a 30-16 triumph over Charlevoix, thus bringing to a close the Rayder's season.

Cheboygan built up a 22-0 lead before the Rayders could get on the board in the third quarter on a 20 yard pass from Scott Kelly to Keith Bales. Jim Buchanan added the conversion. In the fourth quarter, a 45 yard pass from Kelly to Dave Buday set up a three yard scoring romp by Buchanan, who again added the two point conversion.

Despite finishing the season at 1-5, Coach Chuck Bentley said "the kids were very coachable, played well and I consider them a quality team."

Cagers regain share of lead in conference race

Just when it looked like St. Ignace would take charge in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference girls basketball race, a strange thing happened. The Saints lost to Boyne City last week, 54-50.

That loss enabled the Charlevoix Rayders to regain a share of the lead. Both St. Ignace and Charlevoix have sparkling 6-1 league records.

The Rayders, who were beaten at home by the Saints two weeks ago, bounced back with wins over Grayling, 35-32, and Boyne City, 48-44. In both games, the Rayders had to fight desperately to protect slim leads, late in the fourth quarter.

Against Grayling, the Rayders trailed, 12-10, after the first quarter and, 16-14, at half before coming alive to overtake the Vikings. The Rayders grabbed a 28-22 lead in the third quarter and then hung on for the victory.

High scoring sophomore Melinda Klooster was held to eight points. Teresa Noirot also chipped in with eight points. For Grayling, Sherri Reed and Karen Hansen had 10 points each.

Against Boyne City, the Rayders appeared to have it a little easier...up until the final eight minutes. Charlevoix led 10-6 after the first quarter, 25-17 at half and 42-33 after the third quarter. But in the final quarter Boyne City fought back and almost caught the Rayders. The Ramblers cut the margin to two points with just over 30 seconds to play, but Sherrie Selissen connected on two pressure free throws and then stole the ball shortly afterwards to preserve the win. Selissen finished with 12 points while Klooster tallied 26 points to pace both teams.

Boyne City was led by Sarah Brieker with 14 points and Ginni Scott and Becky Aimesbury with 10 each.

Boyne City played without the services of center Dawn Tims, the Ramblers leading scorer, who is out with an ankle injury.

Overall, the Rayders are 10-2 on the season. Besides losing to St. Ignace, the Rayders have only been beaten by Inland Lakes. And Inland Lakes has lost only to St. Ignace. The Rayders host Gaylord Tuesday.

In junior varsity play, Charlevoix beat Grayling, 35-15, and Boyne City, 43-30.

Ski clinics offered through Charlevoix schools

The Charlevoix Adult and Continuing Education Program in cooperation with Silent Sports North will be offering cross country ski clinics.

The first clinic will cover the different kinds of skis, boots, poles, bindings and clothing for the recreational cross country skier. A certified instructor will demonstarate the proper techniques the "do's and dont's" of cross country skiing. The clinic will be held indoors, with an informal setting. There will be time for discussion and questions. There is no age limit.

The second clinic will cover cross country ski construction (what to look for when you invest in skis, boots, bindings, poles,) etc. "know how" of cross country ski equipment; waxing demonstration, explanation of the principle of waxing and how to use different waxing systems.

Questions and discussions from the audience will be encouraged at both clinics. Both clinics are free (no charge) and will meet on Monday, Nov. 6th, and Monday, Nov. 13th, at the high school study hall from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Soccer

In the Northwest Michigan Youth Soccer League last week, Leutheuser's beat Artvark, 4-2. Jim Ciuk scored all four goals for Leutheuser's while Linda Ciuk and Kent Seymour had a goal apiece for Artvark.

Artvark later on beat Boyne City, 3-1. Mike Steele, Linda Ciuk and Mike Chew scored goals.

Leutheuser's beat Gaskin's, 3-0, as Jim Ciuk had two goals and Jerry Clark had one.

On Nov. 2 at 5 p.m. at the Petoskey soccer field, the Charlevoix and Petoskey all-stars will meet.

Meet Charlevoix

...George Ebenhoeh

George Ebenhoeh is Deputy Friend of the Court for Charlevoix County. This week he tells the Courier what his job entails and how he handles some of the problems that arise.

COURIER: Who is your immediate superior?

EBENHOEH: The Prosecuting Attorney, Scott Beatty. Charlevoix and Emmet Counties are the only two counties in Michigan where the Prosecuting Attorney serves as Friend of the Court.

COURIER: How did you get your job?

EBENHOEH: I was appointed by the Circuit Judge, Martin Breighner, and the then Prosecuting Attorney, Roy Hayes.

COURIER: What are your duties?

EBENHOEH: We are the protecting agency for the rights of minor children in actions of divorce, separate maintenance, and paternity actions. We deal basically with custody, support, and visitation.

COURIER: How do you decide who should have custody of the children in divorce cases?

EBENHOEH: In most cases we follow what the parents have agreed to if it is in the best interest of the kids. Usually their decision is satisfactory with us. If they can't agree, then we step in.

COURIER: What are the most difficult cases?

EBENHOEH: When both parents have financial stability and can provide the proper upbringing for the kids.

COURIER: Is there a trend toward fathers getting custody of the children?

EBENHOEH: Not really. In my case load, I've had only four disputed cases in two years where the father was given custody. Sometimes the older boys go with the father and the younger children stay with the mother by mutual agreement.

COURIER: How is the amount of support money determined?

EBENHOEH: It is generally based on a percentage of net wages – 20 percent for one child and 10 percent for each child thereafter. It can fluctuate either way depending on whether both parents are working and the financial situation of the family before the divorce.

COURIER: How is support money collected?

EBENHOEH: It is paid to the Friend of the Court. We deposit it in the bank and then write a check to the parent.

COURIER: What about, Aid to Dependent Children cases?

EBENHOEH: We have 129 active ADC cases in the county and 285 non-ADC cases, for a total of 414 collection cases.

COURIER: What kind of money are we talking about?

EBENHOEH: The total collection through the Friend of the Court in Charlevoix County last year was $468,736.33. This includes both ADC and non-ADC cases. Of this amount, $81,995 was ADC money. We turned this ADC money over to the Department of Social Services and they reimbursed us 15 percent for collecting it.

COURIER: What about visitation rights in divorce cases?

EBENHOEH: That's a big problem, probably the most time-consuming. We can spend two or three hours in a day trying to solve the problem for a weekend, then the next visiting weekend have the same problem. It's an on-going type of thing.

COURIER: What would be a general type of visiting schedule?

EBENHOEH: It might consist of alternate weekends, alternate holidays, and some extended period of time during the summer vacation.

COURIER: What is the main problem affecting children in a divorced family?

EBENHOEH: Lack of communication between the two parties, which puts the kids in the middle. Many people go into divorce action thinking it will alleviate the problems they face. That's not realistic. What generally happens is that the problems are never solved, communication gets worse, and the children are put in the situation of being tools used by one parent against the other. People don't usually know they are doing it because they're so wrapped up in their emotions. We see so much of this that we're now using the area counseling agencies more than ever. We're fortunate in having the counseling agencies we have – CHIP, The Counseling Place, and the Petoskey Area Counseling Center. They can handle a lot of problems that are not best served by a court system.

COURIER: What age group of children do you think are hardest hit by divorce?

EBENHOEH: Probably from five to 10. This is the developmental period when they are in need of contact with both parents. Most parents don't realize the emotional effect divorce has on children. In most cases, if asked, the children's preference would be to have both parents under one roof.

COURIER: Where did you grow up?

EBENHOEH: In a small farming community outside Saginaw called Indiantown. I went to a two-room country school with grades one through five in one room and six through eight in the other room. Then I went to Saginaw High School and Saginaw Valley State College, where I majored in business administration and sociology. I also took several law classes. In fact, I almost went into law.

COURIER: What do you do when you're not working?

EBENHOEH: I do some things with Big Brothers/Big Sisters and go fishing. I go fishing almost every day. It's my way to get away.

COURIER: Where do you fish?

EBENHOEH: Usually off the Charlevoix pier, but I also travel all over the state, even the Upper Peninsula. I go out about half an hour before daybreak, at noon, and in the evening if I don't have anything else to do.

COURIER: What do you do with all the fish you catch?

EBENHOEH: Keep a few, give them away, or throw them back. I forgot to mention that I also make custom fishing poles for my friends and myself.

COURIER: You sound like you like living in Charlevoix.

EBENHOEH: I do. I really enjoy it. I miss my friends downstate but like coming back to Charlevoix after a weekend away.

COURIER: Are you married?

George Ebenhoeh

EBENHOEH: Yes, to Constanee Podadouplous. We live on Pine Point.

Harvest bazaar Nov. 4

Anticipating the 6th annual Community Fair-Harvest Bazaar, many households in the port of Elk Rapids are busy putting the final touches to the many items which will be on display and for sale Nov. 4th at the Town Hall, River and Spruce streets, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Many organizations and individuals are participating in the six hour fun filled fair and it will be a good place to meet your friends and purchase many of your Christmas gifts, to stop for refreshments of hot dogs, home made cherry pie and coffee, organizers say.

Among the articles for sale will be handing planters, wooded Christmas trees, stools and many wood products, quilts, pillows, hand made fancy work, dolls; candles, mixed craft, stained glass, framed photography, Christmas decorations, jewelry, an old fashioned country store, assorted cheeses and sausage, cook books filled with favorite recipes from our own area homemakers, stuffed toys, a grab bag for the children and cider from apples from White's orchards, pressed in a antique-hand press (bring your own containers).

A special temptation will be the baked goods of all kinds from the kitchens of area ladies, made from their favorite recipes. Also candy, peanut brittle and hand dipped chocolates.

Everyone is invited to come to the fair.

This year's fair is sponsored by the Elk Rapids Area Historical Society.

Mrs. Levin visits here

Barb Levin, wife of U.S. Senate hopeful Carl Levin, was in Charlevoix recently to campaign on behalf of her husband.

Charlevoix was just one of several stops for the energetic brunette on this whirlwind tour of northern Michigan prior to the Nov. 7 general election.

James Russell Ogden, Margaret (Berg) Ogden and Dr. Russell Ogden.

Ogdens receive awards

Margaret (Berg) Ogden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berg of Meadowlane, is pleased with "her outstanding men of the moment" both of whom received awards at the Annual College of Business Honors Banquet held at the Hilton Inn in Plymouth, Michigan, before a crowd of approximately 500 professors, parents, and businessmen in attendance.

Mrs. Ogden's husband, James Russell, was named Outstanding Student of the Year in the College of Business while her father-in-law, Dr. Russell L. Ogden, was named Outstanding Teacher of the Year at the same function. James was the first recipient of the coveted Dr. Louis Grazziano Award and a check for $50 while Dr. Ogden received a certificate and an award of $500. James is a senior at Eastern Michigan University and will graduate with a Bachelor of Business Education degree in December and his father is a professor at the same college.

Additional honors were bestowed upon Dr. Ogden and his son, James when Jim was elected president of the Alpha Kappa Psi (professional business) fraternity. His father is faculty advisor for the same fraternity. Peggy's husband was also named to Who's Who Amongst American College Students while Dr. Ogden was named to Who's Who in the Midwest for 1978.

James Ogden also received the 1978 All Campus Student Services Award of $300 which recognizes outstanding students on the Eastern Michigan University campus. Dr. Ogden was named Outstanding Educator of the Year for 1978 by students in the College of Business.

Mrs. Margaret (Berg) Ogden is enrolled currently in a masters program at Eastern Michigan University and works for the Ypsilanti Public Schools.

C&O abandonment denied

The Northwest Michigan Regional Planning Commission announced today that Federal officials have ruled against en attemp to abandon all Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad service in Northwest Michigan.

The application filed by the C & O in March 1975 to discontinue its operations from Manistee to Bay View near Petoskey was denied. Federal Interstate Commerce Commission Law Judge Horwich agreed with local rail users and government officials that this service is necessary and that discontinuation would be damaging to the economy.

The judge did decide however, that C & O service from Williamsburg to Elk Rapids could be discontinued because it was neither a profitable operation nor of public necessity.

Hearings were held by the Interstate Commerce Commission in Traverse City for 10 days last March to hear the C & O case and to allow rail users and other interested groups an opportunity to indicate to the Judge their concerns. The Northwest Regional Commission was instrumental in encouraging and assisting rail users and communities to participate at those hearings. 38 representatives of business and government testified against the proposed abandonment, in what the C & O legal counsel admitted at the time would definitely be an important factor influencing the final decision. One hundred and forty six miles of railroad trackage in the counties of Manistee, Benzie, Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Kalkaska, Antrim, Charlevoix, and Emmet were being considered for abandonment.

For further information please call Allan Rappuhn at 946-5922.

Marcella Jackimowicz

GAYLORD – Marcella A. Jackimowicz, daughter of Edythe Jefferies, Lot 1; Box 1, Lears Road, Petoskey, 49770, has entered the United States Air Force's Delayed Enlistment Program (DEP).

According to Staff Sergeant Ryan K. Renz, the Air Force recruiter here, Ms. Jackimowicz's entry into the DEP serves two purposes. First, it allows the Air Force to schedule an opening for her to attend basic training and be assigned to a job or skill area. Second, the DEP enables Ms. Jackimowicz, a 1978 graduate of Petoskey High School, to wrap up her personal affairs before leaving home.

Ms. Jackimowicz will enter the Regular Air Force on Nov. 7th.

BICENTENNIAL PROJECT
CHARLEVOIX GARDEN CLUB 1976

Pere' Charlevoix Park which overlooks Lake Michigan.

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club has received recognition from the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, Inc., for its development of a mini-park, known as the Pere' Charlevoix Park, overlooking Lake Michigan at the west end of Dixon Avenue.

The local club received a Certificate of Award for the landscape design of the park which was done as a bicentennial project.

The mini-park located on a bluff overlooking Lake Michigan has an attractive low fence along the edge of the bluff, low shrubbery and small liberty trees, boulders typical of the glacier age on which is mounted a bronze plaque and benches for the convenience of people who use the park.

The park is named for Pierre Francois Xavier de Charlevoix, a Jesuit priest and one of the earliest historians of New France, who passed the spot in his search for the "sea to the west" and for whom the city of Charlevoix is named.

According to research done on the project, Louis IV, King of France, appointed Pere' Charlevoix to the double mission of determining the exact extent of the English possessions in Canada and discovering the overland route to the sea to the west, the Pacific Ocean.

Pere' Charlevoix with two canoes carrying eight attendants and one companion left Montreal May 21, 11721, came through the rapids of the St. Lawrance River, reached Niagara Falls, skirted Lake Erie and arrived in Detroit June 6, 1721. He and his party left Fort Ponchortrain at Detroit June 18, 1721, and arrived at Fort Michilimackinac on June 28 after passing the length of Lake Huron. Here he was told of "the sea of the West" but because the stories conflicted, he chose to travel the length of Lake Michigan enroute to the Mississippi river. He arrived in New Orleans in January 1722 and returned to France in 1723.

It is not known if Pere' Charlevoix and his party stopped at the site of the park dedicated in his honor but it is known that his party, traveling via canoe, passed this way.

The plaque commemorating this event in history, is mounted on one of the granite boulders and bears the following legend: Dedicated to Pierre Francois Xavier de Charlevoix, Jesuit Missionary, Teacher and Historian, 1682-1761 who passed these shores in 1721. Bicentennial Project, Charlevoix Garden Club 1976.

The plaque bearing this information is the only one in the city which relates the history of the community's unusual name. Earlier, until the building was razed, a sign painted on the old Birnkrant building at Bridge Street and Park Avenue contained the information in more detail. The late Earl A. Young had had it placed there many years ago.

The two granite boulders which mark the site have their own history. Classified as glacial erratics, they probably originated from the Canadian Shield areas of Northern Michigan and Canada. They were gouged out of the bedrock and transported by glaciers during the recent Pleistocene glaciations.

Less than 100 feet to the north of the park at the site of the former Beach Hotel an archaeological dig conducted by Dr. Clelland, curator of Anthropology at Michigan State University was identified as the camp site of Woodland Indians (c.a. 400-600 A.D.). From the remains of pottery, projectiles and plant findings, it was concluded that the Indians of the period lived in the area in large fishing villages in the spring, summer and early fall and then, as winter approached, moved inland as family groups to become hunters. Distinctive pottery shards found on the same site are known as Mackinaw ware and have been dated as Middle Woodland (c.a. 400-600 A.D.) through Late Woodland (C.A. 1000-1600 A.D.). The culture, it was determined, was a local origin and not brought down from the north as previously thought.

The concept of the park was initiated by Mrs. Charles Bleha, then president of the club. A club committee developed the idea; Medusa Cement Co. and Charlevoix County provided the boulders; John Campbell, landscape architect, assisted with the design and plantings; Charlevoix city workman assisted at various phases of the development as did Swanson K & D Contracting and numerous individuals.

When Governor Milliken promises jobs ...
... He delivers

103,725 more persons in Northern Michigan have jobs today because Milliken has been doing his

The Promise:
Until all citizens of this state are provided with an opportunity to hold a job, the creation of additional permanent employment will be my administration's number one priority

The Performance:
Total employment since 1970 in northern Michigan has increased by 40 percent—one of the fastest growth rates in the nation

The Promise:
As a native of northern Michigan, I have maintained an unwavering commitment to this area of the state throughout my career. That commitment continues whether it is in pursuit of balanced growth, saving the railroads or building better roads

The Performance:
Northern Michigan now is experiencing unprecedented population gains and community growth. The region's total transportation network is regarded as a model which other states are following. The Milliken administration has saved more than 800 miles of railroad track that would otherwise have been abandoned in outstate Michigan

The Promise:
We will maintain a balance which will allow for creation of jobs without destroying those qualities which have made northern Michigan such a desirable place to live

The Performance:
The Milliken administration has fought nuclear dumping and Seafarer. It has made Michigan one of the first states to ban throwaway beverage containers. It has targeted more than $1.2 billion to clean up Michigan waters.

The Promise:
"Just as a family must live within its means, government, too, must not spend more than it collects in revenues."

The Performance:
Tax cuts initiated by Gov. Milliken saved Michigan taxpayers $500 million this year alone. Michigan has been living within the limits proposed in the tax limitation proposal which Milliken supports.

Milliken ...
A leader you can continue to trust.

Garden Club has meeting

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club met this week at the home of Mrs. Conrad Klooster as hostess and Mrs. Dennis Joy – co-hostess.

Regular business was taken care of and a workshop planned for the next meeting – which will consist of making flower arrangements from weeds and dried flowers; and tray favors for patients at the hospital for Christmas. This meeting will take place at the First State Bank Community Room at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 14th, with Nancy Fowler, Jan Glass, and Carol Stephan heading up the arrangements.

After the meeting Mr. Helmuth Schulz, Jr. of Petoskey and owner of a certified backyard habitat gave a lesson and slide picture viewing titled "Backyard Wildlife Habitat".

Refreshments were enjoyed by all afterwards.

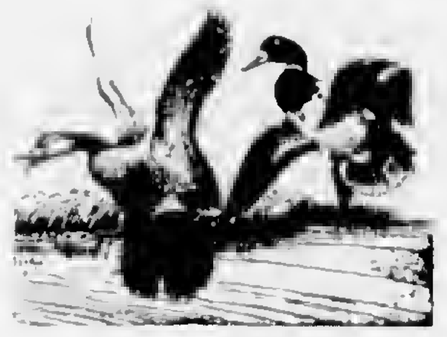
Duck Stamps are rare



Design for the First Federal Duck Stamp 1934

By PEG OHLE

Each year, hundreds of thousands of Federal Duck Stamps are sold to people who have no intention of trying to shoot down a waterfowl.

They are collectors of Duck Stamps, a very special group of collectors because only 45 Federal Duck Stamps have been issued, one per year, since they were started in 1934.

The first Federal Duck Stamp (correctly called "Migratory Bird Hunting Stamp") cost $1. The price has risen steadily to this year's $5 fee, which makes for a rather expensive collector's stamp, especially if bought in four-stamp corner blocks.

A spokesman for the Charlevoix Post Office reports that so far this year they have sold 58 Duck Stamps for the season that started Oct. 11, but "not too many" to collectors. However, enough stamps are apparently sold throughout the country to make their collecting big business.

The Department of Interior prints enough stamps, about 13 million, to meet expected demands each year, and always adds a few extras. Some of the best centered sheets go to the Philatelic Sales Agency of the Post Office, as do the returns from local post offices. Every year's issue eventually sells out at a face price and goes on the secondary market, where collectors bid the price up. Obviously, a complete collection of Duck Stamps can become very valuable.

The first Federal Duck Stamp was designed by J.N. "Ding" Darling, a native of Norwood who was recently honored by the Charlevoix Historical Association. A reprint of that design accompanies this story. All the monies collected from the sale of Federal Duck Stamps go toward the acquisition of refuges and marsh areas for protection of migratory birds and waterfowl.

The Federal Duck Stamp should not be confused with the Michigan Waterfowl Hunting Stamp, which is also required of bird hunters in the state.

Alice Himebauch

Funeral services for Alice Himebauch, 58, who died Wednesday at Little Traverse Hospital where she had been a patient for three weeks, were held Saturday at the First Baptist church of Charlevoix. The Rev. Daniel Abner officiated. Interment was in the Barnard Cemetery.

Born in Charlevoix May 27, 1920, Miss Himebauch had always resided here with the exception of years spent in Detroit where she was employed. She had attended the Phelps school. For many years she was employed at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. She was a member of the First Baptist Church and the Missionary Society.

She is survived by two brothers, Clarence of Charlevoix and William of Harbor Springs and three sisters, Mrs. Albert (Florence) Elliott of Dallas, Tex., Mrs. Larry (Lucy) LaCroix of Grand Ledge and Mrs. Joseph (Lucille) Maxian of LaGrange, Ill.

The family suggests anyone wishing to honor her memory contribute in her name to the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix or the Charlevoix County Chapter of the American Cancer Society.

Mary Ellen Boughton

Funeral services for Mrs. Alfred F. (Maryellen) Boughton, 54, of Boyne City, who died Sunday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital where she had been a patient for four days, were held Tuesday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. W. F. Lawrence of the Church of God at Traverse City and the Rev. Dale Turner of the Missionary Church of East Jordan officiated. Interment was in the Brookside Cemetery.

Mrs. Boughton, the former Maryellen Howe, was born in Charlevoix July 6, 1924. She was married to Mr. Boughton in Ohio in 1940. They resided in Charlevoix until 1949 and later lived in the Ypsilanti and Wayne areas of southern Michigan, East Jordan for 12 years, St. Clair Shores and, for the past five months, in Boyne City. She was a member of the Church of God in Kalkaska which her husband serves as pastor.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Alfred G. of Blackwood, N.J.; two daughters, Mrs. Forest (Carolyn) Latendresse of Mt. Clemens and Mrs. Preston (Mary) Laisure of Ellsworth; four grandchildren; her mother, Mrs. Robert Howe of Charlevoix and two sisters, Mrs. Edward (Dorothy) Kaske of Charlevoix and Mrs. Doris Steenburgh of Madison Heights.

"How can you tell if the person at your door is really a Michigan Bell Employee?"

As you may have noticed, our employees do not wear uniforms. They dress in the way they think is most appropriate to get their jobs done. While this permits them to look like the individuals they really are, it really doesn't help you identify them as Bell employees. But, there is a way. Every Bell employee who comes to service your phone is required to carry a Michigan Bell identification card giving his or her name, photograph and signature. For your protection, ask to see this card before you admit them into your home. They'll be happy to show it to you.

CPR could help save a life

John Martin instructs Shirley Breeze...

...on Resusci Annie

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

Check the eyes, the pulse.

Nothing.

Open the airway and give four short breaths.

Move quickly to measure two fingers above the tip of the sternum on the chest. Begin compressions. Compress 15 times.

Two more breaths.

Back to the chest. Compress 15 times. Two breaths, 15 compressions. Back and forth until help arrives.

These are not stage directions for actors on TV's "Emergency."

These are the instructions some 75 Charlevoixans will have followed during the CPR (cardiopulmonary-resuscitation) course offered through the Charlevoix High School's Adult and Continuing Education Classes this semester.

Taught by members of the Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department (police officer Robert Tripp taught the first class), every Thursday evening, groups of 12 to 15 citizens have been learning this life saving procedure.

They have also been taught the Heimlich Manoeuvre, sometimes called "the Bear Hug of Life".

The classes are small, limited to no more than 15, according to Roy Fortin, assistant principal and director of Adult and Continuing Education.

Every student gets an opportunity to try the Heimlich Manoeuvre on another.

During each class students have heard dramatic and true stories of someone who has choked on a piece of food and been saved by another who knew this emergency procedure.

The technique is relatively simple to learn once a few vital basic steps have been explained.

CPR, on the other hand, requires practice and careful adherence to its ABC's (airway, breathing and compression), as each instructor has taught.

Resusci Annie, a life-like mannequin is the practice victim, for the compression (closed chest heart massage), which simply cannot be practiced on a healthy person – it would be dangerous.

Each student learns to give Annie mouth to mouth resuscitation and chest compressions alone and in tandem. Solo work is difficult and tiring, but masterable with practice. Team work requires coordination between the two resourcers and is no easy job either.

With Resusci Annie lying on the floor and such veteran CPR instructors as volunteer fireman John Martin instructing, the atmosphere is as serious as any class room of students anywhere.

Roy Fortin said the classes will be offered again next semester the demand is so heavy.

Instructors have observed that the response of local people to the classes is particularly appropriate since Charlevoix is a community with a lot of water sport activities.

Guild to have X-Mas Showcase on Nov. 8-9 at hospital

It's that time again...the time when people begin to think of Christmas.

With this in mind, the Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Area Hospital has announced its annual pre-Christmas showing at the Showcase, the gift shop operated by the Guild at the hospital. The event will be held at the Showcase at the lobby of the hospital from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 8 and 9.

As in the past, the stock to be offered at this time was purchased with Christmas in mind... items that range from the daintiest of earrings to the toys pictured above. In between are a host of practical gifts for the men on your list, lovely as well as practical items for the lovelies in your family and others for young fry, hugable musical toys to the larger members of the make-believe zoo that make a wonderful room-mate for youngsters from two to 20.

In fact, there's a bit of everything to be found at the Showcase...men's kits, clever coffee cups, lucite cutting boards, photo albums, writing materials of every description, costume jewelry of all kinds and , oh yes, even decorations for the Christmas tree.

These are only a few of the many, many gift suggestions to be found at the Showcase which will be open from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. during the two-day pre-holiday showing. On other days, the shop is open during the afternoon and evening visiting hours at the hospital for the convenience of patients and visitors.

The Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Area Hospital is a service organization dedicated to the support of the hospital and the parents. The Guild is presently headed by Mrs. William Squire of Boyne City wh said of the forthcoming event "We welcome your support of the Guild in its pre-holiday showing at the Showcase. By supporting the Guild in this endeavor, you are supporing your hospital for any funds raised through the project go to some hospital-related effort on the part of the Guild."

The Guild has pledged $15,000 to the current fund campaign for the expansion and renovation of the hospital.

"In addition to our regular services to the hospital and patients, we must now meet this obligation which we feel is of the utmost importance to the hospital. Your support of our pre-holiday showing at the Showcase next Wednesday and Thursday (Nov. 8 and 9) will help us meet our obligation for the betterment of an already fine primary care hospital. We will expect to see you there. In fact, we'll even join you in a cup of coffee," Mrs. Squire said in conclusion.

Mrs Gordon L. Freedman and Mrs. Willinm Fochtman are the buyers for the Showcase. Mrs. Floyd Brown is organizing a corps of workers for the two-day showing.

HAPPINESS is a zoo of stuffed animals and Nika Martin is enjoying every minute of her own private meeting with these occupants of the Showcase at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. They are among the many, many gift suggestions that will be offered at the pre-Christmas showing at the Showcase sponsored by the Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Area Hospital on Nov. 8 and 9.

Eugene Beer among top bus drivers in state

Charlevoix County's Eugene Beer, driver for the county's small-bus program for elderly and handicapped persons, has been named among the top drivers in the state by the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation Arthur Saworski, who heads the program in the county, has announced.

Beer, who has been driver for 3½ years, ranked third among 31 small bus drivers from across the state who competed recently in the third annual small-bus "roadeo" in Lansing.

Beer scored 588 points, one less than the second place winner, out of a possible 700 points.

Dennis Vannest of Gladwin Dial-a-ride Transportation (DART) placed first with 612 points. Dennis Jolly of Ludington DART was second with 589 points.

The competition included a written test covering the rules of the road and driving attitudes for bus drivers, a pre-trip inspection of the bus and a driving test through a course set up with specific driving problems.

Twelve officers from Lansing area law enforcemnt agencies were the judges.

The "roadeo" is co-sponsored by the Department of State Highways and Transportation and the Michigan Public Transit Association to encourage drivers of small buses to drive carefully and to provide the best service and courtesy to customers.

Big Turnout: Milliken, Levin, Kelley, Austin, Davis are winners, Ostling, Andrews and Irwin hold leads Michigan voters Tuesday re-elected William Milliken to a third term as governor. But Milliken's Traverse City sidekick, Robert Griffin, was not so fortunate.

Griffin lost in his bid for a third term in the U.S. Senate – to Carl Levin, former president of the Detroit City Council.

Voters also put Secretary of State Richard Austin and Attorney General Frank Kelly back in office.

Locally, ballots were still being counted at several county clerk offices this morning, but it appeared Ralph Ostling and Steve Andrews had been elected as representatives in the 103rd and 106th districts, respectively.

In the 37th state senate race, Democrat Mitch Irwin was leading Republican Rod Brown, but the race was still too close to call. Robert Davis, the present representative in the 37th district, was elected to the U.S. Congress in the 11th district. Davis defeated Keith McLeod of Marquette.

Meanwhile, voters rejected Proposals H and J, more commonly known as the Voucher Plan and the Tisch Amendment. The Voucher Plan would have allowed public education funds to go directly to parents for the purpose of enrolling their children in the public, private or parochial school of their choice. The Tisch Amendment would have put a ceiling on the state equalized valuation of property.

Although Proposal E, the Headlee Amendment, was winning, it was still too early to tell if the proposal would pass. The Headlee Amendment would put a limit on state revenues and expenditures.

Voters did approve Proposals B, C, D, G, K and M. Proposal A was defeated and Proposal R was losing but it was still too close to call. Proposal D raises the drinking age to 21.

In Charlevoix County, voters in the City of Charlevoix's 2nd Ward returned Oscar Ward to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners. Ward beat Republican challenger Marjanne Thomure, 319-172. Voters in Boyne City's 1st Ward ousted incumbent Martin Paul. Instead Casimir Toton will represent the ward on the county board. Toton beat Paul, 199-189.

Townships races were few and far between. In Wilson Township there may be a recount as Harvey Crozier edged Raymond Guzniczak, 145-143, for supervisor. In the clerk's race, Jo Ann Baker beat Karen Guzniczak, 135-118.

In Norwood Township, Evelyn Farrell beat John Sebastian for supervisor, 123-70. Sebastian, the present supervisor, was running as a write-in candidate. In the clerk's race, Nancy Ritsema downed Del Swartwout, 142-79.

In Hudson Township, Celia Sevenski defeated Bonnie Spurks for clerk, 97-30.

In Peaine Township, Edward Palmer was on the ballot as a candidate for trustee. But Palmer was elected supervisor as a write-in candidate. He beat Stanley Ford, 47-33. Al Dudzek won the trustee seat Pabner had filed for with 37 votes.

At 6 a.m. this morning, 31 of 34 precincts had been reported in Charlevoix. Officials were only waiting on results from East Jordan.

Over 7,000 people voted in the county Tuesday. And the county tabulations resemble, pretty much, how the rest of the state voted.

Charlevoix County voters favored William Milliken and James Brickley over William Fitzgerald and Olivia Maynard, 3,619-3,145. Carl Levin also won support here. Levin was leading Griffin 3,471-3,210. Frank Kelly and Richard Austin both had big leads over Steve Brandsdorfer and Mel Larsen. Kelly was ahead 3,992-2,394 while Austin enjoyed a 4,159-2,274 bulge here.

Robert Davis enjoyed a substantial lead over McLeod, 4,159-2,431, in the 11th congressional race. In the 37th state senate race, county voters had Rod Brown in front of Mitch Irwin, but just barely, 3,323-3,162.

In the two state legislative districts, Ralph Ostling was leading Barbara Anderson, 2,565-1,831, while Steve Andrews was ahead of Ed Hier, 1,013-874

The county tax limitation proposal was winning 3,559-2,599.

On the 11 state proposals, county voters were favoring B, C, D, E, K, M, G and R. The tally on Proposal D was 3,938-2,877. On Proposal E it was 4,141-2,615.

Voters here were rejecting Proposals A, H and J. The Voucher Plan was losing 1,785-4,934 and the Tisch Amendment was failing 2,915-3,776.

School starts selecting task force

The first members were named to the Task Force being organized by the Charlevoix Board of Education at the regular meeting of the board Monday night.

At the same meeting, two middle school basketball coaches were named; an earlier starting time for the middle school discussed and permission granted the Drama Club for an overnight trip.

The first appointees were those recommended by various units of government and the three schools with recommendations still to come from Hayes and Charlevoix townships.

Mrs. Dorothy Stoel will represent Marion township on the Task Force; Mrs. Terry Jaskerski, Norwood township; Larry Feindt, Jr., the city of Charlevoix; Mrs. Edward Weliver, the high school; Mrs. Donald Trimper, the middle school and Mrs. Dennis Joy, the K-5 school.

Members-at-large named were Dennis Spence, Mrs. John Pearl, Mrs. Robert Lieberman, Leroy Buchanan, Thomas Erber and Thomas LaBlance. A seventh member will be named at a later date.

Supt. Gordon VanWieren was asked to begin working with the group. They are charged with determining how best to approach the problem of the overcrowding at the high school. Proposed building programs that would enlarge the present building have been turned down by the voters.

Supt. VanWieren again outlined the methods used by the school to make a decision regarding the schools in the event of inclement weather. After the business manager, Vincent Olach, has traveled the major bus routes via jeep, he said, a decision is made by 6:15 a.m. regarding the opening of school. The decision, if school is to be closed, will then be announced on area radio stations and the television station at Traverse City. He advised parents not to call the radio stations but to listen to them for information. "If parents are on the phone to the station, we can't get through to the station" he explained.

The proposed earlier starting time at the middle school was discussed at length. Olach and Bud Heeres, transportation supervisor had done some work on the request which Olach presented at the meeting. He outlined the present system in use whereby high school students ride the earlier buses and the middle and elementary students other buses at a later hour. He said an average of 248 high school and 220 middle school students ride the buses. With inclement weather, he said, this will increase by approximately 10 percent. Middle school students presently ride the same buses as K-5 students. High school runs presently require five buses. The increased loads would require an additional four buses. He then outlined the formula for reimbursement for transportation costs. The additional four buses would cost approximately $8,000 per semester. He added that this might vary a little but it would increase the cost of transportation.

No action was taken on the issue. However, further research will be done before the decision is made.

Middle school teachers had asked that the board consider the change.

Tori Alger was named seventh and eighth grade girls basketball coach at the middle school and Barry Pierce boys' eighth grade basketball coach. The appointment of a seventh grade boys basketball coach was tabled for the present.

The Rev. Donald Schorsch, pastor of the Assembly of God church, advised the board in a letter that the family would be moving to Huron, S.D., and asked if his daughter, Lori would be permitted to return here to graduate with her class. The request was taken under advisement and a decision will be made later. The board has no policy in this matter.

Permission was given to the Drama students to take an overnight trip to Ferris State College Nov. 8, 10 and 11. Their coach is Mrs. Connie Ford.

A letter from Jerold M. Michaelson, head of the music department on Northern Michigan University, commending the Charlevoix Marching band and its director, Gary Stutzman, for their performance at Marquette on Oct. 14 was read. He also acknowledged the fine treatment given the N.M.U. band when it visited the community early in October.

Mrs. Ardeth Wieland and Max Novak presented brief reports on the recent M.A.S.R. conference they attended in Grand Rapids.

The next meeting of the board is scheduled for Nov. 20.

Community choir to be formed

Plans have been announced for the organization of a community choir which will present a Christmas cantata on Dec. 3.

Members of all choirs in the community and others who would enjoy singing with the group are invited to join the community effort. Steven Stargardt, vocal music instructor in the Charlevoix Schools, will direct the choir.

Present plans call for five rehearsals beginning Nov. 15 at the Community Church of God when those planning to join the choir will rehearse with the choir of the church at 8 p.m.

The others will be at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 21, and 28, Thursday, Nov. 30 and at 2 p.m. on the day of the concert, Sunday, Dec. 3.

The canatata will be "His Love Reaching" by William Gaither and Ronald Huff.

In issuing the call for choir members, the Rev. Walter Hastings of the Community Church of God, said "We are hoping for a choir of 60 voices. We hope that those who can sing will join us in ushering in the holiday season".

The cantata will be presented at the Assembly of God Church at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 3. It will also include a Christmas carol sing.

Charlevoix Yesterday

BACK IN THE EARLY 1900's, when this picture was taken, Charlevoix was an important fishing port. This group of men was employed by Johnny O'Neill, commercial fisherman, who had a dock and fish house behind his home on Dixon Avenue. Among those pictured are Dan Swartz, Clarence Bartlett, Edward O'Neill, Mike Nowland, Louisseau, and Tony DeBoer. Edward O'Neill was the father of Myrtle Fulton, who still lives in Charlevoix. VFW Auxiliary makes donations to VA hospitals

In keeping with their emphasis on community service and Americanism, the Charlevoix V.F.W. Auxiliary made plans in these two areas at a recent meeting.

In the spirit of community service and the V.F.W. motto, "Honor the dead by helping the living", donations were voted to VA hospitals at Battle Creek and Saginaw and to the Charlevoix Christmas project.

Plans were also made to collect small gifts for patients at the State Hospital at Traverse City. Men's gifts are especiully needed this year. Members may bring gifts to the social meeting on Nov. 16 or the next business meeting on Dec. 7.

Mrs. Clarence Goldstick reported on the Voice of Democracy essay contest to be held among 10th, 11th and 12th grade students in the Charlevoix High School. The theme of the essay contest is "Why I Care for America". Final plans for the contest will be announced in the school in the near future.

At the recent meeting, all member were urged to vote in the general election and to assist others in getting to the polls by Mrs. Albert Russell, Legislatuve chairman.

Mrs. Goldstick reported on the recent School of Instruction at Cadillac attended by Mrs. Goldstick and Mrs. Leland Warner; Mrs. Kenneth Staley reported on the recent luncheon sponsored by the Auxiliary.

In order to promote interest in the V.F.W. and the Auxiliary the present membership campaign will be climaxed with a membership potluck supper at the post home at 6 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 11, for members of both organizations and their families, members eligible for re-instatement and prospective new members on Veterans' Day. All are invited to attend and to bring their own table service and a dish to pass. Rolls and beverages will be furnished. In announcing the event, Mrs. Wagner urged both the V.F.W. and the Auxiliary are striving for a 100 percent membership by Dec. 1 in order to qualify for district and state. Dues may be mailed to Mrs. Betty Jackson or Mrs. Clarence Rabach.

Mrs. Melvin Plum was initiated into the organization during an impressive ceremony flag ceremony.

Mrs. Bert Hazel held the winning ticket on the handmade afghan donated by Mrs. Lillian Holm.

During the meeting Mrs. Warner, president, announced that the state V.F.W. Auxiliary had contributed $90,000 for Cancer Research. Cancer research had long been supported by the V.F.W. Auxiliary on a national scale. Cancer insurance is included in the dues paid by members.

Milliken: Carter must help save Great Lakes fishery

Gov. William G. Milliken urged President Carter Thursday to exercise his authority to protect Michigan's Great Lakes fishery resources from unlicensed commercial overfishing.

Milliken said in a letter to Carter that the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service must exercise their powers to:

–Provide "closer scrutiny of those seeking Indian fishing privileges;"

–Ensure that "the intensity commercial, non-state-regulated fishing is controlled."

Noting that the extent of Indian fishing rights is presently under litigation in federal courts, Milliken said that his interest is not to prejudge the results of the suit, but rather to ensure that whatever the outcome, there remains a healthy fishery for present and future generations of both parties.

Milliken said that agreements reached by the state with the Bay Mills and Sault Ste. Marie tribes last month were designed to avert the likelihood of violent confrontations between sports and commercial fishermen.

"These agreements have been substantially adhered to," Milliken said, "and I believe that both sides have shown good faith in this regard. However, we cannot avoid the issue of resource depletion in Michigan waters. It is clear under the present circumstances that the responsibility, as far as the unlicensed side of the fishery goes, lies with the President and the federal agencies."

The text of the letter follows:

"I know that you share my longstanding and sincere concern for the conservation and sound management of our nation's natural resources. I am writing to express my deep concern about the future of Michigan's Great Lakes fishery resources.

In the 1950s and 60s, the Great Lakes fishery resource was virtually destroyed by infestations of the sea lamprey and commercial overharvesting of several fish species. Beginning in the 1960s, a major commitment was made by the State of Michigan and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to eliminate the sea lamprey and restore the fishery to its former stature. In the years that have followed, numerous government agencies, supported strongly by citizen interest groups, have made tremendous gains in restoring the unique resources of our Great Lakes. Massive investments in fish stocking, sea lamprey control and pollution abatement have resulted in a fishery worth well over $300 million annually to Michigan residents.

Years of study and analysis have determined that the Michigan fishery is seriously jeopardized unless two steps are taken:

1. The use of unselective gill nets in commercial fishing is banned; and,

2. Significant limitation on the number of individuals allowed commercial fishing privileges in Great Lakes is imposed.

Michigan has taken the appropriate steps to achieve these goals among fishermen within state jurisdiction. However, there is substantial legal question as to the status of persons claiming treaty rights with the United States as it relates to commercial fishing in the Great Lakes. Federal agencies have generally supported the Indian fishing rights and there is presently pending litigation in the Federal District Court in the Western District of Michigan with respect to those rights. However, I am deeply concerned that during the pendency of that lawsuit, our hard-earned gains may be lost.

This fall I convened a series of meetings among fishermen in the Great Lakes waters as a result of potential incidence of violence. Those meetings resulted in a voluntary restraining of the fishing in portions of Lake Michigan by commercial fishermen from two Indian tribes. The Bureau of Indian Affairs was quite helpful in arranging the meetings and participating in the discussions. However, it is still apparent that substantial stocks are being fished in other waters of the Great Lakes by commercial fishermen who purportedly are outside of the jurisdiction of the state. In the state's view, the Bureau of Indian Affairs has an obligation to provide closer scrutiny of those seeking Indian fishing privileges and approving credentials, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has an obligation to ensure that the intensity of commercial, non-state regulated fishing is controlled to assure optimum sustainable yields.

Beyond the fishing question, there are a number of other problems involving jurisdictional conflicts between the tribes, the federal government, the state and local governments. The federal government must more actively assist the state, local governments and the tribes in resolving differences and promoting cooperation.

As I indicated earlier, the State of Michigan has a vital interest in preserving the fishery resources regardless of the outcome of the present litigation concerning treaty rights. The resource with its benefits for all individuals must remain healthy and productive. I urge you in the strongest possible terms to exercise your authority to ensure the protection of our fishery resource. The Bureau of Indian Affair and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service must exercise their authority so that a meaningful fishery will be maintained during the pendency of what would appear to be extensive litigation.

Your immediate attention to this problem would be of significant interest to the people of Michigan."

Ma Bell: Area travel directory starts next year

Michigan Bell will introduce a new Straits Area Travelers Directory in November of 1979.

Lei Johnson, local Michigan Bell manager, said the new directory "will be a compact travelers' Yellow Pages designed specifically to meet the needs of vacationers and travelers."

She said the new directory will list businesses which serve or aid travelers and vacationers in Petoskey-Charlevoix and surrounding communities.

"Under about 170 headings, the travelers directory will list everything from boat, car, trailer and sporting goods stores to antique dealers, real estate firms, doctors, dentists, beauty shops, laundromats and various repair and rental firms," Miss Johnson said.

She noted that the new book's primary aim is to supplement existing sources of information in a way that will benefit the tourist industry in Michigan, and businesses that cater to tourists and travelers.

The new travelers directory will be available at Michigan Bell public offices, area Chambers of Commerce, the State's Highway Information Centers and the Michigan Travel Bureau offices. Its small size - 6"x9" - will make the travelers directory easy to pack, carry or mail.

Similar directories also are planned for Michigan's northeast and northwest resort areas in the lower peninsula, Miss Johnson said.

Travelers directories are a totally new concept researched and developed by Michigan Bell over the past two years, Miss Johnson said.

She added that surveys of area businesses, county and city officials, Chambers of Commerce and travelers have indicated both interest and need for this type of directory.

Michigan Bell will begin soliciting ads for the new travelers directory this month, Miss Johnson said.

Hunters: High school students to prepare breakfast

Deerhunters are out early on opening day...and waiting for them will be the senior class of Charlevoix High School, ready to serve a deer hunters breakfast on Wednesday morning according to Brenda Boss, president of the class.

The breakfast will be served at the American Legion Post home from 5:30 a.m. until 8:30 a.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 15, and will feature juice, pancake, real maple syrup, sausage and milk or coffee...all you can eat...for $3.00.

Miss Boss and Jean Lenhart, vice president of the class, will be in charge of the dining room; Kathy Cook will be in charge of the kitchen with assistance from Chris Henkle and Geoff Nelson and other members of the class; Lori Schorsch and Lorrie Thorp will serve as hostesses. Sherry Bergmann heads the publicity committee.

Assisting with the planning and purchasing are Mrs. Larry Swanson and Mrs. Herbert Boss. The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club has contributed a gallon of real maple syrup for the project.

Board sets salaries for county officials

The salary schedule adopted by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners recently for elected and appointed officials and non-classified personnel employed by Charlevoix County shows an increase in almost all categories.

Most of the increases amount to seven percent, although there are some exceptions. The Circuit Judge's supplement was increased by $3,295 because the circuit is now being supported by two counties instead of three.

This is how the salary schedule for 1979 looks:

Be sure to give

Pledge cards and cash contributions have been trickling in for this year's United Way of Charlevoix fund campaign.

At last report, just about $7,000 had been collected or pledged. Most of the $7,000 has come from the summer residents.

We are once again asking area residents to give to this worthy fund drive. The goal is $18,000. Without your support that goal will not be reached.

Twelve agencies will benefit directly from your generosity. Each agency has been allocated a cut of the $18,000 pie. They are: Charlevoix City Recreation Program, $500; Bergmann Center, $2,000; Crooked Tree Girl Scout Council, $2,000; D.A.C. Counseling Center, $1,000; Scenic Trails Council Boy Scouts, $1,700; Salvation Army, $1,600; American Red Cross, $1,450; Camp Daggett, $1,000; Big Brothers/Big Sisters, $1,600; Michigan United Way, $2,500; Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood, $1,500; and Area Mental Health Clinic, $1,000.

Please support these agencies. Give the United Way.

Congratulations

Another successful fall sports season has concluded for most of Charlevoix High School's athletic teams. And what a year it was!

The cross country team went 8-0, won the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference for the second consecutive year, won four of six invitationals, placed first in the Class C regional at Clare and finished fifth in the Class C state final at Haslett.

The golf team went 13-0, repeated as champions of the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference, placed third in the Class C regional at Houghton Lake and came in 13th in the Class C state final at Lowell.

The varsity football team went 6-3, and although that was only good for a fourth place finish in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference, the Rayders were able to extend an unbeaten string (over three years) to 16 before losing to Gaylord.

The girls basketball team is 12-2 and presently in a first place with St. Ignace. The two teams will meet in the last regular game of the season Nov. 14.

Not to be overlooked is the fine job done by the Charlevoix Marching Band.

A lot of hard work and dedication went into making the fall sports season a success and we want to congratulate you all.

Council tables rezoning request for condo

The Charlevoix Common Council Monday night tabled action on a rezoning request from Clark Matthews, who would like land adjacent to the Wharf Condominium rezoned from C4 (marine commercial) to R4 (residential).

Matthews proposes a four unit condominium for the property.

Council deliberated for nearly an hour on the request before tabling it until their next meeting.

The Charlevoix Planning Commission recommended the request be denied. Commission members said a special committee was formed to study the waterfront properties on Round Lake and the committee concluded that no more condominium units should be built. The committee reported the town is "boat oriented" and marine use "is more valuable." The Charlevoix Planning Commission disapproved of the rezoning request 6-1.

Council also got an update on renovation progress at Mt. McSauba.

According to Wayne Boss, of Boss Engineering, "The new poles (for the lighting system) are up and the power lines are being laid."

"The new lighting system, which was designed by Josh Barnes of the Lexalite Corp. and most of which is being donated by Lexalite, has been shipped to Lexalite," Boss said in a letter to council.

City crews are in the process of removing the old power lines and poles, and the new lights are expected to be installed soon.

In other action, council:

- Approved a tax exemption for the Charlevoix Manufacturing Company.
- Amended the Lake Michigan Beach project. The city has agreed to a) use the existing roadway to meet handicapped requirements b) construct a concrete walk, with no steps, from the roadway to the bathhouse c) construct a new concrete deck entry to the men's and women's changing area and d) renovate the stool and sink facilities to meet handicapped criteria.
- Renewed a contract with the Charlevoix Garbage Service for waste disposal. The contract will expire in 1982. Council agreed to an eight percent increase in the contract.
- Approved Spiegel & McDiarmid as legal representatives.
- Named Lawrence Feindt as the city's representative to the Charlevoix School District's taks force, which is being assembled to determine what kind of program the community will support to improve the high school building and to determine what is needed to improve the high school building.

Stan different from rest

People:

MILDRED SIEGEL was asked if she thought her son was crazy.

"You think he's crazy?" she replied. "How can you say that about my son? Not because he's my son, but Stanley's a very bright boy. Have you met him? So, tell me, what do you think of him? He's interviewed Madame Nhu. Yes, and Bing Crosby, too. We're so proud of him. Listen, he made it the hard way. Not that there wasn't anything we wouldn't have done for him., but Stanley likes to do things on his own."

That he does, Mrs. Siegel.

Stanley Siegel is a talk-show host, and far different from Johnny Carson, Merv Griffin or Mike Douglas.

In 1972 when he was working for WLUK TV in Green Bay, Wis., Siegel interviewed vice-presidential candidate Sargent Shriver. As soon as the camera started rolling, Siegel eyed Shriver and asked, "How does it feel knowing you are about to be part of the worst defeat of the Democratic party in this century?" Shriver paled on the spot.

Last month on his debut show on WCBC TV he had Henry Fonda as a guest. Before Fonda had a chance to get comfortable, Siegel said, "Mr. Fonda, I hear you're somewhat reluctant to talk about your personal life. Well, I'm not. I'm going to reveal things about myself now, and maybe you'll feel more comfortable and start opening up to us."

Now tell me, would Carson, Douglas or Griffin have the gall - or audacity - to say such things?

Siegel you see, is hoping to have a network talk-show in the future, just like Carson, Douglas, Griffin, Tom Snyder, Dick Cavett, Phil Donahue and Dinah Shore. And wouldn't he be interesting!

A feature story on Siegel appears in the recent issue of New Times Read it. It's enjoyable.

SHERREL PEARSALL BERGMANN, a former Charlevoix resident, has been named Assistant Dean of National College of Education's Foster G. McGaw Graduate School.

Sherrel had been at Lake Forest College where she served as chairperson of the Department of Education, designing and implementing a program for middle school teacher preparation She also serves as a consultant and editor of the teacher's Current Health I, a magazine for middle grades.

She has published articles in several professional journals and serves on the Board of Directors of the Lamb's Farm Institute. Sherrel has been honored as an Outstanding Young Woman of America and has been listed in Who's Who in American Women.

She received a bachelor of arts degree in secondary education from Central Michigan in 1969, a master of education degree from Kent State in 1973 and a doctor of philosophy from Kent State in 1976.

Dr. Bergmann's husband, John, is a civil engineer.

GEORGE HECKENDORN, sales representative for the ECP division of the Daubert Chemical Company, was recently named "Salesman of the Year" at the company's national sales meeting at Itasca, Ill.

Heckendorn, who resides in Charlevoix, was presented an engraved anniversary clock. He was also named a member of the "President's Club." For this honor he received an engraved set of silver wine cordials.

Heckendorn has been a sales representative for the Daubert Chemical Company since 1974.

November not always pleasant

After receiving my first November sunburn over the weekend, I am convinced that weather predicting has to be the most inexact of the inexact sciences.

The thermometer was pushing 80 degrees Sunday morning when I left Charlevoix on my weekly wood cutting expedition. And it was 80-plus in the woods.

Of course, the leaves have long since fallen so there was no shady nooks to cool off. So off came the shirt and the sunburn followed.

So far we have had almost as many nice days in November as we had in September and October combined. And Sunday afternoon's rain was as welcome as a summer shower.

But November has not always been so gentle. Our Jennifer was born on Halloween of 1966, a mild, damp, indifferent sort of day. The following day, Nov. 1, was chilly and on Nov. 2 the temperature plunged to zero and Charlevoix had a foot of snow whipped by 60 knot winds off Lake Michigan.

Needless to say, such an early storm caught city street crews by surprise and few if any city trucks were equipped with snow plows.

After getting stuck several times, I managed to get my car into the driveway and there I left it for the duration. That night I pulled wool hat over my ears and put on a wool jacket with a parka, strapped on my skis and headed for the hospital to see Judy and Jennifer.

Downtown Charlevoix was a trackless waste, without a vehicle or pedestrian in sight. Shop signs creaked and groaned in the wind as I trudged down the middle of Bridge Street and turned right on Antrim.

I was the only visitor at the hospital that night.

En route home, I stopped at the bridge to take off my skis because the sidewalk had been swept clean of snow by the ferocious channel wind. I put my skis on my shoulder and headed across.

Midway I was caught in a tremendous gust which reached under my parka and snapped off my wool ski cap. The last I saw of it, it was sailing into Round Lake.

So moody November can have a mean streak, if you don't treat her right.

I THINK we have all learned more about taxes this election year than we have learned about the candidates.

I for one am mighty upset to think that the State of Michigan grabs almost $1 out of every $10 I earn through 39 different taxing schemes.

And it's not all going to schools. In fact, aside from a little transportation money, the Charlevoix School District – like many Northern Michigan School districts with lots of absentee-owned resort property on the tax rolls – receives virtually nothing from the state to support education. Of course, the Department of Social Services, the Health Department, the Road Commission and other agencies receive some, but $1 out of every $10 of personal income is a bit steep, particulary when you consider that local and federal taxes also are deducted from the same $10 bill.

The Headlee Amendment – if it passes – will help keep the lid on state spending, but the freeze will come at far too high a level.

Needless to say, the work of the tax reformers is far from over. In fact, it has hardly started.

A surprise awakening Sunday morning

My wife was surprised when the clock-radio awoke us at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. I'm in charge of setting the alarm in our home, and I usually don't set it all for Sunday mornings. I figure if God really wants me to go to church, He'll wake me up Himself.

"The race is about to start and I'm not going to sleep through it," I explained. "I'm going to see if I can make it through the wall of pain."

In a few minutes, the Free Press International Marathon would send 2000 runners past my front door. I would be able to see them from every window in our apartment. But would I be able to watch all 2000 of them without once breaking into a trot?

It takes a lot of guts to not run an entire marathon. And this would be my first time to watch a marathon while not running in it. This would be the ultimate test of my determination.

"Compared to this, the Boston Marathon is easy. All I have to do is read about the Boston race and watch it on TV," I said. "I always experience a tremendous urge to fly to Boston and run, but so far I've managed to conquer the temptation while looking for somewhere to park at the airport.

"But this is different. The Detroit marathoners will run on the actual street where I run to catch a bus most mornings. The race is being run on my turf, and still I will make myself sit on the sidelines. It's going to be a terrible 3 hours," I said, getting out of bed.

"Why are you doing it? Pat asked "Why don't you just pull the covers up over your head?"

"I'm doing it to prove to myself that I can do it. If I manage to watch the entire marathon without running once, the feeling of accomplishment will be worth the suffering.

"I feel that this marathon is what I've been training for most of my life. All those hours of sitting when I got home in the evening. Everyone else in the neighborhood was running, and it would have been easy for me to join them. But I didn't, and today is the day when all that sitting is going to pay off."

By this time, thr runners were coming into sight on the street below. Pat suggested that I begin slowly by just taking occasional glances out the window while walking from one chair to another. But I refused to make things easy for myself.

I moved my favorite chair directly in front of the biggest window. I saw it and promised myself not to get up until all 2000 runners had passed by. I even used binoculars to get a better look at the fun I was missing.

Spectators applauded as the runners went by. Complete strangers handed them free drinks. Beautiful women made welcoming gestures. Little children ran alongside for awhile, idolizing the runners. Policemen made cars get out of their way. Bands played and people cheered. It was heady stuff.

As the 874th runner was passing by, Pat heard me groan. She held my hand. "Why do you put yourself through all this suffering?" she asked. "You could be down there running and being adored. Why don't you give up?"

There did come a time when I didn't think I could sit I more minute. My rear end was numb, my right foot was asleep, and I spilled coffee on my lap. The temptation to move was tremendous. But I kept sitting. I kept remembering the doctor who says its good for for your body to punish it.

Actually, I don't remember seeing the last hundred runners. After sitting as long as my body could stand to sit, I sat some more, and that must be when I became euphoric. The next thing I knew Pat was congratulating me on finishing the race. She said she was proud of me.

I really felt good about myself and that's what marathon sitting is all about.

A book not forgotten

When a book you've read in the spring is not forgotten by fall, it is likely that it was a piece worthwile reading.

I found "Five Smooth Stones," by Ann Fairbairn to be a haunting novel of this caliber. First published in 1966, it is not a recent best seller, but operating under the theory better-late-than-never, it is a book well worth passing along with high recommendations.

What was it that made the lasting impression? I've decided that, like "Trinity" it is the song of a hero and the world of 1978 is definitely in the market for some heroes. Ten years ago our country was into an era of crisis, and those kinds of times bring out the best and the worst people can be. Nineteen seventy-eight is mediocre. I hope we can be imaginative enough to think of a way to come up with some heroes without creating anymore crises like the ones Ann Fairbairn's characters realize in "Five Smooth Stones."

The title makes biblical reference to the ageless legend of David, the young shepherd boy who hurls "five smooth stones" from his sling in order to slay the giant Philistine, Goliath. So too, this is an account of a David – David Champlin, a young black boy borne from the ghettos of New Orleans and knighted to manhood. His quest: to serve the cause of his people; his destiny: to fight the forces of prejudice rampant during the Martin Luther King era whether he wants to or not.

I couldn't help making a correlation with a thought from "The Thorn Birds": the bird which seeks its own destruction on the thorn of a tree does so with no knowledge of what it's doing, but when a human being chooses a similar path, he knows, yet does it anyway.

This is simultaneously the story of a young white girl, Sara Kent. Sara is a petite artist-student at Pengard College, the institution which David attends on a "Quimby," the scholarship awarded to Negro students showing unusual promise to succeed. Despite her diminutive size, Sara provides a strong counterpart for the character of David. She is a foil for the portrayal of his dedication to the cause; the Mary Magdalene for his martyrdom. She is his friend, his lover, his strength.

Though only part of the supporting cast, 'Lil Joe, "Gramp," is David's guardian or foster father and a primary source of heritage as well as an inspiration for David. And no reader will be able to forget the professor, Bjarne Knudsen, the benefactor who like Cinderella's fairy godmother, is always there with the financial or influential shot in the arm to encourage otherwise hopeless situations. Gramp and the Professor – as the reader gets to know them he grows to love them, particularly for their love of David.

Two plots interact simultaneously throughout the story. One is the personal struggle of David as he becomes aware of his calling to lead his people against racial injustice. The other is a warm and truly moving love story shrouded by the blight of racial tension. The situation brings to mind a song written by Dan Hill on his "Longer Fuse" album entitled "McCarthy's Day" (Dan Hill is the product of an interracial marriage. His parents were forced to leave the U.S.A. because of the pressures put upon their decision to marry) The song is a dedication to his parents, thanking them for bearing witness to the fact that "love transcends all colors."

The story of David and Sara is a powerfully developed novel of consequence, complete with heart-warming episodes and tears to be shed included in the package. It is a poignant and gripping tale of survival amidst the contrivances of prejudice.

If you missed it as I did the first time around, don't hesitate to add it to your bookshelf now.

Gayle Boss

Living in the south

Gayle Boss, a Charlevoix High School graduate, is in Memphis, Tenn. working as a media intern at the Center for Southern Folklore on a program through Hope College. Gayle sent the following feature story on Southern lifestyle to the Courier, which, incidentally, she receives "as soon as it can get down here by way of the slow Mississippi River barge."

During the last week of August I paid one of those college-style visits home to Charlevoix. That means there was just enough time for dad to fill my gas tank and mom to do my laundry. I was preparing to leave my 21-years of residence in the North (and all of them in Michigan at that) to move south of the Mason-Dixon line to Memphis for a college work-study semester.

Meeting hometown folk I'd known for years in Oleson's parking lot and on Michigan beach and explaining my plans to live and work in Memphis, Tenn. for four months, I got helpful farewell advice like the following:

"Don't get shot with hillbilly rocksalt."

"Sleep in the shade and drink a mint julep for me."

"Watch out for those white-suited Southern gentlemen – they're charmers."

Ornery, slow, smooth, sweet-talkers -- I came south with a Northerner's carpetbag full of Southern stereotypes.

I've been here nine weeks now, and have found that my typically Northern Michigan stereotypes don't quite fit.

From a fellow Northerner, there are some things I've found out about our Southern kinfolk.

They talk a lot. And without pausing between words. (Ask any deep Southerner to say "miles and miles of barbed wire." The garble will sound like it came from a mouth full of marbles.)

They wave their hands wildly as they walk. And they'll hug a complete stranger upon a first meeting.

If not used to that distinctive roll and twang of "rebel" talk, a conversation of over twenty minutes can make Midwestern ears burn. My parents were down for a long-weekend visit in mid-October. After a full day at a crafts fair in a tiny Ozark town, Mom climbed in the car, sighed and said, "I was getting a headache listening to them talk."

All of their questions and continuous comments are part of that renowned "Southern hospitality". A dyed-in-the-wool Yankee is apt to call it down right noisiness!

But their generally friendly, hospitable intentions are pretty soon apparent:

Mr. Simpson of "Simpson's Auto Repair," when finding out that I had driven 1100 miles down here alone, wouldn't take a cent for fixing a dent above my right front tire.

Dino, the owner of a midtown French bakery invited a friend and I back "Thursday week" (a week from Thursday) for homemade lasagna on-the-house to prove to us that he was really Italian.

Mr Waltington, over the Sunday dinner he and his wife had invited me to moments after learning my name, told me why he thinks Southerners are so forward.

"We're warm people," he said. "That's a good way to put it. See, because our weather's so warm we've had a past of keepin' our windows wide open. That means ya hear all yer neighbor's business. And ya sit out on the front porch when it's too hot to do anything else and talk, us'ally about each other. In the North ya'll move so fast or stay inside to stay warm that ya don't have a chance to talk to one another. I think that's why we call Yankees 'cold'."

Now I can't speak for the whole South. I've only lived in one place, and only for nine weeks at that. But even in a city of 650,000 I've found people to be generous, kind, and very polite.

Often a man attending a self-service gas station here will step out and fill up a woman driver's tank as if she were paying for full service. It's not an offense to ERA egalitarianism, just a matter of common courtesy.

There's something to this Southern, down-home hospitality. Call it Southern charm, if you like. But I'm not convinced that Northerners are "cold" by comparison, even if our winters are six months long. I've lived in Charlevoix too long to believe that.

Want to be a chimney sweep? It's easy and messy, too

By MARLENE CASZATT
Extension Home Economist

Legend has it if you shake hands with a chimney sweep good luck will be yours. Most of us have never had the opportunity to even see a chimney sweep, let alone shake hands. All that may be changing as we seek new ways to cut back on fuel costs. Many people are considering woodburning heat as one alternative.

Wisps of smoke spiraling from chimneys across the landscape also mean soot buildup and potential chimney fires if care is not taken. If you use your fireplace often you can become your own chimney sweep. It's easy to do. It is also a very messy job

First things first – be sure your fire is out. Leave the flue open and block off the fireplace from inside while you work to keep soot and trash from getting all over your room.

Take a gunny sack – or heavy grocery size paper bag -- with rags or straw, add a rock (for extra weight) and tie the bag to a long rope. Climb up on your roof – but wear shoes that will allow you to grip the roofing material. Lower the sack down into the chimney and pull it back and forth a few times. That's it.

Check the inside of the chimney with a powerful flashlight beam to see if bricks or rocks are still strongly mortared. Examine the chimney from inside the house (Just look up!). If you do have loose pieces of mortar – be sure to fill in the cracks with fresh mortar

When you are using the fireplace again be sure to keep the flue closed when the fire is completely out. Otherwise the chimney can act as a siphon and drain warm air out of your house

Reader says course in fine shape

Sometime this summer, I recall reading a letter in the Courier criticizing the Charlevoix Golf Course. The primary complaint was that the tops of the bunkers had been scalped during cutting.

I would like to compare the Charlevoix course to another municipal course which I played in April of this year, - the Old Course at St. Andrews, Scotland. (Those of you familiar with the game will recall that Jack Nicklaus won the British on that course this summer.)

Holes: Charlevoix, 9 St. Andrews, 18 on the Old Course, four 18s in all

Tees: Equal

Fairways: Charlevoix gets the nod having better grass and more of it.

Traps: St. Andrews has many more and really tough ones.

Rough: There are virtually no trees on St. Andrews. In almost thirty years of playing Charlevoix, I think I have been behind most of the trees on the course. While St. Andrews has gourse (small shrubs) the trees at Charlevoix can give me more trouble.

Greens: Grass on both courses is about the same. St. Andrews has undulations that make No. 4 and No. 9 greens at Charlevoix look flat which they certainly are not.

On balance, I feel that the people of Charlevoix in general and the golf club staff in particular can be proud of their fine municipal golf course.

Bartrem joins Thomas

Dick Bartrem has joined Thomas Real Estate, owner Jim Thomas announced.

Bartrem had been with Ski & Shore Inc. for over a year in the commercial division. At Thomas Real Estate, Bartrem will be involved with both commercial and residential.

"Dick adds expertise to our firm," Thomas said, "which, I think, will be most valuable."

Bartrem started at Thomas Real Estate on Nov. 1. A resident of Charlevoix, Bartrem is a member of the Market Institute of the National Association of Realtors and has applied for status as a Certified Commercial Investment Member.

"Eighty percent of my training is in commercial," Bartrem said.

The Michigan State University graduate operated his own retail business in Breckenridge prior to moving to Charlevoix. He and his wife, Deb, have two daughters, Lisa and Leslee.

Hair style shop opens

Charlene Way, a recent graduate of Charlevoix High School and the Petoskey Beauty Academy, has opened a hair styling shop for men and women called Shear Happiness.

The new business is located on the corner of Bridge and Upright and is open Tuesday-Saturday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Shear Happiness is also open Thursday evening by appointment (547-2981).

Besides Charlene, Debbie Bellinger and Maria Murra also cut and style hair. Both women worked at Helene's Beauty Shoppe previously.

Shear Happiness carries Nucleic A (shampoo, hair conditioner, etc.) and Dermetics (nail polishes and lipstick). Both proven products, Charlene said.

Charlene said she is pleased with business since the shop opened a month ago.

"I think there was a need in Charlevoix for precision haircuts, especially with new advances in permanent waving," she said. "Plus we offer manicures, too."

Charlene is the daughter of Richard and Lois Way, who helped Charlene with financing the business. Debbie Bellinger is the manager.

TOM CAREY and Walter Hufford, a new member of the hospital's board of directors disucss plans for the future.

Hospital board organizes, sets goals for 1979

The board of directors of the Charlevoix Area Hospital set its goals and organized committees for the next year at a recent meeting.

The board of directors of the hospital has the ultimate responsibility for the functioning of this community hospital. They are elected at the annual meeting of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Association, an organization open to all area citizens.

For the next year and a half the board of directors, headed by President Thomas Carey, will focus their energies on the hospital's renovation and expansion project.

With the success of this summer's fund raising campaign, the board is turning its major efforts to seeking out the best means of raising the additional finances necessary to the building project. They are weighing the pros and cons of tax exempt bonds and taxable bonds. The project, it is estimated, will cost $2.1 million.

In conjunction with those studies, the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors is continuing the raise funds locally, and is investigating the possibility of grants from foundations.

Another major concern of the board is the continued search for a pediatrician to join the Charlevoix Area Hospital's medical staff.

The board of directors meets monthly as a group, and its several committees meet at least as frequently, in addition.

Walter Hufford, Charlevoix businessman, was elected to the board of directors during the hospital association's annual meeting in late September, replacing Glenn Kenney who did not seek reelection. William Sherman and Elbert Kaiser were reelected then for three year terms each.

In addition to Hufford, Sherman and Kaiser, members of the board are : Thomas Carey, Louis Hollow, E.D. "Pat" Hawley, Max Novak, June Cross, Jack Grubaugh, Roy Bruneel, and Dr. J.A. Gels, representing the medical staff.

Louis Hollow serves as vice president of the board, and E.D. Hawley is secretary-treasurer.

Other committee chairmen are: Finance and by-laws, E.D. Hawley; personnel and insurance, Max Novak; nominating Jack Grubaugh; Planning and development, Louis Hollow and delegate to medical staff meetings, June Cross.

The Joint Conference Committee, which meets quarterly is a planning and problem solving committee made up of representatives of the medical staff and the board of directors executive committee. This group sets long range goals for the hospital and reviews medical and administrative questions.

A special committee to follow up on the fund raising campaign is led by Walter Hufford with the assistance of Pat Hawley and Glenn Kenney, past board member who served as campaign general chairman this summer. This committee will also be seeking volunteers from throughout the area to assist with the final solicitations for the fund raising campaign.

Teacher Feature

...Jeanne Dubey

By PEG OHLE

Jeanne Dubey talks enthusiastically about her work:

"Reading is our number one subject and the children are really excited when they finish a book and are ready to start another one."

"The children" are first-graders at St. Mary's Catholic School in Charlevoix, where Mrs. Dubey teaches the class.

"We emphasize phonics in reading and have gotten good results. We use the Ginn 360 and 720 series, their latest books," the teacher explains.

What kind of stories do first-graders like to read? Stories they can relate to, stories about things they do every day, Mrs. Dubey says.

In addition to the class textbooks, the children are encouraged to make full use of the school and public libraries, and to join the "Scholastic Book Club", from which they receive paper back books geared to their reading grade level.

"Children who read outside the class progress faster than others," Mrs. Dubey believes.

Writing, or penmanship, is another important first grade subject, according to the teacher.

"We use the circle and line method. By that I mean the written letter 'A' begins with a circle and a line is added to the right side. We don't use the DeNealian method that is used in the public schools."

The resultant letters are really a type of script, not printing, which enables the children to go into cursive writing in the second grade.

First-graders at St. Mary's write not only words and sentences but paragraphs and short stories – and they write mostly original stories because copy work is not an important part of their program.

It used to be called "arithmetic", but now it's "math". These children have addition and subtraction problems every day along with whatever other math techniques they are studying at the time. These may be simple metric questions, telling time by the clock, or learning how to count money.

"Right now we've set up a grocery store and the children are buying things with play money. They love it and seem to know more about money than any class I've had. Maybe they're hearing more about money at home these days," Mrs. Dubey conjectures.

Holidays and birthdays of prominent people serve as background for the class' social studies.

"With Thanksgiving coming, we are studying the life of the Pilgrims and comparing it with life today. Also, the idea of Thanksgiving feasting gives us an opportunity to learn something about nutrition."

At the beginning of each new month the children learn to recognize the name of the month and the important days it will bring.

Then there are the science projects. The first-graders started the year learning about under-water animals. Now they're studying insects and will continue through the year considering the wonders of nature.

Next to their reading classes, the children like their music classes, Mrs. Dubey says. A teacher comes twice a week to teach them little songs, some for special occasions such as Father Magoon's birthday, which is coming up shortly.

First-graders at St. Mary's also have a class in religion each day, so do all the other children in the school.

A non-Catholic, Mrs. Dubey is one of five lay teachers and one Sister who teach at St. Mary's. What does she like about teaching in a parochial school?

"We can talk about God with the children any time we want to. We don't have many discipline problems when we're talking about God's goodness. The children want to please God, and they're concerned about and pray for those who are ill or have other problems," she explains.

The teachers all participate in a "Bible time" each morning, discussing many subjects, including the scriptures. "Protestants and Catholics are getting much closer together," Mrs. Dubey states.

When asked what she tries to accomplish in first grade, the teacher said, "I want to make learning fun – to keep the eagerness. I don't want it turned off."

This is Mrs. Dubey's seventh year of teaching at St. Mary's. She grew up in Kentucky and graduated from high school in Harrodsburg, Ky. Later she majored in education at Central Michigan University.

Her hobbies include traveling (she's been to Hawaii and Nassau and hopes to go to Europe "one of these days"), square dancing ("It's good exercise), and remodeling houses with her husband (they've "done" four of them).

Husband Leonard Dubey is street superintendent for the City of Charlevoix. The couple have two daughters, Cathy Liotta, who lives in Charlevoix with her husband, Eugene, and son, Bryan, and Cristol, a sophomore in Charlevoix High School.

"All parents interested in sending their children to St. Mary's are welcome to stop by and visit the classrooms and talk to the teachers," Mrs. Dubey concludes.

Bloodmobile here Thursday afternoon

It's Bloodmobile time again in Charlevoix!

The goal for the visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile has been set for 125 units or pints according to Mrs. David Fowler who is heading the project. The Bloodmobile will be at the American Legion Hall on Garfield Ave. from 1 until 7 p.m. on Thursday.

"We hope to reach our goal this time" Mrs. Fowler said in announcing the arrival of the Bloodmobile. She went on to say that Charlevoix missed its goal by almost 50 pints the last time in May so she is hopeful that the deficit will be made up at this time.

Volunteers to assist with the operation of the Bloodmobile as well as donors are needed. A call for registered nurses and licensed practical nurses has gone out. If you are an R.N. or L.P.N. and would volunteer some time you are asked to call Mrs. Francis Lelt at 547-2362. Other volunteers needed to assist may call Mrs. Vernon Mathews at 547-9838.

And, if you are willing to make 10 phone calls to schedule previous donors, you are asked to call Mrs. Fowler at 547-9314.

In seeking donors, Mrs. Fowler called attention to the fact that as a donor, you or any member of your family may obtain whole blood without charge except for the administering of it should it be needed.

High school students who are 17 years old may donate with permission of a parent. Parental permission slips are available from Roy Fortin, assistant principal at the Charlevoix High School.

Others who are helping to organize the Bloodmobile are Mrs. Clifford Biddick, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Herman Izor, Mrs. Robert Tollas and Mrs. Allan Towsley.

Senior band members and Gary Stutzman

Charlevoix Marching Band to present concert Monday

The Charlevoix High School Marching Band, directed by Gary Stutzman, will present a concert at the high school gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Appearing with the band will be the color guard.

Music played during the recent marching season will be featured at the concert which will be presented without charge. The color guard is also scheduled to perform during the concert.

In announcing the concert, Stuzman said the spirited marching band had closed out its season before a packed house during the Rayder-Petoskey game Friday night.

The performance marked the final appearance of 34 members of the band, seniors, some of whom had been marching for four years.

He went on to say that this year's marching season had been highlighted by an excellent color guard, fine soloists and a strong playing ensemble.

Featured soloists this year have been Kris Fiedler, Jean Lenhart, Clay Patrie, and Mike Shupert on trumpet. Jon Cebulski was the soloist Friday night.

Color guard members are Janeen Boal+, Lynne DeMoore+, Sue Miller+, Lori Niswander, Leslie Wood, Connie Left+, Kim Schnackenberg+, Lisa Staley, Lisa Pischner, Shari Mol+, captain, Kris Lignell, Irene Cutler+, Debbie Garten+, Shari Barnes, Kim Mitchell, Lisa Hoffman, alternate, Tammy Helms.

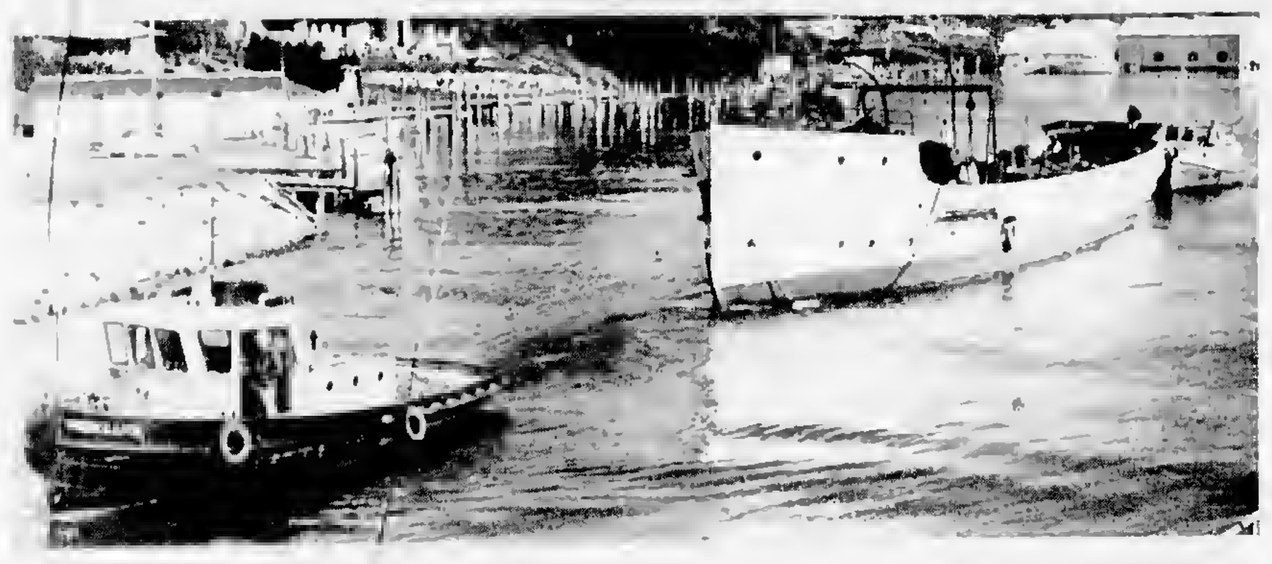
Other members of the special corps are Steve Landon+, drum major; Brenda Boss+, golden girl; Rifle Corps, Penny Kane+, captain; Darlene Smalley+, Debbie Potter, Debbie Shores, Sharon Himebaugh, Carolyn Loper.

Many special effects were used this year by the color guard. Drum Major Steve Landon wrote many of the drills and color guard routines, Stutzman said, adding that his expertise was a major factor in this year's fine performances. (+ designates seniors among the special corps.)

Senior members of the marching band are Becky Allard, Kathy Cook, Laura Dziedzie, Kris Fiedler, Larry Houghton, Jean Lenhart, Mark Lignell, Danya Rothenberger, Mike Shupert, Don Sonnenberg, all of whom have been members of the marching band for four years.

Other seniors who have been members for three years or less are Dawn Bartlett, Linda Herbolsheimer, Greg Leymon, Darlene Manville, Clay Patrie, Debbie Potter, Michele Robinson, Lori Schorsch, Jon Cebulski, and Ralph Rosenthal.

The public is urged to attend this concert which will mark the final appearance of this fine group.



THE former Coast Guard cutter Aspen, owned by Maurice Taylor of Ellsworth, is towed to the Medusa Cement dock where two propulsion engines were put aboard Saturday. The engines will be installed later. The former cutter will be equipped as a tool and die shop eventually. It is now back in the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Youngs celebrate 25th anniversary

Friends and relatives of Florence and Melvin Young are invited to an open house to celebrate the couple's 25th wedding anniversary.

The party will be held Nov. 11, beginning at 4 p.m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew C. Johnson, Highway M-66, Charlevoix.

Assisting with arrangements are Mr. Young's stepmother, Mrs. Bonnie Johnson; his half sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gokee; his half sisters, Carol, Janet, and Mary Johnson; his half sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hadix and his half brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew E. Johnson.

Health Department expanding hours

District Health Department Number Three will be expanding it's hours of services to Northern Michigan residents starting Monday, Nov. 6.

All officers of District Health Department No. 3 will remain open during the noon hour.

NATURAL RESOURCES COMMISSION ACTION
(under authority of Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended)
OPEN SEASONS AND CATCH LIMITS ON PIKE, WALLEYE, SAUGER AND MUSKELLUNGE

The Natural Resources Commission, at its meeting on August 12, 1977 under the authority of Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended, ordered that its subject order of August 15, 1975, remain effective through December 31, 1977, and that the following order become effective on January 1, 1978.

It shall be unlawful to take the following named species except within the open seasons and daily limits prescribed (statewide regulations apply unless otherwise restricted)

Statewide open seasons on all waters not otherwise closed to fishing shall be from May 15 through February on walleye, sauger, northern pike, and muskellunge (including tiger muskellunge). The daily catch limit shall be 5 singly or in combination for largemouth and smallmouth bass, walleye, sauger, and northern pike. 1 for muskellunge (including tiger muskellunge)

The above regulations apply except that walleye and sauger may be taken at any time from the Detroit and St. Clair rivers, Lake St. Clair, and Lake Erie, and that muskellunge in Lake St. Clair, St. Clair and Detroit rivers may be taken only from the first Saturday in June through December 15 of each year

NoMAD plans rally

A "peaceful group of concerned citizens who oppose nuclear power and advocate alternative energy sources" plan a non-nuclear pro-alternative rally here on Dec. 2.

NoMAD, a 20 member group based in Traverse City, announced plans for a rally Friday morning.

Group spokeswoman Pam Peterson told the Courier a memorial service will be held at 1:30 p.m. (Dec. 2) at Elzinga Park on U.S. 31 South. After the service, some members of the NoMAD group may walk the four-tenths of a mile to the Big Rock Nuclear Plant and ask that it be dismantled.

The walk to the plant is viewed as an act of civil disobedience "in the best tradition of Thoreau, Ghandi and Martin Luther King," Ms. Peterson said. "We will express our opposition to nuclear power by breaking a law that protects an unhealthy and unsafe situation in northern Michigan."

"By doing this, we feel we are obeying higher laws of morality."

The group expects statewide support from other anti-nuclear organizations. NoMAD is active in Petoskey, Charlevoix and Traverse City. They have submitted reports to the Traverse City Light and Power Commission on the feasibility of alternative methods.

It was on Dec. 2 that the nuclear fission chain reaction occurred at the University of Chicago.

Harriers fifth in state

The Charlevoix Rayder cross country team captured fifth place in the Class C state finals Saturday afternoon at Haslett.

The Rayders finished with a team score of 167. Wyoming Lee won the title with a 123 score. Also placing ahead of the Rayders were: Breckenridge, 135; Freeland, 161; and DeWitt, 164.

Individually, Jeff Drenth was the top Rayder runner. Drenth took seventh place with a time of 16:52. Mark Russell placed 12th with a time of 17:00. Both Drenth and Russell received medals for finishing in the top 15.

Other Rayders competing were: Jay Swartwout, 31st (17:33); Jeff Landon, 32nd (17:34); Cluy Patrie, 85th (18:26); Jim Duke, 88th (18:30); and Brian Thompson, 112th (18:56).

Twenty-one teams and 145 runners participated in the final. Dan Shanejeh of Freeland was the individual winner with a time of 16:16. Rogers City, a member of the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference, came in 10th.

The fifth place finish capped an outstanding year for Coach Pete Spieles runners. The Rayders won the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference for the second consecutive year, won four of six invitationals and placed first in the regionals. The two invitationals in which the Rayders did not win they finished second. In dual meet competition the Rayders were 8-0.

Seniors on the cross country team include Drenth, Russell, Patrie, Thompson, Steve Mielke, Tim Hiller and Scott Dunkelberg.

Rayder mistakes prove costly, lose to Petoskey

Statistics don't always tell the story.

Friday night's football clash between Charlevoix and Petoskey was a case in point.

The Rayders of Coach Don Carey had 10 more first downs than their opponents, 24 more yards on the ground and 39 more yards in the air.

Still, the Rayders lost, 37-13.

Turnovers plagued Charlevoix throughout the game. The Rayders lost three fumbles and had three passes intercepted.

The loss to Petoskey dropped Charlevoix's record to 6-3 on the season. In Michigan-Huron Shores play the Rayders were 4-3, good for fourth place.

Petoskey's Eric Swenor had a big night. The senior running back defensive tackle scored three times, which enabled him to win the conference scoring crown with 66 points.

After Clark Hewitt returned a punt 72 yards in the first quarter, Swenor got touchdown number one on a eight yard run. Moments later he picked up a Rayder fumble and scampered 57 yards for touchdown number two. Then still in the first half, he bulled over from the one yard line. Will Chamberlain converted after all three touchdowns and it was 21-0 at half.

Things didn't get any better for Charlevoix in the third quarter either. A pass interception set-up another Northmen score as Hewitt connected with Adam Fruge' on a 22 yard pass. Chamberlain's kick made it 28-0. Charlevoix, unable to move the football, was forced to punt out of its own end zone. Punter Scott Morgan stepped on the end line after receiving the snap and Petoskey was awarded a two point safety. Following the free kick, Petoskey pushed across its final score as Bob Esford plunged one yard. Chamberlain again added the extra point.

The Rayders finally got untracked in the final quarter. Quarterback Gil Noirot passed nine yards to Doug Buday for a score than Mark Keller tallied from the two yard line. Morgan converted after the first touchdown.

Charlevoix all-stars prevail

The Charlevoix all-star soccer team got two goals from Jason Brindel to beat the Petoskey all-stars, 4-2.

Jim Ciuk and Mike Steele also scored for Charlevoix. Mike Rahaley and Bill Sequin scored for Petoskey.

Charlevoix took a 2-0 lead at halftime. Brindel and Ciuk then scored goals early in the second half to ice the game for Charlevoix.

In goal for Charlevoix were Kent Seymour and Mike Thompson.

This was the last soccer game of the season.

Sherri Solissen arches shot over Cothy Behon

Cagers rout Gaylord, Petoskey

The Charlevoix Rayders girls basketball team remained on a collision course with St. Ignace last week by overpowering Gaylord and Petoskey.

Coach Toni Felter's team improved its record to 8-1 in Michigan-Huron Shores play and 12-2 overall. The Rayders remained in a first place tie with St. Ignace. The Saints also claimed wins over Gaylord and Petoskey last week.

Tuesday night the Rayders bested Gaylord, 52-27. Charlevoix took command of the game right at the outset by grabbing a 14-4 first quarter lead. The Rayders increased the margin to 18 points, 27-9, at half. And for all practical purposes the game was over. Charlevoix led 37-15 after three quarters.

Melinda Klooster, the league's top scorer, tossed in 26 points to lead the Rayder attack. All but two of the Rayders scored in the contest.

Emily Hewitt had 13 for Gaylord.

Thursday night Charlevoix knocked off Petoskey, 69-41. Once again, the Rayders started the game with all guns ablazin. By the time the Rayders cooled off it was 23-10 after the first quarter.

Petoskey, to their credit, did not fold. The Northmen closed the gap to 37-29 at half, thus giving promise for a close second half.

But as quick as you could say Sherri Selissen, the Rayders were back in command. With Selissen scoring 10 points in the third quarter, Charlevoix built up a commanding 52-37 lead.

Selissen finished with 26 points and Klooster added 15, 10 of which came in the first quarter shootout.

Cindy Okerlund had 13 and Becky Gengle 10 for Petoskey.

The Rayders play Rogers City and Cheboygan this week and close out the conference schedule Nov. 14 by traveling to St. Ignace.

In JV action last week, Charlevoix beat Gaylord, 47-40, and Petoskey, 47-33.

FREEDOM OF WORSHIP IS ONE OF YOUR BASIC RIGHTS

In any free society, there must be two distinct but not conflicting sets of laws inherent in the Constitution by which it is governed. The first must clearly define what the people may not do, and the second should just as plainly record what they must not be prevented from doing by any agency of government. This second list must include among other things the right to assemble peaceably, to express their opinions without fear orally or in print, and to worship God according to the dictates of each individual conscience. The surest way to retain these rights is to exercise them. Attend the Church of your own choice; and give thanks to God for being allowed to do so, in your own particular way.

Three people get McBride Award

The recipients of the annual Larry McBride Sportsmanship Award for men, the Village Inn Pizza Slowpitch Sportsman Award for women and the batting and home run trophies in the women's league of the Charlevoix Softball Association have been named by James Willis, commissioner of the association.

David Novotny was named to receive the 12th Larry McBride Sportsmanship Award, Beverly Sladek, the 6th annual Village Inn Sportsmanship Award and Brenda Dishong, the batting and homerun trophies. Bernie DeVries received the batting and homerun award in the men's league earlier.

The Larry McBride Sportsmanship Award is given annually to the person who best personifies the meaning of the word "sportsmanship". It was established in 1969 in memory of Larry Bride, a 1964 graduate of the Charlevoix High School who died in June 1969 as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident in which his parents were killed. He was an outstanding athlete in high school where he brought honors to himself and the school as a polevaulter and in other sports including softball.

In being named as the recipient of the award, Novotny said "I feel that this is a real honor. I knew Larry well; I graduated with him. We were on the track team together. He represented the ultimate in sportsmanship as far as I was concerned. He was a fine person. He was fair, he was dedicated to whatever he happened to be doing; he had high moral standards without being stuffy about it. He had all the qualities that you hope your own sons will have when they grow up. Because I knew him and what he stood for I feel very humble to have been named to receive the award".

Softball coaches and officials select the recipient.

They also select the member of the women's league to receive the Village Inn Sportsmanship award: "To be named by one's peers to receive something like this is very flattering. I will try to be deserving of it" Mrs. Sladek, a veteran of the softball program in Charlevoix, said.

Brenda Dishong earned the batting title with a .673 batting average for the season. "I can't remember how many home runs I had" she answered when asked how many she had hit to win the homerun trophy.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE

TO: Norman H. LaCroix and Edna J. LaCroix of Route 1, Metro Road, Boyne Falls, Michigan 49713, and all persons claiming under and through them.

Default having been made in the terms and conditions of a certain Real Estate Mortgage made by Norman H. LaCroix and Edna J. LaCroix, his wife, of the Village of Boyne Falls, Charlevoix County, Michigan, as Mortgagors to First National Bank and Trust Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the United States, of Howard and Mitchell Streets, of the City of Petoskey, Emmet County, Michigan, as Mortgagee, which Mortgage was dated November 7, 1975 and recorded November 13, 1975 in Liber 144, pages 47-50, Charlevoix County Records, and the entire balance secured by said Mortgage having become due and payable by reason of the acceleration provision provided in said Note and Mortgage, and upon which Mortgage there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, for principal and accrued interest paid by Mortgagee pursuant to the conditions of said Mortgage the sum of TWENTY-THREE THOUSAND ONE HUNDRED FORTY-TWO DOLLARS AND NINETY-SIX CENTS and no suit or proceeding in law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof;

Now, Therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statutes of the State of Michigan in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Wednesday, the 6th day of December, 1978, at 11:00 o'clock a.m., said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale at public auction to the highest bidder at the main lobby of the Charlevoix County Building in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, that being the building where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held, of the premises described in said Mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amounts due, as aforesaid, on said Mortgage with interest thereon at nine and one-half percent (9-½ percent) per annum together with all legal costs, charges and expenses, including the attorney fees allowed by law, and also any sums which may, subsequent to the date of this notice, be paid by the undersigned, necessary to protect its interest in the premises. The premises to be foreclosed, described in said Mortgage, is as follows:

That part of the Northwest Quarter (NW¼) of the Northeast Quarter (NE¼) of Section Twenty-Eight (28), Township 32 North, Range Five (5) West, lying Westerly of the centerline of Boyne River, Boyne Valley Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan.

The redemptive period afforded Mortgagors by statute is one (1) year from date of foreclosure sale.

Dated at Petoskey, Michigan, this 27th day of October, 1978.

JV's bow, 36-20

The Charlevoix Rayder JV football squad closed out its campaign Thursday by suffering a 36-20 defeat at Petoskey.

Charlevoix ended the year with a 2-5-1 record.

The Rayders scored first in Thursday's contest when Jeff Drury and Mike Zednicek combined on a 35 yard pass. Joe Sladek converted and its was 7-0.

Petoskey moved ahead, 8-7, when Dick Conti scampered 10 yards for a score and Dave Schuch added a two point conversion. But the Northmen lead was shortlived as Charlevoix bounced back on a 57 yard pass from Drury to Zednicek.

The game continued to seesaw back and forth. Petoskey got on the board again when Bill Keiser recovered a fumble for a touchdown. Then Charlevoix tallied – for the last time – as Drury connected with Ben Shores on a 20 yard pass. That made it 20-14 in Charlevoix's favor at half.

The second half was all Petoskey – scoringwise. Conti went 11 and five yards for scores and Schuch went one yard. Schuch and Conti each added two point conversions.

Millers attend merchandise show

In the midst of busy preparation for the coming winter months and Christmas Holiday season, Mr. and Mrs. Don Miller, owners of the local Ben Franklin Store, took time off to attend the semi-annual Ben Franklin Merchandise Show in Lake Geneva, Wis. on Oct. 15 and 16.

Ben Franklin, a national franchise chain of 2,000 independently-owned variety stores, hosted the two day fall show in each of their eight regions across the country, to introduce new product lines and new fashions for spring 1979. Among the new fashions presented, the Miller's learned that big tops and blousons will again be popular, along with dresses and skirts, reflecting the more feminine influence in today's dressing. And, it appears that terry cloth will be the No. 1 fabric for active spring sportswear.

The Miller's also previewed Ben Franklin's new corporate commercials, to be seen on national TV and heard on network radio stations in 1979. The new commercials continue the theme "Discover Ben Franklin. We bring variety to life", and portray people using and enjoying the products purchased at Ben Franklin.

Thses semi-annual merchandise shows provide an opportunity for independent Ben Franklin stores owners to meet and exchange ideas with other owners and Ben Franklin management.

STUDENTS at St. Mary's acted out a play entitled "Dr. Frankenstein and Friends" Tuesday morning. The play took place on a dark, stormy evening in Dr. Frankenstein's lab.

Loding picked for board seat

Marvin Loding, who ran on the Republican ticket unopposed for County Commissioner in District 12 (Boyne City), was nominated for that position by the Charlevoix County Republican Committee just six days after his election.

The last-minute nomination was occasioned by the fact that the previously-nominated candidate, John Kujawski, an incumbent had resigned the post because he plans to move out of the district, and also because he had been elected to serve on the County Road Commission.

Charlevoix County Clerk Clarence Rabach explained that if this action had not been taken by the County Republican Committee before the election, a special election would have had to be held later at additional cost to the county.

Loding has lived in Boyne City since 1951 and served on the City Commission for 17 years, including three terms as mayor. He is retired from his job as engineer with the Northern Michigan Electric Company. Presently he is serving on the Boyne City Planning Commission and the Zoning Board of Appeals. Mr. and Mrs. Loding have two grown children, Mark and Karen, both of whom live in Boyne City.

Kujawski will succeed Williak Korthase, Jr. of Boyne City on the Road Commission.

Watch out for deer

The Department of Natural Resources warns motorists that November and December are peak months for car-deer accidents in the state.

During 1977, there were a record 16,315 accidents over the 12-month period. Two persons were killed and 840 injured.

In Charlevoix County, there were 122 car-deer accidents and 11 persons injured during 1977.

Dave Arnold, DNR deer specialist, says more deer are killed during the last three months of the year because of the deer mating season whih keeps the whitetails on the move.

With over a million deer in the state, Arnold says motorists should take extra precaution as they drive along Michigan roads and highways this fall and winter.

"Slow down as soon as you see a deer," he says. "A deer standing alongside the road may jump in front of you at the last second. Be especially alert during evening hours. And if you see one deer, there are probably more somewhere nearby."

Deer-car accidents were highest in southern lower Michigan last year, with 8,069 being recorded. Next highest total was in northern lower Michigan with 6,644, then the Upper Peninsula with 1,602.

"Even then, the true total is higher," he says. "Some deer are hit and die later, and if no damage is sustained to a car, the accident may not even be reported."

CMU has 72 students from Charlevoix

MT. PLEASANT – Central Michigan University again this year draws its students from all 83 of Michigan's counties.

And just over half of CMU's 16,203 students this semester come from eight counties along a line that runs roughly from Mt. Pleasant to the Saginaw Bay and then to downtown Detroit.

Students from those eight counties account for 50.5 percent of CMU's current enrollment, according to figures compiled by the Registrar's Office. The figures also show that 97.9 percent of CMU's students are from Michigan, with other states accounting for 172 students and other countries and U.S. territories for 154.

Oakland County leads as the home base for the most students with 1,942. That's 12 percent of the total enrollment. Wayne County, with 1,631 or 10.1 percent, is second and CMU's home county, Isabella, is third with 1,128 or 7 percent.

Charlevoix County currently has 72 students at CMU to rank 49th among Michigan's 83 counties.

Others in the top 10 include Saginaw with 823 or 5.1 percent, Midland with 804 or 5 percent, Macomb with 777 or 4.8 percent, Genesee with 724 or 4.5 percent, Kent with 582 or 3.6 percent, Bay with 395 or 2.4 percent, and Gratiot with 363 or 2.2 percent.

Wedding

Morse-Notestine

Kathy Morse and Ray Notestine, both of Boyne City, were married Oct. 28 at Christ Lutheran Church in Boyne City.

The Reverend Douglas K. Janetzke performed the double-ring late afternoon ceremony.

Parents of the newlyweds are Ivan and Lola Morse of Boyne City and Claude and Helen Notestine of Farmington Hills.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She chose a gown of white satin and lace with floor-length veil for the occasion and carried a bouquet of white roses.

Attendants were Ardith Notestine of Boyne City, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, matron of honor; Carol Bradley of Boyne City, sister of the bride, Linda Germany of Wyandotte, and Diana Notestine, niece of the bridegroom, bridesmaids; Ruth Ann Bradley, niece of the bride, flower girl; and Ronnie Bradley, nephew of the bride, ringbearer.

The matron of honor's gown was of rust color fabric, while those of the bridesmaids were peach color. They carried arrangements of three roses with white Bibles. The flower girl's gown was similar to that of the bride, but without the veil.

Richard Notestine, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Douglas Notestine, another brother of the bridegroom; Arthur Lawson, nephew of the bridegroom, and Dan Notestine, nephew of the bridegroom. Ushers were Al Lawson, nephew of the bridegroom, and Rick Notestine, brother of the bridegroom.

Vocal music for the ceremony was furnished by Judy Baylor.
